But every day from these houses go men and women who have nailed on their faces the smile that won't come off. They greet each other cheerfully. They talk pleasantly of inconsequential things. They do their work efficiently. They do not discuss their fears, nor their griefs, nor weep upon the shoulders of others. They do their best to lift the gloom that is blacking out the whole world.

These people who do not wallow in despondency, who do not hold every listener up with their tales of woe, and who try to buck up all with whom they come in contact, instead of still further depressing them, are not cowards and quitters, as you seem to think. They are just as much heroes as anyone who leads a forlorn charge in battle, because they are fighting on with their very spirits fainting within them, and refusing to give in to the luxury of tears.

You think the people who turn a cheerful face on the world and who do not howl their troubles to the skies are hard and callous. You say that they do not care whether our fighting men live or die. You accuse those who go about their ordinary business of life of not knowing that there is a war on. Stop and think and you will realize how childish this point of view is.

For every soldier on the front is some parent's son, or some woman's husband, or some girl's sweetheart, and what happens to him is the most important thing in the world to the old woman haggling over her points with the grocer, or the thin young mother with her babe, who has never seen his father, on her breast, or the girl who is putting a little piece of embroidery she has worked in the hope chest that may never be filled.

And what good do you think would be accomplished if everyone followed your example and did not even try to put on a cheerful act? Suppose everyone went about all swathed in black. Suppose there was no conversation except people exchanging their fears and dreads and apprehensions. Would it not turn the world into a pit of despair whose gloom nobody could endure? Would we not go crazy with the sheer horror of such a nightmare?

No, my dear. The world is a sad enough place now without our adding to it by making a cult of depression. What we need is cheerfulness and the courage that it takes to laugh in order that we may not cry. What we need to take now is what Stevenson called "the brave attitude toward life."

Old Adage Worries Sailor's Wife

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a lonely sailor's wife, 19 years old. My husband is only 20 and we have a little son 19 months' old. He writes me every chance he gets and even phones when he is in port and tells me how much he loves me and misses me. However, all my friends say that all sailors are alike and that they bet he is running around with other girls whenever he gets shore leave.

He expects to come home soon and what I want to know is: Should I ask him if he has been flirting with other girls? Or, if he happens to tell me that he has, how should I act? Get mad, or just put it down to lonesomeness?

LONELY SAILOR'S WIFE.

ANSWER—What sort of friends have you got who are trying to break up your marriage and undermine your confidence in your husband? They are not friends. They are enemies who probably have an eye on your good-looking sailor themselves. They are the ones you should be afraid of, instead of some chance-met girl in a port.

My earnest advice to you is to break with them, and when your husband comes home don't ask him if he has been true to you. Just assume that he has and that he still loves you, as he says he does. You've got your little baby to think of as well as yourself, so don't let malicious gossips make you leave your husband.

THE SWEETEST ACCESSORY—A heady perfume which suggests flowers of all seasons is right for the formal toilette. Here are formal match mates for it: pearl and cut glass trimming on velvet gloves, for a necklace. When you've contrived your costume for a gala, or even for ordinary daily good-grooming, don't forget that the accessory which brings out the ensemble to a new high is some well chosen scent. Some women envy others who seem to float on a breath of sweetness; their secret is simple. They apply perfume, rather than dash it on without discretion. Some perfumes are best applied to the skin...behind the ear, at the hairline, over the wrists. Others combine better with fabrics, especially wool. Experiment, and gain distinction.

Word from Y.M.C.A. basketball circles is that there are excellent prospects of at least a four-team City League and that definite steps to organize the loop will be taken next week. It is too early to give the setup of the league but it is assured there will be a team from C.G.E. and that Pete McArthur will probably lead another club into action. The few experienced players left in basketball here are anxious to keep the game alive and they are counting upon the youngsters to take over a lot of the burden and fill the gaps that have been caused by heavy enlistments among cage performers. Some of the young players made fine progress during the House League schedule and while it cannot be hoped to have this season's City League equal in quality the standard of basketball that was played a few years ago, there will be plenty of enthusiasm and out of the games will emerge a few future stars. It is felt that by operating the City League that basketball in spite of the inroads caused by the demands of the armed services will go on developing here in contrast to the situation in other sports where no fresh material is being trained for the teams of the future.

Playing A Bigger Game

It is well to remember in all this controversy over members of the armed services and hockey that many of Canada's hockey players, especially those who were stars in the amateur ranks have been playing their part in the big game overseas. Scribe Bill Walshe of Kingston pays tribute to some of them from his bailiewick who have spent their fifth Christmas across the pond. His article which deals with four Kingston boys who were members of the R.C.H.A. team playing in the George Van Horne series in Kingston when they were ordered overseas early in the winter of 1939-40 is as follows: "'Best wish to The Whig, Jock Harty Arena and the public of Kingston,' signed Bob Armishaw, Jack Belwa, Russ Hanlon and Felix Lange. That was the belated Christmas greetings we received by airgraph yesterday from a former Kingston hockey group somewhere in Italy but since the Christmas greeting card of the Eighth Army was autographed Nov. 30, 1943, those boys have been through hell on earth, in the bitter battle on the road to Rome and one of the group has been reported seriously wounded in action. They were in the battle of Ortona when the Canadians fought man to man and drove the Nazis from the Italian seaport. They helped storm the Sangro River and battled around Moro, upholding the traditions of Canada's fighting men. They are probably still in the thick of the fighting and even when they signed the card of greetings for friends at home, through this department, they knew that soon they would meet the enemy face to face after a four-year wait. The card expressed a confidence in their ability to fight and win, as they had fought and won so many hockey games in Canada and England and it also expressed optimism that they would soon be home."

Suggesting that Promoter Frank Tunney should be paged, Ken Colling has dug up the following interesting wrestling paragraph for his daily Belleville sport column: "Some one once said—"there's nothing new under the sun"—but, apparently that was before modern wrestling came into being. Down in Houston, Texas, tomorrow night the grunt and groan moguls will reach the zenith of all grappling shows ever attempted on the face of this green earth. The old adage that music hath charms to soothe the savage beast will be tested at Houston Friday night in the most unique manner. There is to be a war bond rally and the Houston Symphony Orchestra will play while professional wrestlers put on a show. They're calling it "the world's first wrestling-symphony concert" and admission will be by war bonds only and the goal of $5,000,000 has been set. Composer Henry Coffman will present a symphonic arrangement for the first—and probably the last—time. In it he will tell a story of sweat and mat-pounding that characterizes wrestlers in action. The wrestlers will be "Wild Bill" Longson, world's heavyweight championship claimant, and Louis Thesz, former self-styled titlist. Now why didn't Promoter Tunney think up something like that when he was holding forth at the Hume Arena."

Looks Like A Wow

One of the most interesting junior hockey games of the season is scheduled for Oshawa tonight with Toronto St. Michael's clashing with the Generals and a number of Peterborough enthusiasts are talking of making the trip to the Motor City to see the clash. George Campbell, Oshawa sports scribe, has the following in regard to the game in his sport comment: "Other than perhaps the necessary absence of Bill Barker, the Generals will be at full strength for their game with the college students here on Saturday night. St. Mike's will also be at full strength, unless they should suffer some injuries up in Hamilton. It shapes up like the best game of the schedule for Oshawa hockey fans. Already there have been many inquiries regarding tickets but the sale doesn't open until Friday morning as usual, and by the way, there will be no telephone orders permitted. With the schedule now past the halfway mark, interest is increasing and the games are becoming more important. Galt Kists loosened their grip on first place Tuesday night when they dropped an overtime decision up in Port Colborne. We note that McCarthy of Galt, who carries a high stick himself most of the time, had his head cut open and had to leave the game for repairs. Ubriaco, their ace point-scorer and centre star, was not in uniform at Port Colborne. It seems that he was injured in the game against Oshawa Generals and had to miss Tuesday night's tilt. It will be recalled that he charged the wily Ezinicki but himself was tossed for a loop when Willie ducked. Ubriaco got a penalty and the fans screamed at the referee. Now it turns out that Ubriaco also got hurt."

"A report from New York brings word that big Ed Levy is to be given a tryout as an outfielder with the Yankees this spring," writes Jack Koffman in the Ottawa Citizen. "Levy is the first baseman who failed to make the grade with Joe McCarthy's club last year. Levy impressed Joe McCarthy and other critics early in the spring training grind a year ago but the champions finally decided to string along with Nick Etten. It may be different this trip, however. Manager McCarthy may be glad to settle for outfielders who formerly played first base before the 1944 campaign is very old. There will be no DiMaggios roaming the outer pastures in the majors this season. Charley Keller is the latest Yankee outfielder in military service and the one-time Bombers, like other major league clubs, may be settling for ball players boasting less skill than Levy."

Crepe Hangers Lashed By Ball Mogul

By JACK HAND, Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 —(AP) — Lashing out at crepe-hangers who foresee a gloomy 1944 for higher class minor baseball circuits, President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League said to-day his clubs are in better shape than last year and nothing but a direct order from the Government will stop them.

"Nobody has any right to make predictions at this time." Shaughnessy said. But I figure that we will have sufficient players to handle the situation. The majors plan to go and so do we. We have signed several men. Some are 4-Fs and some are pre-Pearl Harbor fathers. If the Majors can run, so can we."

Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers expressed fears that the International, American Association and Pacific Coast Leagues would have to shut their gates due to the player shortage.

Shaughnessy observed that while the majors plan to absorb experienced men on the way down, the Double A loops will be able to use some on the way up who are not quite ready for the big show. Other sources of player material indicated by the baseball executive are the armed services who are discharging men every day, some of them ball players.

"It all adds up to a repeat performance of last year when many feared for the game's future," Shaughnessy stated as he pointed out that every Double A club has a big investment of from $100,000 to $200,000 in player talent, men on their defence list who would be lost if the teams failed to operate.

The International, the only minor league to weather the storm in the First Great War, looks to '44 with prospects that two cities that could not play night ball last year will turn on the arcs.

More Like Cricket

YANKEETOWN, Ind., Jan. 22—(AP). — Coach Culmer West wanted to hold down the scoring, he said, but:

"The regulars begged me so hard to put them in the game I just could not refuse."

That's how he explained Yankeetown's 131-6 triumph —its 12th straight—over Folsomville in a High School basbetball game last night. That surpassed the Yankees' previous scoring record, set earlier in the season, when they downed Selvin, 121-13. Yank centre Jim Bennett looped in 22 fielders.

3 Boston Men Purchase Braves

BOSTON, Jan. 22 —(AP) —The Boston Braves appeared to be on their strongest financial footing to-day as majority control passed into the hands of three wealthy Boston contractors who gave President Bob Quinn stout support three years ago when he organized a syndicate to adopt the national League's then most troublesome problem child.

Quinn has announced that a group, comprising Joseph Maney, Guido L. Rugo and Louis R. Perini has gained control by buying out other stockholders.

The Braves' financial woes started back in the early 20's but they did not come to a head until a decade had passed when C. F. Adams, then owner of the Boston Bruins Hockey Club and majority stockholder in the Suffolk Downs Race Track, took possession from a group headed by Emil Fuchs, back in 1936.

Because of his race track connections, Adams was forced to turn over control of the Braves, which he did to Bob Quinn, who headed the Brooklyn Dodgers the previous season. Since then Quinn has been battling financial problems that existed when he took over and now he appears to have them all in proper order.

Under the new setup, Quinn will continue as President, Maney as treasurer, and John Quinn, elder son of the former, as assistant treasurer.

NEW YORK, Jan 22 — (AP). — While Branch Rickey insists that no player "who will be with the Brooklyn club" will be offered a salary slash this year, the Mahatma of Montague Street apparently isn't too certain that they will sign without an argument.... Rickey points out that when players are plentiful, a club can afford to take an independent attitude toward those who balk, but this year, what with the draft hanging over them, war plant salaries to think about, and little competition for places on a club, the opposite may be true....Branch should have had an ear to the ground at the recent Nebraska-Oklahoma basketball game when Coach Ad Lewandowski, who had to send two players back to Nebraska before the contest, merely remarked: "All I can do is co-operate with the inevitable."

Hard to scare, too:

When Coach Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens met Pitcher Mort Cooper of the Cardinals recently he said: "From your pictures I always thought you were a great big grouchy sort of guy.".....Cooper grinned: "You gotta look tough in print because the Yankees read the papers and they're hard to fool."

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Walter Johnson, a baseball immortal who now operates a dairy farm in Maryland not far from Washington where he pitched 21 years for the Senators, said yesterday there "isn't as much science in baseball as there was in the old days and the lively ball has prevented the development of many really great pitchers." The strategy now seemed to be for the batters just to stand up and slug, he declared. A couple of runs meant nothing whereas a stolen base, a walk or the squeeze play often won a game in the days when he was a master-moundsman.

Adam Pianga, known in the ring as young Kid McCoy, yesterday announced his retirement from the ring because of a kidney ailment which had brought about his discharge from the U.S. Army. Now 24 years old, the Detroiter had won 46 fights, lost seven and had four draws as a pro welterweight in five years.

To Apply Again

Jockey Don Meade, who won a Kentucky Derby with Broker's Tip, said yesteday at Miami, Fla., he would apply for a rider's license in the spring. The Jockey Club and the New York State Racing Commission, refused to renew his license last year because of charge involving the running of a race.

Babe Didrikson Zaharias, recently reinstated as an amateur by the U.S. Golf Association, announced yesterday at Beverly Hills, Calif., she had taken up the game of tennis, apart from golf, and intended to try for the National women's tennis singles championship.

The Cleveland Indians open their spring training season March 13 at Lafayette, Ind., with a squad of 31 men, it was announced yesterday at Cleveland by Vice-President Roger Peckinpaugh. This is the smallest squad in the club's history.

President Ed Dudley of the U.S. Professional Golf Association announced yesterday J. Russell Gnau, Detroit business man, would sponsor the Ryder Cup matches in 1944 for the fifth year, the dates and site to be determined later.

Truett (Rip) Sewell, blooper-pitcher who won 21 games for the Pirates last season, yesterday returned his unsigned contract to President William E. Benswanger of the Pittsburgh club. Benswanger said the letter was "friendly" however.

Concluding a hockey tour of Germany in which they met no defeats, Canada's Trail Smoke Eaters defeated a picked All-Germany team 7-2 at Garmisch-Partenkirchen five years ago today. Leading 3-2 at the end of the first, the Canadians pushed in four goals in the last period.

Markel Goes To Post

MIAMI, Jan. 22—(AP).—Markel, champion mare of 1943, goes to the post for the first time this year in Hialeah's $5,000 Evening Handicap at seven furlongs, carrying top weight of 126 pounds, with Jockey Billy Thompson in the saddle.

NELSON WINS GOLF OPEN — Thirteen strokes under par for 72 holes, Byron Nelson of Toledo waltzed away with first prize of $2,400 in Victory Bonds at the $10,000 San Francisco open tournament. Nelson's final round of two-under-par 70 for 18 holes enabled the champion to top a field of the foremost professionals and amateurs by a decisive six-stroke margin.

C.G.E. Swamps Normal Girls

St. John's and Generals had not much trouble in recording victories in the Ladies' Basketball League double-header in the Y.W.C.A. gym last night, the Saints triumphing over the Y Cadets 27 to 9 in the first game and the C.G.E. team riding home in front of the Normal School 52 to 16.

St. John's had too much experience and ball-handling ability for the Cadets in the first fixture and the church team would have won by a larger margin if their shooting had been on a par with the rest of the playing. They missed numerous scoring opportunities, especially in the first half but at that were 8 to 2 at the end of the session and they increased their lead by scoring 19 points in the second half. Theresa Heslip with 11 points was leading scorer for the winners while Marg. Hawthorne and Doreen Groombridge helped out with six points each.

St. John's (27)—E. Wright, T. Heslip 11, M. Dyer 2, Marg Hawthorne 6, Doreen Groomridge 8, E. Harte-Maxwell, Eva Clark 2.

Referee, Howie Macdonald; umpire, Jessie Morrow.

Generals, showing more drive and dash than they have in recent games had an even easier task in downing the Normal girls in the second end of the double bill.

The C.G.E. players with Mary McPherson sparking the drive with 17 points were travelling too fast all the way for the Normalites, although the latter battled until the final whistle. Generals had run in 28 points by the time the rest period came as against 6 by the losers and although the Normalites did a little better in the second session they were down 52 to 16 when it was all over.

Generals (52)—Dot Allen 10, M. Lawless, Shirley Mortimer 8, M. McPherson 17, Irene Bullock 4, Eleanor Craig 12, Joan Rahmel 1.

Normal School (16)—R. Chapelle 2, R. Heffernan, M. Howes 4, G. Griffin 2, T. Sexsmith, M. Vanderwater, E. Fritz, A. Nelson, H. Baird 4, P. O'Donnel 4, M. Duffett.

Attendance Up Profits Also In NHL Circuit

TORONTO, Jan. 22 — (CP) — National Hockey League gate receipts in the first 75 games this season totalled $1,100,149, an increase of $147,967 over the corresponding period of last season, it was announced Friday by Mervyn (Red) Dutton, the league's managing director.

At the close of a morning session of a meeting of the Board of Governors, Dutton said that attendance in the same period was 764,407 compared with 695,077 a year ago and that the only club which was down in both receipts and attendance was Toronto Maple Leafs.

Dutton said that no action had been taken on a reported violation by Art Ross of Boston Bruins of the league's "gag rule" which bans giving statements to the press reflecting on league officials. Ross had been quoted by Andy Lytle of the Toronto Star as saying that Manager Frank Selke of Toronto Maple Leafs was responsible for an alleged attack on Bill Cowley of Bruins who suffered a shoulder separation after being body-checked by Jack McLean of Leafs in a game in Toronto on January 8.

"I had no report on this in writing," said Dutton, "so I'm not acting." He told questioners that the incident had been discussed, however.

Dutton said the Governors would give further consideration to a dispute between Montreal Canadiens and Boston over the deal which sent Goalie Bert Gardiner from Canadiens to Bruins.

Arrangements for the Stanley Cup play-offs also were discussed.

Dutton Wants Records Brought To Date

By The Canadian Press

The National Hockey League, set for a five-game week-end program, today studied a recommendation by Managing Director Mervyn (Red) Dutton that a full-time statistician be appointed to bring league records up-to-date.

Dutton made the recommendation yesterday at a six-hour meeting in Toronto of the League's Board of Governors, who announced after the meeting that the recommendation will be discussed further at the N.H.L.'s annual meeting next May.

The Governors also announced that:—

1. Stanley Cup semi-finals between teams finishing second and fourth will start March 21 on the ice of the team finishing higher in the standings. Subsequent games will be played every two days except on week-ends, where Saturday or Sunday dates will be optional for the home team. The Stanley Cup final will start April 6 and like the semi-finals, will be decided on a best-of-seven basis.

Dispute Settled.

2. A dispute between Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins over interpretation of an agreement on the purchase price of Goalkeeper Bert Gardiner, sold by Canadiens to Boston last fall, has been settled between the two clubs. Details were not announced.

3. An offer to the Canadian Armed Services by the N.H.L. to play two All-Star games between picked teams from the N.H.L. and the Services, proceeds to be donated to war charity and all expenses to be borne by the League, has been declined because of "exigencies of the training programs."

4. Concessions sought by the C.A.H.A. regarding payment for players graduating from amateur ranks have been granted by the League, which Dutton said is "in full agreement" with the amateur body.

For Hall of Fame

In connection with the question of appointing a statistician, Dutton said the League's decision to approve establishment of a hockey Hall of Fame at Kingston, Ont., similar to the baseball shrine at Cooperstown, N.Y., has raised numerous questions which indicate that the league is "woefully short" on official records covering the early period of professional hockey in Canada.

The Governors decided to accept concessions sought by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association regarding payment for players graduating to the N.H.L. from amateur ranks. "The N.H.L. and the C.A.H.A. are in full agreement," Dutton said.

A minimum split has been established for players participating in Stanley Cup play-offs whereby each player will receive an amount for each game equivalent to the sum he received during the regular season. For instance, a player drawing $5,000 for a 50-game schedule or $100 a game, will collect a $100 minimum for each play-off game.

Most of the Governors returned to their various centres after the meeting, but Dutton stayed over to watch tonight's game between New York Rangers and Leafs. Other games on the week-end program call for Boston to play at Montreal Saturday while three games are planned Sunday night: Toronto at Chicago Black Hawks, Montreal at Boston and Rangers at Detroit.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 22—(CP)—Judging from the rave notices Jim Henry is getting as goalkeeper with Red Deer Army in the Alberta Hockey League they should give him the Vezina Trophy as the N.H.L. goal graduate most likely to succeed . . . Lorne Carr has scored 164 goals since he entered the N.H.L. in 1934 and he is likely to become one of the first dozen all-time high scorers before the season ends. Nels Stewart, of course, leads with a total of 323 N.H.L. goals followed by Aurel Joliat and Howie Morenz, 270 each, Harvey Jackson 237, Bun Cook 229, Charlie Conacher 225, Dit Clapper 218, Hooley Smith 200, Marty Barry 195, Syd Howe 195, Cooney Weiland 173, Johnny Gottselig 171. Others still ahead of Carr are Hec Kilrea 168, Cecil Dillon 167 and Dave Schriner 166.

The Manly Art

Jack Pattison, newly-appointed member of the Vancouver Boxing Commission, is sponsoring a plan for a boxing club for youngsters with a competent instructor. Headquarters will be the Seamen's Club in Vancouver. The idea is to keep the youngsters off the streets.

Record Book

An N.H.L. publicity release reveals the record for total goals in one game is 19 established in the first N.H.L. game in 1917 when Montreal Wanderers beat Toronto 10-9 at Montreal . . . Harry (Calgary Albertan) Scott nominates Eddie Oatman as the man with the longest professional hockey career. Oatman started with Quebec Bulldogs in 1912 and wound up in the American Association just a couple of years ago.

Incidentally

Al Foreman, Canadian and British Empire lightweight boxing champion in the late 1920s, has gained notable success in the R.C.A.F. When Al enlisted he was posted to the photographic division because of his age. His persistent efforts to get into air crew were rewarded last year when at 39, he was remustered to the air gunnery division. He earned his wings and so distinguished himself he was commissioned as pilot officer . . . Neil Colville, transferred from army to air force, is stationed at Edmonton Manning Depot. His hockey will be confined to the depot team in the inter-service league at Edmonton. . . . Hot shot of the Sydney Navy team in the Cape Breton service hockey league is Bernie Bathgate, a former Winnipegger.

Musician Group Wants License Fees

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 — (CP). — Objections to a proposal by the Canadian Performing Rights Society to impose a licence on industries using copyright music as a production stimulus were heard on Friday by the Copyright Appeal Board.

The board reserved its decision on this section of the society's proposed 1944 schedule of licence fees and also on a section covering 16 millimeter films. At the luncheon adjournment objections still were to be heard on licences to be paid by radio stations and for the use of coin-operated music machines.

Main argument against licence for the use of music in industries was presented by Samuel Rogers, of Toronto, counsel for the Associated Broadcasting Co., Ltd., a firm which provides music from a central point to a number of Toronto plants.

Mr. Rogers said the use of the music had been found effective, particularly in war plants, in reducing absenteeism, improving employer-employee relations and increasing production. He suggested imposition of a licence fee should be withheld pending a Privy Council opinion on a music box machine case.

The society had proposed two methods of collection. In the case of music originating at a point outside the plant the charge would be 10 per cent of the amount paid by the plant for the service. Where the music originated in the plant and was carried on a loudspeaker system a charge of $25 a year would be made for the first 250 employees and $25 for each additional 100 employees.

Brantford Lions Beat Stratford

By The Canadian Press.

Galt Kists assumed a two-point lead in Group 2 of the O.H.A. Junior A series by administering a 4-3 reverse to St. Catharines Falcons, with whom they had been tied for first place in the standing, the encounter taking place on St. Catharines ice. In the other game of the evening, Brantford Lions were victorious 4-3 in a rough game at Stratford, this pair now being deadlocked for cellar position in the standing of the same group.

The scoring ace for Galt was Curik who accounted for a trio of counters, the odd Kist goal being registered by Forbes. For the Falcons, Juckes was responsible for two tallies and Peterson obtained the third.

The battle at Stratford was rough no less than eight major penalties being distributed for fighting. As for the competitive part of the game, scoring honors went to Hewson of Brantford with a total of three goals, Evenshen taking the single. Tindall scored a brace of tallies for Stratford and Schlisitzi found the net once. Each side scored a goal in the first period and the teams were so evenly matched that the end of the second stanza found them still tied at 2-2. With more than 12 minutes of the third period gone, the score stood 3-3, but Hewson finally put the Lions one up with less than three minutes to go.

Goes To Dodgers

ST. PAUL, Jan. 22—(AP).—Second-Baseman Frank Drews, who set an American Association record of 43 consecutive errorless games last season, will be given a trial with Brooklyn Dodgers, it was stated last night by Business Manager Robert Tarleton. If Drews makes good, the Saints will get two or more players in trade.

Bracken Curls

WINNIPEG, Jan. 22—(CP).—John Bracken, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, will skip a Winnipeg rink in the Quebec bonspiel next week.

Montreal Rink In Semi-Finals

MONTREAL, Jan. 22 — (CP).— A pair of former champions carrying Montreal Heather colors, advanced to the semi-finals in the Royal Victoria Jubilee Trophy curling competition here yesterday along with rinks from Ottawa Rideau and Howick, Que.

J. P. Watson, winner of the coveted single rinks championship two seasons back, had to come through with a 15-13 verdict over F. D. Burkholder of Ottawa to move on, while Jack McKee turned aside D. R. Wilson of the Shawinigan Falls, Que., club 20-6.

C. G. Keyes, the second Ottawa skipper to reach the next bracket, showed too much class for Montreal Thistle's W. P. Bennett and emerged with a 17-10 score. The other win went to Bruce Ness, veteran Howick star, who downed L. G. McGerrigle, Montreal Caledonia 15-9.

Heroic Deeds Win Medals In Sicily Fight

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 — (CP) — Stories of heroism on the battlefields of Sicily ere disclosed to-day with the release of citations covering 33 awards to men of the Canadian Army. The awards were announced in December.

Eleven officers won three memberships in the Distinguished Service Order and eight Military Crosses. Twenty-two other ranks were awarded four Distinguished Conduct Medals and 18 Military Medals.

The citations covered a wide range of bravery under fire, and included such phrases as "wounded in both arms and hands......he could hold his revolver only by gripping it by both hands....under intense pain he led a charge on the objective and captured it...." The awards covered nearly every branch of the Army—infantry, artillery, tank corps, engineers, and dispatch riders—and included the stories of how two padres braved enemy fire to render first-aid to the wounded; how a colonel made personal observations in a shell-torn area before directing an advance; how a sergeant killed an enemy gun crew and then tried to train the gun on other positions, and how a corporal killed six Germans and captured six more in a daring raid.

Here is a brief glance at some of the citations:

Capt. J. L. Wilhelm, 34, of Walkerton, Ont., and padre of the Three Rivers Tank Regiment, won the Military Cross. Two vehicles were put out of action and he went to the aid of the crews under constant fire and returned twice to assist the wounded to safety.

Capt. R. O. Wilkes, 38, of Rainy River, Ont., and padre of the Royal Canadian Regiment, also won the Military Cross. He moved up with stretcher bearers to the most forward troops and personally evacuated three men to a regimental aid post under heavy fire.

2 Italian Spies Shot To Death

NAPLES, Jan. 22—(AP)—Two 18-year-old confessed Italian spies who admitted sworn allegiance to the Fascist Youth Organization and who were convicted of furnishing information to the Germans concerning Allied movements in Italy were executed Friday by a firing squad.

The Allied Military Government said the spies were Luigi Cancellieri and Mauro Bertoli, both of Bari. Location of the execution was not given.

Arrested early in December along the 5th Army front, the youths confessed to the A.M.G. general military court that they went on several missions into Allied lines, returning to tell the Germans of Allied troop movements, identity of units, vehicles and shipping.

Field Trial Proves Rightful Ownership

DETROIT, Jan. 22 (AP) A liver and white springer spaniel whose ownership has been the subject of a court dispute since last June was awarded to Fred Kern yesterday.

Jurge William Friedman, in handing down his decision, held that the dog's actions in a court-sponsored field trial proved "louder than words" that he did not belong to a rival claimant, Earl Bloomingburg, who had described him as a hunter.

"Instead of plunging at once into the hunt for birds," the court's formal decision related, "the dog spent his time in the amateurish pursuit of field mice. When Doyle (Deputy Sheriff James Doyle) fired his gun, the dog emulated the now famous Ferdinand the Bull—he ran for cover, seeking the quiet of a sheltered nook, far from the chase and the hunt.

"Perhaps he, too, preferred to play with the flowers of the field in the quiet shade of a sheltering tree. In any event, he spoke eloquently, and his testimony was, 'I am no hunting dog.'"

Child's Undies Scarce Will Make More

OTTAWA, Jan 22 (CP)—Finance Minister Ilsley and Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, today warned against complacency in Canada's anti-inflation battle and asked continued vigilance in keeping down the cost of living.

The two leading figures in the price control program spoke at a meeting of women's regional advisory committee chairmen of the Prices Board consumer branch with the national presidents of women's organizations.

Mr. Gordon reviewed board activities in dealing with the complaints of a shortage of children's underwear received from various parts of Canada recently, and said the board had believed an increase of 25 per cent in production of the underwear compared with a normal year should be sufficient.

Not until the board realized that talk of shortages had produced a state of hysteria in the minds of some people did it feel justified in issuing directives to the manufacturers to increase output.

Mr. Gordon said he believed there had been no general hardship in Canada due to shortages of children's underwear. If coupon rationing had been imposed the situation would have been worse, as every person with a coupon would have felt justified in purchasing underwear whether or not the need was urgent.

Mr. Ilsley said the Canadian price control program had been successful in general, although a continued fight against inflation was essential. He said that in some countries the cost of living had risen as much as 300 per cent since the war started.

The finance minister said the price control policy instituted in December, 1941 had faced many difficulties. Price control would have broken down without the support of Canadian women in watching prices, avoiding hoarding and aiding the policy in other ways.

Denmark Fears Civil War Wave

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 22 —(AP) — The moment Danish police are pushed out of the picture by the Germans the "gates will be opened to civil war" in Denmark, Staffan Tjerneld, staff correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter said today. He has recently returned from Copenhagen.

The Free Danish press service earlier this week reported the Germans had taken over control of the police system and interned Danish policemen, but Tjerneld said they are still on duty guarding the people's interests so far as possible.

The Danes are watching uneasily recruiting by the Danish Nazi Scharlburg Corps, which now numbers between 5,000 and 6.000 Tjerneld added.

Danes fear it will be assigned to take over some of the duties of the Danish police force. This, Tjerneld said, would mean civil war.

Prince Edward County Leads With Vegetables

PICTON, Jan. 22—(CP)— Prince Edward couunty last year produced approximately 32 per cent. of Canada's tomatoes and 29 per cent. of its tomato juice, an official of the Canners' Association of Eastern Ontario estimated here yesterday. This compared with 21 and 13 per cent. respectively in 1942.

The county pack of tomatoes, peas and corn last year approximated 91 per cent. of the 1942 total, he said, adding that 453,000 cases of tomatoes, 536,000 cases of tomato juice, 25,000 cases of tomato puree, 200,000 cases of peas, 132,000 cases of corn, 100,000 cases of pumpkin and 25,000 cases of small fruits were packed.

For this produce county farmers received $754,000 while factory labor received an additional $600,000.

Friday Night Club Has Talk On Plastics

Te executive of the Friday Night Supper Club provided another excellent speaker for this week's meeting. Introduced by Gerald Seabrook, H. A. Gadd, Superintendent of the Plastics Department of the Canadian General Electric Co., spoke on Plastics.

Mr. Gadd first discouraged any credulence in the sensational literature written about plastics and then, aided by varied products of the plastic industry, proceeded to astound the audience with the astonishing versatility of the product. Without technical terms, he was able to demonstrate the important uses of the products which the many varieties of plastics follow, and he stressed, by means of concrete examples, their use in the war effort.

Mr. Gadd was thanked for his talk by Ted Chalmers.

The winner of the evening's draw was Gerry Monkman. Plans were discussed for the coming dance to be held February 9 in the Y.M.C.A. and members were again reminded of the church parade to be held at George St. United church February 6.

Former Councillor Attacks Annexation

"They are planning to take into the city a lot of land that will not be occupied within the next seventy-five years," said John Barnes, former North Monaghan councillor, this morning.

"I am not saying the council has sold us down the river, but I am convinced that we have been permitted to drift toward annexation by conditions which are not going to be permit. The problems created by Wartime Housing is only a temporary one, especially in the Hatton area where this thing started. Then the Claraday people were infected by the opportunity to go along with the general movement and now they have reached wide open spaces to the south of us that I never expect to see occupied."

Mr. Barnes said the annexation scheme would impose an unnecessary, if not unjust, tax burden on quite a number of hard-working people who had no desire to be attached to the city and its scale of assessment and taxation of property.

Stalin's Interest In Russia Only Kiwanians Told

Glimpses of the life and personality of Joseph Stalin, leader of the Russian people, were given to the Kiwanis Club on Friday by Canon W. P. Robertson, rector of St. John's Anglican church. Canon Robertson, who has been making a study of the available literature on the cobbler's son from Georgia who grew up to follow the star of Lenin and eventually become himself one of the most powerful men of his time, emphasized various traits in the character of that remarkable man which led him to surmise that it was unlikely people of the western world could count on more than necessary cooperation from the Russian government.

Canon Robertson quoted satirical verses by the British humorist, A. P. Herbert, indicating that Stalin was a man whose actions were taken solely as a necessary means of protecting and advancing the interests of his own country and could not be said to have any relations to the ideals for which democratic nations are fighting. The U.S.S.R. is not fighting on our side," the speaker said, "it simply happens that Russia is fighting the same enemy at the same time as we are."

Much insight into the philosophies of thought and action which direct the life of Stalin could be obtained, Canon Robertson stated, from the dictator's own book entitled "Leninism." There he outlines his belief in the Marxist doctrines of economic materialism, and his views of the nature of social change, which can only, the disciple of Lenin asserts, be brought about by spontaneous revolution, never by gradual planned reform.

Shows Aversion

The attitude of the Russian leader to the way of life of the Western world appeared to be highly antipathetic, Canon Robertson told his audience; long before the present war started, Stalin had publicly declared that another invasion from Western Europe would inevitably end in disaster to the aggressor; and he felt that not only the capitalist institutions of the Western world, but the very people themselves—including the proletariat of countries such as Britain and the United States—were objects of his lifelong instinctive animosity.

Stalin is as much an Asiatic as a European, and all his ideas about Europe are colored with the native prejudices of the East. It is not too much to suppose, Canon Robertson concluded, that Stalin's aim is not liberation of the countries of Western Europe, but rather a long-planned and carefully nurtured scheme of bringing them within the sphere of influence of his Eurasian world.

The meeting of Kiwanis on Friday was marked by celebration of the 29th anniversary of the foundation of Kiwanis International, and commemorating the occasion John Troke, who heads Kiwanis education, gave a short address on the growth and present widespread membership in the club throughout Canada and the United States.

Canon Robertson was introduced by John Lewis, now a vice-president of the Club, and the vote of thanks was moved by Harold Coleman.

Old Lacrosse Player Passes In Toronto

News was received here this morning of the death in Toronto of Fred Dobbin, formerly of Peterborough, who is remembered as the goaltender of the local lacrosse team of something like thirty-five or forty years ago.

"Dinny" Dobbin, as he was known to the lacrosse fans of that day, and that meant just about everybody in town, was born here, son of Leonard Dobbin, and nephew of Frank H. Dobbin. He was employed in the press department of the Review Printing Company and has been for years with the Toronto Star in the same branch of the newspaper business. His wife was Etta Martin, also of this city, and the late Lou Dobbin was a brother.

TORONTO, Jan. 22—(CP)— Air Vice Marshal W. A. Curtis, just back from his post in England as second-in-command of the R.C.A.F. overseas, home to take over at Ottawa as air member for air staff—in effect, boss of the coastal command—sees the end of the war in 1944. He says there is "no question about that."

Drouth Forced West Into Mixed Farming

Hard times forced the West into mixed farming, and the volume of butter, pork, beef and other products has been rolling up to newer heights during the years since the Western farmer decided not to put all his eggs in the wheat basket.

That was one of the comments of William O'Hara of Manitoba who left Cavan township, near Springville, for Saskatchewan about 43 years ago.

"I got three-quarters of a section near Frobisher," Mr. O'Hara said this morning. There was just an elevator there the year I arrived. The next spring they built a railway station."

Drouth Enemy

Years of drouth afflicted southern Saskatchewan and compelled a great number of farmers to look for new pastures. Mr. O'Hara has been in Manitoba for the last six years, living 80 miles west of Winnipeg.

"There were seven years in a row when I never took the binder out of the shed," he recalled. "You would sow $400 of seed, and put in your work; costs would mount up and then the dry weather and especially grasshoppers, and the green crop was done. They simply eat it up. You can stand that maybe for a little while, but seven years of it were too much, and we had to look around for some other farm lands, after all those years at Frobisher."

Mr. O'Hara said the Saskatchewan section seemed to be improving again. "They've had fair crops in the last two years. I wouldn't want to come back to farming in Ontario."

He is visiting his sister, Mrs. Thomas Bell, 847 Water street. Mr. O'Hara was accompanied by his wife on their trip east.

Brinton Workers Make 67th Donation

In the early days of the operations of the local and district fund to give assistance to the sufferers from air raids over Britain, the employees of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. Ltd., commenced a work for the cause, which ever since has been an inspiration to all who would adopt an ideal for good, and serve it with unswerving loyalty.

Loyalty to a cause for good, and particularly one affecting the welfare of the Empire in these days of stress and trial might well be said to be an attribute of good citizenship, which is all the more emphasized when that is displayed in a practical way over a long period of time.

That this is the case with this group in regard to the work the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund is doing, is evident from the fact that a contribution from them has appeared on no less than 67 different occasions, the latest being listed to-day, which gives them a total credit of $874.90, and inspite of a big reduction in the number of workers in this plant they still continue to keep up the good work.

Bank of Montreal Boxes.

On various occasions returns have been listed in this column from penny boxes located in the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, but it remained for the latest collection made on Friday by the secretary of the fund, to produce the largest amount ever recorded from this one spot.

Part of this is due to the fact that for the first time one of these boxes contained a two-dollar bill, and there were also two fifty-cent pieces included among the white money contained in them, all of which helped to roll up the total of $8.85 recorded in their name to-day.

And then as if to add a tiger to this one effort, the manager of the bank made one of his periodical personal contributions to the fund, to make the trip there for collection purposes all the more profitable.

House Party Gives Help.

What might well prove an inspiration to a great many others, for it lies within the scope of a large number of people, is the story brought to the light in this day's receipts by a contribution through Mrs. K. Lowther of 543 Waterford Street.

This is a time of year when people love to entertain others in their homes, and in this instance a euchre party held at Mrs Lowther's residence is responsible for the donation of $4.00 listed under that heading to-day, making their pleasure have the added satisfaction of giving joy to others, and particularly those in need who have suffered in the front line in Britain.

Fair Surplus Reported $6,000

Lindsay Fair's net surplus last year was $6,000, as reported at its annual meeting this week by B. L. McLean, secretary, treasurer and manager.

"We had visions of $10,000," Mr. McLean said, "and had it not been for wet weather during the first two days our dreams would have been realized."

Gate receipts were $7,656.66 and advance sale of tickets contributed $4,201.75.

"The greatest livestock and agricultural show in Canada" was Mr. McLean's placing of the Lindsay Central Exhibition, and he said that tribute was declared by the Minister of Agriculture and John Carroll, Superintendent of Fairs.

"Our advice is constantly being sought and generally accepted by other fair boards, the Minister of Agriculture for Ontario and the directors of fairs. This further proves the greatness of the Lindsay Exhibition."

T. R. Trotter was elected president of the Board for 1944, succeeding William J. Murphy.

What Hens Eat Affects Taste Of Eggs

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 21—(CP)—Even cabinet ministers have to learn the hard way.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, a knowledgeable man on most matters pertaining to farming, told the National Poultry Conference how he found out there were differences in eggs.

His young son, when they lived in Saskatchewan, disliked eggs. After a setback at the polls, Mr. Gardiner took his family to Vancouver Island. When they came down to breakfast at the hotel there was nothing suitable for the boy but eggs. He ate them and liked them. Then they went home, and for the first meal in Regina, Mrs. Gardiner cooked an egg for her son. He tasted it with his usual zest.

Then he laid down his spoon and said:

"I don't like eggs."

His puzzled father went to poultry specialists.

And that's how the Minister of Agriculture found out that eggs are affected by the food hens eat. In other words, a prairie hen that feeds on grasshoppers and anything else it can find may not have as tasty an egg as a British Columbia counterpart receiving the feed scientists know is best.

Suggest Nov. 4

Election: some wit has suggested that Prime Minister Mackenzie King should arrange for the federal election on Nov. 4. He argues this would be a fine expression of North American solidarity as the United States election is being held on the same day. Cynics suggest it would just be confusion worse confounded, but it would be just as well to have it all over with in one swallow.

Strategy: Talking of the election more seriously, Ottawa observers who have watched the political scene for years suggest the government will wait until the 1944 session, which starts next week, is well under way before it makes a decision on when the vote will be held.

Plenty of Zest

Spokesmen for all parties are frank in their opinion that the debates will have pre-election fire and enthusiasm. Such enthusiasm among the opposition members is apt to make progress with government legislation slow.

If the government feels, after a month or two, that it is being unduly hindered in going about its business in the name of the country, an election is probable in short order.

Fleeting hope: Resources Minister Crerar, wise in the ways of the House of Commons, allowed himself a shade of envy at a meeting of the Ottawa Branch of the Canadian Institute of mining and metallurgy. It was an annual meeting, and the secretary-treasurer's report was approved quickly and without discussion.

"I just wish that in some mysterious fashion you could pass on to parliament the recipe for completing business so rapidly," said Mr. Crear, wistfully.

Thieves Force Entry Into York Trading

The premises of the York Trading Company were broken into during the night and a portion of the building ransacked but until a checkup has been made no statement is available as to anything being stolen.

Constable Leo Murphy while patrolling his beat discovered the break-in when he discovered a window into the cellar of the warehouse broken and a door leading into the loading platform forced.

Industrial Area Requires City Planning

Some of the vacant Monaghan acres which have been projected into recent annexation discussions as of potential value to the continued industrial growth of the city are regarded of doubtful utility by City Engineer Parsons.

"I don't think I should be quoted," said Mr. Parsons who was simply asked by the Examiner for his opinion of the John Sinclair statement at a recent annexation meeting to the effect that the city should keep in mind the need of additional land for future factories.

"The quicksand problem," was Mr. Parsons' brief explanation of his suspicions at least of the land adjacent to the C.N.R. southwesterly from Monaghan Road. He believed the better prospect for industrial sites was along the C.P.R., west from Monaghan Road and across High street out to the extension of Lansdowne street.

During the last month some mention has been made of city planning. Members of the council are aware that the urban property is vast becoming occupied and that few factory sites are left. In any such planning which Alderman Dutton has been diligently advocating, without any movement of progress, it may be inferred from Mr. Parsons' statement and from the experience of some of the south-end factories that as a first step there should be a survey of a suitable area that is not handicapped with quickstand.

"I feel sure that if they had to make the choice again the De Laval Company would not go back to Park Street and Monaghan Road," Mr. Parsons said.

Citizens all realize that the industrial drift has been to the southwest, but nothing is being done to determine exact directions in which it should go for the advantages of railway sidings, land beyond the backwash and spring seepage of the river, and generally exact information not just for the present but for the stretches of years ahead.

Trinity Preacher To Be Rev. Brace

Rev. A. J. Brace, F.R.G.S., of Toronto, will be guest preacher in Trinity Church on Sunday next at both services. He has had a wide and varied experience. He is a veteran of the South African War

Thereafter he became a Y.M.C.A. worker both in Canada and in China, where he served for many years. During that period he was instrumental in procuring thousands of Chinese coolies and bringing them to France as laborers in the last Great War. While in China he made extensive exploitation trips into Inner Tibet and as the result of his work he was made a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society.

He is qualified to speak with authority on the subject of China, which he will do at the evening service, and he will illustrate his subject with colored lantern slides. His services should be of interest to everybody.

Canadians Have Busy Week On Air Front

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 (CP)—Canadian squadrons which took part in the blistering raid on the German city of Brunswick this week chalked up a "sizeable" bag of enemy fighters, the R.C.A.F. reported today in its weekly summary of overseas operations.

In the summary, Flt. Lt. T. R. (Tommy) Shaw of Kapuskasing, Ont., Captain of a Lancaster out with the R.C.A.F.'s Thunderbird squadron, told of a combat with a FW190.

"We had just left the target area when a night fighter came roaring in. At 300 yards he let loose with cannon and I saw four thick tracer streams shoot past the nose of the kite. I turned into the attack and dived to starboard making it impossible for him to sight on us again."

Sgt. D. L. Huband of Toronto, the mid-upper gunner, said he gave the enemy a "long burst" as the fighter flashed by his turret, only 150 yards away, and the "whole charge must have entered the fuselage."

I saw him flip over on his back and fade away with the flames pouring from him," Huband added. "The flames seemed to come from his nose and stream back over the whole aircraft. He was just like a lighted match blowing in the wind."

Canadians with an R.A.F. Typhoon squadron were credited with three and a half of a total of eight enemy aircraft destroyed by their squadron in an operation last Thursday.

Common Farm Policy Declared Great Need

CALGARY, Jan. 22 — (CP) — return to the pre-war policy of treating agriculture as a "sideshow" would be folly, Lord De La Warr, Chairman of the Agricultural Research Council of the United Kingdom said here yesterday.

Speaking at the United Farmers of Alberta Annual Convention, he said farmers of Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, Argentine, and throughout the world were not competitors, but common sufferers from an economic mistake. "We must get together and work out a common policy."

"We should insist that all our Governments put into effect the recommendations of the International Good Conference held at Hot Spring, Va., last year." The conference agreed that the problem was not over-production of primary food products but underconsupmtion, he said.

The convention approved a resolution urging the Federal Government to prohibit the acquisition of land by enemy aliens for the duration of the war and urged similar provincial legislation barring pacificists from extending their land holdings.

Boat-like Snowmobile Used By Mail Carrier

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 22—(CP) — Equally at home on snow, ice or water, a speedy vehicle called an "in-and-outer" by Builder Harold Steele, of Brockville is carrying the mail across the five-mile stretch of the St. Lawrence river between Brockville and Morristown.

The machine, which has been clocked at 50 miles an hour, is built from an old automobile engine, an airplane propeller, some planking and a few sheets of tin. It is about as long as a large rowboat and has the same appearance, except that the bow has a scow front rather than a prow.

Steele, who holds the mail contract between the two border cities, suffered a first-class disaster last winter when his car broke through the St. Lawrence ice and sank to the bottom.

This year he has no worries. His strange craft won't sink.

Kingston Area To Get New Sanatorium

PICTON, Jan .22 CP) Dr. Clare Brink, representing Dr. R. P. Vivian, Ontario Minister of Health, said in an address before Prince Edward county council yesterday that there is a great need for additional Sanitorium accommodation to serve this district.

He said consideration of remedying this condition is being explored, with relation to the possibility of building a new Sanatorium in Kingston.

This would serve the counties of Prince Edward, Hastings, Frontenac, Lennox and Grenville.

There are 47 beds in the existing Sanatorium accommodation at Kingston, and that scarcely takes care of the needs from Kingston, itself, he said.

In connection with the possible erection of a new Sanatorium for Kingston, with, say 100 beds, Dr. Brink asked county council to appoint a committee of two to meet with similar committees from other counties to consider the matter.

Counties Would Help

Questioned as to financing, he stated that Sanatoria erected many years ago were financed as to the cost of building mainly by private subscriptions, but in more recent years the Provincial government has contributed materially to the cost of such construction. But a share of the cost of erection of a new Sanatorium, such as is proposed at Kingston, would have to be borne on a co-operative basis by the counties concerned, he said.

Dr. Brink said no committal to such a proposal was requested, but that the committee asked for will act in a liaison capacity at the present time, to explore the matter further. Warden E. Onderdonk and Reeve Roy Ketcheson pointed out the County of Prince Edward is making large patriotic grants at present, and questioned if the matter might be laid over for discussion until after the war, when materials and workmen will be more plentiful, and costs perhaps lower.

Dr. Brink replied that he hoped the war would be over this year and it is advisable, he thought, to lay the foundational basis now for which a remedy for the current situation might be promptly put into being at the close of the war.

Reeve H. Cleave and Warden Onderdonk were named a committee to meet with other committees from other county councils in Eastern Ontario with regard to the Kingston Sanatorium.

Library Reports Circulation Of 7,117 Books

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 22—(ENS)— The January meeting of the Public Library Board was held this week with Mrs. W. Gilman in the chair. During the reading of the annual report it was shown that 7,117 books had been circulated during the year. The following accounts were presented; post office box, $3.00; Peterborough Examiner, $7.80; Lakefield News, $1.50; Wm. Dawson, subscription service, $49.70; Ontario Library Association, $2.00; Ryerson Press, $117.82; Lakefield News, cards, $3.00. Total $184.82.

The secretary was authorized to pay this account, also to write to the reeve and council expressing the Board's thanks for co-operation during 1943. Miss Yonge was also instructed to write the Ryerson Press to the affect that books already received would be sufficient for present needs.

A vote of thanks was given by Mrs. Ridpath and Mr. Sloan to Miss Grace Yonge, librarian for her splendid work during the year. The annual report was as follows:

During the year, total circulation was 7,117 books, classed as follows: adult fiction, 2,014; adult non-fiction 661; juvenile fiction, 3,772; juvenile non-fiction, 670.

There were 23 old and worn books discarded and shelves were checked for adult books that were ancient and 169 of these were set aside in cupboard to make room for newer books. Eighteen books were donated during the year, two of the donors being Mrs. W. W. Leonard and Mrs. J. F. Harvey.

The following amounts were expended for new and used books: 79 books adult fiction, $67.01; 66 books adult classed, $90.55; 71 books juvenile, $104.69; 19 non-fiction books.

A box of discarded books was sent to the Indian School at Burleigh Falls and the Minister of Education having granted permission, several boxes of old magazines were donated to the Navy League of Canada.

The new numbering system was put into effect in October and was reported working well, with 237 borrowers registered. New members amounted to 109 and there were 74 renewals, with $21.25 in fines collected during the year.

Interest taken in the Library by the 1943 reeve and council was gratifying; evidenced by the generous grant and also their willingness to co-operate in the matter of alternations to provide more shelf room it was reported.

December Report

Owing to the two holidays coming at the week-end, the Library was only open 10 times during the month of December. Circulation was as follows:

Total for the month, 456 books; adult fiction, 116; adult non-fiction, 62; juvenile fiction, 244; juvenile nin-fiction, 34.

Three new members joined with four renewals and $1.20 collected in fees and fines. Fees and fines for the last quarter, to the amount of $7.79 was deposited in the bank.

School Holds Dance

A dance was held this week at Indian River School. Music was supplied by Ronald Cameron, Earl Dean, Dick Elmhirst and Stewart Miller. A large crowd enjoyed both round and square dancing and Gerald Chaplin as floor manager for the square dances. This is the second in a series of dances conducted by Mrs. McCaw, the local teacher, with the object of purchasing a piano for the school.

BALTIC RAIL GOALS TOTTER—New major drives of Russia's Baltic armies, as indicated by the arrows on the map, while headed toward the Baltic States and the sea, have as their immediate objective crippling of Nazi rail communications of which Novosokolniki, a key junction, is caught in a siege arc. The Bagramian army is expected to head toward Riga or the lower Baltic coast while, from Leningrad, the newest drive has been sweeping south of the Gulf of Finland. Russian troops have already captured the ancient stronghold of Novgorod.

Oppose Labor's Trend

QUEBEC, Jan. 22 — (CP). — The Canadian Construction Association at the conclusion of its three-day meeting here yesterday, expressed a protest against the "idea of political adventuring on the part of labor organizations."

H. C. Nicholls of Toronto was elected president of the association for the next term, succeeding J. B. Stirling of Montreal.

Muskrats Plentiful

TRENT RIVER, Jan. 22 — (ENS). — River men report that muskrats are running round on the ice and shores of the river and several have been killed by dogs. This is attributed to mild weather and the fact that the marshes are frozen to the bottom, forcing the rats out to hunt for food.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BETTER DEFENSIVE PLAY

WHEN THE opponent's take-out or informatory double catches you with a weak hand, but a good distributional fit with your partner's suit, it is generally considered good defense to toss in an obstruction in the form of a raise of your partner's bid. It still is better bridge, however, to bid a higher-ranking suit when you can in such a case, if you are preparing for a later probable sacrifice in event they over-bid you and go on to game.

North: ♠ 2; ♥ A 9 7 6 3; ♦ K J 6 5 4; ♣ K 8

West: ♠ J 10 8 6 5; ♥ J 8; ♦ 10 9; ♣ 6 4 3 2

East: ♠ A 7 4; ♥ 5; ♦ A 8 7 3; ♣ Q J 10 9 5

South: ♠ K Q 9 3; ♥ K Q 10 8 4; ♦ Q 2; ♣ A 7

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

	East	South	West	North
1.	1 ♣	Dbl	Pass	2 ♥
	Pass	4 ♥
2.	1 ♣	Dbl	2 ♣	2 ♥
	3 ♣	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥
	5 ♣	Dbl
3.	1 ♣	Dbl	1 ♠	2 ♥
	2 ♠	3 ♥	3 ♠	4 ♥
	4 ♠	Dbl

Every North-South pair which played this duplicate deal at hearts made five-odd, losing only one trick in spades and one in diamonds. Counting the vulnerable duplicate game bonus of 500 points, that gave North and South a score of 650.

Where East got doubled at 5-Clubs, North and South scored still more, 700 points, for setting the contract four tricks. Two were lost in clubs, two in spades, one in hearts and one in diamonds. In other words, East and West got bottom score where West raised the clubs and prepared his pair for a sacrifice in that suit.

Notice how West won the hand for his side at Table 3. Knowing he could flee into clubs if the spades did not fit, he bid that suit over the double. East, rating that as probably a five-card suit, raised at his first chance, and the side finally was able to overcall 4-Hearts with only four of its own declaration. Since the vulnerable opponents felt none too sure of making five-odd, they doubled that. The same six tricks were lost as would be dropped at clubs, but that made only three down, for a score of only 500, giving that East-West pair a top and North-South a bottom.

Your Week-End Lesson

A bit of careful analysis will show that if you hold the K-J-9-7-5 of a suit which you lead against a No Trump game contract, the J will prove the most profitable lead in a majority of possible situations, so far as number of tricks taken in the suit is concerned. Why, then, is that not the best lead to make? What vital principle of play militates against it?

Pte. R. Watson Returns Home From Overseas

BANCROFT, Jan. 22 — (ENS) — Mrs. Ray Watson of the village, received a welcome surprise Wednesday when her husband, Private Ray Watson, arrived home from overseas.

He enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, going overseas in December 1939, where he has been up until now. After being overseas some time he was transferred to the C.G.R.U. Mrs. Watson had not heard from her husband for quite some time and could hardly believe her eyes when her husband stepped into their home Wednesday morning. The two children puzzled him as he did not recognize them during his five-year absence and they did not recognize their daddy. He is home on a twenty-eight day leave and expects after that date to report to Kingston.

Damage was caused and there were a number of casualties, some of which were fatal."

Eight enemy aircraft were destroyed.

The Nazi retaliation, although puny by present-day Allied bombing standards, was the heaviest in months and spectacular enough to remind many Londoners of the "old days." Guns thundered, the skies were alight, and incendiaries as well as high explosives were dropped in the London area and other parts of southeast England.

Damage and casualties were heavier than usual, and throughout the early morning hours rescuers dug for victims by the light of lamps along the Thames estuarty.

With Canadians participating in heavy strength, the night bomber-force crossed the Channel in a 45-minute after-dark procession even as tail-enders of yesterday's armada were returning from the windup of the dawn-to-dusk blasting of the French invasion coast. Yesterday's daylight operations against the Pas-de-Calaais region cost the attacking force 11 planes, six of them United States heavy bombers. Nineteen German fighters were shot from the sky. The Allied attackers dropped perhaps 2,000 tons of bombs.

Senate Meets Next Wednesday

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 (CP) — The Senate will meet at 3 p.m. next Wednesday when Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, acting as deputy to the Governor-General, will read the Speech from the Throne in the presence of the Senators and members of the House of Commons, proroguing parliament.

So far, one new Senator has been appointed during the recess, Frederick Johnston of Bladworth, Sask. He will be sworn in during the opening Senate sitting.

When there are a number of Senators to be sworn in the Senate meets before 3 p.m. to swear them in before the Speech from the Throne. However, unless the Government fills a number of the 14 vacancies in the Jpper House before Wednesday an early sitting will not be necessary.

Chief Justice Rinfret has frequently acted for the Governor-General but this will be the first time he has read the Throne Speech since his appointment as Chief Justive recently to succeed Sir Lyman Duff.

Thusday the Senate will meet again at 3 p.m., when the Governor-General will read the Speech from the Throne opening the new session of parliament.

In the House of Commons, four new members will take their seats. The procedure is different from that in the Senate, the Commons members being sworn in before they enter the Chamber to be formally introduced to Mr. Speaker and take their seats. This will be done on Wednesday before the gentleman usher of the Black Rod summons the members to the Senate for the Throne Speech.

Health Plan

Pensions and Health, and then proceeded with a review of the substance and method of the bill which is expected to be submitted to the Legislature during its approaching session.

Public Health Basic

"We are attempting to reduce sickness," Dr. Vivian said after affirming that public health measures must receive primary attention. "So, we must first creater a complete public health system. To do that it is necessary to have public health measures under the control of adequately trained people under a fully trained Medical Officer of Health within the boundaries of each county. That is the health area unit, and although in some places it may be varied.

In that county unit the Medical Officer of Health will be aided by a certain number of Public Health Nurses and by a sanitary inspector. They must be adequately trained and reasonably compensated. In each unit or more there will be some one trained in veterinary science to assist in food control. His task will include such details as to supervise the supply of milk, to see that it is free from tuberculosis and Bang's disease; in a large measure to be responsible for safeguarding health through our food, to see that it is fit to eat."

As the children of the province were its greatest asset, the plan called for further measures for their protection. To that end it is intended to add a trained school medical officer.

"It will be impossible to provide adequately for the safeguarding of the children unless we have a full time man, and that he has the assistance of a school nurse."

These county health staffs, Dr. Vivian said, are to be concerned with preventive measures. Their task stops where the general practitioner begins, the family friend and medical adviser who has meant so much in the life of our country.

Housing and Slums

A number of the county units will be grouped into an area which will have a full time man to undertake a broader supervision of public health, mental and industrial hygiene and so on. He will be aided by a sanitary engineer for the purpose of assuming a large measure of control over housing condition, prevention of slums, especially in the larger centres of population, control of sewers and generally to exercise influence over housing and other community conditions for the further protection of public health.

Turning from preventive measures in the new health charter, Dr. Vivian remarked that practice of medicine was both an art and a science. Regimentation by the panel system deprived it of the art which the practicing physician was able to bring to the bedside, a combination of heart and skill which, if it did not result in the saving of life, had the effect of making an illness otherwise happier.

New Hospital Aid

In the Ontario Government's plan to relieve the financial burden of the cost of sickness, Dr. Vivian said the first step was to underwrite the cost of general ward care in the hospitals. All hospitals suffer financial loss in looking after ward cases at a low rate. In cases of necessity the municipality contribute $1.75 a day for a patient, and the province 60 cents, making the "magnificent sum of $2.35, or about 65 cents a day loss for the care of a ward patient. Hospitals tried to make up the difference in their charges for private and semi-private rooms, for X-ray and laboratory services; or they were in receipt of voluntary contributions, or trust monies, or they had to depend on their municipal councils to pay off the deficits.

Toronto's hospital costs, Dr. Vivian said, were around $900,000 a year. One hospital in Windsor had a deficit of between $35,000 and $40,000 a year for several years. To bring relief to hospitals, the Minister said it was planned to introduce a hospital bill providing for financial assistance out of the consolidated revenue of the province. It could be called a hospital insurance plan, and was devised to do away with the cause of hospital deficits. The cost of this hospital insurance would be paid by an individual tax. Those who wished to engage private rooms would have to pay the difference between the ward level cost and the cost of the luxury service.

Because of the existing deficiency in the number of available hospital beds it would be some time before all areas would have a sufficient number of beds so that the system could be introduced in all the areas where hospitals are located.

Begin In Some Areas

"You cannot create hospital facilities overnight by a legislative bill," Dr. Vivian said. "But, we will be able to introduce the plan in some areas, if they so desire, for this is a democratic country. I know you have a problem here in Peterborough. At present you have an insufficient number of hospital beds. But, I know Peterborough. I have been here quite a number of times before I became Minister, and I know the spirit and the strength of this area. I think that an hospital is the outward and visible sign of the people of a community for the well-being of its fellow members. I feel that you will solve your problem and that you will be able to participate in such a plan as we are now devising, when the time comes to ask for it, if that is your wish."

Dr. Vivian enunciated the essence of his ideals for improvement of the health of the people. There was no use attempting curative means to that end, unless preventive measures were first put into effect. "We in Ontario are constructing a highway which we hope will lead to better health, along which our people can travel more economically."

Municipal Doctors

In his introduction, Dr. Vivian spoke of certain movements regarding health in Ontario and other parts of Canada. He said that in various parts of the prairie provinces municipal doctors had satisfied the medical requirements of isolated groups of people. They had banded themselves together to pay for the services of a doctor out of their tax funds. Compared with their previous lack of adequate medical care, this plan had worked well in those places, but not in others, notably in southern Ontario. The physician could not be all the things a medical practitioner should be to take care of matters in both curative and preventive medicine. As to socialized medicine, Dr. Vivian said its faults were so obvious that criticism would be superfluous.

Relief From Fear

"We realize that the average person in times of illness has to spend money for hospital and nursing care and for the charges of our own profession, and he finds himself in distress, without funds to meet these expenses. Therefore, our aim is to bring in a form of sickness insurance that will relieve people of the fear of illness and the fear of the cost of illness, and will ensure the medical man of adequate remuneration for the work he has done."

Questions which were asked of Dr. Vivian at the conclusion of his review of the forthcoming health plans included such topics as convalescent homes, examination of industrial workers, tuberculosis control program and other subjects. In regard to the proposed assistance for hospitals, Dr. Vivian said the Government hoped to relieve communities of the necessity of meeting hospital deficits, "leaving them to be able to do more in new buildings and equipment than they have been in the past."

Dr. Vivian covered a wide range of health subjects in both his address and replies, which he said were an indication of the expanse of the many phases of the main public health problem to which the Government was giving attention. The Association's appreciation of his visit was extended to him by Dr. H. M. Yelland.

Surprise Raid

a powerful new "Adolf Hitler" defence line 65 miles below Rome, prisoners related. This indicated the enemy held scant hope of holding his present Gustav Line much longer against the Allied onslaught.

Before the invasion was launched, the Gustav fortifications were being shredded fast, with the British advancing from Minturno, two miles northwest of the Garigliano river, and French forces that crossed the Rapido river four miles above Cassino threatening to flank German troops defending that heavily fortified town.

A special communique announced the new thrusts but did not give the location of the landing. The bulletin said merely American and British troops of the 5th Army went ashore "along a beach front extending several miles from north to south."

Smash All Routes

The offensive followed terrific air attacks in which German communications from the north were shattered.

For the past weeks Allied air forces have been waging an intensive "softening-up campaign" directed mainly against communications leading to Rome and the airfields of the Rome area.

It was definitely established two days ago that Rome had been cut off from rail communications from the north.

On the eve of the attack bombers ranged over the area between Florence and Rome, smashing all routes into the Eternal City.

Air attacks leading up to the landings included bomber raids yesterday on Salon and Istres Les Tubes airfields near Marseille—bases for German torpedo-equipped aircraft.

All the experience gained in the Sicilian and Salerno landings were employed in today's new invasion of Central Italy. The current operation, however, differs in that is is coupled with an overland drive in the Liri Valley.

The object of the present operations in Italy, Gen Sir Henry Maitland Wilson announced Monday, was one primary objective — to take Rome.

Rome Sealed Off.

So thorough has been the Air Forces' sealing-off the Rome area from the north that German troops under attack have been left with "what they stand up in"—their immediate resources on the spot — Air Force officials said.

Twenty Nazi planes were shot down in yesterday's intensive air preparation for the offensive. Five Allied planes were lost.

Shipping off the Yugoslav coast was attacked and a merchant vessel was sunk in the Gulf of Genoa.

The new thrusts against the flank of the Germans was the first big scale landing operation since the invasion of the Salerno beaches in September.

"Naval and air forces are supporting the ground troops," the communique from the Headquarters of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied Commander in Italy, said.

Woman Testifies At Spy Trial

DETROIT, Jan. 22 (AP)—Grace Buchanan-Dineen, self-styled Countess, testified today in the U.S. Federal Court trial of Dr. Fred W. Thomas, Detroit physician, and Bertrand Stuart Hoffman, merchant marine seaman, charged with espionage conspiracy, that she had contacted both Dr. Thomas and Hoffman in her attempts to obtain information for Nazi Germany.

The Canadian-born woman, who has pleaded guilty to similar charges, told a jury Dr. Thomas told her he had learned from a patient that planes were being ferried to Sitka, Alaska.

The handsome, 35-year-old woman recalled she was introduced to Hoffmann at a Detroit Y.W.C.A.

County Asked To Pay Its Share Of Nicholls Hospital Deficit

An appeal for a grant that would cover the county's share of the deficit sustained by Nicholls Hospital during the years 1942 and 1943 was presented to the county council on Friday, and after some discussion referred to the finance committee.

A deputation representing the hospital presented figures revealing that of 40,000 patient days in the year just concluded. 10,000 were accounted for by county patients. The estimate of the hospital's loss on county patients for the year 1942 was set at $2,461 and that for 1943 approximated $10,131, and a higher proportion of the total loss than in the previous year. Estimated deficit for 1943 was in the vicinity of $36,000.

The deputation appearing on behalf of the hospital consisted of C. F. Kitney, E. B. Fowler, Dr. J. M. McCulloch, Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell, W. R. Turner and John Hornal.

Last year representatives of Nicholls Hospital appeared before the council, and as a result that body appointed a committee to study the problem. It was felt at the time that the city had a definite obligation but the year had expired before any grant of financial assistance had been determined on.

More County Patients

In presenting the case of the hospital, E. B. Fowler stated that of the 3,539 patients treated in the past year 788—an increase of 150 over the previous year—were from the county. He went on to detail some of the difficulties experienced by the directors which had served to put the hospital in its present impecunious situation and pointed out that local experience was in line with the trend in other communities throughout the province. Higher salaries to employees was, he said, the chief factor in raising the patient cost per day from $3.72 to $4.40. He emphasized also that keeping up with new methods of hospital care and purchase of required equipment was an additional cause of increasing expense.

Discussion of the hospital's request following the departure of the deputation resolved itself into a feeling, expressed by several members, that in any consideration of a grant to cover the cost of county patients treated in the city it would be only fair to include St. Joseph's in the decision as well and on equal terms with Nicholls Hospital. The Catholic hospital was just as badly in need of a grant, said Reeve James Gifford, advising that discussion should be on the basis of services rendered the county by both hospitals. Sympathy with this view was expressed by Reeves Martin and Seeney; and Reeve Gilbert McIlmoyle suggested that a rate might be struck for the purpose of paying for the cost per day of each county patient. This, however, he added, did not take care of the matter of making up past deficits. It was at this point that the matter was moved referred to the finance committee.

Plea For Grants

Sitting in open council several other matters of grants were heard by the county council Friday, including the Navy League and the Plowmen's Association. When presentation and discussion of these cases had each been brought to a close, they were referred to the finance committee for final decision.

The Navy League this year is asking for increased support, its representative, B. S. Cannem, Field Secretary, Toronto, told the council. Its budget for the Province of Ontario alone was up $120,000 this year, because of the intention to increase the production of the new medicated merchant socks for shipwrecked merchant seamen. More than ever before, ocean ports were congested, Mr. Cannem stated, and the work of the Navy League in equipping and entertaining merchant seamen of many various countries while in ports of call had reached an all-time peak.

A grant of at least $100 was requested by directors of the Plowmen's Association with which to help them put on their matches. With the cancelling of the fall fairs, it was said, the plowing match remained practically the only means at the disposal of the farmer for keeping abreast of the times by seeing and handling new equipment. The Association was laboring to create the impression that a plowing match was not a sporting event, but rather an opportunity offered to intelligent farmers to learn more, as well as a means whereby young boys could get instruction and encouragement and so learn fruitful principles of farming.

Halt Land Buying

The report of W. A. Anderson on county reforestation was also considered, and as a result of discussion arising from this matter it was moved by Reeve McIlmoyle, seconded by Reeve Gifford, and subsequently carried, that no more land should be bought in the forest area at the eastern end of the county. It was believed that interest in reforestation would never be stimulated so long as it was confined to this thinly populated area, and that should more land be bought at a future time, it would be advisable to do so in more agricultural districts where reforestation might have an educational value, particularly among the young.

Germans Make Several Offers

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(AP)—German peace feelers have been made to Britain on several occasions and more are certain to be made in the future, diplomatic quarters here are convinced.

But the British government, in full agreement with the United States, Russia and other United Nations, has taken and will take none of the proposals seriously until the Germans get ready for unconditional surrender.

It is not considered beyond the realm of possibility that British or American individuals, operating without the authority of their government, might on occasion have made direct contact with an enemy citizen. But such a meeting would be of no consequence except to play the conferees open to grave charges of dealing with the enemy.

MOSCOW, Jan. 24 — (AP). — Sweeping along both banks of the Volkhov River after wiping out a German bridgehead on the east bank, the Red Army was within 10 miles of Chudovo to-day in a drive which threatened to cut still another vital enemy rail line below Leningrad.

The Germans whose communications are being systematically chopped up along the Leningrad front, still hold a narrow stretch of this line—tne main Moscow-Leningrad line—between Chudovo and Tosno. Chudovo is about 75 miles south-east of Leningrad on the west side of the Volkhov.

At the same time Russian troops directly menaced the key rail junction of Tosno by advancing through Pustinka, 10 miles south-west of Mga, and a Soviet communique said the Germans were retreating in disorder from the tip of the Tosno salient.

The bulletin also told of continuing Russian successes in lower White Russia, reporting the drive

BRITISH COMMANDOS IN TRAINING—British commandos in England have been training for just such amphibious landings as have just taken place in Italy, near Rome. Here an advance landing party undertakes the dangerous task of mine-detecting—some of the men are seen slowly making their way along the rugged beach ever on the alert for deathly traps left by the "enemy." On either side of the mine detector are soldiers laying white tape markers to guide the soldiers who will follow along.

French Coast Pounded Continually

Gun-Studded Shore Receives Terrific Pounding

LONDON, Jan. 24—(CP).—Large formations of Allied aircraft swept out across the English Channel to hammer European targets by daylight today after R.A.F. Mosquitoes had stabbed at western Germany last night and slipped back through the Nazis' defences without loss.

British planes also laid mines in enemy waters, the Air Ministry said. The communique mentioned no other overnight operations, though a wide continental radio blackout and reports from Sweden had indicated previously that targets in southeastern Europe might have been under attack.

The day raiders took off shortly after dawn and headed in the direction of the Pas de Calais area in northern France, which was bombed by both British and American planes yesterday.

Attacks yesterday were directed chiefly against Nazi installations in the Pas de Calais area of France. Two Nazi air fields in France and Holland also were blasted.

More than 200 United States bombers attacked the French invasion coast area with 300 tons of explosives.

Nazi fighters offered little resistance. R.A.F. and New Zealand pilots dropped to 2,500 feet over Pas de Calais without challenge.

Throughout the day-long air activity, however, the Germans lost five planes. The Allies listed one bomber and one fighter as missing.

British, Canadian, United States, New Zealand, Southern Rhodesian, and Norwegian fliers participated in the day's operations, either as attackers or escorts.

PERFECT TOUR—Flying Officer Chuck Jenkinson, formerly employed in the shipping department of Canada Packers, is a member of a "perfect crew" which has made 32 bombing raids over Germany without mishap. He enlisted in November, 1940, and trained as a wireless air gunner. His mother, Mrs. G. R. Jenkinson, lives in Point Anne.

Chuck Jenkinson Has 32 Trips Over Germany

TORONTO, Jan. 24 —(CP)—FO. Wes Harper, member of a "perfect crew" which made 32 bombing raids over Germany, returned to his home here, unannounced, yesterday.

"I've been pushing a pencil. Now I want to learn how to steer the crates," he said, explaining that he was an observer and had returned to take a pilot's course.

He and his crew, made up of three other Canadians and an English pilot, made the 32 raids without suffering any wounds. The Canadians were: FO. Chuck Jenkinson of Peterborough, Ont., the bombardier; Flt. Sgt. Lloyd Stanley, Regina, wireless operator, and F. Vincent Atkins from Alberta, the rear-gunner.

Invasion Developing Fast Along Italian Coast Units Drive Inland 4 Miles

Germans Launch Terrific Counter Push Along Entire Gustaf Line Throw Americans Back At Cassino

By WES GALLAGHER—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALGIERS, Jan. 24—(AP).—British and United States troops, driving four miles inland, are less than 30 miles from Rome and have brought the Appian Way under shellfire from their long beach-head north of the Pontine marshes, Allied Headquarters announced today.

A German broadcast said Allied forces were advancing from the Nettuno area toward Littoria, 12 miles east of Nettuno, and but four miles from the Appian Way. Littoria is the main centre of the Pontino agricultural development in the marshes, and an Allied advance in that direction would be away from Rome instead of toward it.

But fighting with fury of a cornered tiger, the German 10th Army has gone over to the offensive on the whole Cassino front, 60 miles to the southeast. In a series of violent day and night counter-attacks the Germans threw the Americans back across the Rapido River.

"It is apparent that the German command hopes to disrupt the entire 5th Army front to gain time to turn around and deal with the threat in their rear," said a military commentator at Allied Headquarters.

The Americans had seized a bridgehead across the Rapido, three miles south of Cassino, in conjunction with the Allied landings near Rome, but were immediately attacked in force by the Germans who had been augmented by three divisions withdrawn from the Rome area a few days ago.

The German communique admitted that no major opposition had yet been offered to the Allies at Nettuno, but declared one destroyer was sunk, and a cruiser and two smaller naval craft were hit in German air attacks.

Nazis Outnumbered.

The German air force still had not been able to give a battle over the bridgehead and only four enemy planes were sighted there by Allied patrols all day yesterday. But American Spitfires intercepted a force of 50 to 60 Junkers, Heinkels and Messerschmitts which attempted to bomb ships off the beaches and shot down six Nazi bombers near Elba.

Nettuno was captured so quickly on Saturday that the harbor installations were taken intact. Although the unloading capacity of this summer resort is small, as is that of the small harbor of Anzio to the north, long stretches of the beach can be used to pour in supplies and reinforcements as at Salerno last September.

Besides Nettuno, one other coastline town has been captured, the front line dispatches reported. Its name was not given.

The whole Italian situation has developed into a race to see if the Allied amphibious force can straddle the Appian Way and the Via Casilina 10 miles farther inland

Writer Amazed At Ease Of Army Landing

By DON WHITEHEAD

AT THE 5th ARMY BEACH-HEAD SOUTH OF ROME, Jan. 23—(Delayed) —(AP)— Twenty-four hours in the life of a war correspondent is not particularly important to anyone but the correspondent himself—but this chronicle will give newspaper readers a glimpse of how their news is gathered in this theatre of war.

As an explanation to all editors of correspondents on this show: there have been thousands of words written, but finding a means of getting them back to Naples is another matter. Courier service by air and sea is a catch-as-catch-can affair.

Clark To Tackle Polish Problem

LONDON, Jan. 24—(CP)—Return of Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr to Moscow stirred hopes today for a solution of the Russian-Polish deadlock which appeared to centre more on the Polish Government in London than on the Soviet insistence on the Curzon line as a boundary.

The British ambassador has been away from Moscow two months. He will take to the Kremlin the freshest views on the Polish situation as well as the Pravda "peace-rumor" incident.

The biggest problem is the Polish Government here. The Russians are generally thought to want the London regime to take in representatives from the Union of Polish Patriots before entering any negotiations.

The Poles maintain they have gone as far as they can in offering to negotiate for one-third of their country—the difference between the Curzon line and the pre-war frontier but it is generally believed that differences could be solved if relations were re-established between Moscow and the Poles here.

Dill Lauds U.S. War Effort

DETROIT, Jan. 24—(CP).—Field Marshal Sir John Dill, senior British representative on the combined board of chiefs of staff at Washington, today praised the part United States mass production of munitions and armaments has played in the United Nations' war effort and stressed necessity for continued co-operation and confidence among the Allies.

"It is not just quantitative production of which I would speak in high praise," he said in an address prepared for delivery to the Economic Club of Detroit. "But it is also qualitative production in which you have excelled. The mostest and the bestest is something of which to be really proud."

He added praise for industrial workers in Great Britain and throughout the Empire.

"The men and women of country are mobilized for war," he said. Despite wartime difficulties of blackouts, food shortages, bombings and threats of invasion "these workers of ours have plugged along and done a great job.'"

Empire Contributes.

Sir John spoke of the "equally remarkable production of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, and of India."

He said American Sherman tanks had played a vital part in the British 8th Army's victory at El Alamein 18 months ago. He regarded the battle as "indeed a turning-point" in the war's history.

Co-operation among the United Nations would prove the key to victory, Sir John said, but by that he did not mean that these countries should never disagree. "It would be fatal if we were all 'yes men' to each other.. Mutual confidence and friendship are but poor growths if they wilt under criticism and straight honest-to-good differences of opinion."

Nazis Are Dangerous.

Sir John said he did not underestimate the difficulties of defeating Germany, a nation which he likened to a prize-fighter who has taken punishment but has "some terrible punches" left. He did not discount the possibility of many months more of war in Europe.

And, "when Germany crashes to her fall, we still have these treacherous Japanese to destroy," he add-

3 High-Ranking Officers Held As Prisoners Escape

LONDON, Jan. 24—(CP).—Two distinguished British generals and an air marshal who were prisoners of the Italians have returned to Britain, it was announced today.

They are Lt.-Gen. Philip Neame, V.C.; Lt.-Gen. Sir Richard O'Connor and Air Marshal O. T. Boyd. They were among thousands of British prisoners who got away from the camps after Italy's surrender in September.

Gens. Neame and O'Connor were captured near Derna, Libya, in 1941, and Air Marshal Boyd was taken after a forced landing in the Mediterranean area in 1940 while he was flying to the Middle East.

All three were at a camp five miles from Florence when the capitulation came. They did not disclose details on their long journey south through Italy to the Allied lines, Gen. Neame saying:

"All I can say at present is that we were all three together and that it took us quite a time to get away."

A fourth high officer who has returned from an Italian prison camp is Gen. Adrian Carton De Wiart, V. C. now Britain's military representative at Chungking. Gen. De Wiart was released by the Badoglio Government at the time it was arranging armistice terms with the Allied Command.

Gen. O'Connor, a tank expert, and Gen. Neame were captured when their staff cars were forced to make a detour into the desert owing to a road block, and they ran into a German motorcycle patrol which took them prisoners.

Air Marshall Boyd was on his way to take up his new post as Deputy to the Commander-in-Chief in the Middle East when his plane made a forced landing on Axis-held territory.

Little Activity Along Adriatic

By FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH CANADIANS IN ITALY, Jan. 22—(Delayed)—CP Cable). — Canadian patrol activity has increased on the Canadian section of the Italian front, along the Adriatic, with both the Canadians and the enemy sending out strong forces to probe the opposing defences.

A group of Western Canadians rescued an Eastern Canada soldier who had been trapped five days in No Man's Land, wounded and without food.

A feud developed between the opposing patrols and the Nazis were described as "cocky" after last Monday's battle They are showing themselves to be daring soldiers, and succeeded in ambusing a Canadian patrol, inflicting some casualties and taking prisoners.

Last Monday the Canadians opened up against the German positions on the southern bank of the Arielli River near the the Adriatic coast. Thousands of shells were hurled into the German lines. Canadian troops fought a grim one-day battle against German paratroopers in enemy-held ground, gaining a few hundred yards in the face of withering machine-gun fire.

Graft Charges Startle Detroit

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 24 —(AP)—Ernest J. Prew, vice-president of the General Finance Corp. of Detroit, one of 26 men named Saturday in a grand jury warrant on charges of participating in a legislative graft conspiracy, surrendered here to-day, waived a preliminary examination and pleaded guilty in Circuit Court before Judge Legnd W. Carr, whose one-man grand jury had obtained his arrest.

Judge Carr accepted the plea and released Prew on bond of $2,500 to appear for sentence at a date not specified.

The warrant charged that Prew had paid bribes of an unspecified sum to influence members of the 1939 Legislature in voting on small-loan interest bills.

Twenty members and former members of the Michigan Legislature, also accussed in a grand jury warrant, still were facing arraignment on the bribery conspiracy charge, together with five other officials of finance companies alleged to have bribed them.

Planes Blanket 18 Nazi Targets

AN AIR BASE IN ITALY, Jan. 24.—(AP).—Hundreds of big bombers and fighters of the United States' 15th Air Force, pursuing their impressive offensive in support of the landing operations south of Rome, struck at some 18 targets yesterday and roamed above the Italian capital at will, it was reported to-day.

The chief targets were the network of roads and railroads immediately behind the German lines and north of Rome.

Bomber pilots said they believed they had put two direct hits on the Pontecorvo bridge where five important roads extend behind the German front near Cassino.

Another bridge crossing the Liri river near San Giorgio, five miles southwest of Cassino, also was battered, and another, 18 miles northbest of Cassino, was also attacked.

Halifax Guest Toronto Dinner

TORONTO, Jan. 24 (CP)—Realization of Canada's part in the United Nations' war effort has been slow in dawning on the world 'but I believe everyone realizes now what Canada has done and is doing," Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, said in an interview here today.

He arrived in Toronto earlier for the centennial dinner of the Toronto Board of Trade, at which he has to be guest speaker tonight. He was to be guest at a civic reception and luncheon at noon before attending a Queen's Park reception tendered by Lieutenant-Governor Matthews.

Referring to Canada's contribution to the post-war world Lord Halifax said: "When we speak of the four great powers, China, Russia, the United States and Britain, we ought to think and speak of the fourth power as the British Commonwealth, not just Britain."

R.A.F. Raids Piraeus Harbor In Greece

CAIRO, Jan. 24 — (AP) — R.A.F. heavy bombers set fires in Piraeus harbor in Greece Saturday night, a Middle East communique said today, and fighters and bombers striking at German supply routes in the Aegean have sunk three sailing ships since Jan. 16 and damaged other vessels.

Two planes were lost in all operations, with the crew of one saved.

4 Army Warehouses Destroyed By Fire

DETROIT, Jan. 24. — (AP).—Four wooden warehouses at the Fort Wayne Army Ordnance Depot here, containing more than $7,000,000 worth of automobile and truck parts and other equipment, were destroyed by fire this morning. The cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

Col. Harry Anderson, depot commandant, said the Federal Bureau of Investigation will probe the blaze.

Ring of Disaster Closes In On Hitler

Amphibious Invasion Of Italy Latest Blow To Nazi Strength

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Forecasting the outcome of a dangerous and delicate amphibious invasion, while it still is in its early stages, is like counting chickens before they're hatched, but we are observing moderation in saying that the Allied landing on the Italian coast below Rome has been going well—indeed much more smoothly than even the most optimistic could have expected.

Our side has been both smart and lucky. Our success in getting ashore with virtually no opposition Saturday is, of course, a tribute to the Allied command in concealing the exact sector of the projected landing from the Germans. But it's more than that. It signifies a general weakening of Nazi resistance in the face of the growing United Nations' onslaught from all directions.

Can't Be Concealed

There's no way of concealing the preparations for an amphibious operation of this size from the enemy. The big fleet alone would give that away. The Germans knew an attack was coming but they didn't know where.

The significant fact is that as a normal measure of precaution they weren't prepared for an assault at such a strategic spot as was chosen. Undoubtedly they didn't have sufficient forces to safeguard all potential invasion points.

The ring of disaster is closing in on Hitler. He is being pushed to the limit to defend himself against the furious onslaught of the Red Armies on the long Russo-German battlefront. The Balkans also are straining his resources, and he has to keep western Europe manned for the final reckoning which is hurtling down on him. He no longer is capable of throwing into the Italian fighting all the power he needs—or into the fighting anywhere else, for that matter.

That's not the whole story, though. The German defenders perhaps could have been more efficient had it not been for the Allied domination of the air over Italy and the superb work of the British and United States bombing fleets. Allied air and naval forces have so disrupted communications both north and south of Rome, which is the hub of all Italy's main railways, that the Nazis must be hard pushed to move troops and supplies.

Lewis Asks AFL Concession

Wants Control Of Chemical Workers

MIAMI, FLA., Jan. 24—(AP)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, is ready to make a deal with the American Federation of Labor on terms that will assure him jurisdiction over chemical workers as well as mine workers after he is re-admitted to the federation.

These are the minimum terms before the A. F. L. executive council today as it prepares to reconsider the nine-months-old application to reinstate the United Mine Workers.

Nominally, Lewis' position has not changed. He says he must be re-admitted first, with jurisdiction decisions to be made later. Council members say he has assurred them he will abide by the council's decisions, except as to the Chemical Workers.

Lewis is bargaining for jurisdiction rights in a promising industry to bolster he expected permanent postwar decline in mining employments. Plastics alone perhaps would give him a large field for organization.

Although he did not ask the A. F. L. committtee specifically for jurisdiction over 40,000 chemical workers now in the federation, undoubtedly he means to get it if he can get unrestricted A. F. L. jurisdiction in the chemical industry.

Rural Area Is Great Market

Could Use 4 Millions Worth Of Equipment

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—(CP).—Rural Ontario will provide an annual market for approximately $4,000,000 worth of electrical appliances and equipment and accessory materials in the post-war era, Dr. T. H. Hogg said in an interview to-day

Dr. Hogg, chairman and chief engineer of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said already Hydro was paving the way for its post-war electrification program. The commission has made representations to the metal controller at Ottawa for the release of additional materials during the present year, he said.

The commission hopes, in coming months, to extend service on existing rural lines and to add new extensions making Hydro service available to additional 5,000 farms in Ontario, thus increasing food production, Dr. Hogg added.

Discussing Hydro's new rural rate structure, he said 79 per cent. of the province's rural consumers had received a reduction in the cost of electricity. Existing consumers, particularly on farms, used only about 12½ per cent. of the electricity they might employ, he said.

Mr. Hogg said "there must be recognition of the fact industrial workers and farmers are equally important to the stability of our economic system."

Chinese Gain 2 Points In N. Burma

Fighters Damage 2 Steamers 40 River Craft

NEW DELHI, Jan. 24—(CP)—Chinese troops have captured Mingru La in their drive toward Taipha Ga in the Hukawng Valley of North Burma, an Allied southeast Asia headquarters communique said today.

The bulletin said that a strong Japanese position in the Taro area of the same front was also taken, despite reinforcements brought up by the enemy.

The Chinese forces have been engaged in clearing Japanese patrols from the new Lido road to China in their advance eastward across North Burma.

The communique also said that strong Japanese counter-attacks in the Buthedaung area of the Arakan front on the Burmese west coast had been thrown back. The Allies have been expanding their toehold here in bitter hand-to-hand fighting in a drive aimed toward the Japanese-held port of Akyab.

R.A.F. and United States planes continued to blast the Japanese in various parts of Burma, the communique said.

A strong force of escorted U.S. heavy and medium bombers pounded Prome Saturday, the heavies attacking a hutted camp while the mediums concentrated on the railway yards. R.A.F. fighters damaged two steamers and more than 40 other river craft in sweeps along the Irrawaddy and waterways of the Mayu peninsula.

The raids were carried out without loss.

Morley Smithson, Former Warden Of Peterborough County Passes

Morley E. Smithson, a former Warden of Peterborough county, died at Nicholls Hospital Sunday after a protracted illness of intermittent and increasing seriousness.

Born in Otonabee township sixty-one years ago, son of the late Joshua and Ann Smithson, he was one of the outstanding farmers of his township during the last twenty-five years. With experience in his local council he went on as reeve to the county council of which he was warden in 1928, and for years he has been a member of the Suburban Area Commission, and for several terms chairman, in charge of the roads which the city and county improve and maintain. His last appearance before the county council was during the November sessions when he was accompanied by his two associates, M. H. Gainey and A. E. Middleton.

At that time they were tentatively planning some of the work they expected to pay down for this year, and on a broader scale they were looking forward to postwar work.

"The news this morning of Morley Smithson's death is a great shock to me," Mr. Gainey stated today. "Mr. Middleton and I had been up to see him a week ago today, and at that time we thought his condition was not at all favorable. Then, during the week and even up to Saturday the reports from the hospital were a lot brighter. The last word I had at the week-end from his brother John, and from the information I thought the worst was over. Then, this morning comes the word of his death.

"Morley Smithson was well known in this country and city. He had literally a host of friends. He was just one of the very best. Mr. Smithson was beginning his fifteenth year as a Suburban Area Commissioner, and I had been on the board with him all those years. At various times he had been chairman, and Mr. Middleton and I told him last week that we had called on him to appoint him chairman for 1944. Because his health had been more or less uncertain he had declined the chairmanship for the last three or four years. We were quite serious in the proposal which we made during the call. Mr. Smithson said he would be glad to accept, indicating his spirit at that time, just a week ago.

"He was a man of sound judgment and with a great deal more foresight than most people. He usually took his time in forming his conclusions, and you could trust him for the right opinion and answer. He was a man of strong character, just and fair minded, and you could depend upon anything he said. My association with him on the Suburban Area Commission was a pleasant experience, and as the city representative I can pay the tribute to Mr. Smithson that he never took any petty attitude toward our affairs."

Great Loss To Community

A. E. Middleton, the third member of the Commission, recalled today that Mr. Smithson had succeeded him as Warden of the county.

'We were in the council together four or five years, and on the Commission I have been in close touch with him for a long time. His death is a great loss to the community, and it means to me the loss of a fine friend. He was a genuine character, everything about him. That was his reputation; thoroughly trustworthy in anything he undertook. You could always rely on his word."

Integrity of character combined with keen and alert intelligence, Mr. Smithson turned over his own furrows of thought, a trait that will be recalled by all his friends. He was a rugged individualist, and not only was he possessed of sound and shrewd judgment, but an exceptional spirit of independence and self-containment was often reflected from his actions and words.

There was the revealing incident of his address as Warden at the opening of one of the sessions of the county council when he was presiding. Several sheets of type-script were handed to him. That was the usual practice. But, Mr. Smithson calmly asked: "What this?" And he was told it was the Warden's address, and in the same level tone he said "I don't think I'll bother with that, but I have a few things I would like to say." That rejection of a hand-out speech sounds now like only a forgotten trifle, but in its own moment and place it was a rare incident, and a memorable one.

Good Citizen

Character and ability were closely knit in Mr. Smithson. He had a keener discernment than most men, and his opinions and ideas were always respected in his own municipality and also in the county. The old Smithson farm near Zion is a beautiful country property, and Mr. Smithson loved its acres and its long vistas over the gently rolling landscape. Several years ago when asthma was harassing him from time to time, Mr. Smithson spent a summer in western Canada. It brought a measure of relief to him, and new impressions of the national importance of western Canada, and he remarked to the Examiner one day after his return that the trip deepened his appreciation of the scenery about his own home.

Mr. Smithson took an active interest in politics, and was known throughout the county as a prominent supporters of the Conservative party. He will be gently missed by Otonabee neighbors and many other men in the city and country.

It was learned that some incidence of pneumonia appeared toward the end of his illness of asthma.

Mr. Smithson is survived by his sister, Mrs. Thomas MacDonald of Toronto, and his brothers, Howard of Otonabee; Frederick of South Monaghan and John of Toronto.

which the Army and Navy managed to land troops behind the enemy lines. I landed with the second assault wave at 2:10 a.m. but did not see a shot fired. We just walked. That's how easy it was.

The nerve strain of covering an amphibious operations is terrific—not so much because of any physical danger, for that is a normal reaction, but because of the confusion and uncertainty of getting dispatches back to the cable clerk.

Correspondents attached to the 5th Army drew lots to see who would win a place with the amphibious force. There were seven places open. I was one of the lucky ones and I was assigned to an advance unit.

As I write this it appears that the planners of this operation conceived a brilliant one, for it has gone better than anyone could have dreamed.

I drew a unit commanded by Lt.-Col. Lyle W. Bernard of Highland Falls, N.Y., an old friend from the Sicily campaign and one of the ablest and toughest soldiers I've ever seen.

Next morning our ship steamed out to sea to convoy with the invasion fleet and steamed towards Rome. Everyone spent most of the day sleeping or lounging in bunks, resting for the test ahead because we thought this would be the toughest landing any of us ever made. We did not see how the enemy could be unaware of such an armada.

After a briefing, a poker game started. Some men read, others wrote letters.

Then it was time to disembark. Our ship stood at anchor about four miles off the coast. We were to land in the vicinity of Nettuno.

Not A Shot Fired

A bell sounded and we filed onto the dark deck and stood at the rail as seamen lowered the assault boats. There was not a sound from the mainland and the only lights were stars studding the black sky.

We clambered down a swaying net into the boat and were jammed in tightly. The men did not talk much. The boat cleared away from the ship to join other small craft moving towards shore.

At 1:45 a.m. the Navy loosed a barrage on the beach and then we thought the Germans would answer with coastal defence guns, but nothing happened. Not a shot was fired from the shore.

Then the boat hit the beach hard and Bernard shouted "Everybody out fast!"

We surged towards the front of the boat but the ramp stuck.

"Follow me over the side," Bernard shouted and jumped into the shallow surf.

The soldiers swarmed over the side and splashed ashore.

Later we learned that the troops to our right and left walked into mines but apparently our strip of beach was unmined for I did not hear any explosion or see a shot fired by our troops although there was occasional small-arms fire off at our flank.

Coffee Drinkers Must Keep Down Thirst As W.T.P.B. Reports Show Supply Dwindling

Coffee drinkers yearning for a return to the good old days will have to remain patient for a long time yet. This is the disheartening news issuing from the local office of the Prices Board, where W. E. Foley, manager, answered a hopeful question pessimistically this morning. "There is no prospect," he said, "of coffee rationing being discontinued or of the allotments being increased."

The higher rate that went into effect last August, Mr. Foley explained, when coupons could be cashed once every three weeks instead of every four, was using up a larger supply of coffee than could be brought into the country at the present time. Consequently, it wasn't possible to increase the stocks on hand, which, Mr. Foley said were still holding well below pre-war levels.

"Then, too, the crop in Brazil has been poor and the whole coffee supply situation is unfavorable,' the Prices Board official stated, adding that coffee-conscious Canadians are now drinking their favourite stimulant at the rate of 54 million pounds a year. This compares with a pre-war rate of 42 million pounds, and is an increase of all of 28 p.c.

Nearly a third of all the precious beans from Brazil coming into this country are allocated to the armed forces, the Red Cross and for prisoners of war. "No," Mr. Foley concluded, "people aren't going to have any more coffee in 1944 than they did in 1943."

Losses Light In New Landing

By HOMER BIGART
New York Herald Tribune Correspondent Representing the Combined U.S. Press

WITH THE 5th ARMY SOUTH OF ROME, Jan. 24—An Allied amphibious force has landed south of Rome completely surprising an enemy beach depleted in manpower. Vital beaches were left unguarded except by a handful of men armed with a few machine-guns.

This despatch was filed Saturday 11 hours after the first assault wave went over the deserted beaches. Not one enemy artillery shell has been dropped within the rapidly broadening beachheads.

On my beach not one soldier has fallen from German bullets. The few casualties were the result of mines and a few late morning air raids by half a dozen Focke-Wulfs. It is incredible.

For nearly three months the Germans have all but stalemated the Allies crossing through the mountains from Naples. And now the Allied 5th Army, at a cost of a few dozen men, has landed on the front door step of Rome.

Why hasn't is been done before? Well, it had to be when the land offensive was offering reasonable guarantee of a break-through at the Gustav line. While Marshal Albert Kesselring was borrowing every reinforcement for this crumbling Gustav line, the coast south of Rome was of necessity ignored.

Resort towns have fallen and the troops have pressed forward to put them even closer to Rome. In perfect weather, troops and supplies are landing on schedule. We are preparing for the expected counter-attack.

with sufficient strength to meet the Germans when they turn around from the Cassino front.

The first men to swarm ashore were heavily laden with yellow grenades, bazukas, and 81-millimetre shells, and they soon were followed by heavier gear.

Much depends on the 5th Army troops along the land front to the south. If they hold against the furious German counter-assaults and have enough offensive strength left to press forward when the Germans attempt to disengage, they could prevent them from throwing their full power into the attack on the beachhead.

Major Counter Starts.

The Germans aimed their thrusts all along the Gustav line running through Cassino. The Americans were thrown back across the Rapido when their ammunition was exhausted, but they exacted heavy casualties, held off a German follow-up at the point of the bayonet, and reoccupied strong positions on their own side of the river.

The French in the mountains to the northeast stood firm.

British troops lost the ridge commanding Tufo to the southwest but regained it with a counter-attack of their own. The main German thrust here was directed at Santi Cosmo E Damiano ridge near Castelforte and the fighting was described as the hardest the British soldiers have encountered since they crossed the Garigliano.

"All the German assaults in this sector were costly failures," a headquarters commentator declared.

Heavy bombers attacked railway and road targets at Porto Civitanova, on the Adriatic coast below Ancona; at Siena, 115 miles northwest of Rome, and at Ceprano, 16 miles north of Cassino. Heavy bombers also hit an airfield at Reiti, 42 miles northeast of Rome.

Fighters and fighter-bombers concentrated on the lines of communication in the Fondi, Ceccano and Sezze areas inland from the new landing beaches and between Rome and the trans-Italy front.

FIRE DAMAGE HIGH.

LONDON— (CP) — During 1942, £12,500,000 damage through fire was caused to civilian property in Britain. Government losses are not available. Statisticians said carelessness caused about 50 per cent of the damage.

Memorial Window Is Dedicated At St. James' United Church

A special service was held at St. James United Church on Sunday morning when a beautiful window was dedicated by the trustees of the church in memory of the late Alvah Wilson, a member and official of St. James for many years. The window was erected by the family as a token of remembrance of a devout servant of God, and diligent worker in the general activities of the congregation. The late Alvah Wilson was a member of the old Charlotte St. Methodist Church for more than twenty-two years. Rev. H. M. Manning was appointed to organize a church in the south end of Peterborough and for the first four months services were held in a tent. Under his ministry the Welsley Hall was built in 1908. Following the brief but effective pastorate of Mr. Manning Rev. J. G. Brown was stationed on the pastoral charge and under his faithful ministry the congregation enjoyed remarkable success. The Wesley Hall now serves as accomodation for the Sunday School. Mr and Mrs. A. Wilson, who resided on Westcott St., felt that they should link up with the church nearest their home, consequently they joined St. James. From 1909-1914 Mr. Wilson was treasurer of the church. He was among the first six men who formed the nucleus for the new congregation; and for 14 years was enthusiastic in his efforts to help build a worthy cause. He was a member of the Trustee Board, and acted as Steward on the Quarterly Official Board until his death which occured on Nevember 28th 1924 in his 78th year.

Truly it could be said of the late Mr. Wilson that he loved the house of God and always desired the sanctuary to be an attractive spiritual home. Mrs. Wilson still attends the regular services of the church and was honored by the congregation by being appointed to the Session. She is a splendid example of Christian character. For fifteen years she was president of the Ladies' Aid Society. The memorial window was unveiled by C. F. Kitney, who, for many years was a co-worker with Mr. Wilson, and succeded him as treasurer of the church. Rev. Fred Craik, minister of St. James preached a sermon on the symbolism of the new memorial which depicts the call of Jesus Christ to the Christian to "put on the whole armour of God". The young armour-bearer accepts the call of the Christ and goes forth to meet the challenge of a new day. As the Knight of the Cross faces the arduous tasks of the Kingdom of God he rests on the assurance of God's promise "Thy grace is sufficient for thee". The service was deeply impressive. The choir sang appropriately "The Lord is in His Holy Temple". The ladies trio—Mrs. R. C. Searles, Mrs. L. McLaren and Miss Margaret Smart rendered—"Bless this house O Lord". Miss Mary Hanlon, a member of the R. C. A. F., sang "My Cathedral".

A daughter Mrs. Frank Geary of Owen Sound, and a son, Ernest A. Wilson, of Lethbridge Alberta, were unable to attend the service.

The inscription on the memorial window reads as follows—

To the glory of God and in memory of Alvah Wilson, first treasurer of St. James Church.——

And in appreciation of Margaret Wilson for their untiring efforts in the erection and work of this church.

Erected by the family 1944.

"Co-workers together with God".

Four Fliers Killed In Galway Crash

KINMOUNT, Jan. 24—Four airmen died on a rocky hillside in Galway township Saturday afternoon shortly after four o'clock when a twin-engined Avro-Anson plummeted from the sky in bright sunshine and exploded. The crash took place in a heavy wooded, sparsely settled section about three and one-half miles south-east of Kinmount village.

Fred Stone and Fred McHale, two woodsmen engaged in timber cutting reported to Provincial Constable William McBrien of Lindsay that they were attracted by the roar of the plane's motors and saw it come out of a fleecy cloud. Watching the plane, they saw it swing a circle and return, entering the cloud formation again. Soon after the plane dropped from the cloud in a spiral dive with the engines cut. While still high in the air, the engines cut in, but the plane failed to come out of the dive, and headed straight for the ground and smashed into an elm tree on the stoney hill What happened will never be known, and the resultant explosion reported to have been heard ten miles away, gives rise ot the belief that the plane was carrying bombs in its racks. This however could not be confirmed as there was little left in the wreckage.

The plane was on a routine flight from No. 1 Training Command, Malton, carrying the full crew of four men. Next-of-kin have been notified and their names will be released soon.

It was learned last night that the dead were two R.A.F. men, an airman from Saskatchewan, and a civilian pilot from Vancouver.

TORONTO, Jan. 24 (CP)—Royal Canadian Air Force headquarters here said today William Isted, 28, of Vancouver, and Sgt. Bruce Edward Leahman of Regina were two of four airmen killed Saturday when an Anson bomber crashed at Shadow Lake near Kinmount, 30 miles north of Lindsay, Ont.

Isted, pilot on indefinite leave from the R.C.A.F., was at the controls of the aircraft, operating from the air observers' school at nearby Malton. Leahman was wireless-air gunner. Also killed were two student observers of the Royal Air Force.

The crash was witnessed by Fred McHale and Fred Stone, bushmen building a road on the farm where the aircraft struck. Next-of-kin of the R.A.F. men had been informed and names will be issued shortly.

Douglas Hay Pulls Boys Out Of Canal

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 24. — (ENS). — The rumoured drowning which occurred here a month ago, came near being a tragic fact here when two small boys, living at the north end of Front street, were pulled from the water in an exhausted condition by Douglas Hay, 24 The boys were G. B. Labrash 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Labrash and David Ellis 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Ellis. They were walking a few feet apart along the thin ice which covered the canal behind Meyer's ice house when they went through into fifteen feet of water.

According to the story told by Mr. Hay, he had left his home shortly after three o'clock and had gone over to the Bailey house next door to await a ride down town. While talking with Mr. William Bailey they heard the children shouting but Mr. Bailey thought they were playing in the ice house and paid little attention. Judging from the shouts that something was wrong, he walked out of the house and back to the river, where he saw the two children struggling in the water holding on to the ice.

Young Labrash was about fifteen feet from shore and Hay flopped down on his stomach and inched out to grab the boy and pull him to safety. Harry Nichols, who had also been at Bailey's, got a plank and placed it over the ice to bring the Ellis boy ashore.

"All I could see was the Ellis boy's head when we got to the short," said Hay. "He was about 25 feet out and hanging on to a sheet of ice that was not more than a quarter of an inch thick."

Both boys were blue with cold when rescued and it was later revealed they had been throwing stones out on the ice when the near tragedy occurred.

Poultry Groups Urged For Farms

COBOURG, Jan. 24 (ENS) — "It is not many years ago," stated R. C. Banbury, Northumberland County Agricultural Representative, "that the farmer who was able to get hens to lay sufficient eggs for Eastertime, was considered somewhat of a specialist. It is but an evidence of agricultural progress to note the fact that most good Northumberland poultrymen had their pullets laying in September."

The county has many excellent farm poultrymen and fairly efficient market methods in egg grading stations, but there is always something new in the poultry game and consequently Mr. Banbury is making plans to offer poultry meetings to any community in Northumberland wishing this type of event. In some cases large meetings will be planned, but any group, such as a Farm Forum or a Women's Institute, wishing to conduct a meeting can do so quite satisfactorily in a farm kitchen with two dozen interested poultry neighbors.

Mr. J. E. Bergey, who is well-known through his association with the Ontario Breeding Stations, and on the staff of the poultry dept. of O.A.C. will be the authority. Definite arrangements will be made as soon as the groups are heard from, but the month of February, possibly the week of the 14th, is being considered.

Red Cross To Start Emergency Classes

COBOURG, Jan. 24 (ENS) — Sponsored by the Red Cross Society, classes in War Emergency Reserve are being planned for the near future. Classes will be held once a week for the several weeks in which the course continue and it is the intention to have the Reserve function for the duration of the war. Miss Beryl Kelly of the Ontario Hospital staff is in charge. Those who are interested are requested to telephone No. 865, after 3.30 p.m. on any day.

This course is for those women who have taken the courses in Home Nursing and Emergencies in War and will fit women to go into homes in case of an epidemic and disaster, to lend theiir assistance. They will be taught, under the supervision of local nurses, how to make beds, take temperatures, bathe patients, feed helpless patients and other duties.

Institute Hears Early History Of Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 24 — (ENS) — Seymour Township was conscious of the important place held by education as far back as 1850 and the question on establishing schools was dealt with at the second meeting of the municipal council which was established that year. This and a number of other interesting facts embodying the early history of Seymour was given by Mrs. R. A. Rutherford as the topic for the January meeting of the Seymour West Women's Institute.

According to the speaker, the township, which covers an area of 224,000 acres, was first surveyed in 1819 and again in 1833. Most of the early settlers were half-pay military and naval officers from the British Isles and the greater number of these came after the first survey had been made. A man who figured prominently in the affairs of the day, and who was to give his name to the town of Campbellford, was Major Campbell whose home was located at the north end of the town near the present site of the fair grounds. It was in the vicinity that Campbell's ford was located.

Mrs. Rutherford recited the names of the early inhabitants of the district and told where some of them lived. Among the names were many that are still well-known in the district such as Anderson, Arnold, Kingsmill, Cassan, Clark Denmark, Free, Haig, Hall, Dinwoodie, Hume, McArthur, Stillman, Scott, Macoun and Roweds. According to early records these settlers held their first meeting for the purpose of arranging services of the Church of Scotland in 1836 and Dr. Bethune whose territory extended from Toronto to Montreal was the first pastor to visit the congregation then formed. First ministed called to Seymour was Rev. Robert Neil and he made his home on the English Line serving the district for forty-fve years and holding many of his first meetings in Walter Govan's home in Seymour West.

Reviews Schools.

Seymour had its first council in 1850 with David Allan, Dr. Denmark, John Mitchell, Henry Rowed and George Tunnah as sits initial members. They received petitions requesting the formation of four schools at their second meeting. Shortly after this the bridge over the Crowe River at the north east end of the township was built by Henry Fowlds who subsequently received a crown grant of land for this project.

The first known tavern was Willman's at Campbellford and here the council held many of its meetings. And as an indication that the relief problem of the 1930's was nothing new, the council of that early day had also this matter to deal with. In those days, however, relief consisted prmarily of giving those in need a supply of flour and pork.

The first vice president, Mrs. Raymond Free, presided for the meeting which was held at Mrs. Marcus Curle's and the roll call was answered by giving the name of the first settler on their farm. The oldest crown grant reported was to Wiliam Kingsmill who settled on the farm land which now forms part of the R. A. Rutherford farm. Mrs. Alan Curle read a chapter on 'Pioneer Homes' from the Institute book "Forty Years A'Growing" and the changes made when women organized and their outlook broadened by the formation of Institute branches.

Want Transportation.

Mrs. Reg. McCulloch reported two car loads of blood donors had been taken to the Peterborough clinic and that they were awaiting further volunteers in order to arrange transporation for them. Nine acknowledgements and expressions of thanks were read from members of the armed forces for parcels sent by the Institute at Christmas.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Thomas Dunham and in addition to Mrs. Rutherford's address it included community singing, a reading by Mrs. Ray McCulloch, and a demonstration and talk on antiques by Mrs. Howard Clark who displayed a number of once commonplace items which no longer to be found in the household.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM J. ABERNETHY.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 24 (ENS) — A former councillor and C.N.R. freight handler, William J. Abernethy, 64, passed away at his home on Sebastopol Street recently. A well-known figure, he will long be remembered for his friendly manner and pleasant personality.

He was born in Campbellford, a son of Mrs. Abernethy and the late William Abernethy, and after leaving school carried on in the footsteps of his father, who had been a carter with the railway. He was a confirmed poultry fancier, and it was this, coupled with the fact that he was for many years a director of the Seymour Agriculture Society, that made him so well known. Until two years ago, Mr. Abernethy had been a judgs of the poultry exhibits at the local fair, and in years past his ability in this field took him to many fairs in the district in this same capacity.

A Conservative in politics since he was old enough to vote, Mr. Abernethy was an ardent party worker and for a number of years was chairman of Ward III. in the local Conservative Association. He was a member of Golden Rule Lodge, A.F. & A.M.; a Woodsman of the World, Maple Leaf Camp, No. 161, Campbellford, and a member of the L.O.L. He retired from business 10 years ago, and passed away after three years of recurrent illness.

There survive besides his widow, formerly Gussie Wilson of Warkworth, one daughter, Mrs. Roy Wellman (Cletea) of Oshawa, and one son, Pilot Officer Arthur of Montreal, and his aged mother, Mrs. William H. Abernethy of Campbellford. Two sisters, Mrs. Charles Roe of Brampton; Mrs. Jason Hoag, East Aurora, N.Y., and six brothers: Harry and Ernest of Campbellford, Herbert of Toronto, Carl of Port Credit, Joseph of Entwhistle, Sask., and Frederick of Kellam, Alta.

The funeral service was conducted from his late residence on Sunday afternoon by Rev. G. N. Maxwell of St. John's United Church, of which he was a member, and interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The pall-bearers were J. L. Doherty, Frank McKelvie, J. M. Bygott, J. C. Birmingham, W. S. Wiggins, J. F. McGregor, and the bearers of many beautiful floral tributes were Gerald Labrash, Harry Barrons, P. R. Sherwin, Frank Menzies, Arnold Joyne, R. J. Locke, W. A. Kingston, Charles Calver, Roy Wellman, Edward Wellman.

Pravda Claims Allies United

LONDON, Jan. 24 — (CP) — The Russian newspaper Pravda, which published a Cairo-dated "rumor" a week ago about alleged British-German peace talks, said today Hitler had failed in "all his political diplomatic manoeuyres" to destroy Allied unity.

A Moscow broadcast recorded by the Soviet Monitor quoted Pravda as saying:—

"The Moscow and Teheran conferences....are a splendid illustration of the bankruptcy of the Hitleriate calculations; they evidence the strengthening of a new unity between the countries of the anti-Hitlerite coalition."

Pravda's publication of the Cairo story prompted a quick and emphatic British foreign office denial.

Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, British Ambasador to Russia, who has been in London only a week, will return to Moscow as soon as possible, it was reported last night. He has conferred with Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden.

Mild Weather Brings Pussy Willows Out

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 24 — (ENS). — For anyone who doubts the winter thus far has been a mild one here is factual evidence to prove it. The pussy willows are out. Town Treasurer F. W. Wood was strolling down beside the canal a few days ago when he observed the buds on the willows had just about reached the bursting point, so he gathered a few branches and brought them home, where with a little additional warmth they burst out in full growth. He had them in a glassed-in porch at the front of his home on Saturday and the buds had broken out in beautiful pussies the like of which are rarely seen even in February. It took only three days for them to reach this advanced growth after being taken inside.

"ONE MAN FORCE"—Major James H. Howard of St. Louis, Mo., former Flying Tiger, who has been revealed as the "one man air force," the lone American fighter pilot that tangled with 30 Nazi fighters while escorting bombers. He shot down two of the Nazis, got two "probables" and two "damaged."

Decision Delayed Over Auto Crash

COBOURG, Jan. 24 — (ENS). — Judgment was reserved in connection with the damage action brought by Harold Stillman of Warkworth against Frank Parish of Port Hope. The case arose out of a head-on collision which occurred on the highway about three miles north of Baltimore, July 2 last year.

F. C. Richardson of Cobourg appeared for the plaintiff and G. N. Gordon, K.C., of Peterborough, was counsel for the defendant.

Stillman testified that he had been going north on his own side of the road when he saw a car coming straight at him. He stated that he pulled off as far as possible to the right side of the road and reduced his speed to 20 miles an hour, or less, but that nevertheless the front left wheels of the two cars locked.

Cecil Wilson, local garage proprietor, testified that it had cost $161.50 to repair Stillman's car and that another $25 would cover the cost of making other minor repairs arising out of the crash.

Rebukes Plaintiff.

At one point of the plaintiff's cross-examination, Judge German halted proceedings to explain to the plaintiff that if he did not come to a full stop when he saw a collision was imminent, he might be said to have been partly responsible for the damages, even if, as several witnesses testified, the accident could not have been avoided by merely stopping, as Parish had continued to drive straight at the Stillwell car.

"The fact that you happen to be on the right side of the road doesn't absolve you from making an effort to avoid the accident," Judge German told the plaintiff.

St. John's Church Mourns Soldier

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 24 (ENS) —A memorial service was held in St. John's United Church here Sunday afternoon for Pte. Raymond Eugene Hay 19, who died in Italy on December 10 as the result of wounds he received in action the preceding day.

Rev. G. N. Maxwell was in charge of the service and took as the text of his remarks "Quit You Like Men" from the battle cry of the Philistines in Paul's advice to the Corinthians. Mr. Maxwell declared that by giving his life the youth had given a challenge to those left behind to play the part of real men.

Music was offered by the choir under the direction of Mr. Charles Howey and a male quartette comprising H. M. Donald, H. Pierce, G. W. Lucy and Harold Twigg sang "Near to the Heart of God". At the close of the service, Bglr. Walter Lowe sounded the Last Post and Reveille while the congregation observed a minute's silence.

Pte. Hay was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hay of Campbellford and was born in Belleville. He came to this town with his parents five years ago and enlisted with the Midland Regiment in March 1941. In September of the following year Pte. Hay transferred to the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment and was posted overseas. After a short time in England he went to the Mediterranean where he took part in the invasion of Sicily. When in Italy Pte. Hay was reported missing for five days and turned up after being behind enemy lines.

There survive besides his parents four brothers. Rflmn. Bill who was made a prisoner of war following the fall of Hong Kong in December 1941; Pte. Ernest with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Italy and who was wounded on December 15; Douglas and Roy both at home and one sister, Helen.

Bulgaria Forms Gestapo Force

BERNE, Jan. 24 (AP)—A powerful new police force, resembling Germany's storm troops and elite guard, will be formed in Bulgaria to suppress revolt, anti-government demonstrations and sabotage, the Sofia radio has announced. It will be under direction of Interior Minister Dotsche Christov, who thus will wield powers comparable to those of Heinrich Himmler in Germany.

(A German broadcast recorded by U.S. government monitors said Bulgarian regional prefects from all parts of the country had been summoned to Sofia for a conference today. The broadcast also said officials of the Ministry of Public Works and "some other ministries" had received "civil mobilization orders.")

A Budapest dispatch said today evacuation of bombed Sofia could now be considered complete after a period of great confusion. The dispatch estimated there were still thousands of dead in the ruins of the capital.

(A Budapest dispatch to the Swedish press said riots had occurred in devastated Sofia, requiring the issuance of special regulations by the Interior Minister.

(A Sofia broadcast heard by U.S. government monitors said the 6 p.m. curfew had been extended indefinitely under police order.)

New Head Of W.I.B.

Mr. Davidson Dunton has been appointed to succeed Mr. John Grierson as head of the Wartime Information Board; Mr. Dunton has been on the Board for some time, and knows the ins and outs of it thoroughly. He is editor of the Montreal Standard, and one of the youngest newspaper executives in the Dominion. The job which he has taken on is a demanding one, and has been held by a succession of able men since its establishment; there is every reason to believe that he will fill it admirably.

Mr. Grierson went to W.I.B. for six months, and stayed for a year; he has now relinquished that job to return to the National Film Board and also, the rumour goes, to act as a government advisor on matters of information. What this latter job includes we do not know, and it will probably be some time before his hand is visible in any government matter. We are not convinced, however, that it is a good idea for a government to have too much advice in matters of information; serious abuses may spring from it; it would be especially unfortunate if a government advisor on matters of information were to become a sort of liaison officer between the government and the C.B.C.

The problem of controlled information must always be a difficult one for a democratic state. In wartime we all want to know what is happening, but there are obvious reason why we cannot be told all that we should like to know. It takes integrity of a very special kind for a government information bureau to keep from tinkering, however slightly, with the facts which it is able to reveal. Fortunately the W.I.B. has no control over direct news, and acts as an interpreter and co-ordinator for news from government departments. Upon the whole it has done an excellent job, avoiding the many pitfalls in its way and preventing many misunderstandings which a dozen or so departmental information services would have caused. Under its new head we are sure that it will keep up the good work.

A New Licensing System

Mr. Leslie Blackwell, the Attorney-General of Ontario, has been discussing a new system of licensing premises to sell liquor with the Ontario Hotel Association. Mr. Blackwell's plan is to remove the licensing authority from the Liquor Control Board and put it in the hands of a judicial group, made up possibly of county court judges. The system, he said, had not been worked out in detail, but was based upon that in use in Great Britain, where licenses are granted by boards of licensing magistrates, and are renewed from time to time, or nullified, as these bodies see fit. Under the British system, as Mr. Blackwell pointed out, a license cannot be capitalized when a business is transferred, for the license depends solely upon the decent conduct of the licensed premises; the new system, Mr. Blackwell says, would be free of possible political domination or influence.

The British licensing system appears to work very well. Periodically all licenses are considered by the licensing magistrates, and if a public house or hotel has been complained of as a resort of drunkenness or irregularity of any kind the license is suspended. The excellent standard of conduct observable in English public houses owes much to this system. The man who has had too much to drink will not be served any more; the man who becomes quarrelsome or ugly or objectionable is asked to leave, and helped if he seems reluctant; the prostitute who tries to solicit in a public house is shown the door at once: why? because the license is endangered if these things are not so.

In the course of his address to the hotel keepers Mr. Blackwell commented on the attitude which the Dominion Government has taken in the matter of beer and wine, both of which exist in quantity, but which cannot be sold, the excuse being that their sale might impede the war effort. Dissatisfaction in the public mind, said the Attorney-General, also impeded the war effort, and so did bootlegging and racketeering. And he made this observation also, which is worthy of careful attention: conditions which in the short-term view are injurious to the war effort may develop conditions from which it may well take a generation to recover.

The Hotel Association of Canada does not like Mr. Blackwell's plan, but for all that we feel that it might work for the betterment of conditions in the licensed premises of this Province, and promote the causes of decency and true temperance.

Cheaper To Jail Them

The Financial Post tells us that there are 17,492 school teachers in Canada who receive salaries of less than $537 a year. It also tells us that the average cost of keeping a man or woman in prison is $536.55 a year. These figures force us to an obvious conclusion: it would save the country money to put those 17,492 teachers in jail at once, and keep them there.

It is true that imprisonment might restrain these teachers in their pursuit of life, liberty and happiness. But what sort of life, liberty and happiness do they enjoy on $537 a year? If they depend on that salary for their livelihood, it is likely that many of them would be better housed and better fed in jail than they are at present. And in jail, of course, they would be under no obligation to keep up the appearance of respectability which the public expects in school teachers. In this matter their freedom in jail would be greater than their freedom in this cold, hard Dominion.

It is disgraceful to expect a competent teacher of the young to work for that sort of pay. It is also dangerous, for beggarly wages will attract nothing very remarkable in the way of talent, and we do not want third-raters teaching our children.

Considering the amount of claptrap which is talked about education and opportunity in Canada we think it is time that a minimum wage law was applied to the teaching profession. To boast of education for everybody is hypocrisy if the education is provided by these shoddy, sweatshop means.

Do They Know Robin Hood?

A writer in a learned British periodical recently attempted to prove that Robin Hood never existed, and the poetical editor of the Brantford Expositor — his eye in a fine frenzy rolling—has flown to the defence of the legendary hero. Our contemporary is apparently a Robin Hood fan; at any rate he declares that the bandit of Sherwood Forest is more real than Mr. Pickwick, Sherlock Holmes, D'Artagnan, of Captain Nemo; in this we think that he somewhat overstates the case. Indeed, when he says that Robin Hood and his gang live in the imagination of countless thousands, we suspect that he has himself flown to Sherwood Forest and is pulling the long bow until it is in great danger of cracking. What would be the result, we wonder, if the Gallup Poll sent its spies into our schoolyards and questioned the children on this matter? How many of them have ever heard of Robin Hood? How many know where he performed his great feats? How many can name his chief lieutenant, his chaplain or his female companion (not to say moll)?

Of course if the modern world pays little attention to Robin Hood, the loss is its own. What a party hero he would make for the C.C.F.! The dashing, laughing, large-souled Robin Hood snatched the wealth of the rich and gave it to the poor, aided in this work by a clergyman with a social conscience and Little John, a one-man Gestapo. The Sheriff of Nottingham, a bourgeois type, was his sworn enemy, and vested interests and monopolies, such as the Church, could never find anything sufficiently bad to say about him. If the C.C.F. could link itself with the Robin Hood myth it would probably sweep the country at the next general election; it is easier to adopt an old myth than to build up a new one.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is a pity that history didn't think up a few less gory stories before it began repeating itself.

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

IN the winter days it is a good time to think of pastures, or shall I say to meditate on grass. When we are feeding every beast about the place on fodder and grain that has cost money to grow, harvest and, in many cases, to grind, we realize more clearly than at any other time the great advantages of turning our farm animals out to grass. It has taken farmers a long time, in any country where winter weather comes for a few months, to realize the value of grazing. Good grass pastures save labour, offer good palatable food for livestock under the most healthful conditions, and are the most profitable crops we can grow. It has been truthfully written of grass "next in importance to the Divine profusion of water, light and air, those three physical facts which render existence possible, may be reckoned the universal beneficence of grass." Lying in the sunshine among the buttercups and dandelions of May, our earliest recollections are of grass; and when the fitful fever is ended, and the foolish wrangle of the market and the forum is closed, grass heals over the scar which our descent into the bosom of the earth has made, and the carpet of the infant becomes the blanket of the dead.

"Grass is the forgiveness of nature,"—her constant benediction. Forests decay, harvests perish, flowers perish but grass is immortal. Sown by the winds, by wandering birds, propagated by the subtle horticulture of the elements which are its ministers and servants, it softens the rude outlines of the world. Unobtrusive and patient it has immortal vigour and aggression. Banished from the thoroughfare and fields, it bides its time to return, and when vigilance is relaxed it silently resumes the throne from which it has been expelled but which it never abdicates. It bears no blazonry of bloom to charm the senses with fragrance or splendor, but its homely line is more enchanting than the lily or the rose. It yields no fruit in earth or air, yet should its harvest fail famine would depopulate the world."

WITH our knowledge of the value of grass and how hopeless farming would be without its help, how little attention we pay to its careful cultivation and the encourage of its growth! We often speak of a field as "just a pasture," and seem to fail to grasp the quite apparent fact that we could easily double the amount of grazing on this field with reasonable attention to its crop of grass. There are districts in which the character of the soil and the regularity of the rainfall will give a good grass crop without too much effort, and we frequently fail to realize that we must meet soil conditions and deficiency in moisture, not only by proper treatment of the land but by providing varieties of grass in our pastures which will meet climatic conditions as they prevail in our locality. Particularly must we provide for the prevailing periods of drought. As Kipling said in "The Land," of the drains laid by the Romans:

"And in drouthy middle August, when the bones of meadows show,
We can trace the lines they followed sixteen hundred years ago."

We also, in this province, find frequently that our pastures dry up late in July, or in August, and so it is difficult for cattle to get a bite of fresh grass at this season. We can overcome this by the use of deep-rooted perennials in our pastures that will go down to find stored moisture in the soil. One of these is Orchard Grass, or Cocksfoot, as they call it in Britain. This grass also makes an early start in the spring and gives early green leaves for feed. As Orchard Grass gets to the second joint, it becomes rather coarse and wood so to get the best results it should have a mower, with the cutting bar raised on wheels, run over it, when new leaves will make their appearance. New leafy varieties of Orchard Grass have been produced in Britain by Sir George Stapledon, since the beginning of the war, and I look for substantial importations of its seed when we are able to ship freely across the Atlantic. New varieties of leafy Timothy have also been produced and will be in consdierable demand in Canada when it can be shipped here.

Another grass that is a deep rooted perennial is Parkland Brome. This is a grass good for both beef and dairy cattle and is a vigorous plant as well as being very palatable either as pasture or hay. The old-fashioned Bromus with a running root stalk should be avoided. Perennial rye grass grows a good crop but it is apt to be mixed with Italian rye grass, which is classed as a perennial but mostly proves to be only an annual and much of it disappears after the first year. English rye grass, if pure seed can be obtained, is much better and is much prized in England for hay. Both Canadian and Kentucky blue grass make good pastures if the soil is adapted to its growth, and a farmer must experiment at home to decide this. Meadow fescue is quite a useful pasture grass, and there are other fescues which can be tried out. A pasture should have clover in the mixure used for seed. White Dutch is the only good pasture clover we have had in Ontario but there is a white clover in England now called S.100 that I am sure would be very useful here if we can grow it successfully, and a clover as vigorous is necessary for our pastures.

THE practice in this province is to grow alfalfa with timothy or other grass and pasture the aftermath of the alfalfa which often works out well on a dairy farm, and gives the milking cows a nice bite of choice second crop alfalfa in August. The main object to have in view is the improvement of our livestock pastures to such an extent that we will grove a crop of grass to feed in the fields that will prove quite as profitable as any field of grain we reap.

Light seeding is the bane of most pastures. Not less than 30 lbs. to the acre of grass seed should be sown to produce a good pasture. The soil is there to give roots to the seed if we only sow a sufficient quantity, and of course we must be sure that the soil has sufficient readily available plant food to nourish the seed and promote a rapid early growth. Take one pasture field that is not giving good enough results in feeding your livestock, plough it in the fall to a fair depth, disc it at the earliest day in spring that you can, harrow it into a good seed bed, and then seed it at the rate of 30 lbs. to the acre, with not more than a bushel of oats as a sort of nurse crop, and when the oats get up about six inches and the grass is coming on nicely turned the stock on it to graze. If it rains heavily take them off until it dries some, or they will punch it full of holes with their feet, but keep it fairly well grazed and you will find that even this first year the number of animals it will carry is bound to be a very substantial increase over what it did before being ploughed. Treat it liberally with superphosphate as you seed with grass. Make your pasture fields profitable and your farm will pay much better dividends.

THE Ontario Legislature is to meet soon and some measures are to be introduced in which farmers are interested. It has been announced that the Toronto Union Stock Yards is to be taken over, at a valuation, by the Provincial Government and operated by a Commission appointed by it. This Act will doubtless pass as the C.C.F. will be found to support it as it is a direct measure of State Socialism. Stock yards throughout Canada are under the supervision of the Federal Department of Agriculture and any fees they charge have to be approved by the Federal Department. The Stock Yards simply furnishes feed and shelter for livestock for which they have a scale of charges. What a Government Commission, operating a Stock Yard, can do, unless it is subsidized to reduce its fees, I do not know, but such a Commission will be advised if it engages Frank Fletcher, the present efficiency manager, to continue in charge of the Toronto Yards. Stock yards have to be under the direction of the Federal Government as cattle, hogs and sheep are shipped from one province to another and accommodation at Yards becomes an inter-provincial matter.

GRATITUDE —By Thomas

Prince Charming

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

MR. M. J. COLDWELL, C.C.F.-Socialist leader, addressed the St. James Literary Society here on Tuesday evening. As is customary at such a gathering, he left politics strictly aside and dealt with that attractive realm of human thought—pure fantasy.

His subject, of course, was the C.C.F., but lest any of his audience might think that these letters had any political significance, he made it clear that he was discussing "Canadian Confederation Folklore." Whereupon he went on to spin many a fine tale which carried his hearers back to the days of their childhood and their favorite fairy stories.

Mr. Coldwell waxed eloquent when he recited his version of that delightful tale of "Sleeping Beauty." The Princess, to be sure, is the Canadian people, which pricked its finger on the spindle of Confederation over 75 years ago and had since been sleeping peacefully. The Bad Fairy, who caused all this harm, is represented by the Liberals and Conservatives, but the handsome prince, who is about to arrive to kiss the beautiful princess and awaken her from her repose, is none other than Mr. Coldwell himself. Of course, the old tale said something about 100 years, but this 1944 prince says he is ready for the denouement now.

There were times when the speaker seemed to be mixing up his fairy tales a trifle. There was the big bad wolf of monopoly that kept striding across the scene, and there was the horrible dragon with many heads, the newspapers, that was somehow drenched with blood. St. George was Mr. Harold Winch, the B.C. Socialist leader, who apparently stands ready to slay the dragon and everybody else, though of course it was made clear that all the blood was on the dragon and none on St. George.

In any event the speech seemed an entirely appropriate one to deliver at the St. James Literary Society, though some in the audience thought it a bit Grimm.

Explaining Political "Isms"

(BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR)

AT a time when political speakers frequently call one another Communists, or Socialists, or even Anarchists, let alone Reactionaries and Tories, often as much with opprobrious intent as any other, the situation tends to become rather confusing to the average constituent. He tries to sort out the different titles and their meanings and finds himself confused in the process. This holds true of most of the political "isms."

What, for instance, is the difference between Nazism and Fascism? Or between Communism and Nazism? Or between the lot of them and Socialism? It is no simple matter to define these terms in a few lines of type, when whole libraries have been written on the several subjects. But a rule-of-thumb classification can be made.

COMMUNISM, for instance, calls for the organization of society on the basis of common ownership of the means of production and of the goods produced. It opposes private property. It resembles Socialism and Anarchism in that it demands that production be for common use and not private gain. It differs from Socialism in its theory of the state, by substituting a federation of communes or groups for a central administration.

FASCISM was a form of totalitarian dictatorship, aiming at the creation of a highly nationalistic state. Completely opposed to political Communism, it recognized private property and certain individual rights, but held to the principle that society did not exist for the individual, but rather the individual for society. Leaving production and distributoin of wealth largely, to individual enterprise, it exercised, in actual practice, a strict state discipline, controlling industrial tribunals and labour organizations and banning strikes, lock-outs and "class struggle" ruthlessly.

NAZISM was, originally, a hodge-podge of Socialist, Communist and Reactionary doctrines. In practice, it developed into a form of Fascism modified to suit Germany—and the Nazi ruling clique. It stands for a corporate state on an authoritarian footing, political organizations (other than the Nazi varieties) being dissolved. Complete dictatorship is its rule and standard, the individual being regimented to complete subservience to the state.

Ideally, SOCIALISM is a philosophy rather than a political system. It opposes the holding of the sources of wealth, land, capital, etc., as private property. On the other hand — again ideally—it recognizes that private property cannot be abolished except by a radical but evolutionary change in human codes. It aims, therefore, at "reforming" society by "equalizing" people, substituting collective for individual action, and communal ownership for private ownership of wealth and the means of producing wealth.

In practice Socialism tends to become bureaucratic. Or, as one critic sharply put it: "The basic idea of Socialism is to seize all main activities of a civilized country and administer them by Government-appointed men or boards, with the idea of levelling society so that the intelligent, energetic and industrious people shall get less, and the lazy, the idle and the inefficient shall get more."

Culled From Our Contemporaries

Should Climb Down

If the Ontario Securities Commission is worth its salt, it will immediately clamp down on the telephone operations of the stock fakirs in Toronto with their get-rich-quick stories that are still fooling the credulous and ignorant.—Brockville and Recorder and Times.

Goodwill Coffee Grounds

Brazil has presented the U.S.A. with 40,000 bags of coffee as a token of goodwill. If our W.P.T.B. wouldn't mind, we'd like that kind of a token ourselves, on the same grounds.—T.D.F. in Ottawa Citizen.

Not Denied

At all events, it is not denied that Mr. Winch did say, prior to that episode, that the C.C.F. was a "militant revolutionary party." Again, sticking to "the basis of what we say," the people of Canada remember quite well the pacifist, pro-neutral attitude assumed by C.C.F. Leader M. J. Coldwell, his predecessors and associates prior to and even following the outbreak of this war. In 1943, Mr. W. G. Weaver, delegate to a C.C.F. convention asserted: "We ought to remember that the constitution was not made to bind the C.C.F. We are not concerned with capitalistic constitutions as soon as we can wreck them."—Brantford Expositor.

No Private Matter

The question of admitting the press a committee meeting is not a private matter, of interest only to the members of the council and the newspapermen concerned. Reporters attend these meetings to provide the public with complete information of the actions of the people's chosen representatives. All committee meetings should be open, not merely to representatives of the press but to the general public. In practice, of course, reporters act as the ears of the public but any citizen who desires to attend a committee meeting of the council — any committee meeting—should be free to do so.—Owen Sound Sun-Times.

A Bible Message

The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened. (Matt. 13: 33.)

Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently: being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever.

For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower falleth away: but the word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you. (I Pet. 1: 22-25.)

Therefore seeing we have this ministry, as we have received mercy, we faint not; but have renounced the hidden things of dishonesty, not walking in craftiness, nor handling the word of God deceitfully; but by manifestation of the truth commending ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God. (II Cor. 4: 1, 2.)

Gillis Wild

We would like very much to see (Mr. Coldwell's) comment on the speech made before the Nova Scotia Federation of Labor last week by his colleague, Mr. Clarence Gillis. Mr. Gillis told the Nova Scotia workers that the layoffs in war industries were part of a plan to create a fear of unemployment in the minds of the workers. Part of this plan, too, according to Mr. Gillis, was to create a pool of unemployed who would be easier to handle than the well-fed workers who were continually employed. Mr. Coldwell might with justice comment upon this contribution to the home morale.—Winnipeg Free Press.

No Barrier

If any idea still lingers among the people of the nations on the North American continent that although we and the Latin-American peoples form a chain of contiguous countries, and although political ideas may be vastly different, nevertheless a psychic barrier must exist between the northern continent's people and those of the southern continent of this hemisphere on account of strong racial divergences, it is time to banish it.

We are already awake to the necessity for and the profit of vastly increased commerce between Canada and Latin America; and the promotion of complete international brotherhood within this hemisphere should not lag behind that of mere trade.—Guelph Mercury.

Maple Leaf Forever

The right flank of the Americans in Italy rests squarely on the fighting hearts of fighting Canadians, says Walter Winchell, who adds for good measure: "In the smoke and the shock of battle, Hitler's regiments have learned a fearful identification. If a soldier attacks like an Anzac, holds like a guardsman and fights like a Texan, his regiment is Canadian. . . . From her loyal and grateful ally from the south, greetings and the Maple Leaf, forever."—St. Catharines Standard.

Pensions Already Paid

It is probably just the beginning but already pensions are being paid to 5,960 Canadians of the 100,000 odd men discharged from the Armed forces, making up an annual liability of $2,210,808.00. In addition pensions are being paid to 3,933 dependents of servicemen at an annual cost of $2,830,893.00. No matter how complacent certain people may be in respect to the present struggle, posterity, in fact many yet unborn, will be duly impressed with the far-reaching potentialities of the World War.—Renfrew Mercury.

Pass The Butter

New York thieves took a 1,000-pound safe from a restaurant. They'll go to any lengths over there to find out where the butter's secreted.—T.D.F., in Ottawa Citizen.

Unconsidered Trifles

"Why are you wearing spectacles, old man?"

"Well, through crossword puzzles I've contracted an optical defect. One eye travels vertically and the other horizontally!"

Mother, This Home-Mixed Cough Relief Is Splendid

Saves Real Money.
No Cooking. Real Results.

To get really surprising relief from coughs due to colds, you can easily prepare a medicine, right in your own kitchen. It's very easy—anyone can do it—needs no cooking, and tastes so good that children take it willingly. But you'll say it's hard to beat for quick results.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, and pour it into a 16 oz. bottle. Then add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really splendid cough syrup—about 4 times as much for your money. It never spoils, and lasts a family a long time.

And for real, quick relief, it is actually splendid. It works in three ways—loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

OLD FOLKS UNSOLVED PROBLEM.

Need Loved Ones About Them But Often Cause Trouble With In-laws and Children

The greatest and most insoluble problem in the world is what to do with old people, especially old mothers, yet it is one with which millions of people have to wrestle every day of their lives. And no one has found out any way to settle the dilemma without someone being offered up as a sacrifice on the family altar.

If human nature was what it should be, grand and noble and altruistic and patient and understanding and sympathetic, then Grandma would be a welcome figure at every fireside. But, alas, human nature isn't constructed along those lines to any considerable extent. For the most part, it is selfish and possessive and arrogant and impatient of control and rebellious at being bored, and that is what makes it regard having to take care of Grandma in her declining years as an affliction it does not rate.

Most Old Folks Cranky.

Of course, there are many exceptions to this rule. There are angelic old people who are so wise and sweet and delightful to live with that their mere presence is a benediction on any home, and whose children and children's children and even their in-laws cherish them and fight for the privilege of having them live with them. But the majority of old people are cranky and set in their ways, and feel that they have just as much right to control their middle-aged children as they did when they were tiny tots in rompers.

This brings about a heartbreaking situation for which apparently there is no remedy, people being what they are. For here is, on the one hand, the woman who has been a good mother. She has given her life to her children's service. She bore them in agony. She spent sleepless nights watching over their sick beds. She toiled to feed and clothe them. She went shabby that they might be as well dressed as the other youngsters. She literally starved to send them to college. She laid up nothing for the future because she was so sure that her children would always want her with them, and that in her old-age she would find a soft refuge in their homes.

And her children are not always ungrateful. Many pay their debt to her with the pound of flesh nearest their hearts by remaining old maids and old bachelors in order to take care of her. Many others are forced to welch on their obligation by circumstances that are beyond their control. They have married and their meagre incomes barely support their own families. They cannot take on another mouth to feed, or find room for another in their overcrowded houses.

In-law Problem Brings Trouble.

Then there comes the in-law difficulty. No married person is a free agent in domestic matters. John's wife can't get along with Mother. Percy's wife has social aspirations and simply won't have a homely old woman on the premises. Mother drives Sally's husband to drink by lecturing him on the evils of tobacco every time he lights a cigarette. Becky's husband refuses to have Mother around because he wants his house and his wife to himself, without any third party on the listening post.

So what's to be done with Mother? Mother can't change. She can't make herself over into a brilliant and scintillating conversationalist after she has been a simple babbler all her life. She can't keep from being a repeater and telling the same dull stories over and over again. She can't keep her fingers out of her children's pies, nor refrain from trying to run everybody around her. She can't keep silent about the way he grandchildren do. She is as she is and as age has made her.

And what are the son and the daughter to do who see their homes being broken up by a dear, good, old woman, whom they love and whom they would rather die than hurt, yet who cannot ignore their responsibility to their own families? Shall they let Grandma drive their husbands and wives away from them and their children to the streets? Or shall they shut their own doors on the poor old lady?

The comfortable family hotel, the nice boarding house, or a little apartment of her own seems the only logical solution of the situation when money does not have to be considered, but even that is not the answer, because the old do not live by bread alone. They must have love. They must have their own about them to be happy. They have no interest in life except their children and what their children and grandchildren are doing and thinking, and when you take that away from them they have nothing left.

And so the eternal tragedy goes on, and nobody knows what to do about it. God pity us all.

RIBBON BERET—This not expensive beret is made of grosgrain ribbon and gives a giddy touch with a self bow which rides the top. In bon bon tints or suit shades, it is a flattering model. The beret is one of woman's best millinery friends, for it becomes everybody in one version or another...and it can take a lot of grief without losing form. Pack it, in luggage or closet shelf, and it requires no fancy protections, no devouring space. In wool, felt, fur or silk, and now in ribbon, the beret is popular.

Dinners Of The Week . .

By MARY MOORE

Sunday.

Savory Baked Cottage Roll
Pan Baked Sweet Potatoes or Yams
Chopped Spinach with Lemon Butter
Celery Hearts
Apple Snow Quick Cake Coffee

Notes on Sunday's Dinner: I feel both the Cottage Roll and Sweet Potatoes need the sharp contrast of the Spinach with Lemon Butter; enough lemon butter to pleasantly flavor 1 lb. boiled spinach is made by creaming 2 tablespoons butter for 2 minutes, then gradually adding 1 tablespoon lemon juice until both are blended. When a larger amount is made this may be hardened in the refrigerator and formed into balls and passed at table after spinach is served.

To make the Apple Snow pare, quarter and core 4 tart apples—to serve 4 or 5. Place in double boiler and steam until soft. Rub through sieve. Add about ¼ to 1-3 cup powdered sugar—or enough to suit your taste. When cold stir this apple pulp into 3 stiffly beaten egg whites. Chill all well. Pile lightly on serving dish — this is usually served with custard sauce made from leftover yolks.

Monday.

Sliced Cold Cottage Roll
Boiled Navy Beans
Cabbage Wedges in Cream Sauce
Raw Carrot Strips
Fruit Cup: Orange, Apple, Grapefruit, sweetened with a little corn syrup
Cookies Coffee.

Tuesday (Meatless).

Swiss Eggs on Toast (Poached in Milk or Cream)
Crusty Fried Potatoes
Baked Casserole of Carrots and Turnips
Apple Betty Top Milk Coffee

Wednesday (Oven Dinner).

Baked Stuffed Calves' Hearts
Pan Baked Onions Baked Potatoes
Head Lettuce Salad with French Dressing
Baked Apple Dumpling with Lemon Sauce Coffee

NOTES: To make Apple Dumplings roll out biscuit dough (2 cups sifted bread flour, 4 teaspoons of baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons shortening and about 2-3 cup milk) to ¼ inch thickness. Cut it into six squares. Put a peeled and cored apple in centre of each square, put sugar and butter in centre hole of each apple, add a little cinnamon or nutmeg if you like, lift up 4 corners of dough to meet and cover apple. Bake at 450 degrees Fahr. until apple is tender—you will need to reduce the heat after 15 minutes. Serve with Lemon Sauce: ¾ cup sugar, ¼ cup water, 2 teaspoons butter, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, grated rind ½ lemon. Make syrup by boiling sugar and water 5 minutes. Remove from heat and add lemon juice, rind and butter.

Thursday.

Boiled Tongue Scalloped Potatoes
Chopped Carrots mixed with Boiled Dried Peas

Carving a Leg of Lamb

MARTHA LOGAN'S MINT SAUCE

Mint Sauce with lamb is practically a must.

4 tbsps. chopped fresh mint
2 tbsps. sugar
1 cup vinegar

Place the ingredients together in sauce boat or bowl two or three hours before serving. Allow to steep. If dried mint is used, allow to stand in hot water to cover before adding vinegar and sugar.

Martha Logan

Proper carving helps you get extra servings from the roast

We watched a demonstration of this modern method of carving a leg of lamb recently and were amazed by the extra slices it obtained. Try it yourself next time.

FIRST . . . be sure your knife is really sharp. The leg of lamb is placed as in the photograph. The shank bone is on the right, the thick meaty part farthest away from the carver.

NEXT . . . carve two or three large slices from the near thin side. This enables you to turn the roast so it lies on the near thin side, with the shank pointing up from the platter.

NOW . . . slice down to the leg bone, starting at the shank end, till you have as many slices as you need to serve everyone; ¼-inch thick slices are best.

LAST . . . run the knife along the leg bone releasing the slices you have cut. Serve.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Play-off arrangements for the Junior "A" series of the Ontario Hockey Association were confirmed at a sub-committee meeting in Toronto yesterday which was attended by representatives of 10 clubs. The adopted plan calls for a best-of-seven series between the top teams of Groups 1 and 2, with best-of-three series between the second and third teams of each division respectively. The provincial finalists will be permitted to add four players from their own group before advancing into the playdowns and military replacements must be made before Feb. 20.

The sub-committee ruled Paul Waldner of the Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League, ineligible for any O.H.A. club this season. The Junior "A" game at Brantford Jan. 15 in which he played against St. Catharines Falcons was ordered replayed at the close of the schedule if the result has any bearing on the standing of teams for the play-offs. John Clancy, Grimsby, must remain with Hamilton Whizzers although claimed by Port Colborne unless he is released by the Hamilton club. Dick Wray was refused permission to play with the Listowel Junior "B" team because he had already played three Junior "A" games with Brantford Lions.

Wants Annulment.

Fred Cochrane, former welterweight boxing champion, Saturday filed a suit for annulment of his marriage to Beatrice Milano Cochrane, whom he married Oct. 14, 1942. Cochrane, now in the Navy, declared at San Francisco, his wife told him she had married him solely because of his sport fame.

Hialeah Park's evening handicap Saturday was captured by five-year-old Mar-Kell, leading winner of the Calumet Farm, despite a 126-pound weight assignment, paying $4.70 for $2.

First hurlers of the Washington Senators to sign up this season were Mickey Haener and Vernon Curtis, both of whom sent in their contracts Saturday without change.

Willie Hoppe, of New York, earned a 193-point advantage to carry to the New York finals this week by winning two blocks at Detroit Saturday from his touring billiards rival, Welker Cochran of San Francisco. Hoppe stands 1,850 to 1,657 on the cross-country series.

Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics Saturday announced the outright sale of two pitchers, Sam Lowry and Felix Mackiewicz, and Infielder Francis Skafe, to the Baltimore Orioles of the International League at a reported price of $10,000.

There was no regular meeting last Tuesday. The Cubs brought their skates ready for an evening's fun. The Pack went to the free rink by Hunter street bridge, played tag and had plenty of fun. After skating for an hour they returned to the church for refreshments with the ladies of the Scout Auxiliary serving lunch.

Games were then played and later on the Rev. Mr. Arthurs spoke a few words to the Cubs. Akela and Baloo wish to thank many of the parents for donations for the party, also many thanks to the ladies who served the lunch. We are sorry to report another Cub, Norman Thomas was taken to Nicholls Hospital for an operation last week. Akela visited him and he is progressing very well. Also a cheer-up box has been sent to him. Another new chum Peter Rose joined the Pack. Akela and Baloo visited Sacred Heart Pack last Thursday and were made welcome.

Senior League Arranges Fourth Schedule

MONTREAL, Jan. 24 —(CP)— It took four starts to do it, but it begins to look now as though the Quebec Senior Hockey League has finally got a circuit that will hold together until Allan Cup playdown time. As the province's only Senior "A" loop, the Q.S.H.L. will automatically produce Quebec's representative in the search for Dominion honors.

The league took the successive loss of Montreal Army, Cornwall Army and Montreal Air Force teams, picked up a squad from University of Montreal, devised its fourth schedule of the season and continued in business at Montreal, Ottawa and Quebec.

Through all the changes of personnel that have beset the teams, Quebec Aces still rate as the team to beat. Their main opposition of the moment is coming from Montreal Royals.

Aces and Royals are tied at the top at the moment with 12 points each, but Aces' points come from six straight victories while Royals gleaned their's from four wins—two of them four-pointers against U. of M.—and three losses.

Ottawa Commandos, with serious player losses, are a poor third with four points, two more than U. of M.

In the junior section, Royals are clinging to a narrow margin atop the Junior Amateur Hockey Association in Montreal, only loop in the province with Junior "A" rating. Their 21 points on 10 wins and a draw in 13 gave them a three-point margin over the powerful Canadiens juniors. Concordias seem destined to end in third spot, with a weak Verdun squad far behind.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

King George School remained at the top of the Public School League Saturday winning their third straight game, handing the Queen Alexandra team a 7 to 0 shutout at C.G.E. rink. The team from across the bridge have gone through the schedule so far undefeated and they played well together Saturday to notch seven goals while the losing bunch failed to register a marker. Incidentally it was a light-scoring day for the losing teams as King Edward also scored a shutout in the second game, piling up four goals as against a blank for Queen Mary. In the opening game on the Saturday card Central School scored their first goal of the season and registered their first point when they played a 1-1 draw with the Prince of Wales team in a closely-fought battle. Central had lost their other two starts by the shutout route. The ice was not of the best but held up surprisingly well considering the mild weather.

* * * * * *

The School League schedule is rapidly being completed and the playoff stage will be reached in a couple of weeks. On the coming Saturday King Edward and King George, the two leading teams will clash in the 9 o'clock game, Princes of Wales and Queen Alexandra will meet in the second fixture and the 11 o'clock battle will be between Central and Queen Mary. Here is the standing:—

	Won	Lost	Tied	Points
King George	3	0	0	6
King Edward	2	1	0	4
Prince of Wales	1	1	1	3
Queen Alexandra	1	1	0	2

The first and second teams at the end of the regular schedule will playoff for the league championship.

A Link With The Past

The death in Toronto of Fred "Dinny" Dobbin will bring back a flood of memories to older lacrosse fans in Peterborough who will remember "Dinny" Dobbin as a popular and prominent member of a Peterborough lacrosse team that won plenty of publicity for this city in an era when lacrosse was really Canada's national game. It was away back at the turn of the last century that Dobbin who was a clever goal-keeper was a member of a local team that included such well-known performers as Lionel King, Joe Begley, Walter Phelan, "Badger" Brown, "Shockey" Mein, "Tucker" Borland, Fred Lynch, Percy Rubidge, Jim McCabe, George Lipsett, Frank Bolin, and in later years R. M. Glover and Jack McCabe. Most of those stalwarts have passed on but they were a great crowd in their day, gallant battlers on the lacrosse field and carrying the name of their home town far and wide. And "Dinny" Dobbin was one of the best of them, a goalie with iron nerve who was always going after the next shot, no matter how great the odds. After playing for Peterborough for years he graduated to senior lacrosse and played goal for the famous Toronto Tecumsehs in a period when battles between the Tecumsehs and the Montreal Shamrocks or Montreal Nationals attracted as nearly as much attention as a Stanley Cup final does now.

Incidentally the death of "Dinny" Dobbin will cause fans in the senior bracket to think back not only to the Peterborough boys who were teammates of the clever goalie but to some of the exports who drifted into town during that period. The most famous pair of course were Don Hogarth and J. P. Mooney who moved to Peterborough from the east and played here the season the Orillia lacrosse manager Boulton Keane, was chased by a mob all the way from the P.A.A.A. grounds in Ashburnham to the C.N.R. (then the Grand Trunk) station. They were famous for what they became afterward. After leaving Peterborough they moved north and in a surprisingly short time both came into the limelight in the political field. Hogarth became the Conservative member for Fort William in the Legislature and in the First Great War he rose to the position of quartermaster general of the Canadian army overseas. Mooney entered the municipal arena and afterwards was elected mayor of Port Arthur so that the two lacrosse imports who once wore the uniform of the Peterborough club become celebrities in their own right, regardless of their ability to play lacrosse, although undoubtedly that ability steered them in the right direction in the first place.

Sticks For Youngsters

Although Peterborough is not represented in O.H.A. hockey this season it is gratifying to be able to report that this city is not being entirely lost sight of by the hockey powers-that-be. Ald. R. M. Glover announces that he has received from W. A. Hewitt of the Ontario Hockey Association five dozen hockey sticks to be distributed to the best advantage among the younger players in the city. Ald. Glover arranged for the distribution of the sticks through W. J. Prindible, Fred Murphy and R. K. Mckee, the latter secretary of the Public School Hockey Association. Efforts have been made to place the O.H.A. sticks where they will do the most good in helping to develop young players, which, of course, is the objective aimed at by the Ontario Hockey Association in making the donation of sticks possible.

Montreal Canadiens pulled further out in front of the N.H.L. race over the week-end by winning two games from the third-place Boston Bruins while the second-place Leafs were also dropping a pair of fixtures. The net result was that the Canadiens added four more points to a lead that had already made the league look like a one-team affair. The Flying Frenchmen had little trouble in winning over the weakened Bruins and Sunday night they won their first victory over the Bruins on Boston ice in nearly four years. Queerest angle to the week-end games was that the Rangers walked into Toronto Saturday night and beat the Leafs without a great deal of difficulty 5 to 1 and then moved over to Detroit Sunday and absorbed the worst beating in the history of the N.H.L., when they went down to defeat at the hands of Jack Adams now fast-moving Wings to the tune of 15 to 0. Led by Syd Howe who pulled off the hat trick the Detroiters scored two goals in the first period, five in the second session and then ran in eight in the last twenty minutes without a successful shot being fired by the hapless Rangers. Only Goalie Dion and Defenceman Simon failed to get on the score sheet for Detroit in the most one-sided shellacking the cash and carry circuit has ever recorded.

Al Schoendiest Leads Batting Column

NE WYORK, Jan. 24.—(AP).— Al Schoendienst, the hustling redhead whose shortstop play at Rochester made him the most-talked-about player in the minors, is the 1943 International League batting champion with an average of .337, official league statistics released to-day show.

In banging out 187 nits to top the circuit, the St. Louis Cardinal farm hand captured the hitting crown with 15 points to spare over big Ed Levy of the Newark Bears. Levy, a former first baseman who gets a New York Yankee trial as an outfielder this spring, hit .322.

Others among the six .300 average sluggers were Louis Olmo of Montreal who hit .315 before he joined Brooklyn Dodgers; George Staller of Baltimore and Roberto Ortiz of Montreal, .304; Maurice Van Robays of the pennant-winning Toronto Maple Leafs, who hit .302 before he went to Pittsburg.

Staller was the run-batted-in leader with 9 to his credit, while Ortiz had the most total bases, 262, and the most doubles, 40. Eddie Kobesky of Buffalo, topped the home run hitters with 18 round trippers, although he averaged only .269. Olmo's 12 triples were tops in that department and Frank Zak of Toronto, scored the most runs, 101.

All Hooks of Montreal and Staller reeled off streaks of 17 games in which each hit safely.

The only league record established was a new extra-inning mark of 21 set when Toronto and Baltimore battled to a 2-2 tie April 23. The game took four hours and 10 minutes.

Pick-up Team Wins Challenge

The Fred Martin challenge to match his Jay's City League team against any five-man combination in town back-fired on Saturday at Duffus' Alleys when the city champions went down under a 3691 to 3524 score at the hands of Tom Curvin's Pick-ups.

Bob Dyer of the City League Ramblers and Joe Denault of the K. of C. team hit 849 and 818 for Curvin while Jack Playford of Jay's rolled off an 841 three-game total and Bud Weese a lusty 365 single game to wind up with 797.

The contest, which was promoted by Fred Martin, Jay's team captain was probably only a start of a series of similar weekly attractions to be held at Duffus'. Martin is willing to toss his team up against any five-man combination in town for a high pinnage match, games to be rolled each Saturday at 3 p.m. He feels that by throwing out this open challenge, the Jay's keglers will, as they did versus Curvin on Saturday, run into a continuous stream of red hot opposition and that to win lose or draw under such circumstances will do them the world of good. Any teams interested in accepting this challenge can arrange a match by telephoning Fred or Bill Martin at Genelco or Bud Weese, Tommy Miller or Jack Playford at the C.G.E.

The following were the scores for the teams on Saturday:

Hockey Records Upset Sunday

MONTREAL, Jan. 24 —(CP)—At least six National Hockey League records were shattered last night in Detroit when the Red Wings went on a goal-scoring spree to defeat New York Rangers 15-0, the league office here said today.

Here they are:—

The score, 15-0, was the most one-sided in league history.

It was the biggest shutout score.

The eight goals Red Wings scored in the third period was the biggest single-period scoring outburst on record.

Detroit's 37 scoring points on 15 goals and 22 assists was the highest scoring total any team has achieved in one game.

The eight third-period goals were the most consecutive goals one team has ever scored in a single period.

The 22 scoring points in the third period was the largest total ever amassed by one team in a single period.

Gypster Colt Shows Plenty Of Speed

By APPAS TAPAS.

TORONTO, Jan. 24 — Three King's Plate candidates Bert Alexandra is handling are in training at Hialeah Park with a view of starting in the Plate race next May.

Of the trio, Gypster, a colt owned by the Cosgrove Stable showed most prominence when raced as a 2-year-old. The other pair are owned by the Medway Stables. Korafloyd, a homebred, turned in highly promising works, but in his few starts failed to display the speed he had shown in the trials. Too Much is a filly that may develop into a guineas contestant. The trio were the first plate nominees to leave the country under the new ruling of the O. J. C.

The trip to the south has not been as successful as Alexandra anticipated. Then one of the prime moves was to try and secure a few high class horses for racing in Canada under the Cosgrove and Medway silks. The demand for horses ready to run has been great in Florida this winter and horses are being entered at prices above their true value as a protection against being claimed.

Alexandra has dropped a number of claims in the box, but has been unsuccessful in the "shake," in fact as she writes, third is the best he can get. Of those he tried to obtain by the claiming route were Green Bush, one raced around here last year; Eric Knight, Abrupt, Impregnable, Transformer and Libery Pan. That the trainer is prepared to pay a price is evident in the fact he deposited $5,000 in his attempt to get Green Bush and $4,000 in his shot to get Abrupt.

The Canadian-bred Appas Tappas, which failed to show anything in his starts at Tropical and Hialeah, is out of training. Bert droppped the 4-year-old in a $1,500 top and bottom claiming race over a long route. To us, when it turned up mud, Mr. Tappas did not appear to have a chance in such going. The horst finished last and Trainer Alexandra was so disappointed in the showing, according to Jim Cosgrove he called in a blacksmith and ordered the horse's shoes removed. It was then found Appas Tappas had a quarter crack and he is temporarily on the shelf.

If the foot injury responds to treatment the awkward going Canuck-bred might be given another chance in cheap company before being shipped back here.

Barons Retain Top Spot

By The Canadian Press.

Cleveland Barons retained their first-place position in the American Hockey League over the week-end by defeating Providence Reds 5-3 Saturday night.

Hershey-Bears—two points behind the leaders—dropped one week-end game Saturday night when Indianapolis Capitals handed them a 3-2 defeat, but turned the tables last night to gain a 2-1 victory over Caps.

Buffalo Bisons defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 4-3 Saturday night and trounced Providence Reds 9-3 last night in the other league games.

Phil Hergesheimer scored two goals for Barons in their win over Reds. Other Cleveland scorers were Phil and Ed. Speaker and Tommy Burlington. Roly Forget, Pete Horeck and Yank Boyd counted for the Reds.

Poses at Home.

Fred Hunt and Eldred Kokussen added the other Buffalo markers while Tony Hemmerling, Wendell Jamieson and Bob Gracie scored for Hornets.

Last night Bisons scored four goals in the first seven minutes of play. Fred Hunt, Lloyd Klein, Walter Atanas and Thurier were the go-getters at the start. Harold Cooper came through with a tally for Reds, but Kobussen was on his trail with two more for Buffalo.

Klein and Max Kaminsky added the other two tallies for Bison's total of nine. Jack Toupin and Cooper bagged the other two Providence goals.

Rangers Beaten 15 to 0 By Detroit Team

By The Canadian Press.

Three observations can be safely deduced from the National Hockey League's 13th week-end of competition: Montreal Canadiens are the most consistent team in the league, New York Rangers are the most unpredictable and Detroit Red Wings the most improved.

Here the order should be reversed, for of the three teams the Red Wings most clearly earned their title, shooting off sparks in all directions to blank Rangers 15-0 and inflict the most decisive defeat in National League history.

The strangest angle of the crushing Ranger disaster, achieved Sunday before 12,293 Detroit fans, is that on Saturday the tailenders were good enough to trample Toronto Maple Leafs 5-1 on Toronto ice. Leafs also lost 5-3 to Chicago Black Hawks Sunday, thereby dropping 15 points behind Montreal Canadiens, who swept both ends of a double-header with Boston Bruins, 6-2 in Montreal Saturday and 4-1 in Boston Sunday.

In the scoring spree at Detroit, every Red Wing player except Defenceman Cully Simon and Goalkeeper Conny Dion participated in the 35-point barrage, highest total ever recorded by one team.

Sets Record.

Syd Howe counted three goals in the last period to boost his 10-year total with Red Wings to 149, one more than Herbie Lewis accumulated in 11 seasons with Detroit. Howe's total represents a Detroit record. Murray Armstrong, Carl Liscombe and Don Grosso each had two goals.

It was the sixth victory in seven undefeated starts for Red Wings, who have climbed from fifth place to within three points of the second-place Leafs.

Leafs were decisively beaten in both their losing starts. At Toronto Saturday, they watched Fernand Gauthier open the scoring for Rangers in the first period, then dropped behind to stay when Kilby Macdonald, Bryan Hetxall and Gauthier again made it 4-0 little more than two minutes after the second period opened. Gus Bodnar, Toronto's only scorer Saturday, gave Leafs a 1-0 lead at Chicago Sunday, but Hawks prevailed after that. Doug Bentley, Earl Seibert, Fido Purpur, Johnny Gottselig and Bill Mosienko scored in order for Chicago, while Leafs were held to goals by Windy O'Neill and Lorne Carr.

The crippled Bruins were soft prey in their week-end losses to Canadiens. Montreal power was evenly distributed, Fern Majeau being the only Habitant to collect more than one goal. It was Montreal's first victory at Boston in 18 starts since November 26, 1940.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 24—(CP)—National Hockey League governors presented a study in map-reading at their meeting here Friday. Managing Director Red Dutton carried a worried expression as befits a guy burdened with the cares of management. He not only acts like a diplomat, he's begining to look like one (and only a year ago that remark would have caused a diplomatic crisis.)

Lester Patrick and Bill Tobin of the lowly Rangers and Black Hawks had little to say and Art Ross of Boston was not much more voluble. Rangers' sorry position was reflected by Lester's silence because a Patrick of less than 10,000 words an hour is as unusual as a Ranger victory.

The Canadiens delegation of Senator Raymond and Tommy Gorman were models of affabilitly befitting representatives of a potential title club. Frank Selke of the second-place Leafs was mighty friendly.

The tip-off on the N.H.L. future, however, was Jack Adams' feniality. It is being bruted around that Detroit Red Wings are likely to be the team to beat before the season ends and obviously Adams thinks so too.

Jack was in jovial mood as the governors entertained the press. He ribbed his fellow governors playfully, pushed little shafts of wit into random conversation and was the life of the party generally.

Adams ribbed Dutton about his vanished Brooklyn Americans. "Remember the time the photographer wanted a picture of some of your boys when Americans were on a short losing streak of only about seven games?" Adams asked Red.

"Red just about threw the guy out of the rink but, being in one of his more congenial moods, decided to let the fellow taken an action shot. He picked Lorne Carr to carry the puck in on Charlie Conacher and Goalie Earl Robertson.

"Americans didn't have any too many hockey player at the time anyway and when Carr tried to wheel past Conacher, Charlie gave him the body and Carr crashed into the boards, injuring a shoulder. At the time Carr's stick caught Robertson across the forehead and Robbie needed nine stitches to close the cut.

"The photographer took one peek at the wild look in Dutton's eyes, hurdled the boards and is probably running yet."

Italian Driver Shocks Il Duce

By HAROLD CLAASSEN,
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 —(AP) — Ralph Depalma, for 27 years one of the world's greatest automobile racers, says he was the first to give Mussolini a shock and that he now is busy preparing a bigger surprise for the former Italian dictator and his friends.

Depalma has been busy the past two years testing motors for the Ranger Aircraft Engine Company out on Long Island.

The first was contributed when Depalma returned to his native Italy about a quarter of a century ago and won an important race. Il Duce strode forward and Depalma expected the usual words of praise.

Instead, Mussolini launched forth in a trade because an Italian-born driver had won an Italian race in a French gas buggy. Mussolini leaned on the machine to jut his jaw closer to Depalma's face and one of the driver's helpers sent a charge of electricity through a wire which had been stretched around the car to protect it from souvenier hunters.

Il Duce, who was grasping the wire, took the full charge before he could let loose.

Depalma has dragged down $1,000,000 in purses with one car.

His 27 years as a knight of the roaring road brought him three National Dirt-Track Championships, 2 National AAA tiles, first place trophies in the Vanderbilt road races of 1912 and 1913, the Indianapolis Speedway title in 1915 and general recognition as the world's speed king in 1919.

Saints Absorb 7-4 Trouncing

By The Canadian Press

Without the services of Pete Backor, Jud McAtee and Joe Delmonte and with only 10 players available, St. Catharines Saints were no match for Hamilton Majors Saturday night at St. Catharines, losing a 7-4 decision on the game and relinquishing first place in the senior O.H.A. group standing to their rivals.

The weakened Saints held Majors for one period, no score being registered in the first 20 minutes, but sucumbed thereafter to the Hamilton barage, principally from the sticks of Doug Runions, Dillon Brady and Johnny Conick. The first two each fired the puck into the cage twice and Conick was content with one goal, other counters being scored by Davey and Miocinovich. The leading Saints' threat was Umbo Concessi, who scored two, while Goble and Reynolds had singles.

In the Junior "A" series, Oshawa Generals Saturday night consolidated their hold on top spot in Group 1 with their 15th victory by handing St. Michael's College a 4-3 reverse on Oshawa ice. The Generals now lead with 30 points, with the Students' 24 points being good enough for second rung. Chenier (2), Curry and Dawes were the scorers for the winners while Dunlap, Bauer and Schnurr gained goals for the Collegians.

In the Saturday matinee doublet at Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto Marlboros held off Hamilton Whizzers 4-1 and Port Colborne Recreationists trimmed Toronto Young Rangers 5-3, the results bringing no change in their group positions.

Week-end Stars

By The Canadian Press

Johnny Mahaffy, Rangers, who bagged one goal and two assists.

Jewish Group Reaches Canada

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—In the first organized movement of European refugees to Canada since the war began, 25 Jewish families stranded in Portugal and Spain have sailed from Lisbon for a temporary haven in this country, M. A. Solkin, executive director, Jewish Immigrant Aid Society of Canada, last night told the national convention of the society.

The refugees will enter this country in line with a policy announced some time ago by the Minister of Mines and Resources, T. A. Crerar, who authorized the temporary entry of a number of refugees from Nazi persecution now stranded in Spain and Portugal. Most of these refugees fled France after the Germans extended their occupation to the "Free Zone." A joint guarantee for the upkeep of the refugees arriving in Canada under the arrangements with the Federal Government has been issued by the United Jewish Refugee and War Relief agencies of the Canadian Jewish Congress and the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society.

Aussies Nearing Madang Base

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Jan. 24 —(AP)—Australian troops are drawing nearer Bojadjim, south door to Japan's big base of Madang, New Guinea, climaxing a year-old drive up inland New Guinea from Buna.

The Australian ground units which once battled Nazi Field Marshal Rommel in Africa sent the Japanese fleeing in panic from the Faria River headquarters—less than 25 miles south of Bogadjim—an Allied communique said today.

From Bogadjim, the best-surfaced highway in the whole region offers a quick trip north to Madang, only 16 airplane miles distant.

Meantime a great flight of Liberators pulverized much of Borpop airdrome which helps guard the foe's big shipping base at Rabaul, New Britain.

Kara airdrome near Kahili on southern Bougainville, in the Solomons, another possible hindrance to complete neutralization of Rabaul, also was hit—by more than 60 torpedo and divebombers, escorted by more than 70 fighters.

Neither raid drew air opposition and all planes returned.

Murray Denies Affiliation With Any Party

TORONTO, Jan. 24 — (CP) — Maj. Gladstone Murray, Toronto policy counsel who has been the frequent target of C.C.F. criticism, said Friday night he is "in no way associated with any political party," and asserted there is nothing hidden about his activities—"What I advocate is published as widely as I can arrange."

In the course of an address to the Foremen's Club of West Toronto on "Partnership or Class-war" he said his clients are industrial concerns. He was making a start in a competitive business and in the elementary protection of his own interests he could not now disclose their names. He said: "They represent a cross-section of the industry and business of Canada, and are whole-heartedly behind the doctrines and policies which I advocate."

(In an address at Red Deer last month C.C.F. Leader Coldwell claimed Maj. Murray was spearheading a campaign to "smear" the party. Previously E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C.C.F. Leader, in a Hamilton speech referred to Maj. Murray as having been "hired by the Progressive Conservative Party to "advise on the mind of "the masses and how to frighten them against the C.C.F.")

Will Stick to Facts.

Maj. Murray said last night: "Those who wish to avoid meeting argument by strewing red herrings across the trail accuse me of engineering deep and nefarious plots, and of using secret and improper methods.....I stick to arguments and leave smearing and personal attacks to my opponents."

In his address last night he asserted his belief in "orderly evolution by applying the social conscience, and by preserving us from any kind of dictatorship."

Communism had done a good job for Russia, after the tyranny of the Czarist regime, but would be inacceptable in Canada Any possibility of the success of a national planning commission as projected by the C.C.F. would be defeated, he said, by political horse-trading within the party, and "delay and jobbery."

Swedish dispatches from Berlin said the Red Army had launched a surprise offensive on the Finnish front about 150 miles south-east of Petsamo. The Finnish communique however, reported only routine patrol activity.

(A Berlin broadcast said heavy fighting was going on south-east of Kerch in the Crimea after Russian forces landed and drove inland. The broadcast said the new landing came simultaneously with attacks by other Russian forces which already had established a bridgehead north-east of Kerch.)

The Russian communique said Soviet forces advancing south-west of Leningrad in the Krasnoye Selo area drove the Germans out of several localities, including Akalovo, 10 miles west of Krasnogvardeisk, and only five miles from a Nazi rail line running to Narva in Estonia.

The Russians said they killed 1,800 Germans in yesterday's fighting.

In White Russia the southern wing of Gen. Konstantin Rokossovsky's army was nearing a junction with the southern flank of Gen. Nikolai Vatutins' forces in the depth of the Pinsk Marshes, west of captured Lelchitsy, where some units have crossed the Ubort river and are heading for the Stivga and Gorin rivers.

(To the north, a German broadcast said the Nazis had abandoned a swamp in the area west of Novgorod.)

Mild Weather Brings Crowd To Market

The farm produce market regained much of its previous liveliness Saturday, and mild weather contributed to the larger attendance of both buyers and sellers.

Eggs were 30 to 35 cents a dozen wtih some selects up to 38 cents. Chickens were fairly plentiful at 35 to 38 cents, and broilers were 40 cents, with several turkeys at 45 cents a pound.

Potatoes were $1.85, $1.95 and $2 a bag. Carrots and parsnips sold at 50c a peck, cabbages 10c each turnips 5c. The vegetable men reported they had sold out of onions, and had nothing to offer. Their explanation was the light crop of last year, "just like potatoes in 1942." One of the dealers said that if he wanted to get onions for customers he would have to go into "the black market," and he drew the line at that source. Northern Spy apples were $2.75 a hamper, and cooking apples averaged 60 cents a peck.

Sugar Ration 23 Pounds Each

OTTAWA, Jan. 24 —(CP)— The Prices Board announces that sugar for 1944 home canning will be made available through 10 spare "F" coupons in ration book 3 now being used by consumers.

The board said consumers will thus be provided with a standard allotment of 10 pounds of sugar per person for home canning purposes, but households wishing to do more canning will be able to supplement this amount by using their preserves coupons for the purchase of sugar.

The special coupons will be exchangeable for preserves coupons on application to local ration boards at the rate of one "F" coupon for one preserves coupon.

The "F" coupons from one to 10 will each be valid for the purchase of one pound of sugar. If all the 1944 preserves coupons are also used to obtain canning sugar the total obtained will be 23 pounds for one person.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24—(AP)—After four days of intensive investigation, a state's attorney official said today there was a "complete absence" of any established motive for the murder of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, wealthy wife of a state department official in Washington.

Police have followed dozens of leads in their search for the middle-aged, well-dressed woman who fatally shot Mrs. Williams last Wednesday.

Coroner A. L. Brodie said members of the Williams' family in an effort to aid authorities, will submit to lie detector tests. Te emphasized that none is under suspicion.

Police also disclosed that a bodyguard had been assigned to Mrs. Williams' two daughters, Elizabeth Born, 33, and Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, 28, who was with her mother at the time of the shooting, but told authorities she could not identify the gunwoman. He said the bodyguard was assigned so the two could have "peace and quiet from questioning."

Holstein Men Urged To Sell At Profit

"No man ever went broke taking profits," maxim of the stock market traders, was quoted by Robert Holtby in a talk to the Peterborough County Holstein Breeders at their annual meeting Saturday afternoon.

He was discussing the prices of the wartime market for cattle, and said he was reluctant about passing out advice, but he recalled a classic example of missing the price boat which he had heard as a small boy. He related how a farmer of his father's district when wheat was $2.60 was holding for something higher and finally decided to part with his grain when it had dropped to 70 cents a bushel.

There was another man in the last war who had a lot of potatoes when the price was $7 a bag. He believed they were going to $8 and he hung on waiting for that level even while the market was tumbling under him down to 50 cents a bag. That's the story, and could be duplicated with innumerable examples from the stock market.

Mr. Holtby mentioned a western Ontario dairy farmer who, he said, set a price of $3,000 not so long ago on a blue blood cow. Then when he was offered the money he stalled and finally declined it.

No Satisfaction

"There won't be much satisfaction in being able to tell your grandchildren that you refused three or four hundred dollars for a cow during the big war," Mr. Holtby said. He acknowledged that farmers had to give this question of wartime selling considerable thought. With a well balanced herd and other good young stock coming on, he believed that it would be wise to put through a sale and take the money, especially if it were needed around the place. The western Ontario man had a barnful of good animals, and might have been well advised to have taken the four figures he was offered. At any rate a farmer had to use good judgment in this decision, and do his best to estimate which course would be best for him.

Stewart Nelson presided at the meeting which was well attended. The following directors were elected for this year:—Stanley Wood, Harry Carter, James Sargent, Norman McConkey, Joseph Mann, Frank Kelly, William Seymour, Edward Bulmer and Gordon Stalker.

Mr. Wood was appointed representative to the Lakefield Fair Board and will support a suggestion for an earlier date.

The Association voted $10 to the County Federation of Agriculture. Mr. McConkey was appointed delegate to the national convention at Brantford.

The secretary, Joe Tully, was requested to write George Burnside, of Madoc, extending to him the Peterborough association's sympathy in his bereavement by the death of his wife, whose funeral took place Saturday.

A. V. Langton, field man in Eastern Ontario, made his first visit with Mr. Holtby.

"I am deeply grateful to Mr. Holtby for the foundation work he has done for me in the East," Mr. Langton said. He specially mentioned the establishment of the Black and White days and the important work done in the blood testing of cattle.

"I feel a man should endeavor to cash in on some of the high prices that are going if it means selling some of his top cattle, but he should also look after the bottom end," Mr. Langton said. "I feel we may be making a mistake if we don't take advantage of the high prices. It seems a great time to pay off debts if you have any outstanding; and it would help stabilize your position as breeders."

Mr. Langton reported about 8,000 members in the Holstein-Friesian association at the end of last year. Peterborough's membership is eighty. In some of the eastern sounties with comparatively small numbers it was found that most worth-while projects had been carried out. The smaller clubs had much to offer and were often the most active.

Frank Kelly was presented with the bannerette which he was awarded at the Lakefield show last fall, and Gilbert J. Elmhurst receives the certificate won by his Holstein cow, "Sunflake Alcartra Trinsen," which in 365 days, milking twice daily, produced 23,239 pounds of milk and 814 pounds of butter fat. Mr. Elmhurst was not present at the meeting to receive the certificate.

Mr. Langton urged the association to promote junior clubs.

Holland Sentenced To Month In Jail

Pleading guilty to a charge of receiving three stolen windbreakers, Percy Holland, was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to a month's imprisonment in the county jail.

Constable C. J. McGillen, in giving evidence, said that he and Constable John Morrow, answering a complaint from the Hotel Champlain that there was a man there selling windbreakers, had found Holland with three windbreakers under his overcoat. Later a fourth windbreaker had been found on the floor of the beverage room.

Later they were identified as having been stolen from the C.D.S. store. Six wind-breakers in all had been taken and two had not been recovered.

Holland's story was that the windbreakers had been given him by a soldier to sell, with the understanding that he was to get half what he made out of the transaction.

Trucks Collide 2 Horses Hurt

One man was injured, two horses hurt and a couple of trucks and a garbage wagon damaged in a spectacular three-vehicle crash at Aylmer and Sherbrooke streets on Saturday.

The injured man was William Donegan, 320 McFarlane avenue, garbage wagon driver, who received a cut lip, bruised hips and a cut on his right foot.

Walter Bromwell, R.R. 11, Peterborough, was driving his truck east on Sherbrooke street. At the Aylmer street intersection his vehicle met in collision with another truck driven south on Aylmer street by Donald McKay, Bridgenorth. After the two trucks collided the Bromwell truck was driven against a garbage wagon travelling north on Aylmer street and driven by Donegan. The wagon was upset on the lawn at 234 Aylmer street and the driver thrown off. The pole of the wagon was broken and the two horses received cuts around their legs.

After the crash the two trucks came to rest on opposite sides of Aylmer street with a wheel up over the curb in both cases. Both vehicles were badly damaged.

Kennedy said he was ready to go ahead with his trial this morning but the request of the crown was remanded for a week. He announced there would be no request for bail.

Jews Dedicate Army Honor Roll

Over a hundred parents and relatives of Jewish members of the armed forces were at a dedication of an honour roll of Jewish men and women serving in His Majesty's forces Sunday night.

The service was opened with a reconsecration pledge by every one present to dedicate all their time and efforts towards winning a quick and final victory. A guard of honour of Jewish soldiers from the local training centre organized by Flight Lt. Montague Raisman made up the colour party, and took part in an impressive memorial service, during which the Last Post and Reveille was sounded.

An active service honour scroll and a "next of kin" pin was given to each parent who has a member of the family in the service. A prayer for the hundreds of Canadian Jewish soldiers who have paid the supreme sacrifice for their country, was made by Rabbi Kirshenblatt.

Light Lieutenant Raisman in his speech paid tribute to the Jewish casualties suffered in this war and to the Jewish members of the armed forces who have served on every front and who have been decorated and cited for exceptional courage and skill. He commended upon the splendid representation we have made in the armed forces. The Jewish enlistments total 12,232, as of July 1, 1943, or 7.12 per cent. of Canada's Jewish population of 160,000 against a total of 6.8 p.c. of all Canadians on active service.

Flight Lieutenant Raisman stated "we call this an honour roll, but it is not we who are honoring them, it is they who have brought great honour to us." The speaker expressed deep sympathy to the relatives of those who have made the supreme sacrifice and said, "it is the duty of all of us to consecrate ourselves to our valiant dead," and emphasized that there is no honour too great that we can pay to the mothers of the boys who are overseas.

Hostess Course Planned In City

Under the auspices of the Citizens' Committee a Hostess Course is being held in the Y.W.C.A. on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, Jan. 31, Feb. 1 and Feb. 2, from 7.30 to 8.30 o'clock; and a second series on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Feb. 9, 10 and 11, at the same hour. The lecture headings, which are the same for both series, promise an interesting and instructive course: Lecture 1—Personality and Etiquette, speaker to be announced; Lecture 2—You as a Hostess, Mrs. W. Fanning; Lecture 3, Recreation for Soldiers: Capt. Profitt, padre, Training Centre.

A hostess identification badge will be given to each registrant after having attended the three lectures. No one will be called as a hostess in the future who has not attended the course and received the hostess badge. The two series have been arranged in order that all may have the opportunity of attending all three lectures. Although it might be preferable that the lectures be taken in order, this is not necessary and Lecture 3 may be taken first followed by Lectures 1 and 2 to give an example.

Registration will take place at the Y.W.C.A. on Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 26 and 27, from 7:30 to 9 o'clock.

The purpose of the course is to secure uniformity and to avoid duplication in the hostess system of soldier entertainment. All hostesses will know what is expected of them by all organizations and all organization will know what to expect of their hostesses. All entertainments and hostesses are sponsored by organizations and the names of all hostesses who have received the hostess badge will be placed on a permanent list under their sponsoring organization and will be called for service from this list, thus avoiding the confusion of overlapping and duplication which has been the case thus far.

Similar courses have been held throughout Canada and the United States in Army centres where there is organized soldier entertainment carried on by Y.W.C.A.'s, Y.M.C.A.'s and service organizations such as the I.O.D.E., Women's Volunteer Service, Women's Service Corps and others; and in the United States by the U.S.O. Thousands of girls have taken the course in the various series and its worth and interest has been widely acclaimed. So much so that in many centres the course has been repeated many times in order to accommodate all those wishing to avail themselves of the opportunity to be an accredited hostess.

Harold Doig Thanks City Council

Among the letters of appreciation received by Mayor Hamilton replying to the Christmas greetings from the City Council to the men and women of the armed forces was the following by Harold Doig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Doig, North Monaghan, written New Year's Day from "H.M.S. Attack," in an English port:

"Just a short note to acknowledge receipt of the Christmas greetings which you so thoughtfully sent me. It is a lovely gesture. I can assure you, and it most certainly brings one down to earth and makes him realize that the folks back home are pulling for you. In my case it is really not necessary to be reminded of home as my thoughts are there constantly, and with my wife who has been spending the Christmas season with her mother and dad in Prince Edward Island.

"This is my third Christmas away from Peterborough, and I can assure you Peterborough is the place I long to be back to.

Misses Peterborough.

"I am a member of the 'Coastal Forces.' It is made up of motor gunboats and motor torpedo boats. That is all I can say about myself and what I am doing. I'd like to tell you more, as I feel perhaps some of the members of the council might be interested. I don't know who the members of the council are now, but probably some of them remember me from my business connections. When I look back it seems a long time since I last sold vegetables and fruit on the Peterborough market.

"I thank you again for your kind remembrance. Please excuse my writing as I have an injured thumb and it is most painful trying to pen these few lines. In closing I wish to thank you all, and wish the members of the council a successful New Year, and hope it brings to a close this war."

Group At C.G.E. Gives Aid To War Victims

It is only a matter of three weeks since this column on behalf of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund made a resume of the help that came in such substantial form from the employees of the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., in which the workers in Genelco also took some part.

This report at that time showed how they had given a total of $1,369.02 towards the special objective for Christmas that the fund had made, which raised the total they had then given to the fund, since it began operations, up to the splendid amount of $6,621.00.

After having accomplished something so well worth-while, it stands all the more to their credit that they have shown a continued interest, and by practical means are still keeping on at the good work, which in all phases of the war effort is so necessary until the day of victory arrives.

Third Donation This Year

Today's list gives credit to the Inspection Department, over which Don Hill presides as foreman, who have sent in $7.68, to mark the third contribution so far this year from this one plant, to make a total of $46.27 received in that space of time, and raises the total now given to-date up to the sum of $6,667.27.

Three personal donations are included in today's acknowledgements, among which Herb. Doig is back again after only one week since a similar contribution appeared in his name, and the lady known as "E. M.F." is back to add another to the long list of times already recorded, while Mrs. P. Menogue accounts for the other one.

Lord Mayor Sends Thanks

His Worship Mayor Hamilton has just received a letter from Sir Frank Newson-Smith, the present Lord Mayor of London, which acknowledges the receipt of the special donation of £1,600 sent to him on December 21.

In part this letter says "I should like you to know how greatly I appreciate and admire the splendid efforts which the people of Peterborough and district are making on behalf of my fund. This fresh gift will bring great happiness to our children this Christmas, and I only wish you could all attend some of the parties to see just how much the kiddies enjoy themselves.

I shall be glad if my warm and sincere thanks can be conveyed to the donors for this further donation, and for their continued and generous support to my fund."

Berlin Tells Of Raid

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(AP). — Berlin radio claimed in a Rome dispatch yesterday that Allied bombers had hit Castel Gandolfo, 17 miles south of Rome, the summer residence of Pope Pius XII, and caused extensive damage in the town."

LOANS TO WORKERS

How you can borrow at Household Finance quickly, simply and without endorsers—12 monthly instalments of $9.46 each repay $100 loan in full

NEED $100, $200 or up to $500? Here's a way to get additional cash without fuss or bother. Just tell Household Finance about your problem and choose a convenient payment plan from the table below. No endorsers or guarantors are ever required. And we do not question friends or relatives about your credit. Household Finance loans are made largely on character and earning ability. So if you have a job or other source of steady income don't hesitate to apply for whatever amount you may need.

Rate reduced on loans over $300

You may repay your loan in 2 to 15 monthly instalments. The sooner you repay the less your loan costs. A $100 loan repaid in 12 monthly instalments of $9.46 each—a total of $113.52—costs $13.52, if repaid in six monthly instalments of $17.85 each the cost is only $7.10. Charges on loans of more than $300 were recently reduced. Notice that 12 monthly instalments of $46.73 each now repay a $500 loan in full. Payments shown in the table include both principal and all costs. You pay nothing more. We have no hidden charges of any kind.

Cash for most any purpose

You may get cash at Household to pay old debts, taxes, insurance, medical or dental service, to help relatives—for almost any purpose. If you need money at any time, phone, write or visit Household Finance.

For Tuesday, January 25

While there is mediocre activity of a productive nature, according to the lunar aspects, yet devastating and turbulent situation may have power to thwart and block promising conditions. This may be due to an explosive temperament in which the emotions, feelings and reckless state of mind plunge into defeat and disaster. Physical as well as business dangers may be the climax to such outbursts of impulsive and wayward conduct. They may affect the personal as well as business associations. Maintain calm.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, although there are indications of some favorable conditions, with fair suport by employers or superiors, yet these may be swept from their balance by a sudden visitation of a devastating, frustrating and uprooting force, upsetting all plans and objectives and inciting unfortunate moves. Strife, and turbulence may have disastrous reactions on health, domestic and affectional relations. Curb impulsive acts and maintain composure in accidents or strange situations.

A child born on this day may have unusual abilities, with energy and ingenuity, but a predisposition to "fly off the handle" in strange predicaments may prove its undoing.

W.A. Raises $700 During Year Report Shows

HAVELOCK, Jan. 24 (ENS)—The annual congregational meeting of the United church took the form of a supper meeting. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson was appointed chairman, and Carman Coon was named secretary for the meeting.

Biggest, both in membership and in its contribution to the general budget of the church, was the Women's Association, whose report was given by the secretary, Mrs. Clare Price. The women work under the group system, with united quarterly meetings and suppers at the church. During the year over $700 was raised by means of quilting, sale of quilts, teas, talent money, yard of coppers, 1-cent-a-day, and pot-luck suppers. In the expenses of $580, donations were made to the church board, painting church floor, Red Cross, Patriotic Association, Russian Appeal, the M. and M. Fund, and furniture and repair work at the parsonage, with Christmas messages sent to all members of the armed forces.

Raise Quota

The Women's Missionary Society raised their allocation, according to a report given by Miss M. Seeney, and $240 was remitted to the Presbyterial treasurer. The average attendance is 16, with ten meetings held and one picnic, and special Easter and Thanksgiving services. All of the money raised by this group came from free-will offerings, envelope collections and a quilt.

The youngest group of the church, the Daisy Mission Band, was well supported, according to the report by Helen Price, with $44.29 being sent forward, and the children raised this amount with collections, tea and bazaar and sale of Scripture calendars. The Young Peoples' Union raised $12.50 by collections, according to the report by Ruth Wilkinson, of which $6.00 was donated M. and M. Fund of the church.

In Miss Lucy Wing's report of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of the church, it was noted that $249 had been raised in Havelock, $52 at Rush Point church and $106 from Trent River church. The Sunday School has had an encouraging year, with receipts of $137.58 and expenses of $115.22, with a balance of $22.36, according to the report of the secretary, Clarence Price. The Ontario Temperance Federation had benefitted to the extent of $62, and collections for the canvass for the Bible Society by Ruth Wilkinson and Helen Price amounted to over $40.

Report Repairs

Civic Bodies Attend Church

With Mayor Hamilton, members of the City Council, the Board of Education and the Utilities Commission, along with representatives from the police force and other civic departments attending, Rev. Dr. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's United church on Sunday morning discussed "A New World Order."

Taking his subject from II Peter 3:13 he declared that the Christian church must play a prominent part in the new world order. However, it was not the duty of the church to ally itself with political parties, but rather "to set forth great ends and to state great principles."

New Condition.

In opening his discourse Dr. Young defined Heaven as a new condition of the soul, with God the centre and the task of religion is to endeavour to have a God-regulated world. In looking around the world it is very evident that there is something wrong and it is the business of the church to find out what the trouble is and set it right. The democracies are at war to preserve their Christian civilization, but when the war is won the Christian civilization may still not be secure.

Declaring that evasion of responsibility was a great fault of every democracy, Dr. Young said that there could not be a democracy without intelligent participation by all the people. Public men are simply the servants of the people and the people must be always ready to express an intelligent vote on all questions.

Conditions After the War.

He pictured dreadful conditions to follow in Europe after the war and maintained that it would be the first Christian duty of Canada, the United States and parts of South America to feed these European peoples. Much is heard about giving these European nations their liberty, but the speaker emphasized that liberty does not mean license and that in the past European nations had not used this liberty wisely.

An authority must be established for the preservation of peace and that authority, unlike the League of Nations, must be given power to use armies, air forces, and navies to see that the new order is kept.

In all this the church is going to have its part. The history of Christianity is only the history of men and women who have been interested in Christian affairs and the history of the church is really the history of the nations.

The duty of the church will be to educate men and women to have a respect for human personality as that is what lies at the root of many of our social questions. There must be an equal opportunity for all, especially children, for it is Christianity's duty to give them a chance.

VIOLATING CONVENTIONS

THERE ARE several situations in which it pays to make opening leads which are contrary to the accepted conventions. One of these conventions is that an honor lead from an unbid suit against a No Trump game contract shows, except when it is a king from ace-king and others, that the leader holds the card immediately below the one offered, plus some other card at least as high as the nine, but not the one directly above the card led.

North: ♠ Q 8 4; ♥ A K Q 6; ♦ A K Q J 7; ♣ A
West: ♠ K J 9 7 5; ♥ 8 4 3; ♦ 9 4; ♣ 10 6 4
East: ♠ A 6 2; ♥ 9 7 5; ♦ 10 8 5 2; ♣ J 7 3
South: ♠ 10 3; ♥ J 10 2; ♦ 6 3; ♣ K Q 9 8 5 2

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♦
Pass	1 NT	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	3 NT

From West's spade suit, with "touching honors," the accepted lead is the fourth best, the 7. But if that is led, South makes his contract plus overtricks. He should play low from dummy. If East ducks, the 10 wins and South runs all the tricks. If East plays the A, he makes the Q a certain third-round stopper, assuring South 11 tricks.

But if West leads the J, South is definitely beaten, with the cards lying as they are. If the Q goes on it from dummy, the A wins, causes the 10 to get dropped by the K on the return, and West runs the suit. Nothing can be done by South to save himself.

There is only one situation, among all the possible ones, in which the J lead is worse than the 7. That is when South holds three headed by the Q. In that event, the J lead enables South to make his contract. If East ducks, South wins with the Q and runs his winning tricks. If East uses the A, South plays low, and on the return uses his 10 to force the K, leaving his Q high. With that situation, the 7 lead would beat the contract, as East could put on his A and return a low one through the Q up to the K-J, assuring run of the suit.

The greatest danger of the J lead, however, is that it destroys somewhat the conventional meaning of honor leads by the partnership, making them harder to read in cases where accurate reading is vital to the defense. Consequently, such departures should not be too frequent, and then only when judgment calls strongly for them.

Havelock W.I. Finishes Making 2 Quilts

HAVELOCK, Jan. 24.—(ENS). — A good crowd attended the combined quilting and Institute business meeting at the township hall. During the afternoon two quilts were completed and an order was received for two more at $5 each.

Mrs. George Hartin presided, and this was to have been a program on education and the motto was "The foundation of every country is the education of its youth." The roll call was answered with a selection of poetry or prose.

Several letters were received from members of the armed forces overseas expressing thanks for Christmas parcels and boxes of cigarettes, also letters from local sick and shut-ins for Christmas cheer boxes.

A vote of thanks was expressed to Mrs. Frank Elmhirst and Mrs. George Scott for fixing the windows.

A lengthy discussion followed regarding transportation of blood donors to the Clinic in Peterborough, and it is hoped a bus load may be arranged for shortly. The next meeting will be held at the hall, with one hour arranged for business, and the remaining period for quilting.

Fliers Destroy Hidden Base

AN ADVANCED AIRBASE IN ITALY, Jan. 24 — (AP) —A German frontline Air Corps headquarter's, carefully hidden in what was previously considered 'neutral" territory because of it sproximity to the summer residence of Pope Pius XII, was reported destroyed yesterday by dive-bombers from the United States 1th Air Support Command.

Returning pilots, who had been painstakingly briefed for the special mission, said the Pope's summer home and surrounding areas of Castel Gandolfo, south of Rome, "never felt a thing."

The German Corps Headquarters was housed in a villa near Frascati, south of Rome and only about five miles from Castel Gandolfo. The entire area had been voluntarly restricted by the Allies and their planes forbidden to fly over it. Apparently the Nazis learned of the restrictions and slipped in a headquarters to take advantage of it.

Two flights of eight bombers each peeled out of a formation ten minutes apart shortly after noon and scored 26 direct hits on the headquarters villa. Two bombs landed on the west wing of the building, causing a tremendous explosion which the pilots said enveloped the entire villa, sending up clouds of black smoke.

"Most of our bombs hit the target and I'm sure we knocked out the whole building," Lt. Martin J. Snider of Elkton, Mich., leader of one of the flights, said. 'There were no activity around the villa and no flak. It looked like we surprised them."

Oakes' Auction Sale Attracts Many Bidders

NASSAU, Bahamas, Jan. 24 — (CP) — All Nancy Oakes de Marigny's household articles were sold Friday in spirited bidding at a public auction and reliable reports from official quarters stated that the once "penniless" heiress had won back restricted control of her $12,000 annual income.

The daughter of slain Sir Harry Oakes realized about $3,950 from the sale of furniture and objects of art in her unpretentious bungalow here. A United States artist, Frederick Soldwedel, bought two hurricane shades on a bid of about $25.

The hurricane shades figured prominently in the trial of Nancy's husband, Alfred de Marigny, who claimed he might have burned hairs on his arms while lighting candles in them. De Marigny was tried and acquitted of the murder of Sir Harry, whose burned and beaten body was found last July.

Mrs. de Marigny will be permitted to take the proceeds of the auction and any savings bank balance she may have to Havana, where she lives with her husband.

In addition, official quarters reported that the Exchange Control Board will permit her to withdraw amounts needed for medical and living expenses from the $1,000 monthly Sir Harry directed that she be paid. However, she must submit bills before the international credits will be released, it was stated.

News Reporters Taking It Easy

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 24 (CP) Cable)—Until the western invasion day you are not going to read much more speculation from London in your newspapers about the Allied attack being prepared here.

War correspondents are going to "take it easy" from now until the barges grind on the beaches and the shooting starts. Then they can go to town and tell the whole tremendous story of these preparations and the operation itself.

British authorities have asked all newspapermen here to "shush" on invasion stories — and the war reporters are not kicking for they know it would help to puzzle the Germans and aid the Allied troops if they lean over backwards to maintain all security.

British officials have requested utmost care be taken regarding newspaper stories on the western attack because every item will be scanned by enemy intelligence for a hint on what is coming. A similar request has been made by American authorities to the American press.

Private Enterprise Given High Praise

TORONTO, Jan. 24 — (CP) — Gordon A. Ross of Quebec, president of the Canadian Corset Manufacturers' Association, in an address here yesterday said the main task facing private enterprise now is to educate Canadians to the fact that the present economic system of competition and individual effort has built "one of the highest standards of living in the world" and that a switch to a Socialist system would create havoc in a world where "out-throat competition" will exist between nations after the war.

Speaking before the association's annual convention, he expressed the conviction that if Canada is to survive and progress in the post-war world "then the men who have carried Canada through the war must also build the larger Canada to which we all aspire once we settle down to peacetime business."

Honor Soldier

Hertzberg, former engineer-in-chief 1st Canadian Army, was paid yesterday at special church services attended by the representatives of the Royal Canadian Engineers, headquarters staff, the University of Toronto, and St. Andrew's College. Gen. Hertzberg died in India recently while serving with the British Army in a special engineering capacity.

County Council May Meet More Frequently

A special two-day session of the county council will be held at the end of March to deal with the problem of assistance to the city hospitals, it was decided on at the sitting Saturday morning, and at the same time consideration was given to the advisability of making it a regular practice for the council to meet more frequently in the course of the year.

The motion advancing appointment of a committee to study the facts in relation to hospital requirements which would provide a logical foundation on which the council as a whole might later base the form and amount of its grant came from Reeve Peter Mather after several other members had expressed doubts as to the possibility of settling the question fairly at the present time.

It was generally believed that through lack of acquaintance with the facts of the situation the council was not in a position to deal with the matter in the present session. Warden Isaac Anderson reminded members there would be certain legal angles which would have to be considered and Reeve Rork Ferguson followed with the comment that this was "an important matter, there are many facts we need to find out and we should have our solicitor's advice. If we give now, we would be giving blindly."

Reeve Mather incorporated these and other suggestions in a motion calling for a committee consisting of Reeves Ferguson, McIlmoyle, Gifford, Humphries and the Warden to get the facts and present them to the council for debate at a special session to be held in two months' time. He moved that the Department of Municipal Affairs be consulted in the matter and strongly advised the adoption of the method of counting county patients' days as the fairest way of assessing the county's obligation to the city hospitals. The motion carried without dissent and Reeve Mather was added to the list of committee names.

Members of the council seemed generally in favor of calling more frequent and shorter sessions, and the suggestion of five sessions a year instead of three as heretofore was mentioned as a deinite possibility. Decision in the matter was left in the hands of the Warden.

The burning question of annexation, which has been the subject of several long committee meetings during the week, was brought out in open council at the Saturday sitting and climaxed by a resolution to pass a by-law referring the matter as a whole to the Ontario Municipal Board. Moved by Reeve McIlmoyle that such a by-law should be passed, Reeve Gifford seconded, stating that due to the uncertainty regarding the signing of certain petitions and counter-petitions the action proposed seemed the only way. The motion carried and the clerk was instructed to have a by-law prepared by the county solicitor.

For some time on Friday discussion had revolved around a resolution moved in a previous session, calling for the setting up of a capital account in the county balance sheet for the value of the nearly 4,000 acres of reforestation land owned by the County of Peterborough in the eastern limits of the county. This had never been done, and for that reason criticism had from time to time been directed at the council. On Saturday the council decided the matter by appointing a committee to engage a timber cruiser who was also an appraiser to do the job at the earliest possible date.

To delete the resolution now, as was at first suggested, would be taking a backward step, Reeve Mather asserted, adding "we owe it to the ratepayers to give them a clear idea of the reforestation area. I think it need be done only once." Reeve Ferguson said a Government appraiser could probably do the job in two or three days, and the expense would not be great. Reeve Robert Martin of Dummer added: "It is high time we had it done. We have had the property for six years."

Reeve Ferguson moved that the distribution of money to be raised for the Red Cross on the one mill rate previously agreed upon should be given into the hands of a committee of the Warden, Reeves Mather and Mahoney and Reeve Humphries, chairman of finance. It would be their duty to see that the requirements of the head office at Toronto were first met, and that the remainder of the grant be then distributed among the local chartered branches. Reeve Mather reminded councillors that the grant must be available by the second week of March, because it was in the first two weeks of that month the Red Cross was going to stage its campaign, the necessity for which was obviated by the county grant. Estimate of the sum to be raised at one mill was $11,038.

The finance committee attended to the following additional grants: To the Navy League, $1,250; British War Victims' Fund, $500; for a consolidated war charities fund from which assistance could be granted to other needy Allied countries, $1,200; to the Seed Growers' Association, $25. The request of the Plowmen's Association for $100 was denied, on the motion of Reeves Archibald and Seeney that no action be taken.

Appropriation of $10,000 for suburban area roads and continuance of the same assessment rates for county roads and bridges—2.8 mills and one-half mill respectively—were decided on. The sum of $1,500 was appropriated for reforestation purposes.

Second Last Route Under Fire

2 Leningrad Suburbs Taken Over By Speeding Soviets

By EDDIE GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW Jan. 25.—(AP)— With armored trains, Soviet armies of the Leningrad front pushed the Germans down the Leningrad-Vitebsk railway to-day as the Nazis fought frontically to avoid great encirclements from the sector south of captured Pushkin (Tsarkoye Selo) to positions in the area of Shimsk at the western corner of Lake Ilmen.

The Russians' big monsters of the rails are pouring heavy salvoes into the retreating Nazis, Red Star, the army newspaper, said.

It appeared the Germans were faced with one of their worst catastrophies of the Russian campaign, with large forces in divisional strength desperately fighting off outflanking movements, which threatened to cut off an estimated 250,000 troops between Leningrad and the Volkhov.

The Germans hold only two usable north-south railways, the Leningrad-Vitebsk and the Leningrad-Pskov lines. The Russians are within five miles of the first line and the second is 10 miles farther west.

Red Star reported the big Pushkin airport is in Soviet hands.

South of Leningrad, the Russians captured Ulianovka on the main Leningrad-Moscow railway just north of Tosno and closed in on that junction.

Perhaps 250,000 Germans are pocketed southeast of Leningrad and Moscow said that "under threat of encirclement the Germans are retreating hastily, sustaining great losses in manpower and equipment."

Gen. Leonid A. Gorov's troops, who freed Leningrad from siege in the offensive launched Jan. 14, cut the Krasnog-Vardeisk-Narvatine at a point between Krasnog Ardeisk, 25 miles south of Leningrad, and Narva on the Estonian border. His forces killed more than 2,300 Germans yesterday and swept through 40 towns and villages including Pushkin and Pavlosk, twin rail hubs 14 and 18 miles due south of Leningrad.

Sixty miles to the south, another army under Gen. K. A. Meretskov dashed to within 20 and 30 miles respectively of Batetskaya and Luga, secondary rail junctions through which the Germans must withdraw if they are to escape disaster. This army also smashed along the western shore of Lake Ilmen to within 14 miles of Shimsk, a rail junction leading to the rear of German troops anchored at Starya Russa south of Lake Ilmen.

A front line dispatch said the Red Army is capturing many villages by night, then outflanking and attacking frontally the bigger objectives in daylight with ski-troops armed with Tommy-guns leading the way but encountering hard going over muddy roads. There are terrific battles along the roads.

Hold 30-mile Coastal Strip
Appian Way Believed Severed

ALGIERS, Jan. 25 — (AP) — Allied troops have driven 12 miles inland from their Nettuno-Anzio beachhead and patrols are pushing deeper, with no "formidable" German opposition yet encountered, Allied Headquarters announced to-day.

The famous Appian Way to Rome and the main coastal rail line are about 12 miles inland from the landing area, but it was not specifically stated the invasion forces had reached them. It is probable they are at least under Allied domination.

The Geneva newspaper La Suisse quoted the Fascist press as announcing that Allied forces now have occupied the entire 30-mile coastal stretch from Nettuno to the mouth of the Tiber, and are threatening Ostia, the port of Rome, three miles up the river.

German planes made their strongest attacks yesterday seeking to halt sea-borne reinforcements, and battled over the invasion bridgehead, but lost nine planes.

The Allied spearheads met "hastily-organized battle groups" of Germans apparently moved northward from the 5th Army front around Cassino.

Blows Weaken.

The Nazis still were launching fierce counter-attacks on that main front, but these blows have decreased somewhat in number and intensity in the last 24 hours, indicating that enemy forces were being pulled back to meet the invasion flanking threat.

The beachhead has been lengthened, headquarters said, without disclosing the area it covers. Reinforcements and supplies continued to pour in with little enemy interference, and the communique said the town of Anzio, bordering Nettuno to the west, had been taken.

(The United Nations radio at Algiers said the troops striking inland were within almost a mile of the double-track Rome-Naples electric rail line. The broadcast was recorded by the United States office of war information.)

Fierce fighting raged on the American sector along the Rapido River near Cassino with heavy fire by all kinds of weapons.

U.S. patrols recrossed the stream to probe enemy defences, but no counter-offensive was launched by the Americans to keep a force on the western bank. The Germans, who on Sunday hurled the Americans back across the river, made no attempts to cross to the eastern bank.

Repulse Attacks

French troops in the northernmost area beat back several more enemy counter-attacks, and a hot battle swirled for the Mount Croce area.

British troops kept their bridgehead across the Garigliano River on the left flank of the 5th Army line despite new Nazi counter-blows, and made some gains in the Damiano bridge area. The Germans were reported counter-attacking recklessly in the Minturno and Castelforte areas.

A British veteran of the First Great War who went through the thick of the fighting in and around Minturno said:—

"The German dead there exceeded the dead I saw at any time during the fiercest fighting on the Somme."

The German battle groups rushing up against the invasion forces to the northwest are formations that can be drawn rapidly from any division. They represent all branches and are

French Coast Ripped Anew In Big Raids

21 German Planes Shot Down In Day's Fighting

LONDON, Jan. 25—(CP)—Thundering out across the English Channel for the third successive day, strong formations of Allied bombers hammered the French coast from Dunkirk to Boulogne today as fine flying weather succeeded a windy turbulent night.

Observers on the English coast reported large groups of both bombers and fighters launched the new assaults shortly after dawn, and soon the raiders were shuttling back and forth over the channel.

Twenty-one German planes were shot down in yesterday's aerial battles which developed when escorted United States heavy bombers flew through bad weather to attack unspecified targets in western Germany, a communique said last night.

Nineteen of the Nazi ships were shot down by fighters and the others were bagged by the bombers.

The communique said two heavy bombers, one fighter-bomber and 10 fighters were missing from the day's operations, which included Allied sweeps against the French invasion coast, the 23rd foray against targets in this region in 25 days. Both British and American planes participated in these sweeps.

100 Hun Trucks Hit Near Rome

By HAL V. BOYLE
Associated Press War Correspondent.

AN AIR BASE IN ITALY, Jan. 25 — (AP). — Maj.-Gen. John K. Cannon, whose tactical Mediterranean Air Force flew 1,400 sorties in one day to disrupt German communications to the new Allied front south of Rome, to-day said "the Hun always reacts according to form and he must and will attack our new beachhead."

The General — formerly one of the United States' best-known fighter pilots—added:

"Our planes already have knocked out more than 100 enemy motor transport vehicles and are ready to attack the Hun any time he moves."

"The Luftwaffe still packs a wallop, but it is definitely whipped in this area. The German is now avoiding combat against our fighters in the Mediterranean area to conserve his resources. But when we get into Germany he is going to put up a hell of a fight.

"The Germans haven't increased their air force in Italy materially since last August. We want to wipe the Luftwaffe out of the skies, but the Hun knows his only chance of survival is to keep us out of Germany. That is why he is avoiding fighter combat and trying to stop our bombers.

"Despite the fact the Germans have been concentrating for months in production of more fighters, they have been unable to build up their fighter strength materially."

Empire Unity Vital Factor

TORONTO, Jan. 25—(CP).—Unity of the British Commonwealth, in peace as well as war, was advanced last night by Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, as a condition necessary to the future peace of the world.

The unifying influence of a common head, the King, of what Lord Tweedsmuir had called "that ancient, abiding thing behind governments," existed and had proven strong when war came. Lord Halifax, addressing the Toronto Board of Trade, called for its buttressing by closer partnership in the functional fields of foreign policy and defence.

He said: "The right of each member (of the Commonwealth) to determine its own external affairs may mean a gain or it may mean a loss. It is plainly a loss, if, with our essential unity of ideal, the responsibility for action which represents that unity is not visibly shared by all. It is an immeasurable gain if on vital issues we can achieve a common foreign policy expressed not by a single voice but by the unison of many.

"So, too, in the field of defence, while there must be individual re-

Britain Won't Recognize New Bolivian Government

LONDON, Jan. 25—(CP).—Foreign Secretary Eden announced in the House of Commons today that Great Britain refused to recognize the new government of Bolivia. The move followed similar declarations by the United States and seven other American republics.

Mr. Eden said he believed the coup last December 20 by which control of the Bolivian Government was seized by the party led by Maj. Gualberto Villarroel had been aided by German agents.

He said the British Government was "in step" with the United States in respect both to diplomatic recognition and economic action and added that the British Minister-designate to La Paz would not proceed to his post.

Referring to the coup against the government of Gen. Enrique Penaranda which previously had declared war on Germany, Eden said:

"Information available to us indicates this development is connected with activities of subversive groups hostile to the cause of the United Nations which are at work in the western hemisphere.

"They are in touch, we believe, with nations with whom we are at war...His Majesty's Government does not recognize the Junta as the legal government of Bolivia."

During questioning Eden was asked several times if there was any evidence that the subversive movement in South America was organized or stimulated through Spain, or involved Falangists.

The Foreign Secretary declared, "I believe these activities are organized in the main by German agents."

Asked whether he would try to find out what is being done not only in Bolivia but in other parts of the continent, including Uruguay and Brazil, Eden pointed out that there is no German embassy in either Uruguay or Brazil, but added, "There is a German embassy in South America and I hope one day we shall see that go. When that happens I think the position will improve."

British Advance Across Burma

By FRANK L. MARTIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

BRITISH 14TH ARMY HEADQUARTERS AT THE BURMA FRONTIER, Jan. 25—(AP)—British Indian troops operating in Arakan—the most southern of the three Allied fronts in Burma—have pushed forward 12 miles in the last two months, advancing approximately a third of the way back to the positions they held before retreating last April in the Monsoon Rains.

British forces now are astride an irregular line between Maungdaw and Japanese-held Buthedaung. They are now only 40 miles north of Donbaik on the Mayu Peninsula and 30 miles north of Rathedaung on the East bank of the Mayu river.

Both villages were under fire of British artillery last year but were never captured. The present fighting in Arakan is in territory familiar to both the British and Japanese forces, who have fought scores of skirmishes in these low, brush-covered hills and paddy fields during the past two years.

Guelph Airman Caught By Nazis

GUELPH, Jan. 25—(CP).—Mrs. Joseph Loree of Guelph told today how she had received from an unnamed source a story of an attempt by her airman son to escape while being moved from a prison camp in Italy to one in Germany.

The son, FO. Joseph Loree of the R.C.A.F., was captured in Libya in 1942, and for a time was at an Italian hospital for treatment of wounds and at a prison camp at Casserta, Italy.

She said that after the Allied invasion of Sicily the prisoners were being transferred to Germany and that her son and a companion leaped from the train in northern Italy. It was travelling at 50 to 60 miles an hour. The companion was wounded but Loree travelled 150 miles in five days in an effort to reach Switzerland before an Italian woman informed the Germans that he was hiding in the woodshed of an Italian peasant.

After his recapture Loree was taken to a camp in Germany near the Polish border where he met two former schoolmates—PO. James Golds and FO. Jack Armstrong.

Ontario Minister Charges Theft Of Provincial Rights

TORONTO, Jan. 25—(CP). — Dr. R. P. Vivian, Ontario Health Minister, today linked criticism of health insurance proposals he said the Federal Government is advancing with an appeal for Federal action on post-war rehabilitation and a warning that venereal disease has become the "greatest single public health problem" in Ontario.

In its health insurance proposals, the Government appeared to be seeking an infringement of provincial rights.

"The operation of such a plan... would require an amendment to the British North America Act so as to transfer to the Federal authority certain rights now vested in the provinces," Dr. Vivian said in an address to the Progressive Conservative Business Men's Club of Toronto.

If such legislation is advanced—Dr. Vivian said he is informed it will be introduced at the session of parliament which opens Thursday—it would seem desirable to hold a Dominion-Provincial conference of responsible government representatives.

"I have not heard of any such conference being called," he said, adding that he wonders if the Federal Government would seek to implement such a measure "over the heads of the provinces, or...attempt

Allied Strategy Causes Rioting

BERNE, Switzerland, Jan. 25—(AP).—A Swiss telegraph agency dispatch from Chiasso said today the Allied advance south of Rome had stirred incidents in Milan and Genoa, and the anti-Fascist secret press was giving wide publicity to Allied information on progress.

Partisans in northern Italy in the last 24 hours increased efforts to impede transport of German troops and material to central Italy, the dispatch added.

Rule of Kings Unpopular in Balkans

Popular Demand Would Oust Monarchial Dictatorships If possible

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The brightening Allied prospects in Italy are bound to be heavily reflected in the neighboring Balkans which already are flaming fiercely from their efforts to escape Hitler's bloody clutches and from internal political struggles which are in process of determining the nature of future governments.

Four Royal Crowns — those of Greece, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Rumania—are in danger. I quote Dr. Stoyan Gavrilovic, native of Yugoslavia and former holder of numerous positions under his government until he broke with the Yugoslav government in London three months ago because of his views on this issue:—

"The present governments of the Balkan States are on their way out, and you can be certain no one will be sorry about it," he told me the other day. "In every case they have been dictatorships, and the peoples are determined on establishing popular rule. These dictatorships have existed under the monarchies, and that means it's highly probable, though not yet absolutely certain, that the Balkans are through with kings.

"I never could understand why King Peter of Yugoslavia—himself a young man—should have identified himself with the cause of the dictatorship. I am sure his position would have been different if he had not done so. It may be that it is too late now, but the only way he could possibly reinstate himself would be to make a clean and unequivocal sweep in favor of popular rule."

Government Formed

So far as concerns Yugoslavia, the Liberal National Elements (their opponents call them Reds) have formed a provisional government known as the National Council of Liberation.

Neighboring Greece is torn between two political groups, each of which has an army in the field. There is the Elas group, which is against return of the King and is said by some to have Communist leanings. There is also the Edes faction which stands by the Monarchy. The Elas partisans have announced that the only way King George can obtain their support is to return to Greece, live with them in and lead them against Hitlerites.

Bulgaria has been racked with political crisis since the mysterious death of King Boris, the Dictator, last summer. Here, too, there is a swing towards popular rule, and many of the people lean towards Rnssia. Rumania, shaking like a custard with fear of Russian invasion, is in such a muddle politically that no one can foresee the future. Moscow's weight is bound to count for much, however.

ARGENTINA MAY BREAK.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay—Diplomats here said a sensational announcement is expected to be made today in Buenos Aires—with a strong possibility it would be a formal declaration by Argentina breaking relations with the Axis countries.

Russian Sinatra Returns

Elderly Crooner Gets Great Reception

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Jan. 25.—(AP).—Alexander Vertinsky, 53, who was crooning in Russia before Bing Crosby's voice changed, returned to his people last night in one of the war's great stories of love of country.

Before the revolution, Vertinsky's soft voice and his sentimental melodies had the hep-cats of the steppes in a dither. His concerts were sell-outs. Women swooned when he crooned.

Then came the revolution, and Vertinsky travelled to London, to Paris, to the United States—even to Hollywood—and lastly to Shanghai. But his records found their way back to the Soviet Union and for years they have been played here. Mothers have told their daughters about him. His simple, sad songs are known by thousands.

So it was big word-of-mouth news recently when, after 24 years, he applied for a Soviet passport and asked to return to Mother Russia with his young and pretty wife, a Russian who had lived in Shanghai.

His audience last night included the composer, Dmitri Shostakovich, generals, poets, many men of letters, ballerinas and artists. He sang his favorite songs — "Two Guitars," "Without Women," "Little Ballerina"—and a few songs of war.

The only reason he didn't stampede them into the aisles was because there were no aisles. The place was too packed.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(CP). — The youth of Britain is thinking, talking and arguing about the post-war world.

Government ministers, various experts and others engaged on post-war problems were exposed to the sharp curiosity and original ideas of 2,000 schoolboys and girls, aged 15 to 18, gathered in London recently under the auspices of the Council for Education in World Citizenship.

This parliament of youth drew from Sir William Beveridge, whose social security plan was the subject of one of the conference's most vigorous debates, the compliment: "The best set of questions by audience ever asked me."

Three 17-year-olds, a girl and two boys, presented to the concluding meeting a summary of what youths want for the post-war era. These included:

Social security: Adoption in its entirety of the Beveridge social security plan.

Germany: Eradication of Germany is "impracticable" and severe punishment of the German people "unwise," perhaps leading to a new Hitler. Trial of war criminals by an international body and re-education of German youth recommended.

Peace: A majority advocated an international authority composed of an upper house with equal representation for all countries and a lower house with representation according to population. National minorities, such as the Negroes in the United States, would have their own representation.

Bulgar Unrest Widespread; Riots Expected

By WADE WERNER
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LISBON, Jan. 25 — (AP). — German dispatches announcing the creation of a Bulgarian state police embracing infantry, cavalry and motorized units equipped to combat "terrorists," were viewed here to-day as an admission that unrest in Bulgaria is too widespread to be held in check by German garrisons primarily occupied with the threat of an Allied invasion.

The fact that the new police, although organized along military lines, will be under the Minister of the Interior, seems to corroborate previous reports that the Bulgarian army is honeycombed with discontent and has become undependable.

It checks with information recently brought back from Sofia by a neutral traveller who said that neither civilians nor soldiers in Bulgaria are showing any willingness to participate in any German defence of the Balkans.

This source said not only the Bulgarians, but also many Germans in Bulgaria, are gloomily resigned to an early end of the war.

The traveller said it was particularly significant that the Sofia government has been unable to persuade Bulgarians to establish homes in Greek and Yugoslav territories given to Bulgaria by Germany. He added that extremely few are willing to invest money and effort in areas from which they firmly expect to be expelled after the war.

All this, of course, is contrary to German reports of Bulgarian morale. It is significant, however, that German newspapers, which have been notoriously reluctant to disclose what goes on inside Germany itself, have been frankly reporting the hardships and dislocation of daily life in Bulgaria as a result of Allied bombings.

Sgt. Fred Delyea Hurt In Battle

BANCROFT, Jan. 25.— (ENS).— Sergeant Frederick Delyea, a member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, was wounded January 11 while serving with his regiment in Italy.

Sgt. Delyea enlisted in the Fall of 1939, leaving for Picton for his basic training. From there he went overseas in December, 1939. While in England Sgt. Delyea specialized in Bren Gun training and arrived back in Canada in April, 1942, as an instructor. He remained here until April of 1943 when he returned to England.

Only word that the family had received from him was that he was in Africa and it was not until they were notified of his wound that they knew he was in action in Italy. Sgt. Delyea is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Delyea of Bancroft and is also married. His wife, two daughters and three sons also reside in Bancroft.

COAL QUESTION ANSWERED — One question puzzling Canadian householders at this particular time of the year is: "How can we keep warm and at the same time use less coal?" The Munitions and Supply Department point out that householders will keep warm on less coal if higher humidity is maintained in the house, and it's more healthful, too. The young housewife in the picture above is working towards that end by filling the humidifying pan in the hot air furnace with water. Potted plants are also good humidifiers, if they're kept well watered.

Lord Halifax Urges Unified Empire Defence Policies

TORONTO, Jan. 25—(CP).—Unified Empire policies for defence and foreign affairs—said last night by Lord Halifax to be essential to the strength of the British Empire in the future—may be achieved "by regular conferences of Dominion Prime Ministers," he said today at a press conference, but no definite plans have been made for such a system.

Asked by The Canadian Press whether a permanent Empire council on foreign affairs would be set up to give each Dominion a regular voice in the formation of British foreign policy, he answered: "I don't know."

(In London today, Deputy Prime Minister Attlee said that definite arrangements for a meeting of Dominion Prime Ministers within the next few months have been made. The exact purpose of the meeting was not announced.)

Lord Halifax, visiting here briefly during a break in his Ambassadorial duties in the United States, did not amplify his opinions on the possibility of an Empire Council of Foreign Affairs, except to say: "I know all the difficulties which would accompany such an idea."

No Constitutional Basis

Answering another question, he said he doubted there would be a constitutional basis for the closer Empire relations he recommends.

"That's not the way we generally work things," he said. "Constant improvement in air travel, and communications, will make possible more frequent conferences between leaders of the various Empire components. The important thing is free exchange of thought, in whatever way that can be attained. The outlook of each Dominion differs with its geographical position, and these differences must be adjusted—but without interfering with the basic independence of each Dominion.

Indicating there will be no immediate solution to the problem of making the "equality of status" of the British Dominions apply in fact, he said reaching that solution will be the "problem for the next 20 years."

He thought that if contacts between the Dominion and British home governments were sufficiently close, "the actions of the British Foreign Ministers would reflect the exchange of opinion." His idea for closer Empire relations he said was mainly "an idea I want you people to think about."

to mislead the people by introducing a measure that it could not implement?"

The Ontario government believed that a public health program should be financed and administered by the province. A hospitalization plan for Ontario, some details of which have been made public previously, was nearing completition by which it was hoped to provide "adequate general hospital facilities, suitably distributed throughout the province."

Residence Laws

In discussing rehabilitation, he said welfare assistance for war workers many drawn from outside provinces, would be seriously complicated after the war by residence regulations.

"I would urge that the Dominion government now clarify its program for the disbandment of these workers: Workers brought from other areas and to some extent from other provinces, frequently at federal expense, and who may need assistance other than that which might be provided by the questionable benefits of so-called unemployment insurance. The Federal government must make its provisions clear and be prepared to undertake its full duty in this regard."

Re-establishment of war veterans in civil life was of even greater concern. Convalescent and restraining centres, properly staffed and suitably situated, were necessary at once. "We must demand immediate implementation of this duty of the Federal government," said Dr. Vivian.

The Minister completed his reference to venereal diseases by saying that full details of steps taken to meet the situation will be released "in the next day or two." Meanwhile, he disclosed that every year of the war has seen an increase in the number of syphilis cases reported to the Ontario government.

In 1943 there had been an increase in veneral infections of more than 1,000 over 1942, bringing the 1943 total to more than 13,000. About 7,000 of these were syphilis cases and more than half of these had been acquired since the war started.

In Sweden in 1938, 14 persons for every 100,000 population had syphilis. In Norway between 1933 and 1939 the percentage inflicted was 24 of every 100,000 compared with Ontario's 1943 total of 175 with syphilis for every 100,000 population.

"We in Ontario . . . must be prepared to do our utmost in this appalling situation."

Dr. Vivian said a survey of the welfare department of Ontario, started last Aug. 25, showed that $45,587,221 was spent by the department in an average year. Full details of the survey would be published shortly.

Wesley War Workers Report On Year's Effort

The Wesley War Workers of North Smith have reported a year of great activity for a small group of women. The group raised during the year $646.53 and the expenditures totalled $466.18, leaving a balance of $180.35.

In the sewing section 21 dressing gowns, 25 ladies' toilet cases, 7 quilts, 30 hospital bed gowns, 37 ladies' nighties, 3 baby nighties, 12 diapers and 5 ladies' green blouses were completed.

At Easter nine boxes were sent to the boys serving in Canada. For Christmas 10 boxes went overseas and four to those in Canada.

The knitting turned in by the group was clasified as follows: 15 pairs of service socks, 12 pairs of seaman's socks, 12 pairs of gloves, 2 helmets, 5 V-neck sweaters, a long sleeved sweater, an aero cap, a pair of ankle socks. Four V-neck sweaters were also sent to the boys from the district who are serving and a number of pairs of socks.

guns which shelled Leningrad for two years now are in Russian hands.

Stormovik bombers were continuing to do great damage to the retreating columns, Red Star reported, adding that the Leningrad offensive had been probably the Stormoviks' most striking victory of the war.

Dispatches indicated increasing disorganization and panic among German forces. Numerous staff documents have been seized and sleek, powerful cars of high officers are lying overturned in the mud.

The government newspaper Izvestia declared that the Germans leaving Pushkin burned Catherine's Palace, built by Rastrelli, ater removing all its priceless furniture to Germany. The Alexander Palace also was razed.

Red Star said that back in Leningrad long columns of captives are marching down Frontanka street. There already is a large collection of 305-millimetre guns in the Alexandriskey Monument Square.

Germans Occupy Coastal Town

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(CP).—German troops have occupied the Croat coastal town of Senj, 35 miles southeast of Fiume, after fierce fighting in which Yugoslav Partisans forced the invaders to pay heavily in men and equipment, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced to-day.

Fall of Senj followed a furious battle over an 18-mile-long front between the coast and Otocac.

Tito's communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio and recorded by the Associated Press, reported heavy fighting continuing in the Doboj-Tuzla sector of Eastern Bosnia, with fighting raging in the streets of Tuzla. Earlier Yugoslav reports said the Partisans had captured the town of Gracanica and destroyed the Moboj-Tuzla railway line.

Action was also reported from Montenegro, where Partisans were battling a mixed force of Germans and Chetniks near the town of Danelovgrad.

MORE ABOUT— Empire Unity

sponsibility, there must also be unity of policy. I suggest that in the years of peace, it was a weakness, which we should try to cure, that the weight of decision on many problems of defence was not more widely shared."

Lord Halifax said that if, in the future, Britain is to play her part without assuming burdens greater than she can support, she must have with her in peace the same strength that has sustained her in war. "Not Great Britain only, but the British Commonwealth and Empire must be the fourth power upon which, under Providence, the peace of the world will henceforth depend...The unity of the Commonwealth is no mere British interest. So far from being an obstacle, it is a condition necessary to that working partnership with the United States, Russia and China to which we look. If we are to play our part in the preservation of peace, we can only play it as a commonwealth united, vital and coherent."

In the company of the United States, China and Russia, Britain, apart from the rest of the Commonwealth and Empire, could hardly claim equal partnership. Yet Western Europe as never before would look to her for leadership. She had been the one inviolate fortress of freedom in the west.

Influence Policy.

In the past the Dominions "had influenced, but had not been responsible for, the foreign policy of Great Britain." While the statute of Westminster assured to each Dominion complete self-government, it left unsolved "the more obstinate problems arising in the fields of foreign policy and defence."

As to the solution, there were two roads the Dominions might take. One was national isolation. "In 1939 almost every country—certainly almost every small country—was isolationist; and to-day the map of the world is strewn with the wreckage of small states.

There was a stronger and more compelling reason than that for choosing another road. The British Empire has proved to be a powerful and beneficient world-force. "We believe that without it the cause we uphold would have been lost long ago; and therefore that the remedy for the difficulties which I have tried to describe is not that we and you should draw apart, but that we should do everything in our power to fortify our partnership."

Premier Drew, after Lord Halifax had spoken, referred to tre address as "a very great speech which may well mark the turning point in the thinking of our people."

Expect Alllies To Invade Near Pescara

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 25 — (CP Cable) — The Nettuno landing south of Rome by the 5th Army troops may be followed by a new attack by the British 8th Army on the Adriatic coast to increase pressure on the German divisions holding the extreme southern sectors of the enemy's Italian line.

A giant two-way pincer movement from the Nettuno bridgehead and the Ortona-Artelli River sector on the Adriatic, where Canadians are still in the front with other divisions of the 8th Army, would put the Germans in the Cassino area and in the central mountains "on the spot."

Strong forces of both the 5th and 8th Armies facing the enemy in the interior of Italy are available to hit the Germans hard in any enemy withdrawal forced by these possible attacks on the flanks.

Now North of Rome

Future developments will depend on the success of the Nettuno bridgehead troops within the next few days, particularly in meeting the German counter-attack which seems inevitable.

On the Arielli River front Canadians are already nearly 30 miles north of Rome and if the Germans are forced to withdraw the troops from this sector to meet a new threat to Rome itself on the west coast, 8th Army forces on the Adriatic may find any advance on Pescara and the nearby town of Chieti much less stubbornly contested than previously.

These two towns have been the long-time goal of the 8th Army, and once they capture these places they will be on the main lateral road to Rome and could move down it with the ultimate aim of linking up with the Nettuno force and other troops swarming up from the south.

The Germans will not pull out of their present southern lines which form a great bulge from Nettuno to the Arielli River through Cassino and Castel Del Sangro unless the landing south of Rome has completely confused them and caught large forces in a pocket. But there is a possibility that it has, and the next few weeks will tell the story.

like miniature defence divisions with their own commanders. Presumably such groups have been drawn from several of the divisions facing the 5th Army.

Alexander On Job

There also were indications the Germans may bring some of their forces from northern Italy to the Rome area.

Headquarters disclosed that Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander of Allied forces in Italy, had personally directed the landing operations at Nettuno, and then landed himself to supervise the early operations ashore.

Morocco radio, quoting unverified German reports, said Littorio had been captured. This apparently referred to the town 12 miles due east of Nettuno.

The German communique claimed Allied attacks had been repulsed in southern Italy, and that three Allied destroyers and one merchantman had been sunk off Anzio, with three other vessels probably destroyed and 11 transports damaged.

Lost 50 Per Cent.

It now is known that the 90th Panzer Grenadiers were thrown into the Garigliano sector to support the German 94th Infantry Division, which took the brunt of the original British assault across the river and then charged in counter-blows. The 94th is estimated to have lost at least 50 per cent. of its combat strength in these battles.

Patrols were active on the 8th Army front and there was considerable mortar fire in the Adriatic coastal area held by Canadians. Numerous explosions were heard behind the Nazi lines, believed to be biastings to build new fortifications.

Weather curtailed some of the Allies' air operations in Italy yesterday, so heavy bombers struck into the Balkans, pounding the railway yards at Vrattsa near the Bulgarian capital of Sofia, and hitting Skoplje in Yugoslavia.

Despite bad weather, fighters and fighter bombers maintained a cover over convoys and the invasion beaches in Italy as well as roads behind the German lines.

A number of Nazi bombers attacking Allied shipping were shot down. Fifteen enemy planes were destroyed during the day, and 11 Allied craft were lost.

Japan Paying Severe Price

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 25 —(AP) — Flighting desperately to halt Allied air and sea bases, Japan is paying a steep price —more than 350 planes in 30 days over Rabaul alone —yet has failed to stop the devastating daily parade of bombers.

The enemy's Rabaul, New Britain, losses from December 23 to January 24 totalled 349 definite, plus many others probably downed, a South Pacific Headquarters spokesman said to-day. The Allied lost only 79. (In the calendar month of December, Japan lost 486 planese to 68 in the entire Pacific).

In two big raids alone, on Japanese basese at Wewak, New Guinea, and Rabaul, New Britain, the past week-end, the enemy lost 51 planes and 14 probables, an Allied communique said.

Australian ground forces 20 miles below Bogadjim, South of Madang, New Guinea, overran the shaggy ridge area in the Ramu Valley, the communique reported. They continued to advance, trapping some enemy units and capturing much enemy artillery and ammunition.

$13,800 Blaze Destroys Hardware Store

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 25 (ENS) — A $13,800 blaze swept through the hardware store of Frank L. Erskine and plumbing shop of Walter Madill on Queen street, shortly after midnight last night.

Nearly eight hours later two lines of hose were still working on the flames which were clinging stubbornly between the joists in a fourply first floor.

During the night Assistant Chief and Reeve Gordon Scriver, and fireman John Sabatino were gassed and partially overcome but were able after having received medical attention to resume their duties. Fireman Ken Jakin received a badly cut hand from glass and also required medical aid.

The alarm was turned in by W. W. Leonard, who was passing on his way home with Mrs. Leonard from an after-curling party at the home of T. W. Chaplin, when he noticed smoke pouring from the shed at the rear of the store at approximately 12.10 a.m. A general alarm brought out the full brigade under Chief Allan Clark, with the trucks, but by the time three lines of hose were in operation pumping from the river a block away, the tinderdry building was a mass of flames.

Starting apparently in a woodshed at the rear of Walter Madill's plumbing shop, the fire spread quickly into the Madill premises

George Bowen Given 3-Year-Sentence

COBOURG, Jan. 25.—(ENS). — George Bowen of Cobourg was sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary when he appeared for sentence before Magistrate R. B. Baxter yesterday on a charge of robbery with violence. He appeared last week for trial and pleaded guilty It was revealed at that time that on January 11 around 9 p.m. he entered the home of Frank Bowen, no relation, and forcibly extracted $10 from the old man's pocket, giving him back two when the robbery victim pleaded that it was all he had left to live on. Evidence was also given that he struck Frank Bowen on the fact with his fist, knocking him down.

Frank Bowen was recalled to the stand Monday and toll the court that he would be 79 years of age next August and that he had had a stroke five years ago.

"I was under the influence of liquor when it happened," the accused said, adding that he would like to get back to work.

Long Record.

Referring to Bowen's record, Magistrate Baxter pointed out that it started in 1929 and that he had receivel suspended sentence on three occasions before being sent to prison. In '1939 he was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary for shopbreaking and theft. Crown Attorney Harry Deyman told the court that the offence and the way it was committed on a sick man, along with his record, spoke for itself. However, Chief Carey had said that liquor was at the bottom of all his trouble, Mr. Deyman said.

"You have had 15 years in which to realize that liquor caused your trouble and you should have realized it by now and have stayed away from it. The sentence of this court is three years in penitentiary," stated the magistrate.

Nazi Bombers Upset Officers' Boast

LONDON, Jan. 25 —(CP Cable)— The December air raid on Allied shipping at Bari, Italy, knocked into a cocked hat an unwary saying of a high R.A.F. officer. He must still be blushing.

During an interview just outside Bari, this high-ranker told a group of Empire war correspondents that he would "consider it a personal insult if one German bomber escorted by 30 fighters came this far south."

Only a few minutes later a few Nazi bombers—without a fighter escort—began an attack on the Adriatic harbor, 150 miles south of the battlefront, that ended in destruction of 17 merchantmen.

The R.A.F. officer, who must remain unnamed, made his statement during a dissertation on waning German airpower in the Mediterranean area. His interview was granted on condition that he not be quoted directly .

Cottage Entered

COBOURG, Jan. 25.— (ENS).— The summer cottage of E. L. MacNacthan of Cobourg, was broken into some time within the past few days at Wrack Island in Rice Lake. An investigation was started by Provincial Constable Alex MacLeod, of Cobourg. The only thing apparently missing was a blanket. It is thought that someone might have gone through the ice and later broken into Mr. MacNachtan's house to get warm. If it was a straight case of breaking and entering, other untenanted cottages in the same district may have been broken into.

GORE'S LANDING, Jan. 25—(ENS)—The W.A. of St. George's met at the home of Mrs. R. J. Meggs with eight members present recently. Mrs. Cecil Thackeray, the president, conducted the opening service and letters were read from Rev. George Pattison of Fairview, Alta., expressing his thanks for the Christmas bale. Rev. Lloyd Delaney showed lantern slides on the growth of the church in the west, including several of the Columbia Coast Mission, and lectured on the various pictures. At the conclusion, the hostess served tea.

Rice Lake ice is stocking the ice-houses of Cobourg this year. Trucks have been busy all week taking in loads of first class ice. It is now about 24 inches thick and clear blue all the way through.

For the past two weeks, the attendance at the local school S.S. No. 16 has been cut in half through illness of the children. Flu is still prevalent in this vicinity.

Mrs. R. J. Meggs left on Tuesday for Toronto to attend the executive meeting of the Rural Trustees section O.E.A. on Friday.

Mrs. James Manly, Cobourg, is visting her son, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Manly.

At the afternoon service in St. George's on Sunday, Rev. Lloyd Delaney introduced colored slides to illustrate an address on the life of our Lord and the start of the church through the disciples. It was predominantly a children's service with all the smaller children present. This is the first in a series of 4 illustrated talks on this subject.

The Girl Guides will meet as usual on Thursday evening.

Masons Handle Maguire Funeral

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 25 — (ENS) — A large number of friends joined in paying final tribute to Carl Wilson Maguire, 39, whose funeral was held under Masonic auspices here Monday afternoon. A man of splendid christian principles and character, he made friends easily and enjoyed popularity wherever he went.

Born in Wingham, he came to Campbellford as an infant with his parents and spent most of his life here attending the public and high schools and on graduation going to Toronto where he was for several years as clerk with the Canadian National Express Company. From there he went in 1932 to the Trust and Guarantee Company, Toronto, and was employed with that firm for six years before he suffered a stroke from whose effects he never completely recovered, and for the past five years he had made his home with his father, Mr. S. A. Maguire.

Following in his father's footsteps, he was initiated in Golden Rule, A. F. & A. M. heer in 1929 and in Toronto transfered his membership to the Dufferin Lodge to which he still belonged at the time of his death. The late Mr. Maguire was a former officer of the Toronto lodge from which representatives came to the funeral. He is survived by his father, Mr. S. A. Maguire. His mother died about twenty-five years ago and two brothers, Fred and Harold also preceased him.

The funeral service was conducted from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ashton at 2.30 in the afternoon by Rev. G. N. Maxwell of St. John's United Church and interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The graveside ritual of the Masonic Order was conducted by J. A. Hodgins of Toronto, with the assistance of W. M. Heagle and a large representation from the local lodge.

The pall bearers, all members of the Lodge, were D. Maybee, Carl Johnston, F. R. Dennis, W. A. Kingston, W. H. Brady, L. J. Shillinglaw. Flower bearers were T. J. Craighead, H. M. Donald, Donald Keir, James Gay, Barnum and M. B. Sayers.

Jehovah Witness Is Remanded

COBOURG, Jan. 25 (ENS)—There was a gallery of about 25 Jehovah's Witnesses in police court when one of their number, Robert Sparks of Toronto, appeared Monday on two charges laid by the R.C.M.P. in connection with Selective Service regulations. At the request of defence counsel he was remanded for another week and bail was renewed.

Edward Hicks of Campbellford, charged with theft of $65 from the dwelling house of John Booth of Campbellford on September 26, 1943, was sentenced to one month in jail. Chief George Hardy of Campbellford testified that Hicks had blamed a man named Chard, now in the reformatory, as having participated with him in the theft and that the accused only got $10 out of the robbery. The chief stated that Chard, when interrogated at the reformatory, denied having had anything to do with it. However, Chard at one time stayed at the Booth house, stated Chief Hardy.

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman said that at the trial of Chard, it had appeared that Chard might have started Hicks on his career.

Charles S. Walt of Brighton was remanded until today when he appeared yesterday on a charge of breaking and entering Brintnell's shop in Brighton. Walt pleaded guilty.

Arthur Barr of 389 Boon avenue, Toronto, pleaded guilty to representing a forged cheque as being genuine and securing the signature of a local clergyman as a prelude to cashing it. The amount was $10. Barr gained the clergyman's confidence by giving the name of a Toronto clergyman, whom the local minister knew, as a reference before getting the cheque signed. Barr told the court that he would like to make restitution. He was remanded until January 31, at which time he will also appear on a charge of obtaining lodging in Cobourg under false pretenses.

Daniel Driscoll of Port Hope was remanded indefinitely for sentence on a charge of obtaining lodging by fraud. He made restitution.

Rotarians Plan Second Carnival

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 25 — (ENS) — So successful was the carnival sponsored by Rotarians at the arena recently that Bill Hogle in giving a review of the affair announced that his committee was already planning to hold another 'Young Campbellford Night' in three weeks time. Given at the request of President Stu Stuart, the report indicated the supervised hockey being provided for school pupils by the club was already having far reaching results in discipline at the schools and from the long range view point, in character building.

The enthusiasm of the club for the project is already being mirrored by citizens as a whole and Mr. Hogle stated a number of contributions had been made to this undertaking by non-members. He thanked the committee who had worked in connection with the affair and expressed special appreciation to School Principals E. H. Greig, C. S. Haig and Rev. J. P. Collins representative of St. Joseph's School, for their cooperation.

A report was given by the President who recommended formation of a post-war pile as something the Club could undertake. He thought some work along this line should be undertaken in the near future and suggested members study the plan being adopted by some other clubs.

MUSTARD POULTICES

GREAT HELP IN NURSING LITTLE KIDDIES

ORIGINALLY of Lancashire, England, Mrs. W. A. Potter, now of Swift Current, Saskatchewan, says that in her estimation, there is no household remedy that takes the place of mustard. She has used mustard in many ways to help combat various ailments among her own six children and always with good results.

Chest and Bronchial Colds

I have used mustard frequently," said Mrs. Potter, "to help relieve chest and bronchial colds in the case of adults, both men and women. These troubles can be very aggravating but I have always found that relief comes much more quickly if mustard poultices and foot baths are used. I can say quite definitely that the use of mustard helps to make all such troubles much less formidable." Mrs. Potter concluded by saying, "I would never think of being without a can of mustard in my home."

Always Buy Pure Mustard

No better proof of the fine medicinal properties of mustard exists than the fact that thousands of people like Mrs. Potter use it year after year with excellent results. Keep mustard in your home—always handy for foot baths, complete baths and mustard poultices or plasters to relieve chills, colds, or when you feel depressed by Grippe or some other winter infection. Use it to help relieve pains of Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Arthritis, Neuritis, over-tired muscles, etc. Call a doctor promptly if symptoms are serious.

Be sure that you get famous Keen's D.S.F. Mustard, made entirely from mustard seed of highest quality, and packed to preserve its uniform quality and full, medicinal strength. Sold by grocers and druggists everywhere.

The Strategy Of Division

We have not won the war yet, but we shall not lose it unless our hitherto astute leaders do something unbelievably stupid; they seem unlikely to do so. The war will not be lost for us by our fighting men; it is possible, however, that it might be lost by some of our amateur diplomats. The German strategy of division is busily at work, trying to stir up trouble between Russia and the Anglo-American alliance; we must take care that we do not fall for so old and obvious a trick.

Germany knows that she can only win the war by a fluke; she also knows that flukes sometimes happen, even when everything seems lost. Wherever the Germans are fighting now they are either in retreat or on the defensive; in spite of their boasting they have been out-generalled in Italy, and in Russia their situation grows more perilous with each day that passes. All that they can do now is hang on for as long as they can, hoping for a miracle. A falling-out between Russia and the western democracies would be such a miracle, and it might give Germany a chance to escape from a difficult situation with a minimum of loss; it would also enable her to say that she was not really defeated in the Second Great War. That must not happen; the German defeat must be so unequivocal that even the Germans recognize it for what it is.

The Germans would like us to believe that Russia will stop fighting when once she has driven the Germans out of her country; the Germans would like Russia to believe that Britain and the U.S. would make a separate peace and leave her in the lurch. Unfortunately there are people in the democracies who still hate Russia more than they hate Germany, and who are utterly unimpressed by the many evidences of friendship and good faith which the Russians have shown toward us. It is fair also to believe that there are some equally intransigent Russians who think that the evil democracies want to ruin Holy Russia and strip it of its hard-won political freedom. It is up to the rest of us to see that these elements in our countries are not allowed to upset the apple-cart; the only country to gain from the upset would be Germany.

Germany cannot win now by force of arms. She may still win if the United Nations fall out among themselves. We must take great care not to oblige our enemy in this respect.

Business Men In Public Affairs

Speaking recently in Toronto, Mr. Neil P. Peterson urged business and professional men to take a more active part in public affairs; he is reported to have said these words: "When business and professional men offer to serve in public office we will have practical and intelligent planning, replacing the crackpots, reformers and others who lately have made so much noise and so many threats against our democratic way of life". We agree with this in part, but we feel that Mr. Peterson's remarks need some careful interpretation.

At present the complaint is often heard that Parliament is filled with lawyers, teachers, clergymen and everything, in fact except business men. We should like to see more business men in Parliament, but we should not like to see all the lawyers, teachers and clergymen disappear from it. Nor are we ready to agree that lawyers, teachers and clergymen are less competent to have a voice in the government than are men engaged in wholesale or retail trade. As anyone who is in business knows, many a man is a "business men" who is not in the least business-like; it has been truly said that mediocrity can conceal itself in business more readily than anywhere else. We do not want mediocrities seeking office on the ground that they are business men. But we could very well absorb some of the brains and initiative which many of the best sort of business men possess in our local, provincial and Dominion governments.

We are not impressed with the way in which Mr. Peterson lumps crackpots and reformers together. We need reformers in government because we badly need reforms in many fields. And as for crackpots, are there no crackpots among business men?

We have a great respect for business men, but we do not include in that respect every man who happens to be in business. The continued activity of the bankruptcy courts and the public receiver shows that many men in business cannot even run their own affairs, let alone those of the city, the province or the country. But we are very much in favour of real men of business, who have a sense of responsibility to the country and a broad view of affairs, seeking public office.

Is This Spring?

The Chinese say that Spring is sooner recognized by plants than by men. It may be so. Certainly the pussy-willows are budding at Campbellford, and if a pussy-willow doesn't show when Spring has come, then who does? Nor are the pussy-willows alone in their opinion; muskrats may be seen playing on the ice of the Trent River; perhaps they think that the ice won't be there much longer. And the bear at the Filtration Plant is up and about; apparently he thinks that he has finished his winter sleep. The time has come for the human race to ask itself a question: is this Spring?

If it is, this has certainly been the shortest and mildest winter in many decades. Not long ago we published the opinion of a meteorological expert who said that February would be an unusually mild month, and that there would be no really cold weather after it; he said that the summer, too, would be fine, but that we might expect a normally hard winter next year. Certainly it looks at present as though this scientist's prediction would be borne out.

And if this is Spring, we might as well begin to enjoy it.

All Eyes On Quebec

The Quebec Legislature has embarked on a significant session. Two matters of the utmost interest to Canada are coming up for discussion, and all eyes will be turned toward Quebec. The Provincial Government proposes to establish a provincial hydro system, which will involve expropriation of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Corporation, and it desires to establish a Labour Relations Board. What happens in both these matters will have significance for the whole Dominion.

The setting up of a provincial hydro system has been declared "the only solution for the problem of lower rates and rural electrification"; although the Montreal utilities corporation which faces expropriation has not found many partisans the general feeling in the Province respecting this move is reported to be hostile. If one unpopular corporation is expropriated a precedent has been established which might lead to the expropriation of popular and eminently well-run corporations; there are great numbers of people in Quebec who do not believe that government control of services is necessarily any better than private control, and the majority in the Quebec House may expect a tussle on this issue.

Regarding the matter of a Labour Relations Board the Quebec Government finds itself in a somewhat anomolous position. It does not want any more strikes of firemen and policemen, but in order to prevent them it must snatch back certain concessions which it has already made. The Government wants to ban certain strikes and certain unions, and it is suffering the embarrassments of any legislative body which decides to take a strong stand too late in the day. But the people of Quebec want a showdown; they want to know whether their Province is going to be run by its elected representatives or by union officials. The Government, which has not shown itself strong in this matter, has to answer that difficult question.

The answer which it gives will be important to all Canada. We shall watch with the keenest interest the deliberations of the Quebec Legislature. We might wish that these matters were in hands which had shown themselves stronger in the immediate past.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The war boom has shown one thing clearly: a lot of people don't have to have much money before they have more money than sense.

We see that slot machines are now being turned into booby traps for the enemy. They have been successful enough in trapping boobies on the home front.

A medical Member in the British House of Commons has declared that whiskey will not cure a cold. Of course not, but until someone discovers something which really will cure a cold whiskey will continue to be one of the most popular disappointments.

Heart Throbs And Melodies

By HORACE REYNOLDS
(In the Christian Science Monitor)

A PLEASANT custom of the 1840's and 1850's was to bind up in a quarto volume one's personal selection from the sheet music of the day. Usually, these books were bound in quarter black leather, with the word music tooled in gold on the spine and the selector's name tooled in gold on the top. I have two of such volumes on my music shelves. One belonged to a gentleman, S. C. Cutting, of Green River, Vermont; the other to a lady, Miss Kate M. Burt, of Ithaca, New York. Taken together, they give us a glance into the music sung and played by our grandmothers and grandfathers in the middle of the last century.

IN those years, everybody was singing the songs of the new black-face minstrelsy. Mr. Cutting was partial to the sentimental Lucy Neal and Miss Burt favored Rosa Lee written and composed expressly for the Ethiopian Serenaders and sung by them with rapturious applause at the St. James Theatre, London. In various types, that blurb tells the story of American minstrelsy's successful invasion of London. The first minstrel troupe, the Virginia Minstrels, opened in London in May, 1843, a little over three months after their first appearance in New York; and in January, 1846, the Ethiopian Serenaders made a great success in London with Lucy Neal and Rosa Lee. Miss Burt sang E. P. Christy's Farewell Ladies, a song with the wonderful Sarony and Major lithograph for Christy's Melodies. Between two black cherubs at the top, playing banjo and fiddle, and two more at the bottom playing bones and tambourine, are photographs of E. P. Christy and George Christy, the star of the troupe. He was the female impersonator of the show. George (his real name was George Harrington) was the original Lucy Long. It's a joy-spreading sight to see him struttin' in hoop skirt, tiny parasol, and frilled pantalettes.

THE success of Take-your-time-Miss Lucy Long and Rosa Lee from Tennessee called forth a whole sisterhood of cherished maidens, some colored some white, whose stories our grandparents warbled soulfully at the old square piano. These maidens with the cretic names—Mary Blane, Nancy Till, Nelly Bly, Ella Ree—were born usually in either Tennessee or Louisiana and, if colored, they were sold down-river by some cruel slave trader and thus separated from the sad singers of these lays. Evidently, they were not only popular songs, but effective anti-slavery propaganda. For all their current popularity—they were all the rage in the New York and London of the 1850's, sung and whistled everywhere—Nelly Gray, she who went from the old Kentucky shore, is the only one which has survived in the memory of the singing public.

THE two collections complement, one the other, Mr. Cutting went in for such comic songs as The Umbrella Courtship, such sea-goin' masculinities as I'm Afloat! and Life on the Ocean Wave. Miss Burt sang such songs of sentiment and sadness as William R. Dempster's The Lonely Aul Wife and the smugly moral Love Can Ne'er Survive Esteem. She even cut loose on an occasional operatic air by Meyerbeer or Rossini. Miss Burt was also a pianist and played The Atlantic Wave Waltz, the American Belle Schottisch, the Home Quick Step, the Cayuga Polka, and the Lexington Rondon. She also favored Yankee Doodle, with variations, and the rollocking Pop Goes the Weasel:

Ob all de dance dat ebber was plann'd
To galvanize de heel and de hand,
Dar's none dat moves so gay and grand
As "Pop goes de Weasel."

BOTH books are full of the flavor of the days when the Spanish guitar strummed, and tailed coats and tilted hoops swirled, to the polka and the schottisch. The Irish emigration speaks in the Farewell Schottisch with a lithograph of an Irish peasant family saying a sad farewell to their cottage; the popularity of Dickens in Dora and Agnes from David Copperfield and Florence from Dombey. Yankee chauvinism shouts in Uncle Sam's Farm. "Wait for the wagon and we'll all take a ride," must have rung out on many a hayride in the days when Jenny Lind trilled the country to its feet. And the young people of Uncle Sam's Farm danced gayly to the new Medley Quick Step introducing the popular airs of Rosa Lee, Uncle Ned and Mark Blane as played by City and Country Bands. Sam Brown of Baltimore sings in the new go-ahead American language just emerging from its most ebulliently fruitful decades. He "makes tracks" and "cuts stick against the grain" while Mr. Snooks knocks things "higher'n a kite" and "does the job up brown." The people's love of the Stephen Foster songs is attested by the appearance, in 1853, of Young Folks at Home. The original song is here, too, in its twentieth edition, written and composed by E. P. Christy. We know better than that now. In collections like these, we turn the pages of the Foster songs as his contemporaries saw them. Here, for instance, is Old Uncle Ned written and composed for Wm. Roark of the Sable Harmonists by S. C. Foster of Cincinnati. The whole is ornamented with a Palmer lithograph of the original Sable Harmonists, the best band of singers in the United States. Uncle Ned and the Old Black Joe which, for some reason, the English rechristened Poor Old Joe—certainly they are two of the immortal worthies of American song.

THE Boston that Dickens visited and Dana sailed from is well illustrated. The cover of T. G. Booth's Go It While You're Young, a song which gave wide currency to a phrase of American origin, shows a good view of Keith's Music Publishing House and the adjoining Olympic Theatre in Court Street in 1845. To match this, Miss Burt's quarto boasts three favorite melodies from the Chinese spectacle of Aladdin or the Wonderful Lamp, each with a lithograph of the Boston Museum and King's Chapel in the Tremont Street of 1847. As seems to have been the custom in assembling these books, these pictorial pieces were placed up near the front. And collectors tell me that some singers used to color their favorite lithographs. One can well understand why these volumes are sought out and cherished. They are full of all sorts of interest for those curious about what these United States were like, in the days when darkies danced the juba and Ethiopian melodies were all the rage.

Powder In War Plants

Government officials rule that women workers at a large American war plant can take five minutes off bfeore lunch and the end of their shift to powder their noses. Approval or no, they would do so anyway.—Hamilton Spectator.

LET'S TAKE A LOOK AT THE RECORD!

On A Swedish Toboggan

THE New Year did not always bring ice and snow. In our mild and southern Skaane most of the winter was snowless, or if any snow did lie on the ground, the wind would come over the plain and sweep it away. For some few weeks, however, there was usually real winter weather. Then we enjoyed it all the more intensely. The "coasting-hill" teemed with toboggans of all kinds. There were the big, quaintly old-fashioned one, which Pap had used in his childhood at Charlottenlund, and the silly toboggan I had received as a Christmas present from Grandmother. It had an upholstered velvet seat and a carved back. I was rather ashamed of it and preferred to exchange it for the substantial sleighs of the Alabodarna boys....

The hill resounded with our shouts of "Look out!" The toboggan slide began in our park and ended among their cottages and, if luck was good, one could continue right out on the sea. But as a rule the ice was not strong enough there, and then we made a skating rink in the middle of our own courtyard, with low snow walls around it. It was flushed with a hose in the evening, and on some of our birthdays we arranged ice fetes there, with organ-grinders, snowball lanterns and homemade torches.

Like all children we made snow fortresses where wild snowball fights took place. Once we built a whole church with a high tower and arched vault over the door and windows....

One year—I think about 1890—we had a really severe winter. The snow lay some six feet deep and we walked on its surface among the emerging brush-tops. Then we didn't build huts, but dug them, with steps and benches at the bottom—it was most remarkable. The whole of the Sound was frozen. People walked over its surface like so many little black ants, and sledge parties plied between Denmark and Skaane....

When the ice began to melt, it was still more wonderful. Then icebergs, big and small, came sailing from the north in long processions. They had the wierdest shapes—like double sugar-tops or fantastic phantom ships. All through the night the fog horns blew—my brothers thought they were polar bears howling on the icebergs. That winter was one of our great and unforgettable memories.—From "In the Beginning Was the Light," by Amelie Posse-Brazdova, translated from the Swedish by Grenville Grove. (New York: Dutton.)

Good Manners

K. M. H. IN THE WINNIPEG FREE PRESS

BRANDON schools, for the past two years, have had a course in good manners. It is not, we are sure, that Brandon needs that instruction particularly, but because Superintendent Neelin and the staff have come to the conclusion that by so doing, they will be putting into the hands of their pupils tools which will later stand them in good stead.

It need not be argued that such instruction should begin and continue at home, and beyond a doubt it is a subject upon which many parents, mothers at least, spend anxious thought and much nerve force. Moreover, we have yet to see the school-room where attempts are not made from the very first day the funny little beginners start their earnest scholastic endeavours towards, if not the glass of fashion, then the mould of form.

It is a long road. So far as our experience goes of Winnipeg children, we have more often than not, many times more often, been cheered by their display of good manners, and this not when under the eye of their teachers. Over and over again we have seen ball games in the school yard stopped while some citizen, not so spry as he or she once was, ambled across the diamond. (Not good manners, we thought, of the elderly one, but school yards, especially when a game is in progress, apparently have a fascination for most people.)

Again and again we have noted children stop their play in the streets to shepherd some small party who longed to join them. Indeed the care which older children in this town take of the little tykes is a rather lovely thing to see.

Recently we heard a discussion on the manners of students on the bus going to the Fort Garry campus. It was related that if any student gets up and gives his place to an older person or to one of the co-eds, a derisive chorus arises, "Sucker". One of the members of the discussion group said, "Well, perhaps the students think it is perfectly fair to keep their places. Manners may be changing".

Not necessarily. Boors we have always with us, and according to this testimony, they seem rather plentiful, certainly vocal, on the University bus. The underlying rule of good manners, consideration for others, never changes. It is written on tables of stone.

Rules of etiquette change. That is what makes old etiquette books such priceless reading. Nevertheless in this age, as in all ages, the breaking of a rule of etiquette may cause more anguish than a moral slip, more indeed than in all reasonableness it should. The monarch of the story who drank the water in his finger bowl to cover that action on the part of one of his guests, showed good manners, but we doubt if that would soothe the other's breast.

If Brandon can get its courtesy course over to its students, it will be doing for them something out of all proportion to the time and effort involved. Wasn't it Emerson who remarked, "Your manners are always under examination and by committees little suspected—a police in citizen's clothes—but are awarding or denying you very high prizes when you least think of them".

Wheeler's Help

It is a bit discouraging when there are definite signs of an impending assault upon the western shores of the continent of Europe, to have Senator Burton Wheeler of Montana pop up with the notice that the British had better supply fifty per cent of the army of invasion or there will be as much trouble as he and others of his way of thinking can make for them. If at this stage of the war, when all the parties to the great task of defeating the Axis powers are putting all their power into the common pool, Senator Wheeler thinks it timely, proper and expedient or politically advantageous to question the bona fides of one of the Allies, it suggests an unregarding or uncontrollable hostility which only awaits an opportunity to express itself in some form of international sabotage.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Paper Collars

One of the greatest problems confronting a Merchant Navy friend of mine is what he describes as an ever-mounting pile of laundry. Each time he returns from a sea journey he is laden with soiled linen. Collars are his principal difficulty, but recently he has overcome it by using neckware of stiff paper. Incidentally, his last letter home contained the following: "I must apologize for the soiled appearance of this notepaper. I could find no paper on board—and am writing on one of the collars I have used."—Belfast News-Letter.

War Makes Us Healthy

The health of Canadians is better today than it has been for many years, according to the records of the national health department. Four and a half years of war have improved the Canadian constitution. This despite the shortage of doctors and nurses, a shortage extremely grave in many parts of the country.

The chief reason for better health, no doubt, is better diet, which is due to improved living standards. Also, through the medical programs of the fighting forces and through a new interest in health among all governments, Canada has become more aware of general health problems.—Sudbury Star.

Nothing To It

O give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good: for his mercy endureth for ever. (Ps. 136: 1.)

I will worship toward thy holy temple, and praise thy name for they lovingkindness and for they truth: for thou hast magnified thy word above all thy name. (Ps. 138: 2.)

Because thy lovingkindness is better than life, my lips shall praise thee. (Ps. 63: 3.)

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever. (Ps. 23: 1-6.)

In Some Ways, We're Different

A recent poll of theatre managers in Canada and the United States tended to support convictions many of us have held for some time and convictions on which businessmen constantly act. The poll was taken by the Motion Picture Herald, and quizzed exhibitors, not the movie-going public, on which stars were the most popular. Here is the ranking of the first ten stars in Canada and the United States:

	Canadian	U.S.
1	Greer Garson	Betty Grable
2	Gary Cooper	Bob Hope
3	Betty Grable	Abbott & Costello
4	Bob Hope	Bing Crosby
5	Abbott & Costello	Gary Cooper
6	James Cagney	Greer Garson
7	Walter Pigeon	Humphrey Bogart
8	Bette Davis	James Cagney
9	Bing Crosby	Mickey Rooney
10	Humphrey Bogart	Clark Gable

Canadian and American movie goers are in substantial agreement but there are striking differences. At the top of the Canadian list are two pretty solid dramatic performers, Garson and Cooper and both have recently appeared in pictures of war, patriotism, etc. Mickey Rooney doesn't rate in the Canadian first ten, nor does Clark Gable. Canadians have substituted for these two the more heavily dramatic Bette Davis and Walter Pigeon.—Financial Post.

Heroes and Red Tape

Another potential Canadian war hero has come to light in Yugoslavia. Major William Jones, of Toronto, is reported from Cairo to be a liaison officer with Marshal Tito's forces, whose exploits have led the Nazis to place a high price on his head.

A white-haired veteran of the last war, who is more than fifty years old, Major Jones returned to active service with the British Army by dint of perseverance and initiative. Rejected by the Canadian Army because he had only one eye, he worked his way overseas as a seaman, volunteered as a private and soon worked up to a commission. In the last war he was wounded five times and awarded the D.S.O. and Bar.

Major Jones' experiences here call to mind those of Flt.-Lt. George Beurling, D.S.O., D.F.C., D.F.M. and Bar, eminent Canadian flyer, who was rejected by the Canadian Air Force for lack of education, worked his way over to England and became a world hero in the skies over Malta.

Such cases, which are exceptional, are not pointed out in criticism of service entrance regulations in Canada, but rather to illustrate a point. Do they not show that in the type of total war in which we are engaged a man's usefulness to his country is measured in terms of courage and ability, rather than by red tape standards of education and physical stature?—Montreal Gazette.

Labor Threatens Strike For More Beer

WINDSOR, Jan. 25— (CP) — Labor's protest against present restrictions on beer consumption may take the form of a mass stoppage of work across Ontario, Henry G. Rhodes, district representative for the Canadian Congress of Labor, said to-day. His declaration followed the regular monthly meeting of the Congress here last night.

Mr. Rhodes said the "alleged beer shortage" evoked the "hottest" discussion of the evening, at the meeting of representatives of all C.I.O. and C.C.L. Unions in the city.

"The Council," Mr. Rhodes said, "is strongly considering the advisability of mass action against the present regulations."

Asked regarding the meaning of the phrase "mass action," Mr. Rhodes interpreted it as meaning "a mass stoppage of work across the Province of Ontario."

Mr. Rhodes said resolutions protesting the beer regulations had gone out to all labor councils in Ontario. Petitions have also gone out from Windsor to be presented to Prime Minister King protesting the present beer regulations, he said.

Reports to the meeting he said were that "every hotel in Windsor was closed by 5.15 p.m. and hotels along the Drouillard Road were closed by 1.15 p.m."

"It was also stated," he continued, "that thousands of people are going across the river to the United States) to beer gardens where they are able to buy beer shipped from this side of the river at 24 cents a bottle while the price in some hotels here is 25 cents a bottle."

He said further that "information was given the council that some breweries here are shipping as much as 7,000 cases of beer a month across the river to the United States."

Welfare $16,449, $4,341 Less Than In 1942

Disbursement of direct relief in Peterborough last year amounted to $16,449.48, which was $4,341.92 less than in 1942, as outlined by A. G. Metheral, welfare officer, in his review to the Welfare Committee of the council which he said could not be exact and complete until all the returns for 1943 were compiled and audited.

"The province participates on the basis of 50% of total cost of provisions, fuel, clothing, rent and medical attendance, leaving the city's share of the total cost about $10,906.51.

The average number of persons receiving assistance monthly last year was 95, compared with the monthly average of 153 for the previous year. The peak last year was 140 persons in January.

80 On Relief List

As of December 31, 1943, relief issues were for 80 persons. These were made up of 29 persons classified as single, but in most cases were spouses of old age pensioners; others widows or widowers not old enough for pension, but for whom we have medical certificates stating that they are unable to work; 12 families with 39 dependents, three of these families being Mothers' Allowance beneficiaries receiving fuel assistance; the nine others were families where the dependents are incapacitated, deserted wives, and so on.

The $53 spent on Christmas cheer, replacing the usual baskets, was greatly appreciated by the recipients. The names as in previous years were sent out to the churches with the request that these people be remembered.

The department collected $35.28 for relief issued but chargeable to Burleigh-Anstruther townships.

Vouchers and cheques issued during the year in number were as follows: For provisions and clothing 638; provisions 82; fuel 397; rent 269; medical 594; ambulance and funeral 20; hospital indigents 83; indigents refused 13; new registrations 28. Inspections and investigations of homes in welfare cases were 406.

We administered, for a period, two cheques at the special request of the Dependents' Allowance and Veterans Allowance Board. The Dependents Allowance cheque for a seven month period amounted to $1,086; the Veterans' Allowance for four months $140. These were problem families or we would not have been asked to administer their cheques. We found employment for the Veteran, and the Children's Aid Society took over the children of the Dependents' Allowance case, thus relieving us of our duties in this connection.

Grants of eight old age pensions, two mothers' allowances, one blind pension, one veteran's allowance and one widow's veterans' allowance pension removed 19 persons from the welfare rolls.

.29% of Population

At the end of September the population of the city was 28,005; and the percentage in receipt of welfare at the end of the year was .29%.

There were 52 cheques, amounting to $390 given out from this office from the Foley Estate Trust Fund.

During the year 96 investigations were made as to residence and financial circumstances of persons who were admitted to hospitals. Of that number 13 were refused, and considered either able to pay their own accounts or were not residents of this municipality. In some cases we thought it advisable to meet the initial payment and collect the amount of the accounts after the patients returned to work. Through this source we collected $131.09 during the year.

Cost of hospitalization in the two local hospitals in 1942 was $4,902.21 and last year $4,763.58, a decrease of $138.63 for last year.

Of the $4,763.58 spent last year, $4,332.78 covered indigent cases not receiving relief assistance, but needed help for hospital care, mostly old age pensioners."

The department paid $220 to a woman (rent cash) for 11 months for the care of her brother-in-law, an old age pensioner and bed patient needing constant care who would otherwise have been a hospital patient. This meant a saving of $127.

After-care to patients discharged from sanatoriums and unable to work amounted to $204. For pneumothorax treatment to 10 ex-sanatorium patients the department paid $495. "These accounts are submitted to the provincial Department of Health, quarterly, and we are reimbursed for the amounts.

Applications for pensions were: old age 52; mothers' allowances 14; blind 3. The number of applications refused were: old age 4; mothers' allowance 3.

During the year the Commission saw fit to suspend or cancel 22 old age pensions and 12 mothers' allowances.

61 O.A.P. Died

Nine beneficiaries of mothers' allowances had their allowances reduced. Sixty-one old age pensioners were removed from the rolls by death.

"It is interesting to note that 67 old age pensioners and 11 mothers' allowance beneficiaries moved into the city during the year, with only 35 removals. It leaves room for thought as to whether it might be advisable to apply for legislation asking that, for hospital purposes, the residence of an old age pensioner be deemed to be that municipality in which he was a resident when he made application for pension."

Mr. Metheral's report also covers plumbing inspection duties, emergency fuel activities, and acknowledges co-operation from the city hall staff, Miss R. Young and her assistants of the Children's Aid Society, and Dr. R. A. Kelly and other officials of the health department. "We have found them grand folk to work with."

The report was recently received by the welfare committee of which Alderman Glover is chairman.

Son Of A. Eden Training At Edmonton

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON, Jan. 25 —(CP) — Lac. Simon Eden, 19-year-old son of Britain's foreign secretary, sprawled his six-foot body on a divan at the civilian-operated No. 2 air observers' school canteen here last night and parried questions ranging from his views on slang to his famous dad. And he did it with the aplomb of a budding diplomat.

The young airman, who bears a striking resemblance to his father, tactfully avoided "delicate" questions with a quick, easy smile and a slight nodding of the head.

He outlined his ambitions as "to conclude his course as navigator here, get back to Britain and then fly over Germany in a bomber, "especially Berlin"; to continue his studies at Oxford University after the war, see the Rockies and Ottawa and then enter the diplomatic service.

To Be Diplomat.

Politics he said, "has a fascination for me. I like travelling and the diplomatic service is where you get it." His father approves of the idea "on his own experiences," he added.

Simon registered and received his number in August, 1942, with the R.A.F. He was on deferred service until March, 1943, and trained until the end of September last year. He came to Canada last October and has been stationed at Moncton, Regina, Winnipeg and Edmonton. He has been in Edmonton about two weeks.

"I joined the R.A.F. because of two things. When I was a young fellow, between the ages of nine and 13, I was at school two miles from an airdrome and I also watched the Battle of Britain from a front seat." His "front seat," he explained, was on the south coast, which he described as "hell's corner."

Likes The Girls.

He hasn't any ideas about marriage, and of Canadian girls he said: "I've met a few and they seem a little more high-spirited than the English girls. They dress better and mature faster than the English girls."

His views on miscellaneous subjects:

Slang: "It's rather tough not to pick it up isn't it? But I certainly wouldn't adopt it."

Canadians: "I like Canadians very much. I'm surprised at the number of people in Canada who are English or whose fathers and mothers are English."

Finances: "I'm on my own. Dad doesn't send me a penny. My pay is about $50 a month and it just about works out."

Newspapers: "I like Canadian newspapers because it's nice to see 12 and 14 pages again after reading four-page British newspapers. The Canadian papers are more sensational. but I enjoy reading them."

German Losses Soar In Balkans

LONDON, Jan. 25 (AP)—Yugoslav Partisan headquarters announced today the Germans were recklessly throwing men and materials into a costly and bloody bid for Senj, a Croat coastal town 35 miles south of Fiume.

Marshal Josip Broz' (Tito's) broadcast communique said heavy losses were being inflicted upon the invader along an 18-mile front between Senj and Otocac.

The Hungarian News Agency, in a broadcast heard by Reuters, quoted a Zagreb announcement that Senj already had been occupied by German and Croat troops and that mopping-up operations had been completed on Hvar island farther down the coast.

The Yugoslav bulletin reported heavy fighting continues in western Bosnia while street fighting is raging at Tuzla in eastern Bosnia. Occupation of Gracanica and destruction of a rail lines by the Yugoslav troops also were announced.

New Air Transport Service Speeds Soldiers' Mail

Written for The Canadian Press by PO. Fred Jackson, R.C.A.F. Public Relations Officer.

LONDON, Jan. 25 (CP)—Inauguration of its new air mail transport service marks a new era and a major step forward by the Royal Canadian Air Force.

It means a further branching out of the already busy and efficient R.C.A.F. transport command under the command of Wing Cmdr. R. L. Leigh, a unit that has been doing a terrific amount of work behind the scenes.

The fleet of six Flying Fortresses that is carrying the mail from Canada to the British Isles and from there to the various theatres of war is filling a big gap in the important matter of getting mail to the boys as speedily as modern inventions will permit. Under the command of Wing Cmdr. R. B. Middleton, D.F.C., the squadron has the honor of operating the first time an R.C.A.F. air mail service picking up and delivering mail from the folks back home to our soldiers and airmen on the fighting fronts.

Was Hit or Miss.

Canadian air mail hitherto had lived a sort of hit-and-miss existence.

The Canadian postal corps, which is the organization directly concerned with Canadian mail and which the R.C.A.F. and army personnel under its wing is directly charged with the responsibility of directing the flow of all mail, had a major problem in air prior to the advent of the R.C.A.F. mail squadron.

Canadian air mail at first was split two ways. The R.A.F. transport command and the United States transport command commandeered all the Canadian business as far as air transport of letters was concerned. Both organizations took a share of the Canadian business, but it was a case of a few hundred pounds here and there. There wasn't always room for all mail.

Later the Trans-Canada Airways moved into the picture and relieved the congestion with a Lancaster that provided a once-a-week service. All of this helped but did not solve the problem.

Thus it is easy to see that the introduction of an exclusively Canadian air transport service operating a shuttle service across the Atlantic and on to the Far East was without a doubt the best Christmas present good old Kris Kringle, in the form of the R.C.A.F., could bring to the harassed and overworked postal corps.

Weeks have been lopped off the schedule by the new service.

Air mail letters are not the only beneficiaries of the scheme. Ordinary letters often find a place in the Fortresses, but here let a word of caution be inserted for the sake of the folks at home. Air mail gets the preference and the others get space IF there is room.

Lorne Carr Tops In Scoring With 54 Points

MONTREAL, Jan. 25 (CP)—Five scoring points during the last week—four goals and an assist— have moved Toronto's Lorne Carr into top spot in the official National Hockey League scoring lists with a 54-point total.

Carr has a margin of a single point over Boston's Herbie Cain, who in turn is a point ahead of his linemate Bill Cowley. Cowley, who had a commanding lead in the race until he was injured more than two weeks ago, is still on the sidelines.

By way of comparison, a year ago today Carr was leading last season's race with 46 points, and Cowley was second with 45 while Cain was well down the list with 25. Elmer Lach of Canadiens is in fourth spot of this season's battle with 45 points, one more than Bill Mosienko of Chicago and two more than Doug Bentley of the Hawks and Gus Bodnar of Toronto.

Despite his long lay-off, Cowley is still tops in the assist department with 33, one ahead of Lach and two ahead of Buddy O'Connor of Canadiens. Cain leads the goal-getters with 28, three ahead of Carr.

McMahon of Canadiens just managed to remain the league's bad man, his total of 6 minutes in majors and minors leaving a single minute up on Harold Jackson of Detroit. Each picked up six minutes during the week.

U.T.S. Defeats U.C.C. For Fourth Straight

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—University of Toronto Schools chalked up their fourth straight win in O.H.A. "B" competition when they beat Upper Canada, 3-1, yesterday afternoon at Maple Leaf Gardens. The win gave U.T.S. a four-point edge of the second place De La Salle team.

Both teams battled furiously through a scoreless first period with the rival goalies, Dick Ball and Paul Hutzalak giving a grand display of goaltending. John Duff opened the scoring late in the second period when he poked the puck in the net ater a scramble. Don Bark drew an assist on the goal.

In the final period D. Bark tipped the puck in the net as he fell to the ice for the second U.T.S. goal at the 14:21 mark. Three minutes later Duff took a pass from Bark to score his second goal, to make the score 3-0. With 45 seconds to go Hugh Smythe spoiled Ball's well earned shutout when he fired the puck into the net on a three-cornered passing play with Dick Davidson and Gus Bolte.

D. Bark and Duff were the best U.T.S. forwards, while Bruce Campbell was effective on defence. Hugh Smythe and Bill Spence starred on the U.C.C. forward line. Martin Murphy was equally good on defense.

Syracuse Chiefs Top Double Plays

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—(AP). — That a tight defence isn't necessarily the main ingredient of a pennant-winning baseball team was demonstrated by Toronto which ran off with the 1943 flag but which made 24 more errors than second-place Newark, official International League averages released yesterday reveal.

The Leafs, with an 8½-game bulge over the Bears, erred 196 times in their 154 games, while Newark, which finished second, registered 171 miscues. That gave Toronto a fielding average of .967 and a tie for second with Montreal while Newark set the pace with a .970 aggregate.

Surprise of the statistics was the fourth-place finish in fielding of the Syracuse Chiefs, long-time addicts of a reliance on good play afield. The Chiefs, however, turned in two of the league's four triple plays during the campaign and completed 121 two-ply killings.

Led in Double Plays.

Toronto, despite its error total, led in double plays with 134, and also topped the cicuit in total chances with 5,962.

How the war-created manpower shortage affected the Shaughnessy loop is best shown in the second-base division where 27 different players were used. Only four played more than 100 games at the keystone sack, John Bell of Baltimore reporting for action in 153 of his team's 154 contests.

An all-star fielding team, using only players who participated in 100 or more games except for the pitcher and catcher, would line-up in this fashion:

R.C.A.F. Ban Applies To All Kind Of Sport

OTTAWA, Jan. 25 (CP)—An R.C.A.F. ban on teams and players participating in Canadian playoffs applies to all sports and not hockey alone, a headquarters spokesman said here today.

He said this meant that Pat Bay R.C.A.F. Gremlins in Vancouver would not be able to defend their Canadian senior men's basketball championship this year.

The army is following a similar program and the navy adopted modified restrictions, allowing teams to take part up to the inter-provincial stage of play.

The services playoff bans were announced within the last few weeks and were applied specifically to hockey.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Fred Martin of Jay's team in the City Five Pin League has been hurling challenges on behalf of his team to take on any five men bowlers in town for a match game each Saturday. In this connection a bowling fan has asked this column to suggest to Fred Martin that instead of challenging the male bowlers he should get together the five high average men in the City Loop, Bud Weese, Bob Dyer, Les Abraham, Jack Playford and himself and have them meet a picked team of women bowlers in a match game. It is suggested the five leaders in the Men's Loop should spot the girl rollers 800 to 1,200 pins on the total score for three games. There doesn't seem much doubt of the fact that such a game with the men handicapped to the extent suggested would provide an interesting argument. Some of the girls have been rolling consistently high scores all season and if the five best were chosen and pitted against the men with the advantage of say 1,000 pins handicap the female of the species might easily prove more deadly than the male. At least the women trundlers, if they hit their usual gait in such a match would make the high rollers of the men's loop really do their stuff to come home in front.

Red Dutton's suggestion of an official statistician for the National Hockey League and the adoption of a summary something along the lines used in baseball is interesting. There is no question about the value of a summary that might include such interesting data as the number of shots on goal made by each player, the name of the player who fired the winning goal and other statistics of the kind fancied by the fans. But before official sanction is given to the establishment of a summary we would suggest that some attention be given to the imporant point as to how the statistical record would be prepared. If it were to be left to the same haphazard method that is followed now in recording assists then a summary would be of little real value. The manner in which assists are handed out by some of the scorers around the N.H.L. circuit makes the whole thing a joke. In some cases a forward has only to be on the ice to get a point on a goal scored by his team and assists are dished out with such Santa Claus liberality that they do not mean a thing to hockey experts who really know the game. By all means bring along a scoring summary but let it be as reliable as the baseball box scores usually are and not in the same category as the present hockey scoring.

A Lucky Find For The Wings

Goalie Coo Dion is generally given credit for the great spurt that has been made by the Detroit Red Wings in recent games and as a matter of fact Jack Adams' team has not lost a game since the little goalie joined them. How the Wings happened to get hold of Dion is an interesting story that we will let Scribe Bill Walshe of the Kingston Whig-Standard tell as follows: "Jack Adams will probably be willing to bring his Detroit Red Wings to Kingston any time if he finds stars like Conny Dion as he did on his last visit. Little Conny Dion, who had been second-string goaler to Bas Bastien in Cornwall, was discharged from the army in Kingston and joined the Wings in an exhibition against the Frontenac Army. He was hot that night and his play gave Adams confidence in his ability so he was put in the nets the next night in Montreal and held Canadiens to a tie. Since then he has stared in three straight wins, the latest last night against Chicago when he was a top star. Dion was stationed in Kingston before his discharge but would not join the Kingston soldiers in senior play fearing the publicity that might cause concern at Ottawa army headquarters. On his former record as a goaler Dion blew hot and cold, being very good or below average, but so far with Detroit he has been good."

A little tobasco is beginning to creep into the Junior A hockey games and George Soup Campbell of the Oshawa Times-Gazette is feuding with a few of the scribes around the circuit. Here is an extract from Soup's column in which he first quotes a Galt commentator and then fires a few rounds himself: "Bill Herbert, of the Galt Reporter, wrote of Saturday's game with Oshawa: "The Galt boys took a lot of punishment from the heavier Generals but they were game to the last. Bill Ezinicki of the Generals plays a rough game of hockey with a lot of sly tricks being thrown in. Saturday night he kicked "Nellie" Podolsky with his skate during a pile up in the corner of the rink. Coach Murray said that down in Oshawa Ezinicki kicked Harry Kazarian on the shin with great force. The Galt coach is going to complain to the O.H.A. on these tactics and he is going to be backed up by the Brantford Lions." "Well, now, isn't that just dandy," says the Oshawa columnist in reply. "Needless to say the above statement is a gross injustice to the league's best hockey player. Bill Herbert neglects to point out that Ubriaco missed the following game in Port Colborne because the Galt centre ace charged Ezinicki but the latter happened to be looking (as usual) and ducked, with the result that Ubriaco was hurt. We agree that our Willie has a few sly tricks and he's an expert at looking after himself, particularly since he happens to be a regular "pocket hercules," but we have never seen him even attempt to kick at an opposing player with his skates and we vigorously declare that Bill Ezinicki is much too good a sportsman to do such a trick."

A Civic Sports Centre

The building of a civic sports centre to take care of all kinds of games is a project that has been under consideration in Kingston as a post-war scheme. Here is what Bill Walshe has to say about the matter in his Kingston sport column: "Directors of the Kingston Frontenac Army hockey team, about eight in number, who have directed the financing and business of Kingston in senior hockey, met last night and officially ended the season. Efforts were made to carry on after the ban ordered by the army keeping soldiers out of organized play but after repeated requests were ignored for permission to play exhibition games it was decided to drop out of senior play for the season and offer assistance to the Kingston Vics in their O.H.A. junior B play. The season, although stopped at the mid-way mark when reaching the profit stage, was considered a financial success and the best hockey played in Kingston in many years. The season provided evidence that Kingston fans will pay the price for good hockey and emphasized the urgent need for a larger and modern arena. Directors of the hockey executive discussed the building of a civic sports centre as a post war construction job and inquiries will be made into Government plans for building after the war. Leaders of various sports organizations will be interviewed regarding a big civic sports centre that would accommodate hockey, baseball, track and field. tennis, lawn bowling, horse racing and other athletics, with the Fair Grounds as the most practical location."

There is one thing to be said for Pick Hines' Toronto Navy team. The Sailors certainly battle to the last ditch. Riddled by drafts which took away some of the club's outstanding players the Navy outfit lacks the reserve power to cope with the strong St. Catharines Saints and Hamilton Majors but in spite of that handicap can be counted to fight through to the end. The Sailors clashed with St. Catharines in Toronto last night and went down to defeat 11 to 7, quite a beating, but the scoring summary shows that the last four goals of the contest were scored by the losers. In other words after being down 11 to 3 and made to look very bad the boys in the blue of the Navy came back with a fighting finish to score four markers in a row. At that of course the St. Catharines' margin of victory would have been larger if it had not been for a dazzling display of goal-keeping by Red Gilbert in the Navy nets.

FIVE OF A KIND—The Culligan sisters of Waterloo, Ont., are setting some kind of a record for one-family representation in the forces. All five of them, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Culligan, 112 Albert Street, Waterloo, are members of the R.C.A.F. Women's Division. Recently they all got home for a short spell of leave together, and here they are lined up for the camera. Left to right: Carol, Olive, Erma, Pearl and Ruby. And just to complete the family record, their brother Carl is a member of the United States Army Air Forces.

Brandino Wins Defeats Demers

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 25—(CP)—Patsy Brandino, lightweight member of the fighting family team of Hamilton, Ont., upheld the family honor at the Rhode Island Auditorium here last night by outpointing Pat Demers of Brockton, Mass., as handily as he had done in a previous meeting.

Patsy's triumph, in the feature 10-rounder of the night's card, saved the day for the Brandino family because Tony, middeweight member of the firm had suffered his first pro dfeat in a preliminary six-rounder at the hands of Jackie Collins of Boston. Collins, who scaled 160 pounds to Brandino's 151½, gained a split-decision verdict over the Hamilton boy.

Winner over Demers by means of a thumping body attack from in close when they first met here a couple of weeks ago. Patsy Brandino employed similar tactics to punch out a virtually one-sided triumph in last night's return tussle. Brandino had winning margins in eight of the 10 rounds.

Brandino weighed 138½, Demers 134¾.

Manslaughter Charge Hearing Continues

ST. JOHN'S, Que., Jan. 25 (CP)—Dr. J. M. Roussel, Montreal medicolegal expert, Monday said at a preliminary hearing into the case of Pte. Johnny Greco, former Montreal boxer, charged with manslaughter, that several pieces of a soldier's uniform found on the radiator grill of a car driven by Greco "compared exactly" with the uniform of Pte. Romeo Dagenais of Montreal, whose battered body was found on a nearby highway last week.

Greco was charged with manslaughter and hit-and-run driving after a coroner's jury had found him criminally responsible for the death of Dagenais.

The hearing is continuing.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 —(AP)—The Phillies are coming up with a real double-no-hit pitcher this spring—but not just like Johnny Vander Meer....He's Albert (Stumpy) Verdelle, who pitched two consecutive no-hitters for Bordentown (N.J.) Military Institute a few years ago and who compiled quite a record for Fort Dix before he was discharged because of a bad leg.

CURLING NOTES

By HERB MARTIN

After a lay-off for four days the boys picked up the schedule games last evening, but for how long? Thats another question. As far as curling is concerned the weather does not look any too good.

It was impossible to get the centre ices in shape, so the boys play a double-header on the outside ices.. Considering the condition of the ice the games were fair, but judging by the scores handed in, they were somewhat one-sided.

Now about to-night— we'll just have to wait and see.

In the ladies' section Mrs. V. Selkirk's rink is now well out in front and looks to have a decided edge. However, as their schedule is only half over, a lot of things can happen. The ladies are looking forward to a big time next Tuesday and Wednesday. They expect many of the outstanding lady curlers of the province to be here to compete for the Ladies' Tankard.

Retired Champ Enjoys Business Life

CHICAGO, Jan. 25 — (AP) — Chick Evans, the original boy wonder of golf, probably is more content to-day than ever before.

Living in a modest flat on Chicago's north side, Chick, at the age of 53, is enjoying being a successful business man. This late chapter in his life actually amounts to the climax of his career.

As vice-president of the Chicago Dairy, Chick has enough time to play week-end golf and compete in an occasional tournament. Although he announced his retirement from tourney golf a decade ago, he never has been able to rid himself of the competition bug.

The memories of the man who won 52 amateur titles, a record crowned by the feat of taking the National Amateur and National Open the same year— 1916— also must include a dark side.

After winning his eighth Western Amateur title in 1923, Evans lost heavily on the stock market and was forced to file for bankruptcy. This eventually led to a nervous breakdown two years later. His game never was quite the same afterwards.

"Aim for success in business and refuse to be exploited by business interests," Chick intently advises young amateur golfing enthusiasts.

Stolz Scores K.O. In Six Rounds

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 — (AP). — Allie Stolz, veteran Newark lightweight, moved another step toward a return bout with champion Beau Jack, who once knocked him out, when he scored a sixth-round knockout over Angelo Callura of Hamilton, Ont., here last night.

The Hamilton fighter was suffering from a heavy cold.

Stolz, a head taller than Callura, was outweighted 132¾ to 136.

ISN'T IT THE TRUTH ? By Ti-Jos No. 30

THERE ARE WORSE THINGS!

Yes, there are worse things than the rationing and other rules and regulations of the Prices Board. Standing in line for hours and then not even getting bread is worse : : : and there are many countries where that happens now! It is much worse when prices increase so fast that you never know whether your week's pay will buy the bare essentials : : : and that happened even in victorious countries, last time. Our system is not perfect by a long shot : : : but it surely is better than no system at all!

Beau Of West Big Winner Dies At Age 23

By APPAS TAPPAS

Beau of the West, leading money winning Canadian-bred thoroughbred with purse earnings of $49,730 in 29 victories during his racing career, is dead.

For a number of years the name of the unsexed son of Calgary out of a King's Plate winner, Belle Mahone, had stood in Canada's turf hall of fame as the top Canadian-bred money winner by a comfortable margin over another Seagram Stable bred, Gay Parisian. The Western Canada bred Joey is in third place.

Famous Black and Yellow

Beau of the West did all his racing in the famous black and yellow silks of his breeder, the Seagram Stable of Waterloo. The gelding died recently on the farm of a Kitchener physician at the age of 23. Beau of the West wound up his career as a saddle horse, a fate he narrowly missed at the age of three which would have deprived the great distance racer of his turf accomplishments. A failure in races at the age of two in 1923, Beau of the West was being considered by the late E. F. Seagram as a saddle horse for his daughter.

The late Billy Bringloe was trainer of the stable at the time, and Johnny Thorpe, present trainer, was assistant to Bringloe. These two horsemen prevailed upon Mr. Seagram not to take Beau of the West away from the races. Mr. Seagram accepted the suggestion and Beau of the West was named along with Isoletta as the Seagram entry for the 1924 running of the King's Plate. Isoletta finished fourth, the race being won by Maternal Pride, the longest priced Plate winner since the introduction of the pari-mutuel system of wagering. Beau of the West turned in a poor showing, but it was not long after that the chestnut gelding came to himself and found the winner's enclosure. In 1927 Beau of the West captured the William Hendrie Memorial at Woodbine Park. He was twice winner of the one-mile and three-quarter Durham Cup. In 1928 he carried 123 pounds to win and in the following year scored a repeat win carrying 120.

He developed into one of the best distance performers, going on to earn $49,730 for his breeder and owner.

Retired to Farm

When his racing days were over, Beau of the West remained for a few seasons around the track as lead pony for the stable. Finally he was retired to the farm where he would have spent his remaining days but for the Kitchener doctor who, on assurance Beau of the West would be used only as a saddle horse and given a good home, gained the Seagrams' consent to part with the horse. When the Canadian-bred was racing at his best the Seagram Stable had a powerful racing organization with such performers as Solace, Digit, Sir Harry, Gaffsman, Redstone, Young Kitty, Flowerful, and other winners scoring in major races.

Silvos, good Canadian-bred handicap winner purchased by the Seagram Stable, started out on his racing career almost identical to Beau of the West. Silvos failed to win the Plate. This horse, now a 7-year-old and at present on the Seagram farm with the remainder of the string, won 12 races and has earned $16,840.

All three Canadian-breds, Beau of the West, Gay Parisian and Joey, are now in Valhalla, resting place for all heroes of the turf, but their names stand today in that order in the records of the leading money-winning Canadian-breds.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 25 — (CP). — Ottawa sport fans of 20 years ago or longer were possibly the most rabid of them all. Hundreds of them have moved elsewhere in Canada, but wherever they are they spread the legends of Ottawa sport. Give a real old-time bytowner a railway smoker full of ready listeners and he'll talk for hours of the Ottawa Stanley Cup champions of 40 years ago with Frank McGee, Harvey Pulford, and their mates or of the later era of Hamby Shore and Percy LeSueur. Red-hot fans of the early 1920's are full of the feats of Eddie Gerard, Frank Nighbor and that crew.

The committee choosing names for hockey's Hall of Fame must, for their own protection, consider carefully before passing over any of the great old Ottawa figures. A slight to one of the Ottawa giants would certainly bring down on the heads of the committee the combined wrath of all the Ottawa tribe.

Evergreen fans are already preparing their war clubs. References in this column to the Hall of Fame brought from George Giles, a former Ottawan now in Vancouver, a letter stating names such as Nighbor, Gerard, Jack Darragh, George Boucher, Sprague Cleghorn, Clint Benedict, Cy Dennenny. "Sounds like an edition of the Hall of Fame itself."

Perhaps as a warning, George offers this tip: "Whoever decides on the Hall of Fame boys must establish a definite break-off date between the real hockey and the stuff we are getting dished out to us now, and have had for the last eight to 10 years."

Incidentally:

Art Ross of Boston was in reminiscent mood at the N.H.L. meeting here Friday. Asked whether he believed Frank McGee of Ottawa was one of the all-time greats, Ross said: "I know McGee was good, but he was a little before my time. To my mind, the greatest hockey player who ever lived was Tommy Phillips of Kenora. "Many old-timers subscribe to the Ross view that Phillips was the greatest of them all, but Art erred in saying McGee was of an earlier hockey age. McGee helped Ottawa win the Stanley Cup in 1905. The next year Ross and Phillips were with Kenora when the famous Thistles won the historic trophy.

Loose threads:

Frank Selke of Toronto and Red Dutton, N.H.L. managing director, have been appointed to draft rules for awarding the league's several trophies. It seems the late President Frank Calder kept the rules in his head and they died with him.

Harmon's Ruse Saved His Life In China Battle

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP)— It took Tommy Harmon just a few minutes to shoot down two Zeros and lose his own plane and half his pants but 32 days to get back to his base from the Chinese lake into which he parachuted.

Telling about his experience on Monday at a press conference, the former football star, now a United States Air Forces Lieutenant and a fighter pilot, told of the air battle over the Kiukiang docks and warehousses October 30.

But he wouldn't say a word about his escape because "it would just mean reprisals by the Japanese and maybe put a rope around some other pilot's neck."

Harmon said the mission started with four fighters going out to dive-bomb the target and four more flying top cover. He was at the end of the top cover and the leader of the top cover, Captain Bob Schultz of Sandusky, O., called out that six Zero fighters were approaching. Harmon looked around and saw six more Zeroes on the other side.

"Schultz and his wingman, and my lead man, went into the six Zeros ahead. I turned into the six behind me. We estimated there were something more than 20 Zeros in the sky. The dive-bombers got jumped and they got four of us.

"When I turned back into those Zeroes, I busted right in between two of their three-plane formations. One plane turned left and came directly into my sights. I cut loose with some tracer, and tore off the cockpit. Then I cut loose with the cannon, and the whole thing exploded."

Harmon sighted another Zero, closed in to about 50 yards and destroyed it.

"Then I heard something ring on my armor plate. That was the first shell. The second hit under my seat, and the third between my legs. It started a gasoline fire in the cockpit, knockede my feet off the controls, and blew my pant's legs off above the knees.

"I had turned the ship over, and saw where this guy had been working me over from underneath. I tried to smother the flames with my hands, but it was no good, so I loosened my safety belt and jettisoned the cockpit cover. It was going at such a speed that it pulled me right out of the plane.

"I didn't know the altitude, so I opened my 'chute immediately. That wasn't good. I was at about 5,000 feet, and two Zeros started circling me. Why they never turned into me and let go I'll never know, unless it was because when I saw them circling, I folded over and played dead."

Tommy Harmon Returns To States

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 25.—(AP).—The parents of Lieut. Tom Harmon disclosed Monday that the former Michigan All-American football player had returned to the United States from China last week-end on a 20-day leave from his fighter squadron in the 14th U.S. Rir Force.

Harmon crashed after a fierce dog-fight with Jap Zeros on Oct. 30 and was habored by Chinese guerillas for 32 days before he reached his home base. Previously he was lost for several weeks after a crash in South American jungle.

By The Canadian Press

With spring training just around the corner, organized baseball collectively announced at New York last night the movement of war veterans to club rosters had started and names are appearing in National Association bulletins under the heading of "reinstated from national defence list." No fewer than three players are exchanging army uniforms for the baseball togs of the Chicago White Sox in Outfielder Myril Hoag, Infielder Roy Schalk and Rookie Pitcher Tony Annoreno. First-baseman Ed Levy will be back with the New York Yankees after a stretch with the U.S. Coast Guard.

Back on the roster of the St. Louis Browns is Pitcher Jack Kramer who has been discharged from the navy. Brooklyn Dodgers are counting on Wes Flowers, who formerly twirled for Montreal Royals, while Philadelphia Phillies have signed Pitcher Albert Verdelle who is expected to be out of the army shortly.

President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday backpedalled on his statement of last week to the effect he did not see how the Class AA clubs were going to get through the 1944 season. In a speech at Philadelphia Rickey qualified the declaration by saying he was referring only to the manpower shortage and that it would form a particular problem for the double-A circuits.

Classified 4-F

Pitcher George (Pinky) Woods of the Boston Red Sox yesterday was classified 4-F by his draft board at Rutland, Vt. Reason: He is minus one big toe as the result of an accident in 1942.

Outfielder Hugh Todd of the Milwaukee Brewers was purchased yesterday by Minneapolis, also of the American Association, it was announced by President Mike Kelly of the purchasing club. No revelation was made of the cash involved.

After being in effect 18 months, the ban on flood-lighting in the greater New York area was lifted by Mayor La Guardia yesterday, thus making night baseball possible this season for the three major league teams and likely Jersey City and Newark as well. Outdoor boxing shows at night may also be resumed.

Leading Race

Now leading the American Hockey League's individual scoring race is Tom Vurlington of the Cleveland Barons with 48 points for 19 goals and 29 assists. His total is two points higher than his teammate, Lou Trudel. Bill Thomson of Indianapolis moved up to fourth place with 44 points, one below Wally Kilrea who left Hershey Bears to enlist in the armed forces.

E. W. Answering of Vancouver, secretary of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, last night announced the Canadian senior men's finals have been scheduled for Eastern Canada opening April 24. It will be a best-of-five series. American teams at Edmonton will be eligible for the Dominion title, he said. Meanwhile, conflicting reports were heard about the possibility of Pat Bay R.C.A.F. Gremlins defending their Canadian senior men's basketball championship.

E. W. Bowering of Vancouver, secretary of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association said Gremlins will be forced to abandon defence of their title because of an air force rule limiting teams to play within their own province. Later Flt.-Lt. Louis Chodat, Gremlins' coach, said he has received later communications from Air Force headquarters at Ottawa indicating authorization may be granted to participate in play-offs outside British Columbia.

At Work Again

Former holder of all 16 women's swimming records and multi-championship winner at the Los Angeles Olympic games in 1932, Helene Madison, now Mrs. Luther C. McIver of Seattle, Wash., and mother of a six-year-old daughter, announced last night at the coast she would resume nursing in a hospital to help relieve the shortage of nurses.

According to International Baseball League statistics, issued at New York last night, the Toronto Leafs made 195 errors and won the circuit penant, against 171 miscues by the second-place Newark Bears. Newark led with a .970 fielding average, compared with .967 for Leafs.

Chairman John J. Phelan of the New York Athletic Commission yesterday refused to meet the request of President Abe Greene of the National Boxing Association to change the Friday night 10-rounder between Beau Jack and Sammy Angott into a championship bout. Jack is recognized as lightweight champion by the N.Y. Commish while Angott holds the N.B.A. title.

Detroit Seeking Seventh Victory

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings set out tonight to demonstrate that their National Hockey League undefeated streak can be sustained beyond its present duration of seven games.

They seek to prove it at the expense of Boston Bruins who have skidded into fourth place one point behind Detroit following a sequence of injuries.

Although Bruins have the advantage of home surroundings Detroit will be solidly favored to take the only N.H.L. game scheduled Tuesday. Boston Manager Art Ross tacitly subscribes to this view in acknowledging that the manpower situation of the battered Bruins is "desperate."

Among Bruin regulars who will be absent tonight are leading scorer Bill Cowley; defenceman Johnny Crawford, who suffered a brain concussion several weeks ago, and Harvey Jackson, victim of knee and elbow injuries last week.

Detroit can move within a half-game of Toronto Maple Leafs by winning tonight.

St. Kitts Wins Top Position

St. Catharines Saints leaped back to leadership in the Senior "A" series of the Ontario Hockey Association last night with a 11-7 victory over Toronto Navy in a wide-open free-scoring tilt on Toronto ice. The 19th win put the visitors one point above Hamilton Majors in the standing—and the Sailors go right back to St. Catharines tomorrow night for a return engagement.

The visitors held a 3-2 advantage at the first intermission and ran it up to 7-3 in the second period. Half way through the final frame they were leading 11-3 when the Tars collected four straight.

Red Reynolds was leading scorer for the winners with three goals; Paul Mundrick and Mason collected two each, while Pete Backor, Umbo Concessi, Blink Bellinger and Fritz bagged singles. Heading the Bluejackets were Maundrell and Mann, good for a pair apiece, while Thompson, Livingstone and Barlow were successful on one occasion.

Getting More People Back On Farm Is Big Problem Facing Ontario Hon T. L. Kennedy Tells Rotarians

The necessity of a better break for the farmers of Ontario was stressed by Col. the Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, in an address at the annual farmers' meeting of the Peterborough Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel Monday. Some sixty representative farmers from the county and district were guests of the Rotary Club and other guests to hear the Minister were Gordon K. Fraser, M. P., Captain Harold Scott, M. L. A., and Mayor James Hamilton.

President George A. Gillespie was in the chair and welcomed the guests and the speaker was introduced by Rotarian F. C. Paterson, who said that the return of Col. Kennedy to the office of Minister of Agriculture had been well received.

Declaring that the problem in Ontario was to get more people back on the farms, Col. Kennedy said that he knew an area in western Ontario where there used to be families on 12 farms, with six, the smallest family. To-day there were only two old people on those twelve farms.

Tribute To Older Folk.

Col. Kennedy paid a tribute to the older folk left on the farms of Ontario who started out bravely in 1940 to raise food and pay off some of the debts and had carried on gamely in the face of many difficulties. Such people could not hope to keep up the battle indefinitely unless they received assistance.

"For the good of Ontario, for the good of Canada," said the speaker. "It is necessary to give the farmer a fair break. We must get more of them back on the land, give them better conditions of living and more money for what they produce." Col. Kennedy said that in his younger days as a farmer he used to get 85 or 90 per cent of the consumer's dollar; now he was lucky to get 50 per cent.

The Minister of Agriculture said that his government hoped to deal with the price situation from the bottom instead of from the top.

"One thing we are aiming at", he said "is to get the gluts out of the market." In that connection he pointed out that a surplus of one-half of one per cent in egg production had ruined the whole market. The government hoped to be able to deal with such a situation. In the grape market for instance it was planned to turn the surplus grapes into brandy instead of allowing the extra supply to spoil the price and it was hoped to do something along that line in other products.

The Ontario Government, he said also hoped to be able to take government out of business. They desired to interfere as little as possible. What they wanted was for the farmers to consider their own problems and recommended a solution and then the Government would step in with the required legislation and authority.

Pointing out the wonderful spirit of the British people and the manner in which they had fought for democracy when they had to fight alone. The Minister remarked that the Britishers had come through five years of suffering and sacrifice and never lost their courage or their sense of humor. In view of what they had gone through for the sake of democracy Col. Kennedy appealed to his farmer audience to work all the harder to produce the food that the British Isles required.

In regard to the opening of Ontario House, he said, that during the war it would be chiefly for the benefit of Ontario's soldiers in the British Isles but later it would be used to sell Ontario products.

Rotarian Gordon S. Matthews expressed the thanks of the Rotary Club to the Minister and Reeve Melville Johnston of North Monaghan voiced the thanks of the farmer members of the audience.

War Services Organized For Salvage Drive

The first executive meeting of the Peterborough War Services committee was held Monday night at the Y.M.C.A. and an advertising committee of three was appointed to look after the details of publicity in the forthcoming paper salvage campaign to be held February 14, 16 and 18.

This committee, whose job it will be to correlate newspaper advertising with the areas of the city where pickups will be made by the salvage dealer on the different days, comprises Mrs. R. J. Kearns, Mrs. A. Willis and Mrs. G. McCarney. Other members present at Monday night's meeting included Mrs. J. Turnbull, Mrs. J. A. Dewart, Mrs B. D. Hall, Mrs. C. Wolfe, Mrs. F. Curtis, Mrs. G. Roper, Mrs. R. Whalon and Mrs. M. C. Metheral.

It was recalled by Mrs. Whalon, chairman of the committee, that a contract has been drawn up with the firm of Peterseil and Beck, scrap collectors, under which the War Services group will receive a price of $8 a ton for paper and metals gathered during the drive. From this sum the cost of advertising will be deducted and the balance will go for the purposes of war work engaged in by the five different organizations that make up the Peterborough War Services.

These are the Army, Navy and Air Force Auxiliaries; the Catholic Women's League, and the Victory Workers, successors to the Civic War Service Council. Working in co-operation with these groups will be the local A.R.P., whose wardens will contact families in their respective zones and keep them advised of the day collections are expected to be carried out in their part of town.

Stimulate Interest.

The belief was expressed that if collections proceeded smoothly in the first drive, later drives — and it is planned to hold them every six weeks or two months—would largely pay for themselves from the advertising standpoint. The city is salvage-conscious, it was said, and if people saw an efficient and thorough handling of the February drive, they would be stimulated to co-operate to the fullest extent without much prodding from outside agencies.

In regard to the materials wanted for salvage, paper, of course, is the prime object of the drive. Metals, however, are quite acceptable, but the public will be requested not to put out any fats, grease or tin cans, and no rubber should be disposed of, as the government does not want this. Magazines may be piled loose, but bundles of paper should be tied both ways and cardboard and corrugated boxes must be knocked down. No grease, wax paper or cellophane should be included.

Motor Licenses On Sale Monday

TORONTO, Jan. 25 — (C P) — Ontario's 1944 motor vehicle permits went on sale Monday as the Ontario Department of Highways at Queen's Park here and through 200 agents throughout the province including Ontario Motor League offices. Only a mild demand arose at Queen's Park, Minister of Highways George H. Doucett said.

Applicants fill out their 1943 license in applying for renewal and are given their new license form showing the 1943 license plate number and the windshield sticker on which the 1943 liecnse plate number is shown.

Those purchasing new cars, Mr. Doucett said, must apply at the main office for the new licenses when they will receive new 1943 plates, a supply having been retained for this purpose, but renewed licenses carry the 1943 plates on the rear of the vehicles.

Mr. Doucett has not yet ruled on a time limit for obtaining licenses but it is expected to be the end of February.

Advertising Man Dies In New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 — (AP) — I. A. Klein, long widely known in the newspaper advertising field, died Monday at St. Luke's Hospital here. He had recently undergone a major operation.

Mr. Klein, a native of Waterloo County, Ontario, retired from the newspaper advertising representative field last August after more than 32 years in that profession. He had been Eastern representative for the Booth Newspapers, Inc., of Michigan and for the Detroit News for many years.

Mr. Klein's first experience in newspaper work came in the Georgian Bay district where his father started a weekly. In 1886 he entered the employe of the old Toronto Empire. Later he joined the advertising staff of the old New York World press.

At one time he represented more than 20 newspapers throughout the country as Eastern representative.

He leaves his wife and a son, Herbert Klein, of New York.

and into the back of the hardware and Erskine radio showroom.

No Chance

A large portion of the oil and paints were stored in the cellar, which was quickly flooded as hundreds of gallons of water poured into the building.

Chief Garnet Samis stated that he had passed the building on patrol not more than 20 minutes before and at that time there was no sign of smoke.

F. L. Erskine, owner of the building, had returned home from Peterborough shortly before twelve and had just started to retire when the siren went. He said he had not entered the store for a check-up as he drove past, and had no idea of how the fire could have started.

$13,800 Loss

Walter Madill said he had worked in his shop until about 9 o'clock, and when he left there were only a few coals of fire in his stove. Upon arriving at the fire, very shortly after its outbreak, he stated the blaze was still confined to the shed back of his shop. Mr. Madill estimated his loss at approximately $800. Among it was a new shipment of iron which had just arrived that day. F. L. Erskine estimated his contents of approximately $10,000, with another two or three thousand dollars for his building.

Hydro lines into the store front were cut by Hilliard McCracken as flames swept to the front of the store threatening to drop the wires upon the crowds of spectators jamming the main street. Firemen were aided considerably in their task as there was practically no wind, and the night was mild with the temperature 20 degrees above zero.

Had there been a wind St. Paul's Roman Catholic church, immediately behind, to the west, the Royal Bank Building to the north and T. C. Yonge's grocery store to the south might also have been lost, but the brigade held the damage to the one store.

A Nice Find

HALIFAX, Jan. 25 — (CP). — Twelve-year-old Robert Ash, playing near his home yesterday, saw a sack beneath a tree, investigated, and found inside $1,700 in Victory bonds. Police believed them to be part of $4,000 loot stolen over the week-end from the Maple Leaf Dairy where a two-ton office safe was blown open by unknown thieves.

Britain Needs More Butter

LONDON, Jan. 25 — (CP Cable) Britain is seeking to increase her butter supplies which have been sufficient only to maintain the weekly two-ounce ration.

The Ministry of Food said Britain is pressing butter-producing countries to let her have more but would not indicate if any specific request has yet been made to Canada.

Over a three-month period last year, Canada sent 7,000,000 pounds of butter and it is expected that when butter producion is resumed in the Dominion after the winter more exports will be made.

If the present slim supply in Britain continues, however, the possibility is seen that the butter ration may have to be reviewed with a view to reducing it. A food official said: "We'll do our best to keep it at two ounces, but we can't make anw promises. We certainly can't afford to lose ships bringing butter."

Tim Buck Appeals For C.C.F. Support

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (CP)—Canada is not yet ready for Socialization as proposed by C.C.F. spokesmen, Tim Buck said here Sunday in an address during which he appealed to C.C.F. members to force their leaders to change their attitude towards the Labor-Progressive party.

The Labor-Progressive party had tried repeatedly to obtain the co-operation and affiliation of the C.C.F., he said, but its overtures had been refused.

"The C.C.F. declarations that Socialization of Canada is their aim simply tends to drive many Canadians right into the arms of the reactionary elements," Buck told his audience of more than 3,000.

League Of Nations Society Seeks Action From Parties

OTTAWA, Jan. 25 —(CP) —Walter D. Jones, President of the League of Nations Society in Canada, made public Monday a letter sent by the Society to leaders of political parties calling for immediate action in declaring Canada's post-war international objectives.

Replies from Prime Minister Mackenzie King and M. J. Coldwell, National C. C. F. leader, were also released by Mr. Jones.

"We should delay no longer in setting forth a clear idea of Canada's objectives in relation to the post-war world," Mr. Jones said in his letter outlining the Society's views concerning the form of post-war international organization.

Main points of the action proposed were membership in a new universal and permanent League of Nations which would have a military force available to enforce its judgments and would be a source of international law.

Mr. King, in his reply, said in part:

"Every effort must be made to utilize and continue during and after the period of peace settlements the spirit and methods of co-operation which have been established between the United Nations as a means to victory.

"Only as a result of such co-operation shall we bring about the complete defeat of the Axis Powers. By its continuance the people of the United Nations ought to be able to ensure the rule of law throughout the world within a system of orderly progress and widespread prosperity. The Canadian Government will devote its best endeavours to this end."

Mr. Coldwell said in his reply:

"The fundamental features of the new international organization that you list represent the minimum of political co-operation among nations that this highly integrated twentieth century world of our demands. To attempt less would be to admit the inevitability of World War III."

Mr. Jones said no replies had been received from John Bracken, Progressive Conservative Leader, or John Blackmore, Social Credit leader.

Increasing numbers of people in every walk of life have come to rely on the London Life for financial security.

Who are these people? Wage earners, the largest group in the country, own by far the greatest number of policies. Business and professional men are equally well represented. The number of London Life policyholders has grown until today it is as great as the combined populations of Vancouver, Regina, Windsor, Ottawa and Halifax.

What do they want? These people want to get ahead in the world, own a home, educate their children, make provision for their dependents, and live comfortably in old age.

What do they do about it? They choose life insurance to guarantee the fulfillment of their aims; it is the only form of savings which, under all circumstances, can assure attainment of the objectives they have set.

Who counsels them? Our representatives — specially trained to give sound and helpful advice to persons seeking financial security. Such services have proven invaluable, whether the plans of the individual are simple or extensive.

How wise is their choice? In the London Life they are insured with a company which lives up to the highest traditions of the business, safeguarding in every way the interests of its policyholders. The ultimate test of a company is its ability to furnish insurance at low cost and maintain at the same time a strong financial position. Irwin Acquitted On Charge Of Conspiracy

TORONTO, Jan. 25 —(CP)— An assize court jury last night acquitted R. A. Irwin, former divisional registrar for National Mobilization, of a charge of conspiracy in attempting to obtain deferments from military service, but convicted three others tried with Irwin—Naiffe Stephen, R. A. Allen and Robert Douglas—on the same charge.

After nearly three hours' deliberation, the jury found Stephen, Allen and Douglas guilty on both counts in the indictment of impeding operation of Selectve Service Mobilization Regulations, and of conspiring "to counsel by oral communication other persons to omit to comply with call-up notices."

Three Convicted

The three convicted will be sentenced Wednesday. No action has been taken to appeal the convictions, but Allen and Stephen have signified intention to carry their case before Ontario Appeal Court.

The verdict climaxed Royal Canadian Mounted Police investigations which started last April and led to the arrest of the four men last July.

Irwin had consistently maintained his innocence through the preliminary hearing and a subsequent appeal by his counsel, Joseph Sedgwick, against committal of Irwin for trial.

Before the case went to the jury last night, Mr. Justice J. A. Hope delivered one of the longest charges in the history of Toronto courts, starting before noon and ending early last night after a 1½-hour noon adjournment. He refused to recall the jury despite objections raised by D. L. McCarthy, counsel for Stephen, although it had been recalled earlier to consider a point raised by Irwin's counsel.

Hospital Committee Drafted Proposals

The council's hospital committee with Alderman Sands presiding spent several hours Monday night laying out a course leading to the objective mentioned at the last meeting of the council, the establishment of a civic hospital. It was the kind of detail meeting in a preliminary stage which suggested press absence. However, it was learned that the committee covered considerable ground and drafted their outline proposals in the form of a resolution which in courtesy to the Nicholls Hospital Board will be submitted to them before it is made public.

With Alderman Sands in this long session were Mayor Hamilton, Aldermen Glover, Dutton, Swanston, Ovens.

Court Dismisses J. M. Sandy Case

A charge against John Maxwell Sandy, Cavan township, of having cruelly abandoned two cats in Peterborough on December 17 was dismissed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., without the defence being called upon.

The charge was laid by Gerald Dunford, Humane Society inspector.

Mrs. Sherman Graham, 653 Reid Street, called as a Crown witness, testified that on December 17 a car had stopped in front of her house, containing three people and two cats were dropped out on the road. Mrs. Graham said that one of the cats disappeared in a day; the other remained around for a few days and then vanished. The witness said she could not identify Sandy as the driver of the car from which the cats had been abandoned.

Didn't See Driver.

Sherman Graham testified that he had arrived home for lunch on the day in question just in time to see the two cats run across his lawn but he did not know who had been driving the car.

Humane Inspector Dunford stated that he had obtained the number of the car from which the cats had been dropped and had laid an information against the owner.

That completed the Crown's case and John A. Bradshaw moved for dismissal, pointing out that there had been no evidence to connect Sandy with the affair.

Magistrate Langley granted the defence motion. In addition to the fact that the driver of the car had not been identified he remarked that parliament in preparing that section had been careful to state that it was an offence to abandon animals only when the latter were in distress.

Dressed Lamb Prices Face New Ceiling

A new and simplified price structure for dressed lambs, designed to give producers more confidence in planning their production program, has been announced by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, its local manager, W. E. Foley, said today.

The structure involves an over-all wholesale price ceiling on all classes of dressed lamb for the complete year, and also establishes for the first time maximum retail prices for various cuts of lamb, except spring lamb. These prices must be posted in retail shops throughout the city, Mr. Foley said.

From January 3 to April 30 the wholesale ceiling in Zone 6, which includes Toronto and Southwestern Ontario, will be 35 cents a pound, carcass basis. From May 1 to June 30 it will be 31 cents a pound. And after July 1, Mr. Foley stated, the over-all ceiling of 26¼ cents a pound, wholesale, will come into effect for the balance of the year.

CurbAntagonism Towards Jews Dr. Smart's Plea

A forthright denunciation of the spirit of anti-Semeticism that is sweeping and has swept the world for centuries coupled with a plea to members of the Christian faith to exercise God's admonition to "love thy neighbor" were the keynotes of a top-ranking address by the Rev. Dr. J. D. Smart, minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian church to the Lions' club Monday night.

Taking as his subject "The Problem of the Jew", Dr. Smart traced the history of the Jewish people from 1600 B.C. tying into his sketch how the animosity for Jews developed and why it is so deep-seated.

Before launching into the story of this race, the speaker said that at least three million Jews had been systematically murdered by the Nazis, and he warned that this cruelty could not be eliminated merely by cleaning up the Nazis, because there was ample evidence anti-Semeticism existed in Canada.

He drew a parallel between Jews and the Scots, both of whom had their origin in countries that taxed their ingenuity, and determination as it was difficult to make a living from the soil. Both races he said had developed a sturdy self-reliance, and were noted for thrift.

"The Scots control a great portion of the business in the cities of London and Montreal, but has anyone ever heard the suggestion that their wealth be taken from them, and have them shipped back to Scotland. Why then is the reaction so different to these two peoples."

History Traced

Seeking to illustrated the growth and reason for this dislike of the Jew, Dr. Smart traced their history starting at the time the Jews, left the great Arabian desert and settled on the fertile crescent known as Palestine.

"About 500 B.C. the Jews had become numerous and had travelled, many were serving as mercenaries in the Egyptian army, policing the borde between Egypt and the Black country, protecting Egyptian civilization. Many others were tradesmen and all lived in peace. About that time the first wave of persecutions started for reasons unknown, and because of an incident in that era, the saying that the Jews have stood at the graveside of many of their persecutors came into being."

In 323 A.D. Christianity became the official religion of the Roman Empire, and most people took on this new doctrine. As the people read the New Testament they found that the Jews crucified Christ, but what they failed to realize was that Christ was also a Jew as were his disciples. Resentment and animosity became ingrained, and soon severe restrictions were imposed on the Jews. The restrictions were so severe that only two channels of endeavor were left open for them, money-lending and scavenging.

The Jews made a success of both jobs. In later years Spain relaxed the restrictions, and the Jews progressed to the point where they even married into the nobility. It is accepted that it was Jewish money financed the voyage of Christopher Columbus.

Again the cycle of persecution started, and soon ghettos were established and the Jews were herded into these districts, which were fenced, and the inmates were horribly mistreated.

"If we had treated the Scottish people in this manner, do you think they would look kindly on their persecutors" asked the speaker.

"We say a man is a man and we take him for what he is—but do we?

Examples of Antagonism

Let us examine conditions today—the large corporations hire no Jews, except perhaps one who is kept out in front to prove they do not practice anti-Semeticism. Jewish banks in New York have to hire Gentiles to do business over the counter and there are many other glaring examples to indicate the antagonism for the Jew still exists.

Dr. Smart told of a case in Ontario where the most brilliant graduate of a university, a Jewish boy, found he was not acceptable as a teacher in Ontario schools.

Today the Jews were forced into four businesses, the motion picture industry, the garment industry, the scrap iron business and the small merchant field.

The Jews have made outstanding contributions to civilization in the Arts. Great musicians, composers, sculptors, artists, writers, orchestra leaders and comedians have predominated.

In summing up his address with a warning to his audience to be ever on the alert to curb this antagonism, Dr. Smart related that the Jews have every reason to be proud of themselves and their race, and have every right to ask for the respect of other peoples. "We should take them on their merits as men and women, but I can say in all sincerity that there is little can be done about the problem of the Jew until such time as we realize that they should not be dealt with as the children of one race but rather as the children of One Father."

The speaker was introduced by the Rev. E. C. Moore, and the thanks of the club was voiced by Hurrell Dodds.

New members initiated at the meeting were Ron McGee, Genelco, Bert Austin, jeweller and S. S. Staples, farmer.

Anthracite Bins Empty Dealers Report

Same of the city's coal dealers report their anthracite bins empty, a reminder of the scarcity of hard coal which in New York Mayor La Guardia announced yesterday he was planning to meet by opening many temporary distribution stations from which quantities down to 50 pounds may be obtained by the public.

It is understood that these dealers do not expect any deliveries this month, and arrivals in February are at present uncertain. The Examiner was informed today that the trade has been again notified that they must deliver and consumers accept 25 per cent or more substitute (Class B) fuel with their orders of Class A. Dealers must supply only their customers to whom they made deliveries last year. It is also stated that consumer must accept whatever type of coal his dealer can supply. Another regulation directs dealers to deliver only to consumers who have less than fifteen days' stock on hand.

If a consumer has less than seven days' supply he may use the emergency card which when presented to his dealer must be honored and given immediate attention by that dealer. And that customer must accept whatever type or mixture of fuel the dealer can supply.

These are some of the existing regulations. A dealer who flouts them involves himself in the possibility of indefinite suspension or even the cancellation of his license.

Two Boys Plead Guilty To Theft

Walter Drummond, 17, and Trooper Bert Young, 17, of the Canadian Tank Corps, Newmarket, both pleaded guilty in police court this morning to a charge of having broken and entered the premises of the York Trading Company on or about January 22 and committing theft.

At the request of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., the two were remanded for a week for sentence.

Drummond and Young were arrested Monday afternoon by Officer Archie Menzies. Afterwards Officer Menzies and Sergt. John Thompson recovered a quantity of cigars, cigarettes and other articles that had been hidden under a brush pile near the south end of Armour Road.

Robert Burns' Estimate Of Germans Is Expressed In Pretty Strong Terms

Robert Burns' estimate of the Germans, set down in a letter to Rev. Dr. McGill of Ayr more than a century ago, should be of special interest to all people who bow in his memory on this anniversary of his birth. It was shown to the Examiner this morning by Hal Choate who said the content told its own story.

Scotland's bard wrote: "Ignorance, superstition, bigotry, stupidity, malevolence, self-conceit, envy—all strangely bound in a massive frame of brazen impudence; Good God. Sir, to such a shield, humor is the peck of a sparrow, and satire the pop-gun of the school boy."

With comment which is believed to have been added by the editorial page of the Montreal Gazette its article continues: "That is fairly strong language, but stronger is to follow. The letter proceeds: "Creation disgracing, accelerate only such as they. God only can mend and the devil only can punish. In the uncomprehending way of Caligula I wish they had all but one neck; I feel impotent as a child to the order of my wishes.

O for a withering curse to blast the Germans of their wicked machinations. Oh, for a poisonous tornado winged from the torrid zone of Tartarus to sweep the spreading crop of their villainous contrivance to the lowest hell."

Father's Memory Is Revered By Aid For Fund

Few people while journeying through this life, probably never stop to pause and think of what marks they are leaving behind them on the sands of time, or whether their lives may be such as would help or give some insipration for good to others who will rise up and follow after they are called to a higher and more nobler sphere.

When the work that those who have passed on continues to live and keep the memory of their personality green, and through it give inspiration for deeds of good for the commonweal, an atmosphere that might be said to almost be of of a holy and sacred nature is brought into being, which unconsciously stamps their passage through this mortal life as one which was not passed in vain.

When this recognition comes from those within the inner circles of one's own family, it can be said to come from those who knew the life so honored in its most intimate sense, and thus places a hallmark or genuineness on it, which it might not otherwise receive.

In to-day's list of receipts for the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund there is recorded a gift " In loving memory of a dear father, Adam Humphries, from his daughters" which speaks of a regard which is of a high order, and there would seem no more fitting way that they could honor his memory, than that of doing some good where it is really needed in his name. Thus the work that men do on earth lives after they have passed on.

Sunshine Valley Group.

The word "Sunshine" almost breathes goodness, so it naturally would be assumed and any group using it to be known by, would be up and doing of some good works which in these days of stress and trial are so necessary to offset the wickedness that others have brought on this world.

The Sunshine Valley Group is one which goes from house to house of its members situated south and east of Mathers Corners on R. R. 3, Keene, for the purpose of engaging in welfare work of a general nature to assist in the war effort, which stamps them as being true to the title they have adopted for their organization.

Recently they held a draw on a quilt they had made, and from the money thus raised, the sum of $5.00 was handed in by their treasurer, Viola Wilson, which is credited in their name to-day.

Two personal gifts are included in to-day's list, one coming from J. H. Carter of Indian River, and the other from "A Friend" which came as a result of one friend doing another friend a good turn, and thus this takes on a still wider sphere of goodness to others beyond the sea.

Gasoline Case Underway In City Court

A charge against Richard B. Rogers, former proprietor of a service station at Monaghan Road and Chamberlain street of selling gasoline without adequate coupons was heard before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning.

The charge was laid under the War Industries Control Board regulations and W. F. Huycke, K.C., prosecuted while Rogers who pleaded not guilty was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair.

William J. Arnott, manager of the gasoline division of the Conger Lehigh Coal Company, Cobourg, the first Crown witness testified that Rogers had leased the service station at Monaghan Road and Chamberlain street from his company. The latter supplied Rogers with gas and during the period from April 1, 1943, until August 26, 1943, the records showed that Rogers had been supplied with 16,915 gallons. For that amount he would have to send in enough coupons to cover 16,915 gallons.

In answer to Mr. Fair Arnott said that after an investigation had been made by War Time Prices and Trade officials his company had received instruction from the oil controller not to supply Rogers with any more gasoline.

Mr. Fair questioned the witness as to the chances that drivers who delivered the gasoline might have made mistakes.

G. N. Rogers, inspector for the War Time Prices and Trade Board said that he had made a routine inspection of the accused's service station on May 5. At that time he said that Rogers had 286 gallons of gasoline on hand, had inventory coupons entitling him to buy gas from wholesalers to the amount of 1,000 gallons and customers coupons to the extent of 91½ gallons. Inspector Rogers said that at the time of his visit he estimated that the accused was short 87 gallons.

The case is proceeding.

Bombers Lash Hong Kong Base

CHUNGKING, Jan. 25.—(AP). — American medium bombers, some piloted by Chinese, raided the Kaitak airfield at Hong Kong Sunday without loss, Air Headquarters in China announced to-day.

The committee disclosed that the bombers and their escort encountered heavy opposition, but all planes returned safely after shooting lown one Zero.

The communique also said mediums of the Chinese-American wing had attacked a convoy off the south China coast, probably sinking a 5,600 ton freighter.

Woman's Safety Is Assured In Amazon Wilds

The safety of at least one of the nine American missionaries believed to have been slain by savages in the jungle wilds of Bolivia last November has been assured through a letter received this week by Mrs. D. P. Hart of Lakefield, written by a member of the mission who was among those reputedly lost in the unexplored hinterland of the Amazon Valley. She is Mrs. Robert Dye, a sister of the Rev. Earl Playfair of Toronto, who has lived in Lakefield and went to school there.

An Associated Press dispatch dated from Buenos Aires Jan. 12 tells the story of nine missionaries of the New Tribes Mission, whose headquarters are in Chicago, who set out last November from the village of Robore, last outpost of civilization 300 miles east of Santa Cruz, Bolivia in the direction of the Brazilian frontier and the unexplored Matto Grosso region further east.

Two days after they left Robore, three members of the party were reported to have returned to the village, where they notified authorities that the missionaries were being followed by a tribe of hostile Indians, the dispatch goes on. A detachment of soldiers sent out on their trail failed to locate them, after covering the ground as far as Santa Corazon, 80 miles from the Brazilian border, and the article ends by stating the belief that all nine in the party met their deaths at the hands of the savages.

Written Before Christmas

The letter received by Mrs. Hart is dated from Santa Corazon on December 20, nearly a month after she and her fellow missionaries were given up for good. In it she does state that "my husband is out in the jungle with six other missionaries looking for a tribe of savages that are known to live around here," but she evinces no concern over their safety. Mrs. Dye, who graduated last February from Columbia University, went with her husband, his brother and wife, and five other men to establish a mission at Santa Corazon last spring. This jungle outpost is 75 miles from Robore, where the Rev. George Height is established at the South American Indian Mission. Rev. Height, well-known in Lakefield, has addressed congregations there a number of times and is a brother of Mrs. Abel Hendren.

At Least Two Are Safe

Whether developments in the interval between the writing of the letter and the date of the press dispatch have given rise to the suspicion that the seven missionaries searching for the savage tribe will never return is a matter of conjecture, but certainly two of the original group—Mrs. Dye and the other women in the party—are safe from harm.

From Robore, Mrs. Dye says in her letter to Mrs. Hart, they travelled the last 75 miles by oxen, and their first home at Santa Corazon was a simple mud-wall hut, their kitchen being covered with a sod roof supported by poles and open to the weather.

"Our greatest contact with the people so far has been through medical aid," Mrs. Dye writes to her friend in Lakefield. "Mrs. Bacon and I have been into many of the homes recently on sick calls, and every day there are visitors at the house, wanting help in one way or another. It has been a wonderful way to get to know the people and to have a word of witness with them.

"Here we have no regular mail service. We depend entirely upon times when some one near us goes through to a bigger town on business and it usually means that our mail goes on the back of an ox. Today we are being a little more luxurious; the mail will go on a horse. They are ready to leave, which means I must sign off imemdiately."

Lots Of Potatoes

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 25—(AP)—Idaho potato shipments have been cut in half during the past week by a shortage of refrigerator cars and State Agriculture Commissioner Harvey Schwendiman says much of the state's record 43,000,000-bushel crop will be lost unless cars are made available.

Council Ready To Take Hand In Ice Business

In the same sense of responsibility to the public which induced them to go into the fuel business at least, for this winter, the Welfare Committee of the Council is now considering the advisability of taking on the role of the iceman for next summer.

The information that has come to the Glover committee is that J. F. Allin does not intend to cut ice, that the fire of a month ago destroyed some of his equipment, that he is ready to sell the whole cutting and storage plant to any one, including the city, that he cannot get enough men and generally is hampered and handicapped to an extent that precludes him from carrying on.

If Mr. Allin would quote the Council a reasonable price he can get the money to-morrow.

Alderman Glover told a Council group Monday night that Clark Rollins at Coe Hill was ready to come down to Peterborough with all the necessary machinery, nucleus of a staff, and cut ice at a price that sounded attractive to the aldermen.

Disregard Opposition.

Mayor Hamilton has been anxious about the ice stock for the hot days of 1944, and has been enquiring into prospects of the regular trade being able to meet the local needs, but his opinion has been that if the Council takes an idle chance there will be people here next May and September without ice. Looking after the needs of the people brought upon Mayor Hamilton's head the baying bitterness of one or two dealers in fuel wood, but the Council went ahead in spite of invective and soon had wood piles stretching out in local yards.

Just a passing discussion of the situation Monday night indicated that if dealer supply is going to be cut off this winter the Council is prepared to invoke all the federal wartime control it needs and get ready to sell ice to the public next summer and sell it through delivery men. Mr. Rollins is prepared to come to Peterborough, set up his machinery in the canal and put a dozen trucks hauling it into the city. From comment made, that is likely to be the Council's undertaking.

Board Resumes Hearing Jan. 27

For the resumed sitting of the Ontario Municipal Board the three interested municipalities are just about prepared to take the floor again.

The county council has devoted a great deal of time to their contention that the last foot of North Monaghan property on the suburban fringe should be thrown over the proposed new city fence.

One of the members of the city council sharply remarked that they ought to know by this time what they want because on their own statement they had their plans drawn away back in the middle of December, although their attitude did not transpire in the progress of events until only recently. So, from all accounts the county council is waiting for the Thursday session with a big hammer in the form of a bylaw.

Tired Of Matter

North Monaghan council rehearsed their position at a meeting Monday night, and Mayor Hamilton decided at the close of the committee meeting last night to call a meeting of the members in committee of the whole for 2 p.m. this afternoon, foregoing the usual twenty-four hour notice.

Some of the members of the council are quite frankly "fed up" on the whole business and ready to "ditch it." Within the truth of comment on the city hall reaction is the remark that some of Mayor Hamilton's associates are becoming embittered by the unexpected shiftings and amendings, and they use a consigning phrase that goes deeper—and hotter—than the well known lake.

Yes, sonny, because my soap is Palmolive the very same soap my mummy used for bathing me. You see, Palmolive just can't irritate your tender skin, or mine either, because it's made to give a smooth, soft lather that guards your skin and keeps it healthy as you grow. And that, sonny, is why Palmolive will always be your special soap . . . and mine, too.

Mother! Specialists advise for baby's skin — daily bathe your baby with gentle Palmolive Soap. Because it's made with Olive and Palm Oils — two of nature's finest skin guardians — Palmolive's kind lather cleanses gently, safely, soothes even the most sensitive skin. And, mother, everything that Palmolive does for baby, it will do for your complexion, too!

The party was under the auspices of the Athletic Association, with the president, Allan Johnston, in charge, and Miss Lettice Drope as chairman of the arrangements committee. Miss Olga Johnston, dean of women, supervised the serving of the refreshments.

DOROTHY DIX

WIFE SHOULDN'T FEEL SUPERIOR

Marriage Never a Success Where Girl Starts With Idea of Lifting Boy to Her Level.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a girl of 22, secretly engaged to a man of 30. My family oppose the match very much because we are aristocratic, while he belongs to very plain people. He is very handsome, dresses and talks well, has a high school education and good business ability, but I must admit that I wouldn't own his mother and father and brothers. I would be ashamed of them before my friends.

Also, this young man's manners are not just what I would like them to be. Do you think it wise to try to change a man's ways after you are married? I love my finace with all my heart and feel that we are meant for each other, but I do not know whether to marry him or not.

ANN S.

No Time To Marry

ANSWER—I should say not, if you are going to take such a snobbish attitude toward him and his family. Unless you can say to the man you marry: "Thy people shall be my people and thy God my God," you will find small happiness in being his wife.

No marriage is ever a successful marriage in which the wife feels herself superior to her husband. There is something in the feminine psychology that makes a woman want to look up to her husband, not down upon him, and certainly no man enjoys knowing that his wife considers herself better than he is, and that she regards him as a social inferior.

Nor are you playing the game if you marry a man whose family you are not willing to accept. Remember that after you marry him they will be your family, too. You will bear their name and their blood will flow in your children's veins.

Furthermore, it seems to me that nothing could be crueler than for a girl to marry a man with the deliberate intention in her heart of separating him from his own people, of taking him away from the mother who bore him, the father who sacrificed to educate him, and the brothers and sisters who love him and with whom he has all memories in common.

What if these people have not had the social advantages that your parents have had and their manners are not as polished? What if they are not as well educated? Some of the truest and noblest hearts in the world beat under shabby clothes. Some of the finest ladies and gentlemen I have ever known lacked parlor tricks and wouldn't have known their way among the forks and spoons at a formal dinner. Some of the wisest men and women I have ever known expressed opinions that would have done credit to Salaman, in shaky grammar. Most of the great men in this country have come from just plain people as these you despise.

And I certainly don't think it wise to try to change a man after you are married to him, for fow men take kindly to correction. Marry a man you don't need to change, or accept the man you marry as he is.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My husband is awfully good to me and buys me beautiful clothes, and he adores both the baby and me. Our life together would be just Heaven if he didn't accuse me of nagging every time I speak to him about something that he does that I don't like. Is it nagging for a wife to tell her husband what she thinks about certain things that he does that are wrong?

WORRIED.

Some Women Unconscious Naggers

ANSWER — Every husband has his own private definition of what constitutes nagging. Speaking generally, nagging is harping on the same string, making the same suggestion over and over again, repeating the same admonition or advice hundreds of times.

For instance, it is nagging when a wife reminds her husband every time he lights a cigarette or gets out his pipe of what an extravagance the use of tobacco is, and how injurious it is to the nerves, or how it scents up the curtains. It is nagging when she is forever throwing in his teeth the time he lent some money to a friend that never was repaid, or the night he stayed down late at the lodge, or the occasion when he wouldn't change his shoes when his feet were wet and got a bad cold.

It is nagging when, year after year, his wife tries to make him go to her church, or she tries to make him resign from his club, and to give up all of his little tastes and pleasures because she doesn't happen to like them. It is nagging when she never lets him rest about buying something special she wants, or doing over the house, or doing anything else she has set her heart upon.

Nagging is much more common than women realize, because most women are constitutionally incapable of saying a thing once and letting it alone. The majority of them haven't very much that is new to think about, and so their minds run upon any little grievance until it becomes an obsession with them. And without realizing it, they dwell on that one particular subject until it gets on their husbands' nerves.

In your case, WORRIED, the remedy for the situation is clearly indicated. If your husband considers it nagging to have you tell him of his faults, don't do it. After all, a man doesn't marry to get somebody correct him. And if you do feel that you have to call his attention to his mistakes, do it once, and let the matter drop. Don't keep rubbing your reprimand in.

Of course, it is pretty hard for a wife to keep silent when she sees her husband doing something of which she disapproves, but if you can secure a happy home by keeping your tongue between your teeth, it is worth the price.

The floss of milkweed is used in making lifebelt preservers.

WRENS' NEW HEADGEAR — New hats for Canadian Wren ratings are the order of the day for duty wear and stepping out! Left: new black velour tricorne similar except for the talley band to the officer's hat. This is a becoming, feminine type of hat and will be worn during off duty hours, formal parades and on other specified occasions. Ratings tricornes will bear the traditional black silk talley band with the gold letters H.M.C.S. Right: It looks like a sailor hat and it's really a sailor wearing it! This is the new Wren beret, popularly known as Wren Wrig because it will soon be piped as "Rig of the Day" for all Canadian Wrens on duty. Of stiffened navy blue flannel, so dark it almost looks like black, the beret adds that extra something to the uniform of navy blue jacket and skirt. The uniform too is being streamlined and will soon be issued in smarter style.

Canadian Wrens Adopt New Headgear For Stepping Out and For Duty Wear

There isn't a woman in Canada who doesn't like to perk up a drooping winter wardrobe with a new hat, even before the spring models begin to appear in the shops. That is what the Canadian Wrens are doing this month. Issued with black felt tricornes recently, they now are receiving trim little navy blue sailor hats, almost like those the boys wear.

Instead of the one navy felt stroller which has been standard equipment from the beginning of their organization, the two new hats have definite roles to play. The sailor hat, which the members of the W.R.C.N.S. have nicknamed "Wrenwrig," will be worn when piped as rig of the day. That means it is the official uniform for duty wear.

But off-duty, the Wrens may blossom out in silk stockings and their "Tiddley" tricorne, for dates and dining out. The tricorne will also be worn for special events, formal inspection, Sundays and church parades. Incidentally, in the Navy, "tiddley" is the word to describe how sailors look when they're dressed up ready to go ashore, and it applies to Wrens, too.

The talley-band or hat ribbon of black silk which is worn by Wren ratings on both the sailor beret and the tricorne, will still bear the proud gold letters "H.M.C.S." signifying that the Wren is a member of the ship's company aboard one of His Majesty's Canadian ships.. even though it be a "stone frigate" ashore. Those letters are all that indicate naval service to the casual observer from now on, for Wrens have been authorized to take down the blue badge of the W.R.C.N.S. and replace it with gold "Canada" badges on the shoulder of their winter jackets and greatcoats.

In the Navy, the "Canada" badge doesn't necessarily indicate overseas duty. All personnel of the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service are to wear the badge no matter where they serve. Blue "Canada" badges will be worn on the light blue summer uniforms. Members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps at home have been wearing "Canada" badges for some time, but the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. still reserves it for overseas duty.

The Wren's navy blue uniform itself is to see some streamlined changes soon, when Wrens will be issued a "tiddley" suit of finer blue serge, with longer, slimmer lines, and better tailoring than their seaman's serge numbers. Add the new gold badges, trim new hats, and maybe a service ribbon for those who have been in for 18 months, and that's what some of the best-dressed girls will be wearing for Spring, 1944.

Victory Recipes Approved By Experimental Kitchen

By LAURA C. PEPPER.
Chief Consumer Section Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Nutritionists constantly stress the value of whole grain cereals for the health-protective vitamins and minerals they contain. There is another excellent reason for using them in many types of recipes ... they taste good.

In recent weeks the test kitchen in the Consumer section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has been a busy place. There the home economists have been at work testing all sorts of recipes using whole grain cereals. Here are some of the results of their experiments — recipes you will be glad to add to your collection.

Cuthbertson Wants World Peace Plan

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.— (CP).— Ely Culbertson said at a meeting of the people's forum last night that plans for the international post-war world should be measured against the "double yardstick" of effectiveness and political acceptability.

The noted bridge expert outlined the plan contained in his book, "Total Peace," and said that in any plan for the post-war world there could be no particular political ideology, "only the ideology of lasting peace."

"The world," he said, "cannot wait until any ideology triumphs over others—we must build a house in which every ideology can live in peace."

CIVIL SERVICE JUVENILES

LONDON — (CP). — The proportion of juveniles working in the Civil Service is the highest in the history of departmental White hall. One-third of the 700,000 civil servants are between the ages of 14 and 21. In peacetime, only a handful of boys and girls under 16 were employed in the service.

Australia Leads In War Activity

By J. E. HOLDSWORTH,
Canadian Press Correspondent.

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 25 — (CP Cable) — No warring country ever tried to do so much with so few people as Australia has attempted, the Sidney Daily Telegraph said recently in an editorial page article, illustrated with diagrams, on Australia's manpower problem.

Australia has one in eight of her population in the fighting services, compared with one in 20 in Canada (to the end of 1942), one in nine in Britain, one in 11 in Germany, one in 13 in the United States and one in 25 in Japan, the newspaper said.

Australia's male population over 14 years of age numbers only 2,816,000 of which 90 per cent is either fighting or working, the rest being schoolboys, students, the aged or crippled. From the beginning of the war until the end of October, 1943, the number of men employed in all rural industries fell from 500,000 to 360,000.

Butter Falls Off.

The number of cows being milked has fallen off by 250,000 and butter production has decreased from 203,000 tons in 1938-39 to 169,000 last year.

"Australia has made comparatively use of its woman power," the Daily Telegraph said. "Of women and girls over 14 years old, only about seven per cent is in the services or war work compared with nearly 40 per cent in Britain. Not one-third of the women in Australia are in full-time employment outside their homes. As the war in the Pacific mounts and the number of British and United States forces grows, Australia will need more labor to provide food, transport and other essential services."

The writer of the article followed it later with quotations from the November issue of "Canada at War," issued by the Canadian Wartime Information Board. Figures were quoted showing that out of 4,240,000 women and girls over 14 years of age, 1,200,000 were gainfully employed including 830,000 farm women. The Telegraph writer concluded Australia's wartime problems were similar to Canada but Canada is making a more balanced use of her man and women power.

In an editorial on the article, the Daily Telegraph said that Australia in the fifth year of the war had "reached a man-power deadlock."

Gigantic Army.

"The reason is to be found in the gigantic army we set out to create two years ago when the Japanese threatened to invade our coasts," the newspaper added. "With the invasion menace gone and the Japanese retreating in the north, the Government must revise its colossal diversion of manpower to the armed forces. It is far more important now to divert available manpower to supply food and equipment without which the offensive in the southwest Pacific must flag."

Mines Minister Webb of New Zealand has outlined to Australian ministers and mining officials how that Dominion is dealing with the coal mines. After a big mining strike a year ago, the New Zealand Government took over more than 60 per cent of them and the industry is operated by a Board of Control consisting of employers and employees under Webb as chairman.

Owners of the mines taken over received profits based on the previous year's trading and would be compensated for any damage.

"Only one thing matters," namely maximum production, and we are getting that," Webb said, adding that all sides had co-operated in running the mines and production had beaten all records.

Nearly 18,000 enemy aircraft were brought down by the Royal Air Force, and Fleet Air Arm and Dominion and Allied planes operating with it, from September of 1939 to the end of June, 1943. This does not include aircraft destroyed on the ground, 3,000 in the Middle East.

C.P.R. Conductor Is Fatally Injured

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 25.—(CP). — Albert Allen, 61-year-old Canadian Pacific Railway conductor of Toronto, died today in hospital here from shock, three hours after he had his left leg amputated when he slipped from his train platform and fell under the wheels.

Conductor Allen was on the platform of the last coach of the Chicago-Montreal limited, arriving in London early when he slipped on a piece of ice and fell to the ground. He was unable to pull himself from the tracks and the last set of wheels passed over his leg. First aid was applied by railway employees on the spot.

Conductor Allen has been with the C.P.R. for more than 40 years. He joined the service in this city in 1902 as a trainman.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, January 26

There are certain prospects of progress in business and affairs generally, but this may depend entirely upon the patience, perseverance, diligence and well-organized plans and programs of those affected by a planetary slowing down of forces and disposition, with inertia and indifference to make a winning attack on opposing factors, with limitations and depressions. Avoid morbid attitudes toward difficulties and disappointments. Only a direct, energetic and determined attack on stubborn obstacles or crystallized conditions will succeed.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be called upon to summon all their latent ability, fortitude, persistence and industry to bring to bear on static or crystallized conditions, or stubborn obstacles which seem insurmountable. Particularly as the physical energies and mental morbidity may be difficult to rouse from an attitude of hopelessness. However it is only necessary to shake out of this inertia, and make plans for constructive programs for more auspicious times, most probably tomorrow.

A child born on this day should have much latent talent, with studious and deep-seated mind, logical and decisive, but may have to surmount obstacles.

6 Polish-Canadian Girls Learn Guerrilla Fighting

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SOMEWHERE IN SCOTLAND, Jan. 25—(CP)—somewhere in Scotland six Canadian girls of Polish birth are learning the grim and bitter lessons of war.

As members of the Polish Auxiliary territorial service who have recently arrived in Britain and girls are training to enter Europe with the Polish armed forces. Theirs are not the gentler arts of war—cooking, stenography, wireless operation, transport driving.

They are learning sniping, military field tactics, guerrilla warfare. When their course is through they will be able to handle Bren guns, field rifles, and hand grenades.

Heroine Leader

One of Poland's heroines during the German invasion of their homeland is the commandant of more than 6,000 Polish women most of whom, after intensive training in the use of defensive weapons, have been assigned to military units.

Many of the volunteers in the Polish A.T.S. served in Russian labor camps before they were released to enlist.

Seven American girls came with the Canadians to Britain, and the party was led by Lieut. Halina Eminowicz of New York city, who trained with the Canadian Women's Army Corps before she took up a post at Polish Military headquarters in Ottawa.

Wladyslawa Branka, of Windsor, Ont., was the first Canadian girl to enlist. Another volunteer, Mary Zawiska, also comes from Windsor, where she worked in a bank before enlistment. Genowefa Latwinski was also working in Windsor in a defence plant as a skilled machine operator.

nearly everyone who can skate is playing in the N.H.L. this season.... Eddie Shore has 52 players on his Buffalo Bisons reserve list.... There isn't a club in the big show who couldn't use some of them.... After losing two games over the week-end the Leafs tackle Canadiens in Montreal next and that could easily be another loss for the Daymen. As a matter of record no one has succeeded in beating the Canadiens on their own ice this season.... Sole threat to the Montrealers right now would seem to be the Detroit Red Wings.

With Boys In Services

The editor of this column will welcome extracts from letters from boys serving or any other information concerning them.

By JEAN STENTON

"Service men first" is the motto wherever Canadian soldiers, sailors or airmen go when they are visiting the United States, and several Peterborough boys have remarked on the difference in the Canadian and American attitudes towards the men who are in the forces.

Some time ago a Peterborough airman made a trip to Chicago with the Central Band from Ottawa, and since his return, he has been enthusiastically relating the consideration and kindness which he and his companions received in every part of the great city.

When he casually asked a man he met on the street, how to reach a certain section, the pedestrian said "wait a minute and I'll drive you there." But his hospitality did not end with that. On the way he stopped and purchased cigarettes for the airman and refused to consider allowing him to pay for them.

Couldn't Spend Money

Some of the bandsmen were eating at a restaurant one night and at the conclusion of the meal, when they aproached the cashier she informed them that their meals had been paid for by someone at the neighboring table. One of the airman's most embarassing moments came when he went to board a street car. He stepped back to allow a woman to enter and looking at him in amazement she said: "Oh no, service men go first."

In commenting on the situation in Canada, the bandsman declared that in Ottawa, where he is stationed, if there are two people, a civilian and a soldier at a counter in a store, the civilian invariably is waited on first. In the United States, more appreciation is shown to the men in the forces for the job they are doing, than in Canada, has been the general comment of service personnel.

In the large arena where hundreds of thousands heard the Central Band perform, the visitors were greeted with a gigantic fireworks display with the words "Welcome Canada." Throughout their entire visit, the airmen were treated "like royalty."

Canadian soldiers are contributing just as much to the war effort as their American comrades-in-arms, and a little extra kindness should not come amiss. Most hostesses here have been well repaid for their trouble in entertaining soldiers and it gives the boys some happy memories to take with them "over there."

JOHN LAWRENCE BATT

John Lawrence Batt of Lindsay, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Batt, 10 Elgin street, recently graduated as a wireless air gunner at Mossbank, Sask. The young airman, who has lived in the Lindsay and Peterborough district most of his life, is a son of Sidney Batt and the late Mrs. Batt of London, Eng. He is anxious to return "over the water" to pay the Nazis back for their bombing of his native city.

The first Hastings village girl to enlist in any of the forces open to women, is Miss Isabel Fowlds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fowlds, who has joined the Wrens and will report February 1 in Toronto. She has been employed by the Royal Bank of Canada for 2½ years, and during the past year acted as teller. Miss Fowlds attended Campbellford High School and one year at the University of Toronto.

Kindness to a British refugee after the outbreak of the war brought its reward this Christmas when Cpl. Hugh Cheeseman, R.C.O.C. overseas, wrote that he spent the holiday with the parents of the little war guest who is at present living with his wife and her mother and father.

His wife, formerly Jean Follis, is the daughter of a former Peterborough man, H. E. Follis, who was a linotype operator at the Examiner for a time, and an employee of the Canada Packers. He moved to Napanee about 13 years ago, but a sister, Mrs. A. Harris, lives at 505 Paterson street. He was overseas with the 21st Battalion in the last war.

The little boy, Eric Windale, 9 years old, reached Canada shortly after the Athenia was sunk, and he became well acquainted with Cpl. Cheeseman before he went overseas in October 1943. His sister, is also living near him in Napanee, and the parents, grateful for an opportunity to repay the kindness extended their children, opened up their new home to the soldier far from home.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Trotter, RR. No. 4, Peterborough, have received a cable stating that their two sons, Robert and Albert Trotter, have arrived in England. Both went across on the same boat, although one is with the R.C.A.F. and the other in the Army.

Before enlisting in the R.C.A.F., Robert was employed by Pedlar's Ammunition factory in Oshawa and Albert, a trooper, with the C.C.C. R.U., was a truck driver in Brockville. Their sister, Lt. Nursing Sister Sadie Trotter, has been in England since September.

GNR. CLIFFORD SINCLAIR

Mrs. Rosina Sinclair, 10 Elgin St., Lindsay, has received official confirmation that her husband, Gnr. Clifford Sinclair, has been wounded while in action in Italy. The extent of his injuries is not yet known.

Gnr. Sinclair is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sinclair of Cranbrook Ave., Toronto. He was born in Barrie and worked at Midland and Woodstock. He enlisted with the R.C.A. in London, July 1940 and went overseas in February 1941.

Thoughtful gestures from the people back home are greatly appreciated by the soldiers, and the city council has been receiving letters of thanks for their Christmas posters from many Peterborough boys. One of the latest to arrive, from Cpl. R. G. Reed, says in part:

"From the pictures on your card, I see the old home town has not changed a great deal except for the Lift Locks. I can remember way back when I used to walk the Hunter street bridge before it was finished. Also how many times I've bowed my head in remembrance to my father in Central Park, at the monument to our fathers who fell for freedom in the last war. There will be a few from this war to be added to it.

"When I return to Peterborough, I hope to be able to have a job which will enable me to keep my wife and three children in comfort and I hope I will be given the opportunity. Any mail from Peterborough friends will be greatly appreciated."

Fighter Escort Proves Effective

By HENRY B. JAMIESON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 25—(AP)—United States heavy bombers, with a full escort of many types of fighters, resumed their war on the Reich today and smashed at a number of military objectives in northern and western Germany, U.S. headquarters announced.

One formation went on an expedition to search out whatever targets presented themselves and wrecked an important objective in northern Germany with a salvo of several tons which left splashes of fire and smoke covering the spot.

The target, which was not specifically identified, was attacked when the primary objective — also unannounced—was found too well covered with clouds to permit accurate bombing.

Surprised Nazi fighter and ground defenders got into action too late to cause the bombers and their heavy escort much anxiety.

Nine Nazi fighters were the most seen at any one time, and they found the circle of protective fighters too imposing to crack.

Queen's Teacher J. Matheson Dies

KINGSTON, Jan. 25 (CP)—John Matheson, Dean Emiritus of the Faculty of Arts, Queen's University, died in hospital here Monday. He was 70.

Born at Arnow, Ont., Dean Matheson spent most of his adult life at Queen's, enrolling as a student in 1895 and retiring last September as the oldest member of the staff. He joined the staff in 1902 and last October received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

Surviving are his widow, two sons, Dr. Donald Matheson of Brockville, Ont., and George of Timmins, and one daughter, Mrs. Morris Conway of Toronto.

Clemency Hearing

ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 25—(AP)—A clemency hearing Feb. 2 for Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, one-time boss of "Murder, Inc." now awaiting electrocution in Sing Sing prison, was announced today by Governor Dewey of New York. Buchalter's case will be considered with those of two associates in the murder ring, Emmanuel (Mendy) Weiss and Louis Capone. All three are under sentence to die Feb. 10 for the 1936 slaying of Joseph Rosen, Brooklyn storekeeper.

SLAMS MINUS AN ACE

MANY SLAMS are made by declarers who lack an ace, simply because it does not get used on the very first trick. Either the outstanding ace is held by the partner of the leader, who opens a different suit, or else the holder of the ace fails to lay it down. He holds to it for one of two reasons—either the idea that it will be ruffed, in cases where the suit is long, or that, if the suit is short, he will by its lead set up an honor for the declarer and thus present him with a needed trick.

The first sequence is the bidding at one table of a recent championship tournament of New York's Inter-Club Contract league. East did not feel strong enough to over-call the opening heart bid at the range of two. At the other table, the artificial club was being used by North-South, so East was tipped off at once that North had a hand which was powerful generally. Consequently, he bid to prepare his side for a later sacrifice, if it seemed advisable.

Notice how that difference in bidding influenced the opening lead. At Table 1, West laid down his club A for one trick, and later East got the setter with his bunched trumps. Where East had bid clubs at Table 2, however, West was afraid South could ruff the opening club because his own side held so many. He picked instead the heart J.

South in that case was Walter Beinecke, head of the league and one of its best players. He won that with the K, led the spade A, returned with the diamond Q, scored two more top trumps, then led diamonds. On the third he discarded his only club, and on the fourth, which East ruffed, the heart 3. Consequently he got the rest of the tricks, losing only the ruffed fourth diamond, and made his contract.

To lead or not to lead an ace against a small slam is quite a question.

KEENE, Jan. 25 — (ENS)—The Red Cross Society of Otonabee held its Annual Meeting recently in the Council Chamber of the Town Hall when the report of the treasurer, D. D. Brown, showed that during 1943 $2,959 had been raised by the society, and after paying all bills there was a balance of $474.

The report of the Women's War Work Committee given on behalf of the convener, Mrs. Gerald Adamson stated that in 1943 there were 22,226 articles made which included hospital supplies, clothing, knitted articles, comfort bags which were filled, and quilts. This was the work of seven groups with about 100 workers. A resolution of appreciation was extended to the convener, to Mrs. Sarah Wood and all the workers in the township for the splendid work done.

The chairman who represented the Branch at the Provincial Council held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, last year, gave a brief account of the Convention. He said "If it had not been for the parcels of food sent by the Canadian Red Cross Society many of our Armed Forces and civilians who are prisoners of war would not have been alive to-day".

A report on th drive for Blood Donors in Otonabee was given which showed that twenty-five responded to the call. It was noted that a good percentage of those who gave their blood were from homes where sons and daughters are in the Armed Forces. Information for prospective blood donors will be given by the local Society or call the Blood Donors Clinic, Peterborough.

Rescue 4 Girls From Icy Water

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 25 —(CP). — Four little St. Catharines girls who obtained money from their parents on Saturday to go to the theatre were recovering to-day after being rescued from a near fatal dip in the icy waters of Lake Ontario after they had used the money for street car fare.

They went to Lakeside Park, Port Dalhousie, and were playing on a ledge of ice beside the pier when the ice collapsed, plunging them into the icy current of the old Welland Canal.

The girls were Shirley Teal 8, and Dawn Teal 11, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Teal, Jessie Barton 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Barton, and Irene Argent 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Argent.

Shirley, the only one who could not swim, landed on the cake of ice. The others clambered on and they clung to it for half an hour before they were rescued. The girls had been swept almost half a mile and would have been beyond reach in Lake Ontario in another five minutes. They were pulled to shore by John Boese, 28, nearby farmer, and three other men whom he summoned.

They were Jimmy Thomas, who had taken part in many sensational rescues off Port Dalhousie; Jimmy Cain, and George Cleet, workers at Muir Brothers dry dock.

Irene Argent was so cold that when she was rescued in a kneeling position she could not straighten up.

Think Big

...when you plan for Canada's future

MAKE no little plans when you think of Canada's future. Think of fine, gracious, healthy cities . . . of a smiling, prosperous countryside . . . think of new highways, broad and straight . . . of modernized railroads . . . of new airways. Think of new centres of recreation and culture . . . of enlarged universities and new schools . . . new libraries . . . new parks and arenas. Think of a greater, a worthier nation.

For Canada, when this war is ended, will stand on the threshold of a splendid and challenging opportunity. The need will be there, the time will be ripe, for vast, unprecedented development. Willing hands will be there a-plenty, accumulated wealth will be there, national resources and the power to convert them to the general good will be there. Let us plan courageously when we figure out Canada's future.

Let us plan for lovelier, more labour-saving homes . . . plan for spacious and beautiful towns.

Let us plan for wider, safer highways, well-graded and well-lit . . . for modernized railroads, for greater electrification . . . for new bridges, new clover-leafs. Let us plan the spread of rural electrification until its benefits reach every farm and every hamlet.

Let us plan with vision for a richer cultural life. Let us plan new centres of science and art . . . colleges, laboratories, dramatic-centres, galleries. Let us plan, for leisure and health, new open spaces in our cities and towns . . . new sports bowls . . . new swimming pools. Let us plan the modernization of our factories, offices and stores—by re-equipment and reorganization . . . let us plan for lighter work yet greater productivity . . . for increased speed yet greater safety.

Let us plan for fuller living, greater opportunity, economic security.

While there must not be the slightest relaxation of our all-out efforts to win the war—we must plan and we must start planning now. We have had our lesson in unpreparedness. We must not gamble with peace as we gambled with war.

Many governmental, municipal and industrial groups already are planning. Many individuals are planning. But not enough. More planning, much more planning is needed. Whether we are houseowners, business operators, farmers, civic leaders—let us all plan for Canada's postwar future . . . let us plan with confidence, with courage—

For by planning today, we prepare ready-made markets for tomorrow—markets which will absorb our fullest productive effort, thus creating full and gainful employment for everyone.

QUARTER MILLION NAZIS ENCIRCLED

Britain Refuses Recognition Of Russia's Claim For Partitioning Of Poland

Eden Leaves Loophole In Statement Says Britain Will Approve If Parties Concerned Agree To Changes

By ROGER GREENE—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 26—(AP).—Cautiously sidestepping a showdown on the ticklish question of Polish territorial sovereignty, Foreign Secretary Eden reaffirmed today Britain's policy of not recognizing wartime changes in the map of Europe.

However, he left a loophole by quoting the statement of Prime Minister Churchill that no changes would be recognized "unless they take place with the free consent and goodwill of the parties concerned."

Mr. Eden's declaration made clear that Britain does not recognize the partition of Poland made by Germany and Russia following the Nazi invasion on September 1, 1939.

Referring to a statement on non-recognition of Polish territorial changes which he had addressed to the late Premier Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski in 1941 after Russia and the Polish government in exile had signed a pact, Mr. Eden told the House of Commons:

Atlantic Charter Stands.

"This remains the position. His Majesty's Government of course stands on the principles enunciated in the Atlantic Charter."

Russia recently proposed that the Polish-Soviet frontier be adjusted on the basis of the Curzon line proposed by an Allied commission after the First Great War. This line would leave Russia in possession of most of the territory she took in 1939.

The Polish government in London suggested Britain and the United States mediate the dispute, but the Soviet announced it considered the Polish stand a rejection of its offer of settlement of the boundary controversy.

He also quoted Prime Minister Churchill's statement of Sept. 3, 1940, in which he declared that "we have not at any time adopted since this war broke out the line that nothing could be changed in the territorial structure of various countries. On the other hand, we do not propose to recognize any territorial changes which take place during the war, unless they take place with the free consent and good will of the parties concerned."

Mr. Eden then told the House that "this statement represents the view of His Majesty's Government."

Gen. Mark Clark Lands With Troops

By CLARK LEE

AT AN INVASION BEACHHEAD IN ITALY, Jan. 25 (Delayed) — Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark, Commander of the 5th Army, inspected this beachhead this morning, watched the troops and expressed complete satisfaction with the progress in this sector.

The General told me that everything was going well and according to plan. He said the Germans were fighting hard on the Cassino front to prevent a 5th Army breakthrough.

As on his previous visit on the forenoon of D-day, Gen. Clark found himself on the beach itself during an enemy air raid only 100 yards from the ships which were the targets of the German fighter-bombers.

Rescue Injured As Bombs Hit Hospital Ship

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(AP)— In a broadcast from Allied advance headquarters in Italy CBS correspondent John Daly said last night three Allied hospital ships, "lighted up like Christmas trees," had been bombed by German planes in Anzio Bay Monday and one had been sunk.

(Allied Headquarters at Algiers said to-day German bombers had attacked three hospital shibs well outside the invasion zone, sinking one of them. The announcement said all three were lighted and carried Red Cross markings.

Daly, aboard a destroyer off the beach, said the warship had intercepted a message from the hospital ship Leinster identifying the vessel sunk as the St. David.

He reported that the Germans had attacked with both torpedo and dive bombers and had also employed the new glider bombs.

Deliberate Raid.

Daly's broadcast account of the bombing said in part:

"I have before me the SOS's sent out by these hospital ships between 5.42 and 7.27, last night. I will quote them. I don't think I need do any more.

"The first was from the hospital ship Leinster, which said: 'Have been bombed and am on fire. Then followed in quick succession:

"'Hospital ship St. Andrew being continually bombed.'

"'Hospital ship Leinster being bombed again.'

And then from the Leinster and the St. Andrew came these messages.

"The time was 7.27. Said the Leinster: 'Hospital ship St. David sunk. Am going to her assistance.' The St. Andrew repeated the message and added: 'We are picking up survivors.'

"This is no hearsay. Our destroyer was being attacked at the same time on the other side of the bay. I saw the bombs hit all around the three ships, and I heard with my own ears the SOS messages."

The attack was delivered shortly after dark. Survivors said the three hospital ships were at least 10 miles from the zone where Allied warships and landing craft were located. All three ships were painted

Reds Sever 2 Escape Routes Trap Leningrad Army In Pocket South Of City

Several Large Centres Outflanked Expected To Surrender Soon As Soviets Drive Toward Baltic

By HENRY C. CASSIDY—Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Jan. 26—(AP).—The great Russian northern offensive has reached the two main railroads running west and south of Leningrad, cutting off approximately 250,000 Nazi troops from direct communication with the rest of the German army.

A Soviet war communique last night said Gen. Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad army had fought its way into the strategic rail hub of Krasnogvardeisk, 30 miles southwest of Russia's second city to sever the important trunk line running west to the Estonian city of Reval. Krasnogvardeisk is also the northern terminus of a railway running southwest to Luga and Puskov.

Govorov's troops stormed into Krasnogvardeisk from Pushkin, 14 miles to the northeast, and front dispatches reported that the town, already outflanked from the east and west, was expected to fall momentarily.

Vladimirskaya, nine miles east of Krasnogvardeisk on a branch line to Tosno, junction point on the Leningrad-Moscow main railway line, was captured in this drive, while other units of Govorov's forces moved across the Leningrad-Moscow line between Tosno and Chudovo. (A British radio broadcast, recorded by CBS, said to-day Tosno's capture was expected soon.)

The Germans were reported battling violently to hold their grip on these main rail arteries but their use of them already has been neutralized by Govorov's swift advance, an the Nazis have been forced to fall back on two secondary lines running south to a junction with other railroads serving Luga and Pskov.

Menace Junction.

These lines, however, were simultaneously threatened by the westward advance of Gen. K. A. Meretskov's Volkhov army from Novgorod, which already is reported close to the junction points so vital to German escape plans.

The main Moscow-Leningrad railway was breached in a swift drive from Kirishi, 28 miles northeast of Chudovo.

More than 1,800 Germans were reported killed in yesterday's fighting south of Leningrad. Booty included an entire German military train stocked with tanks and guns, the Soviet communique said.

Capture by Meretskov of Ostrov, nine miles east of the Leningrad-Vitebsk railway, placed the escape valve within range of Soviet big guns, thus throwing the main weight of Nazi withdrawal on the last line available — the Leningrad-Pskov-Warsaw railway.

Russians Reject Mediation Offer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—(AP).—State Secretary Cordell Hull announced today that Russia had rejected the offer of the United States to employ its "good offices" in restoring diplomatic relation between Poland and Russia.

Hull made the announcement at a news conference.

He brought out that the Russians took the position that they do not feel the situation between themselves and Poland is right for successful use of the U.S. offer at this time.

The reply states, Hull said, that the Soviet government does not feel that conditions have yet ripened to a point where such good offices could be used to advantage.

The Russians began their note of rejection, he said, with an expression of appreciation for the offer.

What further action, if any, the United States may take, either alone or in co-operation with Britain which also had offered to seek a resumption of relations between Poland and Russia, remained unanswered by Hull.

Military Men Seeking Election

By JACK BELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 —(AP)—Members of the United States Congress discovered today in the midst of their efforts to make the ballot available to service men and women that some war veterans not only want to vote but intend to run for office—and national office, at that.

Two special elections to fill vacancies in the House of Representatives are pointing up a growing tendency on the part of military men to enter the political lists this year.

Lieut. George E. Andrews of the United States Navy, now stationed at Pearl Harbor, has become a candidate for Congress while on active duty. Andrews led a field of five in the first primary to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Henry B. Steagall, a Democrat, in the third Alabama district.

In Colorado, the Democrats have nominated Maj. Carl E. Wuertele, wounded and bemedalled hero of Pearl Harbor, Midway and more than 200 aerial combat missions, as their candidate in a March 7 special election to fill the seat vacated by the death of Representative Lewis, a Democrat.

These two cases apparently are

Social Security Legislation Almost Certain

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 26—(CP). — The Federal Cabinet has given close attention to recommendations of parliamentary committees and other investigations on post-war reconstruction and social security, it was stated today in the Speech from the Throne at the prorogation of the fourth session of the 19th Parliament.

The references in the Speech, read by Hon. Thibaudeau Rinfret, new Chief Justice of Canada acting as deputy to the Governor-General, were taken as indication of early legislation and action in these fields details of which may be disclosed in the Speech which will open the fifth session tomorrow.

The prorogation ceremony was held in the Senate Chamber after members of the House of Commons had been called to the Upper House to hear the Speech.

As usual, the speech was a review of happenings since the start of the last session just about a year ago, world events during the year and the actions of parliament prior to adjournment last August.

Comment on War

The improved position of the United Nations in the war against the Axis, the participation of Canadian forces in various campaigns on land, sea and in the air, the record of Canada in food and munitions production at home all came in for comment.

Special mention was made of the action of parliament in providing for the appointment of parliamentary assistants to ministers, and the speech said: "I am glad that the hopes entertained of this development in the organization of parliament have been so fully realized."

The speech ended with a note of gratification at the success of the two Victory Loans raised during the year—"clear evidence of the determination of the Canadian people to do their utmost in the winning of the war"—and an expression of thanks to God for the increasing hope vouchsafed to the United Nations during the year.

Americans Reach Cassino In Second Attack; Allies 19 Miles From Rome

Germans Believed Retiring Fast To Avoid Allied Trap Created By New Invasion Forces

By WES GALLAGHER—Associated Press War Correspondent

ALGIERS, Jan. 26—(AP).—United States troops have stormed across the Rapido River in renewed battle for Cassino—already entered by patrols, field dispatches said—and 5th Army invasion forces south of Rome have speared deeper against "increasing resistance" it was announced today.

The Nazis apparently were pulling units back from the Cassino front to meet the great threat to their rear.

It now seems certain the invasion thrust has at least cut the Appian way, and seriously threatens the remaining Cassino-Rome highway, perhaps having it under artillery fire.

American combat units are advancing through minefields north of Cassino after a second crossing of the Rapido River, a headquarters officer declared.

Headquarters said it had no information that Cassino had yet been taken.

French Fall Back.

French troops north of the Baston town were forced from Mount Croce by bitter Nazi counter-attacks, with close fighting continuing.

While the Germans threw increasing opposition against the invasion troops who landed in the Nettuno-Anzio areas an Allied officer said this resistance still was "comparatively light."

Cairo radio said the Allies were 19 miles from Rome.

Allied planes in powerful numbers concentrated on slashing at enemy supply routes and troops between the 5th Army front and the new beachhead, and the main line between Florence and Rome, which the Germans must use to get reinforcements to the Rome area.

The Allies flew 1,100 sorties over the beachhead yesterday, compared with 60 by the Nazis. A Naval officer said the enemy attacks were causing "some trouble" however.

He disclosed that Allied warships, including French, had heavily bombarded the road between Terracina and Formia by daylight Monday, and made diversionary bombardments along the coast. Sunday night Allied motor torpedo boats attacked a German lighter convoy northwest of Rome, setting an escorting E-boat afire.

British troops on the western coastal end of the 5th Army line attacked and occupied Mt. Ceracole, two miles west of Castelforte.

It was considered likely that the Allied advance south of Rome had been so rapid the Germans do not know exactly how large the bridgehead has become, and headquarters is withholding that news until the Germans determine it by actual patrol clashes.

Advancing in the Garigliano area, on the southern Italian front, British troops captured Ceracoli, two

Russians Blame Nazis For Polish Massacre

By JUDSON O'QUINN
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 26—(AP)—A special Soviet investigating commission today placed the blame squarely on the Germans for the Katyn Forest massacre of 11,000 Polish war prisoners. This incident led to a break in diplomatic relations between the Soviet and the Polish government in London when the latter asked the International Red Cross to investigate after Germans blamed the Russians for the atrocity.

The report may have an important bearing on the Russian-Polish border dispute, an issue which re-echoed in the House of Commons again today.

Foreign Secretary Eden, sidestepping a showdown, reaffirmed Britain's policy of refusing to recognize wartime changes in the map of Europe. But he recalled Prime Minister Churchill's statement that no changes would be recognized "unless they take place with the free consent and good-will of the parties concerned."

Tito Recaptures Bosnian Town

LONDON, Jan. 26 — (CP) — Yugoslax Partisans have stormed and reoccupied the western Bosnian stronghold of Mrkonjicgrad, near Jajce, recently liberated headquarters bastion of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito), but have been forced to evacuate the strategic town of Tuzla in Eastern Bosnia, Tito's war bulletin said to-day.

Mrkonjicgrad was taken in the German advance down the Vrbas river valley from Banja Luka, 30 miles to the north, two weeks ago, which also overran the nearby hill fortress of Jajce and several other Partisan-held towns northeast of Sarajevo. Jajce was retaken January 21 by Tito's forces.

Tuzla fell before superior German forces Tito's communique reported. The battle for the town, which continued for more than a week, cost the Germans more than 500 men, the communique said.

Yugoslav 5th Division units have cut the important railway joining Sarajevo with the coastal area of Jercegovina to the southwest and have consolidated their hold on Kalinovic, 25 miles south of the Bosnian capital, the Partisons reported.

Germans Declare State Of Siege

BERNE, Jan. 26 — (AP). — Dispatches from the Italian frontier to-day said German authorities had proclaimed a state of siege in Rome as the progress of Allied troops fanning out from their Nettuno bridgehead touched off a new wave of anti-Nazi activity in the city

These reports said Allied sympathizers had attacked German barracks and supply depots and bombs had been thrown at military bureaux and at soldiers in the streets.

Insidious Propaganda Disturbs Allies

Evil Genius Of Hitler's Spies Aimed At Breeding Dissension

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Argentina's action in severing relations with Germany and Japan is a happy development for the United Nations, since it is a step in the direction of closing the dangerous breach in the anti-Axis front of the western hemisphere.

The next vital step is for all the nations of North and South America to join hands in a ruthless house-cleaning of subversive interests which are in the employ of Hitler and his gang. Should the great nation of Argentina feel able to give full co-operation in this work, it will assure the success which thus far has eluded the Allies in their efforts to exterminate the Hitlerian and Japanese agents in this hemisphere.

From the military standpoint things go well for the Allies in all theatres of war, but while the enemy's striking-power at arms is visibly deteriorating, he is managing by persistent and insidious means to create international political crises which are a grave menace to the security of the United Nations.

The evil Hitler's propagandists are busy trying to cause dissension among the Allies, especially among Russia, Britain and America, upon whose amicable co-operation depends the winning of this war and the peace to follow. His agents are boring into the vitals of every country in an effort to create internal disorganization and thus damage the war effort.

All this is a part of Der Fuehrer's general strategy of fighting delaying actions, both military and political, in the hope that time will produce some upheaval which will give him the victory that is denied his armies. Protraction of the war is his last desperate chance of salvaging something from the wreckage he has created.

One of the fields to which the Axis has been devoting tremendous energy is South America. The Hitlerian purpose is two-fold: To create bases which will give the immediate help in his war against the forces of civilization, and to try to disrupt the unity of the western hemisphere and thus weaken the strength of the Allies to make war.

Bolivia Tangled

One of the latest hot-spots in the western hemisphere is Bolivia seems to have stubbed its toe badly in permitting the creation of a government which other leading South American nations have hastened to disavow and which Britain and the United States have refused to recognize.

One of the most significant things in connection with this development is the solidarity of the United States and Britain on the question. The Allies aren't going to extend themselves to the limit to uproot these isms and destroy them in the Axis countries and then overlook them in other parts of the world.

Thus those countries which now give aid and comfort to the Axis are building on shifting sands.

Sailors Do Strange Things

Order To Abandon Ship Brings Change

NAPLES, Jan. 26 —(AP) —Men do strange things when a terrific explosion blows their ship apart and they hear the order to abandon ship. Here are samples of what happened when an American merchant ship struck an underwater explosive recently in the Mediterranean:

1. Deck officer looked frantically for the ship's cat—completely ignoring his personal belogings. The cat was about to produce kittens, and there had been considerable finance speculation among the crew as to when the litter would arrive and how many new ship's cats would be aboard. The cat could not be found and the officer just made the last lifeboat.

2. The third officer made his way across the slanting deck to his cabin, where he calmly laid aside a 17-jewel watch and a signet ring and picked up six handkerchiefs and a novelty bracelet, presents purchased for his wife. He took nothing else with him, and the watch and ring went down with the ship.

3. The chief engineer selected the zest of three suits of freshly washed dungarees and donned it. He ignored all belongings.

4. A seaman went to his bunk and sat down to change his shoes. Later in the lifeboat he discovered he was wearing two right shoes.

The abandonment was carried out quietly and efficiently. There was no loss of cargo, as the ship was in ballast.

But all pin up girls went to Davy Jones' locker.

Hospital Plan Stalled

Believe Casualties Will Be Crowded

TORONTO, Jan. 26 — (CP) — Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell, of Ontario says he believes the Dominion Government will temporize so long as a proposal to establish a military hospital on Sunnybrook farm property that Christie Street Hospital will have to be used for all casualties.

"I venture to predict that the Pensions Department will still roll the project over," he said last night in an address to Eglinton Progressive Conservative Association. "Through one excuse or another it will be delayed so long that so many casualties will be coming home before they have done anything, that they will still have to use Christie Street Hospital."

Mr. Blackwell said action on the military hospital, which for months has provoked discussion between city and Federal authorites is being delayed on the "fantastic" excuse that the Province has not passed legislation enabling the city to donate the Sunnybrook farm site, on Bayview Avenue just outside of Toronto.

Establishment of the hospital was urged by a special civic committee following repeated protests against a Federal Government proposal to build a $500,000 addition to Christie Street Hospital. The Federal Government subsequently approved the Sunnybrook site.

Alderman Sands Pays Tribute To G. N. Gordon

From aldermanic association and impressions, Alderman Adam Sands paid a nice compliment to G. N. Gordon, K.C., who retired from the council at the end of last year.

Scottish names were prominently placed in Peterborough, Alderman Sands said, going down a sketchy list: Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., Harold Scott, M.P.P., Ian McRae, John Stuart, George A. Macdonald, William Ferguson of Peterborough-Brinton, Alex Archibald of the county council and D. A. Macivor, County Engineer.

"Men of Scottish ancestry have made a worthy place in this city and county," Alderman Sands said. "I want to mention, also, G. N. Gordon, who, I can tell you from my experience with him, has the interest of Peterborough deeply at heart. In the City Council "G.N." tried to look after Peterborough in true Scottish style. Any time you think of Mr. Gordon, I hope you don't forget that. I might add that I did not know until only recently that the Swanstons were Scots."

That was something extra to the credit of Alderman Swanston, who was present at the dinner, Alderman Sands said in his lightly humored reference to his associate.

Alderman Sands' eulogy was given at the Burns' Dinner held Tuesday night at the Kawartha Club.

11,000 Poles Said Murdered

LONDON, Jan. 26 — (CP). — The Moscow radio announced today a special Soviet commission had found 11,000 bodies in Polish uniforms buried in the Katyn Forest, 10 miles from Smolensk, and charged that they were "Polish war prisoners shot by the German invaders."

The broadcast, recorded by the Soviet Monitor, said that the special commission began its inquiry September 26, 1943, when Lt.-Gen. Nikolai N. Burdenko of the People's Commissariat of Health and other members and experts arrived at Smolensk.

"The experts made a thorough investigation of the bodies, documents and factual evidence found on the bodies and in the graves," said the broadcast. "All this evidence establishes precisely the time and the circumstances of the crimes perpetrated by the German invaders."

Moscow first announced that the commission was studying the Katyn "massacre" on January 17 and

Gasoline Coupon Case Adjourned For Week

The charge against Richard B. Rogers, former service station operator of selling gasoline without adequate coupons contrary to the oil regulations was adjourned until February 2 after all the evidence had been heard Tuesday afternoon.

Magistrate Langley suggested the adjournment to give right-of-way to another case in which the witnesses had come a distance after several adjournments.

W. F. Huycke, K.C., who prosecuted and W. J. Arthur Fair who defended the accused, will present their arguments at the adjourned hearing.

The prosecution set out to show that Rogers was short 640 gallons of gasoline for which there were no coupons and the accused swore that he had sold no gas without coupons.

New Fighting Flares In Burma

NEW DELHI, Jan. 26.—(CP). — Fresh fighting has flared in the Chin Hills and Hukawng Valley of Northern Burma where American-trained Chinese troops are clearing a route for the new Ledo Road to China, a Southeast Asia Allied Command communique said to-day.

Chinese forces made further gains in the Kukawng Valley. R.A.F. dive-bombers supported ground troops in the Maungdaw area.

Fighter planes over Southern Burma ripped up Japanese communications, damaging more than 60 river craft and a steamer and hitting motor transport and locomotives. No planes were lost.

Further details on a sweep into Southern Burma Jan. 23 by American heavy bombers based in India, when shipping at the port of Mergui was blasted, indicate two coastal vessels and a 300-foot merchantman were set on fire and probably destroyed.

Japs Lose 54 Fighter Planes

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Quinea, Jan. 26 —(AP)—More than 150 American and New Zealand fighters and bombers, making "one of the best co-ordinated raids since the war began," shot down between 46 and 61 Japanese planes and destroyed eight more on the ground Sunday to raise the enemy losses in defence of Rabaul this month to more than 300.

The praise was voiced by Marine Maj.-Gen. Ralph Mitchell, commander of Allied air forces in the Solomons, after the raid was announced today by headquarters.

More than 40 dive bombers swept down on Lakunai, Rabaul's principal fighter strip, and silenced 17 anti-aircraft positions with 1,000-pound bombs. Eighteen torpedo bombers followed in to plant 2,000-pound bombs in the mid-section of concrete runways and on the coral extensions.

As the bombers turned away, 60 Japanese planes attacked, only to be set upon by 70 fighters, piloted by American and New Zealand fliers. These shot down at least 32 and probably 46 (some returning pilots counted 48) enemy planes which were added to the eight planes destroyed on the ground. Two bombers and three fighters were lost but one bomber crew and a fighter pilot were saved.

Allied count of Japanese aircraft lost at Rabaul this month includes 242 certainly shot down; 66 probably shot down and more than 20 ground planes destroyed. Allied losses slightly exceed 60.

Blame 4 Boys For Many Thefts

Four youths were arraigned in police court this morning on a series of charges that have been giving the local police department a lot of work for some time.

Gerald Sweet, 18, of 719 Donegal Street, was charged with stealing a watch, the property of John Loucks, with stealing five tires, tubes and wheels, the property of Major James McGrath, and jointly with Kenneth Hunter, 22, of 175 Adaline Street, and Maurice Pelland, 19, of 368 Water Street, of stealing an automobile belonging to Major McGrath.

John A. Bradshaw appeared for Sweet and asked for a remand for a week without plea or election and the cases were enlarged until next Wednesday.

Maurice Pelland, besides being charged jointly with Hunter and Sweet in the theft of Major McGrath's car, was also arraigned on a charge of stealing five tires, tubes and wheels from Major McGrath, and also to stealing an automobile from D. A. Wilson, Elcome Crescent.

Pelland also asked for a remand but later returned to court at his own request and entered a plea of guilty of the theft of the McGrath tires and to stealing the Wilson automobile, and at the request of the Crown was remanded a week for sentence.

Jack Maloney, 16, 148 Park Street, faced a charge of stealing an automobile from D. A. Wilson, and was also remanded a week without plea or election.

Kenneth Hunter, in addition to the joint charge involving the theft of the McGrath automobile, was also charged with stealing five tires, tubes and wheels, and was remanded for a week.

"The Germans lighted the skies for miles around with flares," a nurse said. "We heard anti-aircraft fire from other ships but we never dreamed the bombers would attack us. We had steamed well out to sea by that time and no warships or any other ships were near us."

Close Together.

The three hospital ships were clustered within a few thousand yards of each other.

"It wasn't an accident because they dive-bzombed us not once but several times," a survivor said, "it was a clear night and the ships were easily identifiable with their own lights and the glow from the flares."

The doomed hospital ship sank within six minutes. Survivors said nurses helped rescue squads get the wounded into lifeboats and themselves waited until the last possible moment before leaving.

"There were only a few wounded aboard our ship," a nurse said "We had just finished one surgery and were preparing for another when a bomb hit. We all were dazed and almost everything in the operating room was smashed or knocked over. We did the best we could. operating quickly and then we began receiving survivors. I heard that most of the wounded were saved."

Two Men Caught With Deer Fined

The story of how he had seen two men hauling the carcass of a 200-pound buck out of the Peterborough County game preserve with a horse attached to a small tree that was being used as a sled to carry the deer was told in the witness box in police court Tuesday afternoon by Fish and Game Overseer Vernal Windsor of Apsley.

The two men, William Clinton and William Davis of Burleigh township were being tried on a charge of having transported a deer without having atached to it the necessary shipping tag. They had originally been charged with hunting and killing the deer and the later charge was substituted when it was pointed out that the first count was not covered by the fish and game regulations.

Clinton, who pleaded not guilty, was tried first yesterday and was defended by John A. Bradshaw.

Overseer Windsor stated that on November 20, ten days after the end of the deer-hunting season he had seen Clinton and Windsor three miles inside the game preserve take down the carcass of a 200-pound buck from a tree. Then they had chopped down the tree, tied the deer to it, attach a horse to the make-shift sled and started to drive away when the witness accosted them. There was no shipping tag on the carcass, the witness stated.

To Mr. Bradshaw Windsor denied that when he first spoke to the men he told them he would see that they were paid for taking the deer out. The overseer said that he had told them when Eel's Creek was reached that if they would take the deer out to his car he would see that they were paid.

"Did you tell them that anybody who got a deer away up in there was entitled to it?" "I did not."

Clinton's story was that on the Sunday before while looking at some pine in the game preserve he had seen the carcass of the deer hanging in a tree and two days afterward he and Davis went into the preserve to take the deer out. He said that when they met the game overseer Windsor had told them that anybody who got a deer in there was entitled to it. He admitted to Crown Attorney McEldery that he did not attach a shipping tag to the deer.

Davis, called by the defence, corroborated Clinton's recital of what happened and added that it had been their intention to take the deer home and then notify Overseer Lyons.

Mr. Bradshaw argued that it was the common custom of hunters not to put shipping tags on their deer until after they had been brought into camp.

"But this was not their deer," said Magistrate Langley. "According to their story it was a deer they had found and they were transporting it."

In registering a conviction His Worship said that he did not give much credence to the defence evidence.

"Clinton was in possession of the deer, he was transporting it and it had no shipping tag on it," said Magistrate Langley.

Clinton was fined $20 and $4.50 costs or a month in jail. Davis then changed his plea to guilty and he was also fined $20 and $2.50 costs.

Argentina Cuts

Rios Gallardo expressed great pleasure at the Argentine decision, asserting that Argentina now stood with the rest of the countries of the Americas in a united front against the Axis.

A series of Government conferences on foreign policy nad extended far into the night but early today Argentina's intentions had been clouded by uncertainty.

Long Delayed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 —(AP)— United States government officials made no immediate comment today as Argentina announced her long-delayed break in diplomatic relations with the Axis powers, and there appeared to be a disposition here to adopt a "wait and see" attitude pending action on related orders which normally attend such breaks.

Such orders usually extend to suspension of communications facilities, such as radio-telephone and radio-telegraph, and termination of commercial relationships.

On the basis of past statements by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, it could be assumed there was gratification here that the action at Buenos Aires will close the last German and Japanese embassies in the western hemisphere.

Reich, France, Holland Hit By Raids

Few Planes Lost As R.A.F. Hits Varied Targets

LONDON, Jan. 26 —(CP)—Allied bombers and fighters hammered targets in northern France for the fourth straight day today after swift R.A.F. Mosquitoes had broken a one-night lull in the Allied aerial offensive by stabbing at unspecified objectives in western Germany.

R.A.F. raiders also struck at northern France during the night operations, which were carried out without loss, said the air ministry.

The day raiders encountered poorer conditions than yesterday, when the weather was almost ideal, and were flying under a layer of light cloud as they swept across the Channel.

United States Thunderbolts dropped bombs on enemy airfields at Gilzerijen, Holland, yesterday for the second time in three days as other Allied planes rocked the French coast for the third straight day and the 15th time this month.

The Americans bombed airfields at Leeuwarden, also in Holland, while Thunderbolt fighters swept the entire Zuider Zee area. The American operations were carried out without loss.

Strong formations of bombers and fighters hit the French coast in the morning and returned to drop more explosives in the afternoon. The raids were carried out by R.A.F., Dominion and Allied medium bombers and fighter-bombers escorted by fighters. Two of the latter failed to return.

miles from Smolensk without coffins, at the latest in the spring of 1942, were those of "Polish war prisoners shot by the German invaders."

To Boost Losses

The commission charged the massacre was perpetrated by the Germans to place the blame on the Soviet Union, to wipe out enemies of the Germans and to swell German statistics of enemy casualties.

The Soviet atrocity report was studied by the Polish government here.

The Russians previously had indicated they want a shakeup in the Polish government to eliminate some cabinet members who were inclined to accept the German version accusing the Russians of responsibility for the Katyn forest massacre.

If the Polish government here accepts the Soviet report and shakes up the cabinet it is believed here that Britain and the United States may be able re-establish diplomatic relations between Russia and the Polish government for the beginning of negotiating over the Polish eastern boundary dispute.

"The Moscow broadcast recorded by The Soviet Monitor said the commission's report documented the evidence of witnesses working and living in the vicinity of Katyn forest and the medical testimony of doctors who examined 925 exhumed corpses and concluded the bodies could not have been in the ground more than two years.

The Germans occupied the area in July, 1941. The commission headed by Gen. Nikolai N. Burkenko of the people's commissariat of health said documents found on the bodies were dated up to the summer of 1941. The Germans said the Poles were shot in 1940.

3 Toronto Men Get Prison Terms

TORONTO, Jan. 26 —(CP)—Sentences were handed down today for three Toronto men convicted Monday on charges of conspiracy in attempt to obtain deferments from military service.

Naiffe Stephen and R. A. Allen were sentenced to five years in penitentiary on each of two charges, the sentences to run concurrently. Robert Douglas received concurrent sentences of four years on the two charges in the indictment; of impeding operation of Selective Service Mobilization Regulations, and conspiring "to counsel by oral communication other persons to comply with call-up notices."

The fourth man charged under the original indictment was R. A. Irwin, who was acquited when the trial ended Monday.

There has been no action taken yet to appeal the convictions, although Allen and Stephen previously had signified their intention to carry their cases to the Ontario Appeal Court. The four men were arrested last July after a four-month investigation by Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The presidential race, of course, already has one official entry in Lt.-Cdmr. Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota governor, whose name has been entered in the Nebraska preferential primary.

Red Cross Rejects Detective Work

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan 26 —(CP). — The Australian Red Cross yesterday rejected an American Red Cross request for information about the families and background of Australian girls wishing to marry American soldiers.

The Australian society pointed out there was no means of reciprocation as it was impossible to ascertain conditions of family life of the American soldiers wishing to marry Australian girls. Anyway, the society said, such matters are outside its charter.

American Red Cross representatives said they would continue to interview prospective brides and bridegrooms, and attempt to discourage marriages they considered inadvisable.

Bare Fields Cause Worry For Fall Grain

"Some concern is being expressed for fall grain as the fields in the southern part of the county are bare," is a comment in the Hastings report to the Ontario Department of Agriculture. "The demand for good dairy cattle continues strong; some farmers are drawing water to their stock. Quinte District Seed Growers are bringing in a car-load of first generation Reg. No. 1 Ajax oats from Moose Jaw, Sask."

Northumberland fields are also "just about bare of snow"; many farmers find their wells dry and cisterns empty. The ice harvest is progressing satisfactorily and the most wood in many years has been cut in the county.

The land is completely covered with snow in Muskoka-Parry Sound, and there is little frost in the ground. Ontario County merely remarks that weather conditions have been ideal for wood-cutting and other outside chores.

More Eggs

Carleton does not expect a serious shortage of seed. In Stormont-Dundas mild weather has been ideal for heavy egg production. Interest is shown in making provision for seed grain. Seed oats are in demand with a larer offering of 1942 seed than was expected.

Frontenac also finds "a considerable quantity of 1942 seed that will meet the most of the demand for 1944. Coarse fodders are being consumed and grain supplies are not too abundant."

Grenville: "The recently announced Dominion subsidy on hogs has apparently revitalized the hog industry in this county. The fourth general T.B. area test is progressing favorably with very few reactors reported. Interest in seed grain supplies is becoming apparent. A great deal of wood has been cut."

Chinese Fliers Bag Five Ships

CHUNGKING, Jan. 26.—(AP).— Bombers of the Chinese-American wing of the United States' 14th Air Force attacked a Japanese convoy off Fuchow on the East China coast Monday and sank five vessels totalling 9,900 tons, Allied Headquarters announced to-day.

In addition, the announcement said, a 2,700-ton freighter was damaged and a Japanese seaplane shot down.

The vessels sunk included a 1,700-ton passenger and cargo vessel, two 2,200-ton cargo and passenger vessels and one 1,100-ton cargo boat.

Other Mitchells of the 14th Air Force, sweeping the sea lanes between Hong Kong and Nampang Island, sank a 2,700-ton freighter, the announcement said.

All aircraft returned safely.

Hydro Rates Discussed By Commission

COBOURG, Jan. 26 — (ENS) — Conclusion reached by many at the meeting held on January 19 in Toronto in regard to equalizing the power rate, was that political pressure would be the only solution, stated Commissioner Jack Delanty at the meeting Monday night of Cobourg Public Utilities Commission. Commissioner Delanty gave the Commission a summary of what went on at the meeting in Toronto. Purpose of the meeting was to prepare a brief to be presented at the meeting of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association next month, on the question of flattening the cost of power to municipalities.

Large centres were opposed to any change in the rate, in spite of the fact that it was pointed out by those in favour of the idea that it would only be reducing the rate paid by smaller centres to a figure on a par with the larger places. Representatives from large cities were opposed to the suggestion that stabilization fund be used to equalize the rate, on the grounds that they had helped establish this fund.

Hydro Unwilling.

"The Premier of the Province had reduced rural rates, something which the hydro would not have done itself, we were told and many came to the conclusion that the only way the rates would be equalized would be through political pressure," Commissioner Delanty told the local Commission..

The Commission discussed the insurance policies, a few of which are to be renewed this year. As the business had been equitably distributed among the local agents, it was decided to leave matters as they are and make no change in allocation of the business. Except for one, hey were all long term policies.

In connection with the reduction made by the Premier on rural rates, Commissioner Delanty said that he doubted if the rural was paying even the old rates.

Court Levies $150 Fine On K. Allors

COBOURG, Jan. 26 — (ENS) — Kenneth Allors, Trenton taxi-driver, employed by C. Graham of Trenton, pleaded guilty of having loose coupons in his possesion and was fined $150 and costs in police court Tuesday.

A charge of breaking and entering and theft of a metal box and gas coupons from Britnell's store in Brighton January 13, was dismissed after the evidence of the main Crown witness, Sanford Walt, became so unsatisfactory that the Crown told the court that no further evidence would be offered. Allors was also charged with retaining stolen gasoline coupons and on ths charge, Magistrate R. B. Baxter found that due to the prevalence of trafficking in gas ration coupons it would appear that Allors might not have had knowledge that they were stolen.

Walt, who is awaiting sentence for breaking into Britnell's store, testified that Allors drove him to Britnell's shop on the night of January 13 and waited while he went inside and robbed the place. Later in a garage at Trenton, he sold the gas coupons taken from Britnell's to Allors. However the testimony of Walt varied so many times that the Crown and Magistrate freely expressed belief in much of the evidence.

Bought Coupons

Provincial Constable Alex MacLeod of Cobourg told of arresting Allors and of Allors making a statement in which he admitted buying the gas coupons from Walt. However there was nothihg in the statement in which Allors admitted knowing where they came from.

The accused testified that he saw Walt in the restaurant in Brighton on the night of January 13, after he had driven a couple to Brighton from Trenton. In the cafe he saw Walt who offered to sell him the gas coupons and the deal was finally concluded the same night in Trenton. The accused denied any knowledge of where Walt had obtained them.

REACHING PORT—Steaming into port with an enemy submarine to their credit, H.M.C.S. "Snowberry" and H.M.C.S. "Calgary" are shown under the sheltering guns of H.M.C.S. "Prince Robert." The two Canadian corvettes have prisoners below decks. The same day as the U-boat was smashed they figured with Prince Robert and other ships of the Canadian and Royal Navies in a two-hour battle with enemy glider bomb-carrying planes. They repulsed these attacks and escorted the convoy safely to the United Kingdom. (R.C.N. Photo)

Peterborough Boy Aboard Calgary When It Bagged Nazi U-Boat

After a running sea battle in the Bay of Biscay, where attacks by planes and submarines made a movie melodrama seem tame, AB Vernon Neary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jams Neary, 3 Edgewater Boulevard, is home on a well-deserved furlough. He was aboard the corvette Calgary which is credited with helping to sink a U-boat.

A vivid Canadian Press dispatch tells how the convoy was attacked for four days and three nights. At least one submarine was sunk, two probably sunk and several others were damaged and a number of big enemy bombers were shot down. The Canadian corvettes Calgary and Snowberry together with the R.N. frigate Nene shared in the destruction of one U-boat.

The convoy was north-bound to the United Kingdom about 250 miles south-west of Cape St. Vincent when enemy planes were observed sneaking up behind the clouds, stalking their prey. Planes using new radio-controlled glider bombs in co-operation with sub-wolf packs ventured out to tangle with the Allied convoy.

Scored Hits.

H.M.S. Eve discovered a U-boat and attacked, and while proceeding to new positions, H.M.C.S. Calgary and Snowberry attacked two more U-boats. Towards evening, accompanied by the Nene the three boats proceeded to hunt, and soon lluminated a submarine which was engaged with gunfire. The enemy dived, but more depth charges were fired, which apparently mortally damaged it. A deep under-water explosion was heard and soon afterward the light of a star shell showed the U-boat breaking to the surface.

"Simultaneously, the Calgary, the Snowberry and the Nene engaged the enemy with every gun which could be brought to bear, and scored a number of hits. Members of the submarine crew were seen jumping into the sea and the U-boat sank a few minutes afterward. Seventeen survivors were picked up and made prisoners of war."

No Rest.

For the remaining two hours of darkness, the enemy underseas craft skulked around the bobbing ships attempting to break through. But escort vessels drove them off. During daylight, the enemy made little effort to contact the convoy, but as soon as night blacked out the movements, then another sally was made. When they finally became discouraged and withdrew, bombers based in France took up the attack, making sure that no sailor had to face the prospect of a dull moment.

His wanderings at sea in the past two years have been in decided contrast with his former job at the De Laval, where he was employed before he enlisted. While his ships have carried him to different parts of the globe, a brother Raymond (Babe) Neary is fighting in Italy. He has been serving with an Irish Regiment.

Although he has told his family little of he fighting he has done, his mother said he had seen service in the Mediterranean as well as convoy work in the Atlantic, and after one engagement he was injured and spent some time in the hospital.

CheeseCompany Reports Slump

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 26. — (ENS). — Production at Hoard's Cheese and Butter Company, one of the most modern in the county and one of the few completely equipped for winter production, slumped 18 per cent. last season according to the statement presented at their annual meeting yesterday. They made 2,328 boxes of cheese and got an average score of 94.133 which was the second highest in the county.

President Charles Hoard gave the annual statement which indicated a total of 2,555,936 pounds of milk delivered to the plant as compared to 3,471,219 a year ago. They turned out 211,070 pounds of white cheese in contrast with 291.689 pounds in 1942 and this figures at an average of 12.11 pounds of milk per pound. Average cheese per pound fat was 2.67. Receipts from the sale of cheese amounted to $42,119.03; from whey butter, $1,153.92; and from whey cream $686.84. The Dominion premium on high scoring cheese gave patrons an additional $3,607.89, and the Provincial subsidy amounted to $1,221.68 which in all gave patrons 9.75 cents per pound fat or $1.84 per hundred of milk. Federal grading returns indicated that of the 2,328 boxes of cheese, 925 were 95's; 803, 94's; 506, 93's; 56, 92's; 38, undergrades.

Mr. Douglas Rowe was re-engaged as cheesemaker and the 1944 officers of the company are: President, Charles Hoard; directors, Harry Parr, Ray Williams, William Potts, Frank Bailey, Oscar Meirich; auditor, Frank Heagle.

Cheese Factory Has High Score

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 26. — (ENS). — The ultimate in cheese quality has been obtained by patrons of Cedar Creek factory who have turned in a perfect record of one hundred per cent. first grade cheese during the 1943 season. This was reported at the annual meeting Monday, which was in charge of president Harry Sauva, who disclosed that not a single box of second grade cheese had been made last year, giving the company an average score of 94.0, which was the third highest in the county. President Sauva commended cheesemaker Sam Hobbs and patrons for their part in making the record possible.

A total of 2,342,480 pounds of milk was delivered to the factory and this yielded 196,450 pounds of cheese or an average of 11.9 pounds of milk per pound of cheese. The average test was 3.4 and butterfat brought an average of 54 cents per pound. Gross receipts for the year amounted to approximately $49,400 and the sale of cheese accounted for $39,282.59 of this while the Dominion bonus on quality provided $3,387.06; the Provincial bonus, $3,927.16; and the milk bonus $1,149.56. The sale of whey cream totalled $1,667.49. A total of 1,993 boxes of cheese were made during the season and Federal grading returns indicated 413 of these were 95's; 1,245 94's; 330 93's; 5 92's. Mr. Harry Sauva was re-elected president of the factory and Mr. Sam Hobbs was re-engaged as cheesemaker.

A Fourth Term?

Recently a group of prominent men in the U.S. Democratic party presented Mr. Roosevelt with a resolution in which they offered to nominate him for a fourth term. It is reported that the President said 'Oh!'

Politicians are not unlike women; when they say 'No' it may mean anything from 'No' to 'Maybe' When a politician says 'Oh', it may be taken to mean 'Yes'. Whatever may be the feeling about the matter in his own country the President's decision will give a good deal of satisfaction elsewhere among the United Nations. He is one of our great leaders, like Churchill, Stalin and Chiang Kai-shek; probably the war would be ably prosecuted by a successor, but there is a prejudice, founded on experience, against changing horses in the middle of the stream. Nothing that is said about the U.S. will influence the American people in their voting: it is possible, however, that a feeling that outsiders were interfering in domestic affairs would work against Mr. Roosevelt; therefore the press and the spokesmen of other nations will remain silent on the matter. But there is no disguising the fact that the President's decision to run again — if his 'Oh' has been correctly interpreted—will give great satisfaction.

Beatrix Potter Is Dead

Authors who write stories for adults often achieve world-wide fame; it is rarely that a writer for children does so. But one of these rare beings was Beatrix Potter, who died recently at Hill Top Farm, her home in the north of England; she was 77, and was known to her neighbours as Mrs. William Heelis; her husband was a solicitor, and she herself ran a large sheep-farm very competently.

But under her maiden name of Beatrix Potter she wrote several books which will be loved by children for a century to come. Her most famous character was Peter Rabbit, although he was shamelessly stolen by a dozen other writers about animals. But Beatrix Potter's Peter was the one who lived in the Cabbage Patch, and had three little sisters calley Flopsy, Mopsy and Cottontail. The Two Bad Mice were her inventions also, as were Jemima Puddle-Duck and Mrs. Tiggy-Winkle. She illustrated her books with her own watercolour sketches, which were unusually clear and charming.

Beatrix Potter's books were never sentimental or childish; perhaps that is why children loved them so well. Her animals were often foolish, wicked and wrong-headed, but they were never maudlin. What pleasure they have given, and will give, to millions of children!

More About Mutual Ignorance

Recently in an editorial headed 'A Knowledge Of Geography' we deplored the ignorance of Canada which exists in Great Britain, and the ignorance of Great Britain which exists in Canada. In an editorial headed 'Mutual Ignorance' the Brantford Expositor thinks that we go too far; indeed, that paper often thinks we go too far, being itself the soul of sunny caution. We think that we understand what the Expositor means, however, when it says:

> "One ventures to hope that many returning young Canadians will be fully aware of the location of York, Nottingham, Wolverhampton and Exeter. They will even be familiar with such places as Halstead, Fordingbridge, Tunbridge Wells, Truro, and Glastonbury.
> "Some of them may actually be able to distinguish between the language of a Highlander and that of a Lowlander, or, what is more of an accomplishment, between the talk of a Yorkshireman and a Devonian. Similarly, British lads who have trained in Canada will know that it is a considerable distance from Brantford to Estevan Point or Murray Bay. And the word will get around. Moreover, with transocean airplane travel definitely slated as a popular pastime in the not too distant future, the situation will be improved still more."

However, we cannot count on a war every quarter of a century to exercise its educative influence, nor do we think that the transocean airplane fare will be any more within the reach of the majority than the fare of an ocean liner used to be.

The editor of the Expositor should leave his ivory tower occasionally and mix with the people who make up the majority in this Dominion, in order to find out what they know and what they really think. Let us give an example of what we mean: just before Christmas we had a chat with a woman who works as a cleaner in an office building in Toronto; she was an intelligent and alert woman, and a Roman Catholic; but when we began to talk about the war in Italy we discovered that she did not know where Rome was, and when we suggested that it might be in Switzerland she was quite ready to accept that as its probable locality. Whatever work our schools do the plain fact is that people tend to dismiss from their minds whatever is of no interest to them, and we could multiply this incident many times to prove what we say; the woman in question knew of Rome as the home of the Pope, but she did not connect it with Italy.

We stick to our contention that the world is not growing smaller, and that most people have no knowledge of geography beyond what is necessary for their daily lives. From what we have seen and heard, we suspect that the same thing might be said of history. It would be interesting to have one of the poll-taking organizations look into this matter.

A Common Empire Policy

Speaking to the Toronto Board of Trade on Monday night Lord Halifax advanced the suggestion that the nations comprised in the British Commonwealth should appear at the peace conferences with a common policy, and not as a group of loosely connected nations with a variety of policies. The U.S., the Chinese Republic and the U.S.S.R., he pointed out, are gigantic nations, and the British Commonwealth, if it chose to be divided, might not be able to hold its own against them.

The advantages of unity of this kind, not merely for making peace but for maintaining it, are many and are sufficiently obvious, and it looks as though the time had come to embrace them. The British Dominions have grown up rapidly during this war, and the time is ripe for them to take a larger hand in the conduct of the affairs of the Commonwealth than they have done hitherto. It has been pointed out that the Commonwealth is like that mythical creature, the hydra; it has many heads, and its attacker no sooner deals with one than he is likely to find himself facing another in an entirely different quarter; much of our strength lies in our dispersion; but paradoxically we must achieve a greater unity in order to make the most of that dispersion.

Already Australia and New Zealand have made an agreement about mutual defence. Similar links throughout the Empire would be of the greatest advantage, but in order to co-ordinate them it would be necessary to have a unity which embraced the whole commonwealth; all for one and one for all would be the watchword.

The dominions of the British Commonwealth are, by the Statute of Westminster, free agents, and they can take what course seems best to them in the event of war. But in this war the course which seemed best to all but Ireland was to join in the fray, and fight for the ideals and the freedoms which all the dominions share with the motherland. It is unlikely that in a future war the situation would be markedly different; the nations of the Commonwealth are widely dispersed, and are not likely to come to blows over matters of trade; attack from the outside is most likely to come from an aggressor like Germany who, in threatening one, threatens all.

We believe that Lord Halifax's suggestion is a welcome one to everyone who sees the future clearly. And the sooner we take steps to make plans and put them into action, the stronger we shall be when we go to the peace table.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A Los Angeles doctor says that Christmas trees are likely to cause post-holiday asthma. We do our gasping when the post-holiday bills come in.

Perhaps it is more blessed to give than to receive, but more friends are won by judiciously asking favours than by granting them.

We take issue with the popular idea that cheerfulness and goodwill make for long life. There is nothing like a good grouch for giving life purpose and direction.

"One war which will never be decided is the continual war between the sexes", says a columnist. That is because there is too much amiability between the opposing ranks, the urge to kill being comparatively infrequent.

A King of Infinite Space

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THE LIFE of the late John Barrymore was so improbable that if his biography were offered as a work of fiction most critics would condemn the author for the gross luxuriance of his imagination. But truth is stranger than fiction; writers of fiction have to confine themselves to what their readers will swallow, and nature knows no such restraint. Gene Fowler, the poet who wrote 'The Jervis Bay Goes Down,' among other things, has produced a biography of Barrymore which is the wildest reading to reach this reviewer's desk in a very long time, and yet I do not think that he has painted Barrymore in too-vivid colours; if anything, he has toned him down. The book is published in this country by Macmillans.

IT IS HARD to write of Barrymore without quoting Hamlet, for like many another man of genius he was a Hamlet-like character. Barrymore might truly have said, "O God! I could be bounded in a nut-shell, and count myself a king of infinite space, were it not that I have bad dreams." Bad dreams were part of his inheritance. That inheritance included a century-old tradition of fine acting and the acuity of perception and facility of expression which fine acting brings: it also included a raffish character and a disposition to be drunk rather than sober. The only man in stage-history with whom Barrymore can usefully be compared is Edmund Kean, that other genius who boozed his life away, though Kean was quicker about it than Barrymore. But the words which Doran wrote of Kean — "The sight was pitable, genius was not noticeable in that bloated face, intellect was all but quenched in those once matchless eyes, and the power seemed gone despite the will that would recall it" — might equally well have been written of John Barrymore. But before the bad dreams unthroned him, Barrymore was a king of infinite space indeed—the greatest Hamlet of his day, and reputedly one of the best in all the history of that play.

KEATS said of Kean — "He is a relict of romance, a posthumous ray of chivalry and always seems just arrived from the camp of Charlemagne"—and so it might have been said of Barrymore. Younger playgoers do not recall the Hamlet which electrified New York in 1922 and London in 1925, but there can be few people who care for acting at all who do not remember some of Barrymore's great movies, in which he raised the shallow and trivial medium of the screen far above its usual level, and gave weight to the opinions of those who think that the movies may, some day, be an artistic pleasure. They may not recall 'Don Juan' or 'The Sea Beast,' but perhaps they remember 'Reunion in Vienna,' 'Grand Hotel,' 'Rasputin,' 'Trilby' or 'Twentieth Century'; if they are lucky they may even have seen 'The Man From Blankley's' or 'Topaze' in which Barrymore gave comedy performances of a style and polish never approached by any other movie actor.

WHATEVER the effect he gave, Barrymore did not come from the court of Charlemagne; he came of a great acting family, and his air of aristocratic distinction was the result of a studious aping of his great uncle, John Drew. One of Barrymore's greatest assets as an actor was that he could give a convincing imitation of a gentleman, a thing which few actors of stage or screen can do nowadays. Old actors could do it; they were trained ot the job; the moderns are too afraid that gentility will be taken as a sign of hoity-toityness in their personal character and lose them the favour of their audiences. How wrong they are! It was Barrymore's fine manners and distinction of address which made him the idol of audiences, and the dream-lover of countless women.

BUT off the stage this dream-lover was cataclysmically unfortunate in his relations with women. He married four times, and each time was more disastrous than the last. First he married a society girl and she could not stand his unconventionality; next he married an intellectual woman, and she could not bear a rival in brains; his third wife wanted to reform him, and he ran away from her when he could bear it no longer; his fourth wife, with her mother and her solicitor, took over the management of his finances, and appear to have helped themselves rather more than they helped him. His habitual drunkenness and his unfailing ability to pick the wrong woman made his marriages four separate hells for him; the women appeared to emerge from these adventures strong in character, and substantially richer than they had been before. Like the much-abused Henry VIII, Barrymore was always seeking something in marriage which is not to be found there.

A PSYCHO-ANALYST might have done something for Barrymore; certainly his drinking was pathological. But he had no real desire to be cured; he once went to India for Yoga treatment, but he was unable to stay the course. Yet it would be unwise for any amateur moralist to use him as a hideous example of self indulgence; in his art he was incontestably great, and his failure in his private life was attributable to a lack of ballast for which he is hardly to blame. ....As for Fowler's book it is a brilliant piece of work, written by a man who knew and understood Barrymore, and sympathized with his difficulties; the last hundred pages are poignant reading. This book belongs to the small group of really satisfactory theatrical biographies.

Savagery in Europe

To understand the scope and the scale, the savagery and immensity, the terror and suffering of the Russian front, the best reading is still a book about the other war by a man prominent in both wars—Winston Churchill. "The Unknown War," which traces the history of the Eastern Front 27 years ago, still fits the agony today:

"Hard and sombre war; war of winter; bleak and barren regions; long marches forward and back again under heavy burdens. wounded frozen in their own blood; the dead uncounted unburied; the living pressed again into the mill. ... Here all central Europe tore itself to pieces and expired in agony, to rise again, unrecognizable."—New York Times.

The Jittery Jap

Yesterday the Tokyo radio was heard quoting Premier Tojo as declaring that Japan needs a speedy increase of aircraft production, which has become vital to meet an "extremely fierce" war situation. Quite so, all of that and then some.—Sydney Post Record.

WHEN SPRING COMES TO RUSSIA

"No More Twist"

B. T. IN THE WINNIPEG FREE PRESS

BEATRIX POTTER, the creator of Flopsy, Mopsy, Cotton-Tail, Peter, Mr. McGregor and a host of other famous characters, is dead. She died in the days before Christmas at her home in the lake district of England where, during the last years, she had become a famed sheep raiser.

There can hardly be a home, where there have been happy children during the last forty years, in which there will not be some little thought given to the loss of this talented woman who has given so much pleasure to young and old alike, for one of the chief advantages of having children is surely that once again the parents can re-read her classics.

Beatrix Potter belongs essentially to the very young. But as with all great children's stories the stuff of them is universal. There is probably only one which requires a maturity of perception that might escape the very young and that is The Tailor of Gloucester. The cry of "No more twist" carries with it an element of impending tragedy that is immense in its pathos.

Beatrix Potter was, apparently, an extraordinarily modest and retiring sort of person. Her obituary in the Times measures only about two and a half inches. But for her great admirers all over the world there is compensation in a long editorial about her. In this we read that only once is the figure of the lady herself included in her exquisite illustrations that so closely resemble the best of Caldecott, and which are, by no means, the least attraction of her books.

This is in "The Roly-Poly Pudding," where we read: "When I was going to the post late in the afternoon—I looked up the lane from the corner and I saw Mr. Samuel Whiskers and his wife on the run"—and there is a picture of Mr. Whiskers and his lady removing their bundles on a wheelbarrow in a state of extreme panic, while far up the road stands the dim figure of a lady in a long skirt looking at them.

This, says The Times, was one of the few pictures of Beatrix Potter that have ever been published.

All Miss Potter's books have been widely translated. To French children, for instance, Mrs. Tiggy-Winkle is "Poupette-a-l'Epingle." And they will continue to be read, forever, wherever there are children, and it is not hard to believe that this the epitaph which she would have wished for.

New Zealand Is A Favoured Land

CONSISTING of two main islands, the North Island and the South Island, New Zealand is roughly 104,000 square miles in area, a little larger than the United Kingdom, and slightly smaller than Japan. Twenty-nine New Zealands could be fitted into the United States, the Dominion being approximately the same size as New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey states combined. Long and narrow, the main islands of New Zealand Government would stretch through the Ross Dependency almost to the South Pole, and through the Tokelau Islands almost to the Equator.

The North and South Islands, however, lie between parallels of 48 degrees and 34 degrees South Latitude, corresponding, if transposed to the Northern Hemisphere, to the distance from Cape Hatteras on the coast of North Carolina to the mouth of the St. Lawrence. No point inland is more than eighty miles from the coast. The great climatic extremes that are encountered in similar latitudes on the North American continent are not experienced. The New Zealand climate is one of the most temperate in the world. It is spared virtually all the climatic terrors that afflict continental lands. There is neither fierce summer heat nor winter blizzards. It has no dust bowl, no disastrous droughts or floods that can be regarded as major catastrophes....In no part of New Zealand is it necessary to house stock in the winter, although in the south sheep may be moved from the higher ranges to the lower levels.

Yet despite its relatively small area and its evenness of climate, New Zealand enjoys a remarkable diversity of landscape. Nature has compressed into New Zealand's limited area all the wide variety of landscape and topography, mountain and plain, forest and desert, rain and sun, beauty and barrenness that would normally be found scattered over a large continent....To go from the North Auckland peninsula with its balmy sub-tropical climate, its citrus groves and big-game fishing camps to the rugged, heavily forested country in the far south is to pass from Florida to Maine, or from Southern California to British Columbia with excursions to the Middle West, the Great Lakes, and the mountain states en route....

The South Island displays remarkable Alpine attractions along the full range of the great Southern Alps at least seventeen of whose peaks rise to more than 10,000 feet, culminating in Mt. Cook or Aorangi (meaning Cloud-pierced) as the Maoris more picturesquely named this 12,349 foot massive peak. On the west coast of the island, reached by railway from Christchurch through a tunnel over five miles in length, under the main range of the mountains, will be found the world-famous Franz Josef Glacier, whose icy cliffs reach down almost to sea level amidst unforgettable luxuriant vegetation. Magnificent forest and lake scenery are further attractions, and in the extreme southwest of New Zealand are majestic fiords.—From "New Zealand—A Working Democracy," by Walter Nash. Tribute For Petrillo

Putting a pious face on the venerable business of shaking down the suckers is something at which James C. Petrillo, No. 1 hornblower of the American Federation of Musicians, need acknowledge no equal. Recently, on taking four more transcription companies to the tune of some several thousand dollars a year, paid for the happy privilege of being allowed to do business with the A.F.M., Mr. Petrillo said: "It wasn't so much the question of money, it's that we've established a principle."

Mr. Petrillo is quite all right. It is indeed a principle. The National Association of Broadcasters is even righter in terming it "a vicious principle." It is, says the N.A.B., "economically and socially unsound as extortion is immoral and illegal" for unions to "collect direct tribute as compensation for permitting their members to render services."

A dangerous game, Mr. Petrillo. And an obnoxious one.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Bible Message

And the Lord said, I have surely seen the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and have heard their cry by reason of their taskmasters; for I know their sorrows....

Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt.... And Moses answered and said, But, behold, they will not believe me, nor hearken unto my voice: for they will say, The Lord hath not appeared unto thee.

And the Lord said unto him, What is that in thine hand? And he said, A rod. And he said, Cast it on the ground. And he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent; and Moses fled from before it.

And the Lord said unto Moses, Put forth thine hand, and take it by the tail. And he put forth his hand, and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand: that they may believe that the Lord God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath appeared unto thee. In That Little Room at the Globe

What would strike a modern eye most about Shakespeare's theatre was its smallness. The auditorium of the Globe was probably about fifty-five feet square, that is approximately the size of a lawn tennis court; and this included the stage, which jutted right out among the audience, and was some forty-three feet wide by about twenty-seven feet long. The play was therefore performed almost in the middle of the theatre, the groundlings standing on three sides of the stage, which was raised three or four feet off the floor, while the seats for those who could afford them were ranged in three tiers of galleries round the walls, and in some theatres stools could even be hired for accommodation on the stage itself. The whole atmosphere must have been extraordinarily intimate and domestic, especially when we remember that the personnel both of the company and of the audience was far more permanent than anything conceivable in modern London. Each member of the cast would be as familiar to the spectators as the individuals of a local football team are today to a crowd on the home ground. Under such conditions acting and drama were very different from anything we know now. And to understand Shakespeare, to follow the swiftness of his thought, the delicacy of his poetic workmanship, the cunning of his dramatic effects, the intricacy of his quibbles, to appraise in short the infinite riches of his art, we must think ourselves back into that little room at the Globe or its predecessors, in which his dramas were first given by a team of players, moving and speaking on a bare platform surrounded by a ring of faces only a few yards away, faces in front, to left, above, faces tense with interest at the new miracle that awaited them, the faces of the brightest spirits and keenest intelligences of his time. —From "The Essential Shakespeare," by J. Personnel Changes Likely In Pacific

LONDON, Jan. 26 — (CP) — Changes in the personnel of the staff of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Allied commander in the Southwest Pacific theatre, "to admit of wider control," were foreseen here to-day by Sir Neville Pearson, member of the British newspaper proprietors' delegation recently returned from a tour of Australia.

"Australia is very glad to have her forces under the supreme command of Gen. MacArthur, and the whole setup is working very smoothly," Sir Neville told a press conference. "But the fact remains that the main G. H. Q. staff is almost entirely American and it is possible that there might be changes in that direction that would admit of wider control that would please the Australians."

Foresters Facing Tremendous Demand

MONTREAL, Jan. 26 CP)—Were manpower available, Canadian forests would have to supply no less than 30,000,080,000 cords of forest products annually to meet the demands for lumber, pulp and paper and fuel requirements, Vernon E. Johnston, woodlands manager of the Canadian International Paper Company, today told the 36th annual meeting of the Canadian Society of Foresters.

"This is a challenge to management," he said, "especially to foresters, to see that the forest areas continue to produce this amount of wood, and more if possible."

Evidence of how this was done was provided in Russia and Germany."

Useful Employment Canada's First Problem Financial Question Will Then Not Be Difficult

TORONTO, Jan. 26. (CP)—Graham Towers, Governor of the Bank of Canada, said today Canada's main post war problem is the provision of useful employment for Canadians and once that is achieved attending financial problems will not be difficult to solve.

In Toronto to consult with investment dealers and stock brokers on general problems of war finance, Mr. Towers said the National War Finance Organization in Canada was "reaching grass roots" and mobilizing the savings of millions of people.

Plans for the Sixth Victory Loan now are in preparation, he disclosed. To ward off the ever-present threat of inflation which has not declined and which will continue to be a threat after the war, the National War Finance Committee urged longer retention by the general public of war bonds.

Wartime controls will automatically disappear when the scarcities of goods which made them necessary no longer exist, he said, National Selective Service however would be retained as a National Employment Service.

Mr. Towers said he was in favor of an international stabilization fund or clearing union now under discussion between the United Kingdom and the United States.

Labor Act Ultra Vires Lawyers Says In Writ

TORONTO, Jan. 26 — (CP) — Hamilton lawyer today filed a writ at Osgoode Hall asking a declaration by the Supreme Court of Ontario that the Ontario Collective Bargaining Act passed at the last session of the legislature is ultra vires.

The lawyer—R. R. Evans who is acting for the Canadian Westinghouse Co.—said the writ alternatively asks for a declaration that the Ontario act does not apply to the Westinghouse Company. It is argued that as the company is engaged in war work it is under the jurisdiciton of Wartime Dominion Labor Regulations — Orders-in-Council Nos. 3945 and PC 1708 dealing with labor relations are cited.

Attorney General Blackwell of Ontario is named as defendant.

Jet-Propelled Planes Simple To Operate

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 26 (AP)—The new jet-propelled fighter plane is characterized by pilots as being smooth, simple to operate and giving a feeling of security aloft, Lawrence D. Bell, president of Bell Aircraft Corporation, reported yesterday with United States War Department approval.

Bell Aircraft is producing the twin-engine, propellerless plane, development of which was disclosed Jan. 6 by the R.A.F. and United States Army Air Forces. A joint announcement said the craft is capable of flying at extreme speeds and high altitudes.

He said the plane was "simpler to operate than a primary trainer."

Many Nations Oppose Bolivian Group

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—AP)—Further joint action by the American republics to uproot and destroy any pro-Axis movements underway in South America was foreshadowed today by refusal of the United States and seven other Western hemisphere nations to recognize the revolutionary rulers of Bolivia.

The immediate goal of this diplomatic manoeuvring is believed to be a break between Germany and Argentina, now the only American nation maintaining relations with Germany. Talk of Axis intrigue has been linked with the Bolivian revolution.

That Argentine reaction would not be long in forthcoming became apparent when Foreign Minister Alberto Gilbert announced at Buenos Aires he would have "important news" momentarily.

His statement was made after conferring with U.S. Ambassador Norman Armour, British Ambassador Sir David Victor Kelly and the German charge d'affaires, Erich Otto Meynen.

Linked With Nazis

The United States non-recognition policy was announced by the State department late yesterday. The statement linked the Bolivian regime with "subversive groups hostile to the Allied cause."

No reference was made to economic sanctions or other measures and the intention of the United States and co-operating governments apparently was to await reaction in Bolivia and Argentina before doing anything else.

Along with issuance of the announcement a state department official disclosed that Ambassador Pierre de L. Boal was being ordered home.

The United States was the fourth nation to act, being preceded by Uruguay, Cuba and Venezuela, and followed by Guatemala, the Dominican Republic and Peru.

Of the 19 American governments which exchanged information on the Bolivian revolution of last Dec. 20, by which Major Gualberto Villaroel became president, none is expected to decide upon recognition.

Such action is expected to imply a strong warning to Argentina. Axis activities in that country were tacitly recognized by the Buenos Aires government itself last week when it announced that an "ample investigation" had been undertaken of the alleged existence of a spy ring in the country, and that several persons have already been detained.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

In the most pessimistic statement made to date by a major league baseball executive, President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals asserted yesterday: "The way players are being taken by the draft, it does seem questionable whether we'll have enough left to operate."

He said he considered 19 players—eight pitchers, two catchers, five infielders and four outfielders—the absolute minimum with which a club could go through a season.

Taking stock of his available material, now that Shortstop Martin Marion has been accepted for United States military service, Breadon found he did not have 19 men he could depend on definitely to start the race in April.

Second baseman Ray Mack will remain in his war industry job instead of reporting for spring training with the Cleveland Indians at Lafayette, Ind., and "may be out of baseball for the duration," Vice-president Roger Peckinpaugh announced yesterday.

The Canadians will meet a team of American servicemen. Both teams are studded with former National Hockey League stars.

Playing for Canada will be Neil Colville, Norman Barnes and Frank Boucher of the R.C.A.F. and Alex Shibicky and Joe Cooper of the Army.

Starting for the Americans will be Bert Gardiner, formerly with New York Rangers and Boston Bruins; Bill and Bun Cook of Cleveland Barons and former Rangers Frank Boucher and Murray Murdock.

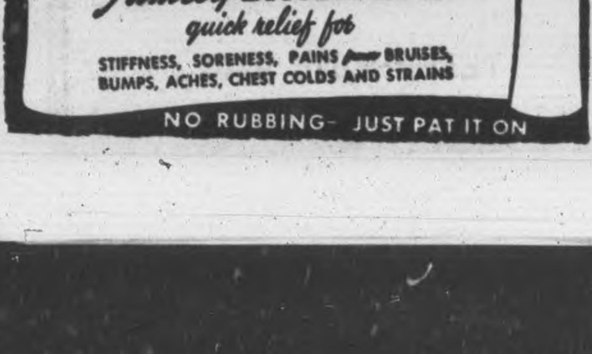
Colville and Shibicky are former New York Rangers, and Cooper used to play for Chicago Black Hawks.

American spares are Frank Brimsek, Art Coulter, John Mariucci, Manny Cotlow and Alex Motter.

Brimsek was formerly a Boston Bruin, Coulter a Ranger, Mariucci a Black Hawk and Motter a Detroit Red Wing. Canadian spares have not yet been named.

Won 25, Lost 4

The score in Hammering Henry Armstrong's long comeback campaign now stands at 25 victories against four defeats. He won the 25th at Kansas City last night, knocking out Saverio Tauriello of New York in the seventh round of a 12-round bout before a crowd of 9,372. Armstrong weighed 144, Tauriello 148.



Krippler Davis Draws With Watson

Karl Krippler Davis wound up last night's feature bout at the Tunney wrestling rodeo at the Brock Street Arena dead to the world but at that he registered a draw with the British Empire champion, Billy Watson.

The Whipper took the first fall after 24 minutes hard wrestling and the Texan came back in nine minutes to square accounts. Then the two gladiators fought it out for the balance of the hour without another fall. The gong saved Davis. He was all softened up for the kill and could not have lasted much longer.

It was a tough battle. Davis, in spite of the handicap of a heavy cold, provided plenty of opposition for the clever Watson. In fact the people's choice took quite a pounding especially in the second round when the Texan fighting furiously to even up the match handed out a lot of punishment.

Watson looked to be in bad shape when he left for the dressing-room after rolling out of the ring to escape the kicks Davis was delivering after he had taken the fall. However the British Empire title-holder came back in the third round to weather the storm and eventually had the Texan at his mercy, although the end of the hour prevented him from taking the winning fall.

There were few dull moments. The two battlers tore into each other at top speed in the opening round, with Watson showing speed and cleverness in getting out of jams and Davis displaying plenty of aggressiveness whenever he got a chance to put on the pressure. The Whipper had the edge, however, in spite of the fact that he was kicked out of the ring on one occasion and a spectator who went to his rescue nearly had his head kicked off by the infuriated Davis. Watson kept boring in and finally got his opening after softening up the Texan with a barrage of elbow smashes and then a couple of whips applied as only Watson can apply them did the trick. Davis managed to keep his shoulders off the mat the first time he was tossed over the champ's head but the second whip left him helpless and he was pinned for the fall.

It Boomeranged

The Texan took the aggressive when he came back for the second round but for a while it did not look as if it was going to get him anywhere. However he got his opportunity when the Whipper launched a series of flying tackles. The first two bowled Davis over like a peanut-wagon hit by a truck but when Watson tried a third one it boomeranged. The Texan was set for that one. Instead of going down he met the champ with his knee up and the impact took all the steam out of the Whip. Then the big grappler from south of the border sailed into Watson with everything he had, launching a shower of rabbit punches and sly kicks that left the champ helpless. Davis picked up the Whipper and twice in succession crashed him down to the mat with a back-breaker. He had little trouble spreading Watson for the fall after the second smash, and not satisfied with that he landed a shower of kicks on the prostrate champ who finally rolled out of the ring to escape.

Watson was still in difficulties when he came back but he held on gamely and finally a little help from Referee Ernie Powers gave him a chance to get back into the driver's seat. Davis, angry when the referee made him break a menacing hold toppled Powers with a punch to the jaw and then resumed his attack on Watson. The big referee jumped up and landed a rabbit punch on the back of the Texan's neck that shook up the Krippler and opportunist Watson went on the attack. Two or three times he got his favorite unconscious commando hold on the Texan but on each occasion Davis managed to reach the haven of the ropes and Watson was forced to break the hold. When the timer's bell sounded the champ had his opponent helpless in the commando grip at the ropes with Powers struggling to pull Watson away. When the Whip released his hold at the gong Davis dropped to the canvas. He was out but not until the official time was up.

Hits Wrong Man

Jerry Meeker who battled Tom Zaharias in the lively semi-final lost his bout because he hit the wrong man with a flying tackle. The bad luck came just at a moment when the Indiana boy after taking a steady mauling from the big Greek grappler had launched out on an offensive that looked like it might get him somewhere. Zaharias did most of the pressing in the early stages and was using arm and head locks on Meeker that had the latter in plenty of trouble. Finally however the underdog got his chance.

He bowled Zaharias over with a flying tackle and as the Greek started to get up he took off with another tackle that missed Zaharias but hit Referee Powers amidships and knocked him for a loop. While the official rolled around the canvas Meeker pounced on the Greek, rolled him over and pinned him for a fall. In fact he held his opponent long enough for three falls. Then he released Zaharias and appealed to Powers for a decision. The prostrate referee who had missed that bit of action completely managed to get on his pins again just as the Greek, seeing his opportunity, grabbed Meeker from behind and flopped him to the mat. Whereupon Mister Powers promptly counted the Indiana battler out. The crowd booed loud and lustily but the decision stood.

One of Peterborough's pet hates, Housepainter Dick Hogan, who has been wrestling in New York state for some time was back in action in the opening bout and got his usual warm reception from the fans who hooted at his every move. Incidentally he also got a warm reception from a new-comer to local wrestling in Jack La Rue who gave the Housepainter a very busy half hour. Hogan tried all his favorite skulduggery and got away with a lot of it but La Rue met him half way and the crowd got a big kick out of seeing the villain pushed around. In fact Hogan was on the catching end a great deal of the time and the end of the half-hour found him decidedly groggy from a series of drop-kicks that threatened to tear the Hogan head loose from its moorings. The bout was a draw for neither battler was able to take a fall.

Ernie Powers of Hamilton refereed all three bouts with Fred Scates, as usual, doing the timing and announcing.

By FRED D. CRAIG

The suggestion in this column that Fred Martin pick a team of high scorers from the Men's Five Pin League for a handicap match with a picked team from the Girls' Five Pin League does not look so fanciful in view of the rolling done by some of the fair sex in Monday night's league games. A glance over the figures shows that the five top bowlers in Monday's games were really spilling the pins with a vengeance. Marion Timm of Outboard Marines was high with a total of 753 and Marg Hawthorne of the Westclox team clicked for 707. Next in line was Aggie Anderson, also of Westclox with 668, Marg Batley of Brintons was fourth with 657 and in fifth place was another Westclocker Marg Selkirk with a score of 626. Add those five scores and you have a total of 3411. And if you toss in the proposed handicap of 800 or 1000 pins you'd have a total that the best five sharp-shooters in the men's loop would probably not come close to equalling. As a matter of fact if you happened to pick five girls for the suggested match who could put together 3411, a handicap of 100 would perhaps be enough to make it tough for the mere males to stay in the running.

Coach Phil Lawson who was here for the wrestling bouts at the Brock Street Arena last night stated that he and Whipper Billy Watson, the British Empire champion are invading the home territory of champion Wild Bill Longson to do a little missionary work in behalf of the fame of Canadian wrestling and have signed for a bout in the home of the champion. It is expected that Watson's opponent on that occasion will be the well known grappler Ernie Dusek. This will be the first time the Whipper has wrestled so far south. He has appeared in most of the northern centres including Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and New York but this will be his debut in the St. Louis district. He is going over just for the one match but Lawson states that one result of the temporary invasion of Longson's territory has been a demand from the champion that in return he be given an opportunity to show his stuff in some of the northern cities.

A Petawawa Contributor

Bud Lloyd, Peterborough boy with the R.C.O.C. Depot at Petawawa Camp writes an interesting letter to this column and sends along some copies of the Petawawa Grenade, the official newspaper of the camp and judging by the amount of interesting sport gossip scattered through the issue the army boys are having plenty of organized sport. One item we noticed was to the effect that Turk Broda and Connie Brown were expected out shortly with the Petawawa Grenades in the Ottawa City League. Lloyd writes: "We are enjoying some smart hockey games, also bowling. We have a marvellous alley up here. I'm in the office league and really very lucky this season. Perhaps the pin boy is good to me. These fellows from Montreal and Toronto really run up a score. We still enjoy reading your column although I imagine it's rather a tough job getting your material each day." You can say that again, Bud, and in the meantime thanks for your contribution and for the copies of the Grenade you so kindly sent along.

Writes Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Review: "It must be agreed that Jack Adams made a mighty decent showing in his nominations for hockey's hall of fame. Calling the late George Vezina, the measuring stick of all goalies, the departed Howie Morenz, the most sensational one-man hockey show in history, Eddie Shore, the real Mister Hockey of modern times, Fred "Cyclone" Taylor, a sensational rusher who would likely make present day defenses look terrible, Aurel Joliat, Bill Cook, the late Scotty Davidson, Joe Malone, Frank McGee, who was killed in the last Great War and "Dit" Clapper, who is classed as the greatest of present day performers. Stars all and keeping any member of this crowd off the Kingston dream spot, would be a gross injustice. Genial "Jawn" also did a nice job when asked to name the greatest centre ice players of his time, by calling Howie Morenz, Frank Nighbor, "Cyclone" Taylor, Joe Malone, Frank McGee, Jack Walker and Milt Schmidt. And none will question the greatness of any member of the collection. Being in the great category during his own playing days, the Red Wing boss is fully qualified to discuss the puck headliners since the turn of the century and it must be admitted that he came through nicely in his first attempt at this important work."

Hockey—After The War

Bill Cook, native son of Kingston and now manager of the Cleveland Barons has been paying a visit to his home town and has been interviewed by Scribe Bill Walshe who got a lot of interesting hockey dope out of the famous ex-New York Ranger star: "Cook predicted all pro clubs will have farm teams in Canada after the war to develop young material. Before this war professional teams signed amateurs to contracts in the Eastern U.S. Amateur League and they were sure of them when they were ready for pro play. The rules of amateurism in Canada, which have been amended as a war measure, did not give a professional team much security in farming out players. Cook said pro teams are willing to help finance amateur clubs that will develop players and assure safe delivery. Players tagged for future delivery will be worth big money in the talent market that is expected after the war. New teams, new leagues and new rinks will need players and the lads now on the outdoor rinks will likely be ready for pro service about the time the world conflict is settled. Patronage in poor professional hockey this year is evidence that fans want the sport. Players are performing in the professional leagues this winter who in normal years would not catch a place on a good junior team yet the gate receipts are increased."

Those rampaging Detroit Red Wings are rolling right along and are breathing down the back of the Leafs' necks today in a surge upward that has almost carried them into second place. Jack Adams' men invaded Boston last night and took the shattered Bruins into camp 6 goals to 3. It was the eighth straight victory for the Red Wings who had little difficulty in taking Dit Clapper and his pals. The winners ran in the first five goals and led at the end of the second period 5 to 1. Boston staged a belated rally and outscored the Detroit outfit 2 to 1 in the final 20 minutes but never came even close to making it uncomfortable to the Wings who are now only a point behind the Toronto crowd and have two games in hand.

Montgomery KO's Williams

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26 (AP)—Bob Montgomery today was on the come-back trail toward his lost lightweight title with fire in his eye after blasting Ike Williams, the Trenton, N.J., terror into oblivion in the last round of their scheduled 12-rounder at Convention Hall last night.

Pointing toward his promised return title match with Beau Jack, the Philadelphia bobcat hammered Williams mercilessly for 11 rounds. The end came for the Trenton lightweight in 2 minutes and 49 seconds of the final stanza.

A fight thirsty crownd officially announced at 14,807, paid $55,829 to see the Bobcat start his come-back by blasting Williams' 32-bout winning streak with a drumming body attack that sotened the Trenton boy up for the final smash.

As Williams came out for the last round he walked into a flock of straight rights that floored him twice for counts of eight. As the Trenton fighter lifted his beaten body from the canvass for the second time Montgomery whanged over another right which caught Williams flush on the jaw and draped him face down over the lower rope for the final count.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 26 — (CP) — A combination of young Canadians and an ice rink usually works itself out into a game of hockey, no matter where the locale or what the conditions.

All of which leads up to word from Sweden that a few Canadian airmen, interned there after crash landings and things, banded together with some Royal Air Force lads and a couple of Swedish players —and were trounced 7-0 by an all-Swedish team.

However, it wasn't as bad as it sounds. The air team, captained by FO. Peter Davies of Montreal, was handicapped through illness of some of the Canadians and through lack of training.

The game was played at Falum, near where the airmen are interned, and attracted a mob of Swedish sports writers who agreed that in another month and with a full team, the airmen would be "dangerous for any club in Sweden."

When the Royal Air Force stations clashed in a rugger trophy competition each team boasted one Canadian.

On one side was Lieut. Ian Bell-Irvine of Vancouver, nephew of Group Capt. Bell-Irvine, commanding officer at the R. C. A. F. station at Trenton, Ont., member of the Seaforth Highlanders, Bell-Irvine is attached to the air station as laison officer. He learend rugger on Canada's west coast.

The other team featured Wing. Cmdr. Paul Davoud, D. F. C., Kingston, Ont., all-round athlete who commands a Canadian night-fighter squadron based on an R. A. F. station.

Incidentally, Bell-Irvine's team emerged 11-3 victors.

PO. Bob Pentland dropped his hockey stick after starring in a game, jumped into his Spitfire for a jaunt over France and disabled a park containing German motor transport vehicles. He also ignited a number of oil drums before wheeling for home to discuss the ice game.

Member of the Canadian Wolf Squadron, Pentland was on the brink of a professional hockey career with New York Rangers when he enlisted.

Mosquito Intruders maintained top place in the R. C. A. F. four-team southern hockey league, when led by Cpl L. D. Prentice of Regina, they whipped a Liberator team 9-3. Setting a dizzy pace that all but shifted opposing defencemen out of the rink, Prentice scored four times in giving the best solo display of the season.

Top Pitchers Move Up To Major Loops

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 —(AP)— There were four 20-game pitchers in the International Baseball League last summer and all of them will get a crack in the major leagues this year.

Ed. Kleiman, of Baltimore, who turned in a record of 23 victories against 11 defeats, will toe the mound for the Cleveland Indians. Luke Hamlin, the old Brooklyn Dodger who hung up a mark of 21 triumphs and eight defeats for Toronto, will try again in the big time with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Tomas de la Cruz, the Syracuse flinger with 21 victories and 11 setbacks, goes up with the Cincinnati Reds on a conditional sale basis and Rufe Gentry, of Buffalo, who won 20 and lost 16, is with the Detroit Tigers. Gentry pitched several games for the Tigers last September and did well.

The official pitching records, released today by President Frank Shaughnessy, discloses Louis Polli, of the Jersey City Giants, tops the earned-run average column with 1.85. Polli, who won 14 and lost 12 with a second-division club, participated in 35 games.

Dick Conger of Toronto, who went to the National League Phillies in July, was second in the E.R.A. with a mark of 1.96 in 22 games. De la Cruz was third with 1.99 for 36 games. The E.R.A. for Hamlin was 2.06 for 31 games; Gentry 2.65 for 40 games and Klieman 2.84 for 45 contests.

The record shows Hamlin pitched the most shutouts, eight, with five of them against the Syracuse Chiefs. He shared the longest winning streak, eight games, with Joe Page, of Newark, and Klieman. Steve Gromek, of Baltimore, struck out the most, 188, in 46 games.

St. Mike's Trim Whizzers 13-2

By The Canadian Press

The two games in the Junior "A" branch of the Ontario Hockey Association last night tightened the race in both groups although the leaders remain the same. Toronto St. Michael's walloped Hamilton Whizzers 13-2 and now are just two games back of the league-leading Oshawa Generals. In group two, Port Colborne beat St. Catharines 7-4, leaving the three top clubs—Galt, St. Catharines and Port Colborne—only four points apart.

Scoring records were fattened as St. Mikes rammed in nine goals in the third period to amass their big margin over Hamilton. Joe Sadler had four goals and Bobby Schnurr, Ted Lindsay and Frank Dunlap each had two. Mortson, McCormack and Bauer got singles. Comfort and Sanderson scored for Hamilton.

At Port Colborne the recreationists took a 4-1 lead in the first period over the Falcons and were never headed. Simpell had three of the winner's goals. Savicky, Gravelle, Kaiser and Sergnese got the others. McMurdy, Pollock, Delmonte and Warecki were the scorers for St. Catharines.

TORONTO, Jan. 26 — (CP). — Decline in the quality of National League hockey is undoubtedly one reason Toronto Maple Leafs attendance and gate receipts figures are down from last year. There was an example last Saturday night when Rangers beat Leafs 5-1 before 10,735 fans, a small crowd for Saturday night at the Gardens and at the same time the Toronto Hockey League's major division draw 4,621 fans to Varsity Arena, largest crowd in the league's 17-year history, and paid 40 cents to see former professional stars like Hank Goldup, Earl Robinson, Whitey Farrant, Jim Conacher, and Jack Shill. The T.H.L. features double-headers with three commercial teams and the Army Service Corps Shamrocks.

You try it:

Dave (Regina Leader-Post) Dryburgh comes up with a couple of teasers. He reports a sprinter running 100 yards can't beat another running 50 yards carrying another man on his back. The latter, said Dave's informant, can do the 50 in eight seconds. Dryburgh's problem promoter also claims a baseball player will beat a golfer in a novelty golf match, the ball player throwing a baseball around the course.

Prospects:

Our guess is the C.A.H.A. will make a financial mistake if it attempts to run Allan Cup play-offs this year with its few remaining top-rank civilian clubs and a scattering of all-star teams. Rumor says Alberta may be represented by Calgary Buffaloes, last year's Western Intermediate champions, plus a few star reinforcements.

Incidentally:

Coach Dick Irvin of Canadiens told Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll a hockey player need not develop a switch shot because a back hand is as effective. Most goalies think the backhand is more difficult to handle because the puck-carrier skates across the goalmouth and it is difficult to anticipate when he will shoot......Manager Jack Adams of Detroit says Murray Armstrong is already one of the most popular wings players. "Have not had one like him on the club in years," says Jack. "He doesn't smoke, doesn't drink, and is strictly a team player."....Art Coles of Vancouver, one of Canada's leading skiers, now is a prisoner of war in Germany. He had 32 operational flights with the R.C.A.F. before being shot down.

Detroit Wings Conquer Boston Bruins

(By The Canadian Press)

It becomes increasingly clear with each performance that manager Jack Adams finally has a hockey team in Detroit.

The 1943-44 Red Wings sounded another challenge to the front-running Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs last night, conquering Boston Bruins 6-3 to mark their eighth straight game without a defeat.

Playing before 12,000 fans at Boston Garden, Wings scored the only goal of the first period, jumped into a 5-0 lead before the second intermission and then coasted to an easy triumph although outscored 3-1 in the final 20 minutes.

The victory shunted Detroit within one point of the second-place Leafs and consolidated their hold on third place over Bruins, who appeared heading for their first shutout on home ice since Jan. 27, 1942, until Norm Calladine beat Conny Dion for the first time at 1:12 of the third period.

Adam Brown and Joe Carveth provided the cue for Wings, scoring two goals apiece, while Syd Howe and Carl Liscombe also connected. Howe's goal was his 199th in National Hockey League competition. Murray Armstrong had three assists.

Calladine, Art Jackson and Herb Cain counted for Bruins, who played without defenceman Johnny Crawford, centre Bill Cowley and Harvey (Busher) Jackson, three regulars who are on the sidelines because of injuries.

DIT CLAPPER

Veteran Clapper Drafted For U.S. Army

By VERN DeGEER.

Dit Clapper, 37-year-old assistant coach, captain and defenseman for Boston Bruins, yesterday passed his United States Army physical examination in Boston after getting a call from his draft board in that city. Clapper expressed a preference to serve in the Canadian Army and therefore was not inducted.

It was explained here by military authorities that Clapper's medical board papers doubtless would be forwarded to the Canadian armed forces via the British Legation at Washington, the usual procedure in such cases.

Clapper has played professional hockey in Boston since 1926-27, first with the late Eddie Powers' Tigers of the Can.-American League. He became a member of the Bruins the following winter and is now serving his sixteenth season for Art Ross.

Clapper, who will celebrate his 38th birthday Feb. 9, was born at Newmarket where Powers spotted him as a junior and signed him for Tiger-Cubs, then a farm unit for the Bruins. He is married and has one son. The Clappers make their home at Hastings, Ont.

If Clapper is rejected by the Canadian Army he will be inducted into the United States armed services, according to a message from Harold Kaez of the Boston Globe.

Clapper played against Detroit Red Wings last night, after which he was to leave with the Bruins on a trip to Hershey for an exhibition game Wednesday night.

Clapper made it clear before last night's game that he would play for the Bruins until advised when he was to take his Canadian Army physical examination. If inducted into the army at Boston, Clapper would have a furlough of only two weeks before putting on Uncle Sam's uniform.

Long rated one of hockey's greatest all-round performers and one of the game's most popular figures, Clapper has commanded more All-Star attention than any other player in the last two decades. He was originally a right winger, and an All-Star second team nominee back in 1930-31, first year of the Canadian Press poll. He was there again in 1934-35 after running third to Bill Cook and Charley Conacher three years in a row.

Switching to defense in recent years, Clapper has been an All-Star defense choice four times.

Two years ago Jan. 31 Clapper was badly injured in an N.H.L. game at Maple Leaf Gardens, and was hospitalized several weeks. The Achilles tendon in his left leg was cut above the ankle in a collision with Bingo Kampman of the Leafs. It was feared for a time he would not be able to play hockey again. But he returned early in the 1942-43 season.

BOSTON, Jan. 25 —(CP)— Dit Clapper, Boston Bruins veteran defense star, who will be 38 next month, said tonight he was awaiting further orders from his Boston draft board, and would "do anything it ordered me to do."

Clapper, the father of one child, today was examined and accepted for the United States armed service by Boston's Draft Board No. 17.

Since Clapper, a non-citizen, expressed preference to serve in the Canadian Army, although he is well over the Dominion's present draft age, his papers were sent to Hastings, Ont., his home town, for further action.

In the event that his Canadian draft board rejects Clapper for being overage, it will notify Boston authorities, who, in their normal course of procedure, would order his immediate induction.

Barons Increase League Lead

By The Canadian Press

Cleveland Barons increased their first place advantage in the American Hockey League to four points by whipping the former leaders, Hershey Bears, 5-2 on home ice last night.

The pace-setting Barons, who were trailing behind Bears all season up until about a week ago, have only lost one game in their last 13 starts.

Bears still lead the Eastern Section and hold second place behind Barons. They have a total of 45 points as a result of 20 wins and eight losses in 33 starts. Barons have collected 22 victories and five ties for a total of 49 points in 34 starts.

Last night Cleveland spurted to a 3-0 advantage in the first period on goals by Phil Hergesheimer, Tommy Burlington and Whitney Prokop. Dick Adolph made it 4-0 in the second period.

The Bears' two goals were made in the last period by Bud Jarvis and Peg O'Neil. Late in the period Les Cunningham bagged the fifth counter for Barons.

Jolliffe Warns 100.000 Idle In Two Months

HAMILTON, Jan. 26 — In December there were nearly 50,000 persons in Canada for whom Selective Service could not find jobs "and by April the figure will be at least 100,000," E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario Leader of the C. C. F. party said here last night. He addressed the first 1944 dinner meeting of Hamilton Lodge, B'Nai B'rith.

Mr. Jolliffe cited the figures as an example of what may be expected if the old system of so-called free enterprise is allowed to carry on after the war. Referring to assurances that post-war problems will be worked out by letting nature take its course, the speaker said, "you'll excuse me if I'm skeptical about those kind of assurances.

The C. C. F. leader linked the problem of national unity with economic problems. "We have not achieved national unity in Canada; there's no use kidding ourselves about it. The main cause of differences between the various racial groups or between areas is economic I suggest that today there are in Canada the seeds of great trouble between the various racial groups, and if we don't wish these seeds to grow into great evils we must establish economic equality and security."

The C.C.F. Leader also addressed a public meeting last night in Adelaide Hoodless School under party auspices. Criticing the "free enterprisers," Mr. Jolliffe said: "If they have their way Ontario alone will have one million on relief in the next great depression."

"The Provincial Government is riding along on the crest of swollen revenues for which the war is responsible," Mr. Jolliffe continued. "Instead of preparing for bold and drastic changes which will be necessary, members of the Government and their leading supporters go on prattling of the glories of free enterprise. The people who were here in 1929, 1932 and 1934 when the Henry Government was in power know all about the glories of that system. Some of our mining magnates made their fortunes during that great depression, and they couldn't see anything wrong with it—they think it's wonderful. The Drew Government is of the same opinion, being the political arm of the mining barons."

Food Dealers To Sell War Savings Stamps

The food dealers of Canada have undertaken to sell during February War Savings Stamps to the amount of $2,000,000.

The industry comprising the retail grocery and meat shops across Canada are joining hands in their second annual contribution toward VICTORY. This national enterprise will be kept prominently before public attention by one means and another, and one of them will be direct sales effort through the agencies of the selling staffs.

During February the public should not be surprised by requests to accept part of their change in War Savings Stamps.

This campaign of the retail food dealers of Canada will be a reminder to everybody that War Savings Stamps are not a contribution to the country. They are a loan. You receive your money back with interest.

Buy 16 25-cent stamps and you receive a War Savings Certificate which cost you four dollars and you receive at its maturity five dollars.

Five dollars for four. That is one of the slogans for this drive. And if you are the kind of Canadian desiring to promote such an patriotic activity by the food dealers from one coast to the other you can stimulate the enthusiasm of the store staffs by beating them to their question—that is, by buying stamps without waiting to be asked.

So much for an introduction to the campaign which is being locally organized, and is ready now for a month's sustained appeal to the public, to pile up not only total sales of $2,000,000, but far beyond that huge sum.

J. J. Wiley national vice-chairman, recently announced the will of the organization of food distributors:

"We did it before and we'll do it again."

P. G. Howard Martin Gets 25-Year Jewel

BONARLAW, Jan. 26 —(ENS)— The Springbrook Lodge of Independent Order of Oddfellows held their annual dance in the Orange Hall, Springbrook, with a large attendance. W. McMullen acted as floor manager.

An interesting feature of the evening was the presentation to Past Grand Howard Martin of a Veteran's 25-year jewel. The presentation was made by the District Deputy Grand Master, Earl Fox of Stirling who predicted for Springbrook Lodge a year of progress and referred to the fact that Past Grand Martin is this year again Noble Grand and Degree Master of the Lodge.

Board Honors 2 Omemee Men

OMEMEE, Jan. 26 (ENS)—At a special session held by the Omemee Board of Education some unfinished business in connection with the new class room which has been fitted and opened in the Omemee Public School, was dealt with first. J. J. Williams then tendered an official resignation as secretary-treasurer, and also as attendance officer. Mr. Williams has held the former office for the past twenty-five years and the latter for the past twenty years, and has an estimable record in the manner in which he has carried out the duties in connection with these offices. The chairman, H. J. A. Jones, expressed his appreciation and that of the Board to Mr. Williams, and it was with regreat that they accepted his resignation.

C. W. Mills read a formal address expressing the sentiments of the members of the Board, and M. D. Earl presented Mr. Williams with a very fine smoking case. Although taken completely by surprise, Mr. Williams made a very suitable reply, thanking his friends for remembering him at this time.

Another address of appreciation and regret was read by Mr. Mills to H. J. A. Jones, who is this year retiring from the Board, having completed fifteen years as an active member, for six of which he filled, very competently, the office of chairman. Mr. Jones was presented with a fountain pen. In a few well chosen words he thanked the Board for their gift.

Lunch was then served, and a social time enjoyed by all those present.

Aussies Seeking Canadian Tourists

OTTAWA, Jan. 26 — (CP) — Australians hope their warm climate, varied attractions and favorable exchange rate will draw Canadian winter travellers after the war, Paul Malone, press attache and representative of the Wartime Information Board in Australia, said to-day in an interview.

Mr. Malone, a former Edmonton and Vancouver newspaperman, arrived from Australia yesterday for a short visit to Canada.

Australians planning for a post-war tourist industry believe Trans-Pacific air travel will make it possible for Canadians to winter as easily in Australia as in the southern United States, he said.

promised early findings after noting that the Soviet Government could not deal with the Polish Government in London because the Poles had asked the International Red Cross to investigate German charges that the killings were done by the Russians.

German propagandists said Polish soldiers and officers had been killed during the Russian occupation of Smolensk. The Poles asked for and then withdrew a request for a Red Cross investigation of the accusations. Meanwhile, however, Moscow severed relations with the Polish Government in London.

The announcement to-day said that when the Germans invaded the Smolensk district three camps for Polish prisoners-of war were situated 15 and 27 miles west of Smolensk, and the Poles working on road, fell into the hands of the Germans.

Moscow announced January 17, the commission included the writer, Alexei Tolstoi, who wrote the "I demand vengeance" account of atrocities in Stalino, and metropolitan Nikolai of the Russian orthodox church, among others.

Drunken Guard Shoots Lakefield Man

TORONTO, Jan. 26. — Erickson Ivan Moore, 37, for many years a resident of Toronto, and nephew of Mrs. J. W. Cornish, 20 Evelyn Crescent, was fatally shot by a drunken guard on a train in the Republic of El Salvador in Central America, according to word received here yesterday.

Mr. Moore was superintendent of the El Salvador Division of the International Railways of Central America, and according to L. F. Whitbeck, manager, was shot after ordering the guard from a first-class carriage. The shooting occurred on January 3, death ensuing seven days later.

He was born in Lakefield, Ont., and moved to Toronto to make his home with his aunt after the leath of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Moore. He was an only child, and went to Central America in 1930.

SERVES AGAIN—Mrs. Stella Redley's son is grown up now, and serving overseas in the R.C.A.F., but when his mother speaks she still commands plenty of respect. The reason—he's a corporal and she's a sergeant. The Saskatoon mother joined the Women's Division in 1941 and was one of the first women to qualify as a hospital chef. On her tunic she wears the ribbons of the Overseas Medal and Victory Medal, tokens of her service in the last war when she spent two years as a V.A.D. on hospital ships carrying wounded men across the Channel. miles west of Castelforte.

As the Americans advanced through minefields north of Cassino they were subjected to heavy fire and the Germans also launched fierce counter-attacks on the French near Monte Croce.

On the whole, however, German resistance diminished on the main 5th Army front as it increased against the Allied forces threatening their communications in the north.

Allied planes, meanwhile, smashed at bridges and roads and machine-gunned Germans in the area south of Rome.

Eleven Nazi planes were shot down for a loss of three Allied ships.

Heavy bombers struck at rail communications in central Italy, medium bombers attacked roads and bridges at Rieti, Amelia and Ceprano, while light bombers pounded Terelle, Frascati and Belmonte.

Fighters and fighter-bombers machine-gunned and bombed roads and troops in the battle area, and maintained a constant cover over the beaches.

Allied Headquarters said there were no official reports that Cassino had been taken or evacuated and had made no announcements to this effect. Correspondents in dispatches from the front said American patrols had crept into the town and had found no Germans there. They were pinned down by enemy fire, however, and had to withdraw.

Naval units have been supporting land operations South of Rome with gun fire, the United States navy announced, telling also of a sea battle with German E-boats. Results were not discolsed.

GOOD FOR YOUNG AND OLD

People of every age enjoy the matchless flavour and tingling champagne-tang of Canada Dry. It is good for them too, because it's a pure, wholesome drink of matchless quality. Keep a good supply on hand —it quenches thirst faster.

The Champagne of Ginger Ales

AND WHAT IS THIS Quality?

It begins with a secret scientific formula —never yet successfully imitated, calling for pure, wholesome ingredients . . . the finest Jamaica Ginger Root—pure cane sugar—triple-purified, ultra-violet-ray treated water—and Canada Dry's special process of pin-point carbonation.

Each ingredient must measure up to a fixed, high standard of quality . . . each step in manufacture is followed with mathematical exactitude and checked by continual analysis.

As a result, every drop of Canada Dry is always and everywhere the same— full of that subtle flavour, that lively, bubbling tang, which people throughout the wide world expect, and never fail to get. It's the Champagne of Ginger Ales.

If your dealer does not always have Canada Dry on hand, don't blame him. Wartime conditions are responsible.

WARMEST IN YEARS.

WINDSOR, Jan. 26.—(CP).—Officials of the Detroit weather bureau, across the river from Windsor, looked at their thermometer yesterday, shook their heads in disbelief, looked again. But they were right the first time. It said 61 degrees above zero, the warmest January day ever recorded here.

Sailor Don Vyse Takes Part In Convoy Fight

A young Peterborough sailor, AB. Donald H. Vyse, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Vyse of 386 Burnham street, participated in the furious Atlantic convoy battle which was staged recently between German submarines and ships of the Canadian and British navies.

No direct word has reached his parents as yet regarding the part played by their son in the action, but details of the battle announced by the Admiralty give the name of AB. Vyse's ship, the Corvette Snowberry. Two other Canadian vessels, the corvette Calgary and the frigate Neme, are also mentioned in the despatch.

The ship that Donald Vyse was on was mainly instrumental in registering the hits with depth bombs on the sub that was definitely destroyed, forcing it to the surface where a point-blank exchange of gunfire ensued before the Nazis gave up. Nearly half the crew were rescued from the water and taken prisoner.

Donald Vyse, who is only 19 years old now, has been in the Canadian Navy for over two years. Prior to enlisting he worked at the C.G.E. as a messenger boy in the main office. He was home on furlough last June after serving in the Atlantic for some months, and was called back to duty before his leave was up, at which time he joined the crew of the Snowberry.

One of seven children, his father Herbert Vyse, a veteran of the last war, joined the Veterans' Guard at the beginning of the war and a member of the first contingent to go out of Peterborough. He is now stationed at Lansdowne Park, Ottawa. A sister, Muriel Vyse, is a private in the C.W.A.C., which she joined a year and a half ago, and she is stationed at Barriefield.

Fuel Deliveries To City Reach 1862 Cords

Wood delivered to the city's fuel committee to January 15 totalled 1,862 cords, of which 429 cords were sold, leaving 1,433 cords in the municipal wood pile at the middle of the month.

Alderman Glover, chairman of the committee, gave the Examiner today the following details of deliveries:

No. 1 hardwood, 1,010¾ cords; No. 2 hardwood, 109½ cords; softwood, 275½ cords; hardwood slabs, 145 cords; softwood slabs, 321¼ cords.

Sales in cords were, to January 15: No. 1 hardwood, 235; No. 2 hardwood, 26; softwood, 7; softwood slabs 161

More Deliveries.

"We still have contracts for 2,432 cords of hardwood and 289 cords of softwood," Alderman Glover said, "but we are not sure whether they will all be delivered."

The committee was authorized to obtain an emergency supply of wood for the winter, and has built up a stock pile, quite a lot of it dry, that looks like a solid guarantee for the rest of the season.

"The council wished to assure the people that they would not go cold this winter, and I think the plans we had to adopt in a hurry have worked out pretty satisfactorily," the chairman said.

It is understood that dealers are arranging for supplies, and if they are going to bring in enough wood for next winter the committee is ready to retire from its emergency operations.

"We are very thankful that the winter has been on our side," Alderman Glover said, "but we were thinking of the possibility of a recurrence of the severe weather of last year, and probably we have more wood on hand and in sight than may be needed."

Thieves Fail To Find Coupons

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 26 — (ENS) — Thieves apparently in search of a few extra gasoline coupons, broke into the service station belonging to Mason Brothers around 3 a.m. and after a futile search escaped without being detected.

It is believed that the intruders had a key to the garage, because the lock showed no signs of having been forced. Avoiding the service station proper, the thieves made for the garage where the big gas truck is kept and rummaged around in the glove compartment, apparently expecting to find loose coupons collected during the day for gas delivered.

When they drew a blank there, the burglars attempted to siphon some gas from the truck, into a 10-gallon container, and they were either frightened away or failing to find what they wanted left.

The break-in was discovered by night constable David Brown, who on his rounds discovered the garage door open. None of the tires in the service station proper were touched, lending credence to the theory that the theft was engineered in the hope of finding the gas coupons.

Elmer R. Frost Passes Away In His 48th Year

Elmer Raeburn Frost, vice-principal of the Queen Alexandra public school and superintendent of the St. James United church Sunday School, passed away at his home, 306 Monaghan road on Tuesday night after an illness of three months.

Mr. Frost has been a member of the staff of the Peterborough Public Schools for 21 years, coming here in January, 1923. He taught at Central School until 1934 when he was appointed vice-principal of Prince of Wales school and in September, 1937, he was moved to the senior vice-principalship at Queen Alexandra school.

Born in the township of Otonabee 47 years ago, son of the late George and Mary Ann Frost, he attended the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and the Normal School. On graduating he accepted a teaching position near Oshawa, Ont., but the war interrupted his teaching career and he enlisted and saw service in Siberia. On his return he taught for three years at Young's Point and for about six months at Selwyn when he came to Peterborough.

Very popular with his pupils and with the parents Mr. Frost was held in very high regard in every school in which he taught. In Peterborough while vice principal he took charge of the school's athletics and sports, among the boys, and the awards won by his teams fully demonstrated his ability as a coach.

A lover of his church, Mr. Frost was a member of the session of St. James' United church and for a number of years its clerk. He was always interested in Sunday Schools and through his organizing ability he brought St. James' Sunday School up to the best organized in the city.

Last spring he underwent an operation for appendicitis and ever since he has not been in the best of health. He returned to his duties in September, but early in October he was forced to quit and after several weeks in the hospital was taken to his home, however, his illness was such as little hope was held for his recovery.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Kenneth Rose of Trenton and Shirley, aged 9, and one son, Reyburn, aged six. Also two sisters, Mrs. Ivy Holden of Peterborough and Mrs. E. McGregor of Rapid View, Saskatchewan, and four brothers, Charles of Peterborough, George of Toronto, Albert of Seattle and Ralph of Hollywood.

The remains are resting at the late residence, 306 Monaghan road, until Friday morning at eleven o'clock, when they will be taken to St. James' United church, where the service will be held at 2.30. His minister, Rev. F. W. Craik, will officiate and interment will take place in Little Lake cemetery.

Morley E. Smithson Is Laid To Rest

A large gathering of friends and relations attended the funeral services of Morley E. Smithson, former warden of Peterborough County, which were held from the Belleghem Funeral Home on Tuesday at two o'clock. Both chapels at the funeral parlor were open and crowded to capacity for the brief service conducted by Rev. E. C. Moore of St. George's Anglican Church. Among those present from Toronto were the brother and sister of the late Mr. Smithson, John Smithson and Mrs. T. MacDonald. Reeve Peter Mather of Otonabee, immediate past warden of the county, and other members of county council and suburban area commission were present.

The pall-bearers were Frank Graystock, Vincent Hayes, Edward Dixon, Charles Kindred, William Crane and Thomas Slattery.

BIRTHS INCREASE.

Births in the United States in 1943 were estimated at 3,200,000, the largest number of any year in history.

Band Concert Sunday For War Victims

Most people love to hear a good band play, so it should meet with quite popular approval that through the kind permission of Lt.-Col. W. Bapty, O.C. the local training centre, the band of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps from Camp Borden are to give a concert next Sunday evening in the Collegiate Auditorium on behalf of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund.

Under the baton of Bandmaster Albert Croasdale, WO.1, this band has already performed in the city on a number of occasions, each succeeding appearance confirming and adding to the splendid reputation they had previously gained, and when this coming program which will commence at 8.30 p.m. on the night mentioned, will contain such well loved numbers as Sibelius "Finlandia," Handel's "Largo," and Kettleby's "Monastery Garden," it will be seen just what a treat is really in store for all who attend.

The members of the band come from widespread parts of this country, with the solo clarinet and a member of Chinese extraction hailing from far away Vancouver, B.C., while Murray Wright, the cornet soloist, comes from the near-by town of Lindsay.

A feature of this presentation of the much loved "Monastery Garden" will be the singing of the Kyrie, by some of the members of the band, led by Mike Damico who hails from Ottawa, and further variety will be afforded through the rendition of some vocal numbers by Miss June Shield, A.Mus (McGill), A.T.C.M., of Mount Pleasant.

H. L. Garner, manager of the Examiner, will act as chairman for the occasion, and members of the Peterborough Women's Service corps in charge of Miss F. Mitchell, will act as ushers and take up the collection in aid of the fund.

Lodge And Church Groups.

Only a few days ago, a contribution appeared in this column from one of the groups at St. James' United Church, and this is now followed by still further help through another listed today as coming from the Ever-Awake Bible Class, who have also previously given help to the fund, playing their part in much help that has come from this one church located in the south-end of the city.

The Echo Club is a group within the circle of the Rebekah Lodge membership, and they recently held a draw on an embroidered quilt, from the proceeds of which the sum of $10 is credited in their name today. This prize was won by Mrs. Woods of Charlotte Street, who held the winning ticket, No. 88.

One personal donation for $4 under the heading of "Anonymous," receipt No. 3425, is also included in today's list, which besides giving a helping hand, might through its suggestive power lead the way for others to do likewise.

Previously acknowledged	$72,847.22
The Ever-Awake Bible Class of St. James' United Church	5.00

Lindsav People Favor Curfew

A curfew by-law for children up to 16 was recently proposed in the Lindsay Town Council, but no action was taken. Opinions of some of the citizens were recently reported in the Post:

G. W. Keith, Collegiate principal: "I am fully in favor of the idea and would set the deadline at 9 p.m."

Rev. J. V. McAuley: "The idea is a splendid one."

Rev. F. C. Stevens, of the Ministerial Association: "I believe the curfew should be rung at 9:30 and on Saturday nights at 11 p.m. Children should not be allowed to loiter around the streets."

Dr. H. Irvine, Board of Education chairman: "I am in favor of a 10 o'clock curfew."

Walter Reesor, Public Library Board chairman: "I think the children should be off the streets at 10 p.m. and that parents should make sure their children are in. I believe a stricter home rule would not hurt."

Harry Stone, Rotary president, was in favor of a 10 p.m. curfew.

Two Councils In Agreement

North Monaghan and the city will present a case of complete agreement on boundaries of the township, proposed for annexation, at the second sitting of the Ontario Municipal Board in the City Council chamber Thursday afternoon.

The Township Council Monday night decided to accept and support appeals for that additional area south of Lansdowne street and lying between Park street on the east, Monaghan road on the west and St. James street on the south. The area east of Park street, between Lansdowne street and the river, remains unchanged.

At a meeting of the committee of the whole Council yesterday afternoon, the city assented to the township's boundaries, westerly to Monaghan road and St. James street on the south.

Boundary opposition will be submitted in the County Council's by-law asking for annexation west of Monaghan road to Erskine avenue and south to Cameron street.

A resolution at the City Council's committee meeting proposes that the board exclude the Erskine avenue block, and rather than adopt that strip the city suggests that annexation details be further postponed or withdrawn altogether.

The city is willing to endorse the position of North Monaghan, but is adamantly opposed to the Erskine avenue area.

WOUNDED OVERSEAS — Pte. Thomas Foster, with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, has been wounded in Italy. He is the son of Pte. Thomas Foster with the First Canadian Army unit overseas, formerly of the S.D. & G. Highlanders, and Mrs. Foster, Reid Street. Enlisting in the Prince of Wales Rangers, Pte. Foster went overseas as a reinforcement in the fall of 1942. Before joining up, he was employed at the Canada Packers, and attended King Edward School.

Corvette Group Outfitting Peterboro Ship

A second meeting of the Corvette Committee, which is sponsoring H.M.C.S. Peterborough, was held in the committee rooms of the City Buildings, Tuesday night. The reports of sub-committees indicated that plans for the furnishing and equipping of the ship and supplying of comforts for the men who will sail her are well on the way towards completion.

The city's own ship was launched a week ago last Saturday at the Kingston shipbuilding yards without ceremony. However, the christening of the ship, which is planned for May, will be attended by a delegation representing the committee and the city. Tentative plans now underway for this civic occasion, and other matters, still in the formative stages at the present time, will be considered more definitely at the next meeting, to be held sometime in March.

A great comfort for the tars who will man the "Peterborough" in the blustery, sub-Arctic weather of the North Atlantic will be the leather vests which are being turned out for crew members. Some of these are being made from deer-skins contributed by the more fortunate Nimrod's of last fall's hunting season.

Want More Gramophones

Music, one of the most vital of morale-builders for fighting men confined to close quarters and denied the opportunities for seeking out amusements in the fashion of their civilian brothers, has been a chief concern of the committee's efforts. Already one gramophone with sets of records and one small-size piano have been supplied for the ship, and the Corvette Committee is anxious to obtain another of each.

Ditty bags, with all the small comforts which can make so much difference to a man serving at sea, are another important division of the Committee's work, and are in the hands of Mrs. Fred Hooper and Mrs. W. Fanning. In charge of electrical equipment is Ross Dobbin.

It is the donations of interested, patriotic citizens that makes possible the outfitting of "Corvette Peterborough" in a manner that will reflect credit on the city after which she is named. The Committee would remind you that there is still time to make your donation, which may be sent to the committee treasurer, T. A. McKay.

Worst Fog Yet

LONDON, Jan 26 (CP). — A train crash at suburban Ilford on January 16 in which nine passengers were killed occurred while Britain was groping through the worst fog in four years, it was permitted to be disclosed to-day. Fog covered the country from Land's End to John o' Groats and visibility was only about a yard when a train from Norwich plowed into the rear of a Yarmouth train stopped at the station.

4 Youths Given Reformatory Terms For Theft

Reformatory sentences ranging from eighteen months down to six months were imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K. C., in police court this morning on four youths, three from Toronto and one from Belleville who had entered pleas of guilty on several counts.

Alfred B. Watts, 17, Toronto was sentenced to 18 months definite and three months indeterminate in the Reformatory on a charge of stealing an automobile in Toronto, to a similar sentence for robbing the store of Theodore Crawford in Lakefield and to six months definite and two months indeterminate for stealing gasoline from Clarence Foster, Lakefield, the two sentences to run concurrently.

Joseph Wasslyn, 19, Toronto, was given 15 months definite and three months indeterminate on the auto theft and Crawford store burglary and six months definite and two indeterminate for the theft of gasoline, all three sentences to run concurrently.

Magistrate Langley explained that he had a worse record than Wasslyn.

John Caride, 16, Toronto, and Douglas Bunnette, 16, Belleville, were sentenced to six months definite and three months indeterminate for their share in the Crawford robbery and six months and four for the gasoline theft, the two sentences to run currently.

In their case it was stated that they had had no previous records. W. R. Philp appeared for Caride and asked for leniency pointing out that he had just passed his 16th birthday.

All four had previously pleaded guilty to robbing the Crawford store and to stealing gasoline in Lakefield. This morning they faced a fresh charge of stealing an automobile in Toronto, incidentally the same car that was used in the Lakefield escapade.

Wasslyn and Watts pleaded guilty to the car theft. The two younger boys entered pleas of not guilty and the charge against them was dismissed when Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K. C., announced that he was offering no evidence.

Provincial Constable Price Morris furnished evidence in the charge against Watts and Wasslyn, telling of how the stolen car with the goods stolen at Lakefield in it, had been found at Bowmanville, after a chase by police. He said that the marker on the stolen car, covering the original marker had been stolen. Wasslyn and Watts testified in their own behalf that their intention had been to return the stolen car to Toronto but that when they were chased they had had an accident at Bowmanville.

Both pleaded for leniency, declaring that they had not had much chance in life and that they had resolved to do better in future.

Casualty List Grows Larger

The casualty lists for Peterborough and district are showing no signs of decline and the name of 10 men appeared today including six wounded, one seriously wounded, two missing and one killed.

The only new Peterborough man amongst the wounded is Pte. Stewart Harry Donald, whose wife, Mrs. Helen I. Donald, lives at 712 New Romaine street. He was serving with an Eastern Ontario Regiment, when he was put out of action.

The wounded are: Cpl. Harold B. Corrigan, wounded a second time, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Corrigan, R.R. No. 6 Peterborough; Pte. William Stuart McIntosh, whose wife, Mrs. Charity McIntosh, lives at 40 Lafayette Ave.; A/Sgt. Herbert Aubrey Maxwell, son of William A. Maxwell, Gooderham; Cpl. Oscar Victor Thurston, foster son of Mrs. Milton Knowles, at Stoco; and Pte. Ernest A. W. Young, son of Earl Young, Bancroft. They were all serving with a Central Ontario Regiment.

Tpr. Charles Morley Horsman, was seriously wounded while serving with the Canadian Armoured Corps, and his wife, Mrs. Eva B. Horsman, lives on Palliser Street, Campbellford. Pte. Leon Connors, son of Mrs. Hattie Connors, Bowmanville, is reported missing along with Lieut. Hubert J. Vallery, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Vallery, 310 Pearl Ave. Although it has been reported before, this is the first official listing of the death of Pte. Victor Peters, whose wife, Mrs. Beatrice S. Peters, lives at 598 Chamberlain street.

Vagrancy Charge Dismissed In Court

"This man is absolutely in the clear," said Inspector J. F. Reid in Police Court this morning after the Crown had announced that no evidence would be offered in the charge against Harvey Clark of vagrancy. "He had never been in Police Court in his life before," the Inspector stated, "and our investigation has shown there is nothing against him."

The case against Clark was, of course dismissed. Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who appeared for him said that Clark had been arrested early one morning on his way home from work because the police were suspicious of some articles he had in the car. "They have satisfied themselves that there is nothing against him, but in the meantime his reputation has suffered because of this charge."

To Restore The Hopes Of Scotland After The Battle Of Culloden Was The Mission Fulfilled By Burns

"Had he never written anything but "Auld Lang Syne," Burns would be gratefully remembered wherever our language is spoken, for that is the world's greatest song of good fellowship," said Alec Clarke in responding to the traditional Scottish toast "To the Immortal Memory" at the second annual celebration of the birth of Robert Burns by The Jolly Beggars Club at the Kawartha Club last night.

To hear The Jolly Beggars sing the folk songs of their country, classics from the high repertory of their race, so many of them the songs which Burns left as an imperishable legacy, is a memorable experience in the round of dinners and festive gatherings. Among the choruses which really featured the program of this observance of the 185th Burns anniversary were: "Loch Lomond," "Annie Laurie," "Ye Banks and Braes of Bonnie Doon," "Auld Lang Syne" in its five verses, and among others that most stirring of martial songs of challenge and defiance "Scots Wha Hae," all warmly harmonized by the company of more than one hundred of The Jolly Beggars. Such a natural gift of music and endowment of songs seemed the true reflection of the real spirit of Scotsmen, refuting the notion of dourness of temperament as being a dominant characteristic.

"Cradled In Song"

These Scots, native of the homeland and removed by one or more generations, sing with a zest, the source of which was suggested in Mr. Clarke's introduction. "We were cradled in song; the songs of our country. They remain with us and become more dear with the passing of time. They are passed from one generation to another in a manner that has surpassed the songs of other poets than Burns."

Mr. Clarke proposed the toast last year, at the Club's first dinner, and was called upon again in the emergency caused by the sudden illness of Rev. Dr. G. S. Easton. Adopting a new theme of his subject, his discussion was a glowing appreciation of the poetry and the personality of Robert Burns against the background of the years following closely upon the battle of Culloden "when the clansmen buried all hope of the future."

Mr. Clarke quoted the tribute of Carlyle to the poems of Burns, and for the occasion of the Club's dinner, he selected the Scottish critic's commendation of the series under the title of "The Jolly Beggars" written in form of cantata from which the members chose the name of their comparatively new organization.

In a different tone of criticism Carlyle wrote: "A man like Burns might have divided his hours between poetry and virtuous industry: industry with all true feeling sanctions, nay, prescribes, and which has beauty, for that cause, beyond the pomp of thrones. But, to divide his hours between poetry and righ men's banquets was an ill-starred and inauspicious attempt."

"I wonder if they knew that Burns had tried virtuous industry and found it wanting?" Mr. Clarke continued. "Did they know the factor called regularly for his rent and expected whether they ate or not? It may be true that the Edinburgh period gave Burns a desire for higher society, but I do not think so. During the last three years of his life he sometimes drank more than a wise man should, but during that time he re-wrote three hundred songs for Thompson's collection besides attending to his work which was a job in itself. Carlyle sits in his parlor with a devoted wife to attend him, and criticizes the man who had brought bad health upon himself by extremely hard work as a farmer before he was twenty."

"A Vagrant Gleam"

Referring again to the critic's strictures, Mr. Clarke quoted "Burns' poetry is a stray vagrant gleam that will not be extinguished within him, yet rises not to guide his path, but is often a wildfire that misleads him."

Mr. Clarke asserted that Carlyle's depreciating phrase "a stray gleam" had been fully answered by the long years since both the poet and his critic lived and died.

"It seems to me Carlyle overlooked the effect the history of his country made upon Burns. For centuries Scotland had been a huge battle ground. The people had driven back the foe; most of them lived poorly, but they were free men."

Mr. Clarke briefly reviewed the distressful years through which Scotland had passed prior to the birth of Burns, who when he was twenty-three borrowed a copy of the Life of Wallace, became inspired by his exploits and greatness. Until that time Burns had been content to be a drudge of the farm.

Born After Culloden

"Fourteen years after Culloden Burns was born. He found poverty everywhere. The Kirk was divided into two sects. From America came murmurs of dissatisfaction which was to lead to civil war and the loss to England of her greatest colony. From France came the growl that preceded the revolution which with its horror was to shock the world.

It was a terrible period with little joy and little hope. Men were driven to smuggling and other unlawful pursuits. The "randie gangrel bodies" such as were the Jolly Beggars who met at Poosie Nancie's were to be found all over Scotland. The worst that can be said of them was that they made the best of their poverty."

Burns Had Mission

The battle of Culloden seemed to have extinguished the hopes of Scotland, and as he came to know the true state of his country in his youth it seemed, Mr. Clarke said, that the Ayrshire youth had a mission to raise the common people to a sense of their own importance, and to interest them again in the affairs about them and to struggle up from the depths of what had been despair.

"He wrote songs and they sang them. He wrote satires against them and they laughed at the things they had professed to believe. He mocked, he blamed and he praised as the occasion demanded, and the people loved it for they knew it was honest, and honesty was none too common then. He loved poetry, but he loved the human family more. He said he would wipe all tears from all eyes if he had the power.

Uplifted His People

"No, Tammas, (Carlyle); Burns had a mission and he fulfilled it. Had he written the greatest classic of all time; had he changed the course of English literature, as you say he was capable of doing, it would have done no service to his country, and it would only have been read by the smug and well fed.

The mission of Burns was to lift his people out of the quicksand of hopelessness that was slowly engulfing them."

Scotland had suffered cruelly after the defeat at Culloden. The English victory was so complete that Cumberland could have displayed some decent feeling; but he "had no decent feeling, and so the tyrant had his sway. The wearing of the kilt was banned. The weaving of the tartan was made a criminal offence. All the writings of the ancient bards were destroyed.

"That 'vagrant gleam' of Burns' poetry, to recall Carlyle once more, becomes brighter and stronger year

Millbrook Boy Wed In Ingersoll

MILLBROOK, Jan. 26 — (ENS) —St. James Anglican Church, Ingersoll, was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday afternoon when the rector, Rev. J. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding dress of egg-shell Chantilly lace over matching satin, her veil, arranged in halo style, also of the Chantilly lace. She carried a white embossed prayer book, with cascade of white Gardenias. The bride's sister, Miss Janet Counter, was her attendant, and wore a floor-length dress of moss green silk crepe, with matching Juliet cap, and carried an arm bouquet of Briarcliffe roses.

Captain George Pettet, R. C. A., of Toronto, was the groomsman, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. Pettet sang "An Old English Love Song." The ushers were FO. Howard Yule, R. C. A. F., of Malton, and Sergeant Robert Gilpin, R. C. A. F. of Camp Borden.

Importance Of Youth

Miss Wilma Thomas, secretary for the younger groups of the Dominion board, was guest speaker in the afternoon and in the evening. In her afternoon address, Miss Thomas stressed the importance of providing a program of Christian education for the boys and girls and young people of churches.

"Education in democracy is needed today; our boys and girls are not being taught to assume responsibility," she said. "Children and young people must be led into a consciousness of the reality of our church today so that they are members in it with other people around the world," the speaker went on. She said that they were hoping for 50 new missionaries in the next four years, but that the speed with which the missionaries were to be obtained was in the hands of the young people of today.

Miss Thomas said that it was the responsibility of the Auxiliary members to provide for younger groups in the church embracing all ages, and to stand behind the leaders of these younger groups. However, she went on, people are likely to grow discouraged, and she asked them to remember that "Jesus carried on an intensive work with a group of twelve men, confident that He was fitting in with God's plan for the world. Therefore, we must carry on, confident that God will use us for the building of His Kingdom on earth."

International Cooperation

In her address to the evening meeting, Miss Thomas had as her topic "International Relationships," and stressed that co-operation between nations was essential, and that peoples living in Canada should try to know one another better. In addition, Christianity is the answer to the world's ills, and Christians have a great responsibility, that of bringing the light of Christian co-operation and unity, fellowship and peace, not only to Canada, but to all parts of the earth, the speaker declared.

Mrs. Hugh Taylor spoke briefly at the conclusion of the evening meeting, and had as her topic, "The Christian Church in a World at War." She said that the work of the church was going on in spite of difficulties, mentioning Trinidad and South America as examples of continued effort. In conclusion, Mrs. Taylor said, "Every W.M.S. member had her responsibility. Let us re-dedicate ourselves to spreading the light of the Gospel of Christ." She also addressed the Mission Band, on Africa, illustrating her talk with lantern slides.

Executive Meets

An executive meeting was held Monday evening, thus relieving some of the business of the morning session. The theme of the convention was "Advance," and was brought out not only in the reports, but also in the opening worship period, conducted by the St. James' Auxiliary, and the service of worship at the afternoon session, conducted by Bridgenorth Auxiliary. Mrs. Gerard, the president of the Knox Auxiliary extended a welcome to all present, and Mrs. E. Munroe of Norwood responded.

A Courtesy Committee, composed of Mrs. H. Tremaine and Mrs. W. Rose, was appointed, and a Resolutions Committee, consisting of Mrs. W. H. Morton and Mrs. R. C. Hanbidge was also named. Several reports were given, and Mrs. H. Clegg, the treasurer, reported an increase of $300 over last year. Mrs. Sisco of Millbrook reported for the Secretary of Christian Stewardship, who was unable to be present, and Mrs. H. T. Rehill explained in detail the meaning of "Gifts to Special Objects." The literature exhibit was in charge of Mrs. E. M. Davis.

A dinner was served at noon in the dining hall by the ladies of Knox church. During the afternoon session, greetings from the conference branch were read by Mrs. Moncrief, and an invitation from George Street church to hold the next year's meetings there, was accepted. Mrs. G. A. Spicer was soloist for the afternoon, and Miss Loretta McDougall sang during the worship service of the evening meeting, conducted by Rev. H. J. Mahoney. A memorial service for members of the Presbyterial who passed away during the year was held, and was conducted by Mrs. R. Hanscom, assisted by the four vice-presidents, with Mrs. J. E. Glover as soloist.

In War Times Those Bringing Trouble Between Couples Should Be Lined Up Like Spies.

Chief among the saboteurs who should be lined up against a wall and shot at sunrise are those who destroy the happiness of husband and wives and sweethearts by killing their faith in each other. How anyone in these times of stress and strain could be guilty of such inhuman cruelty as adding another grief to those that already tear at every heart, passes all understanding, but apparently it is the favorite indoor sport of a large number of people who seem to find a sadistic pleasure in torturing their fellow creatures.

Of course, the trouble-maker is a familiar figure in our midst. We have always had those among us who felt it their sacred duty to puncture our pink balloons and be the bearer of bad news, who could not see a man buying his secretary a sandwich without hot-footing it to the nearest telephone to tell his wife all about it and warn her that while it might be innocent, still you never could tell about such things, and that she had better keep an eye on him.

Exaggerate Wife's Feelings.

Or those whose distorted sense of humor prompted them to tease a husband about one of his wife's old beaux, and ask him if he had noticed how often she danced with him at some party, and how glad she always seemed to see him.

As has been aforesaid, the home-wrecking crew has always been busy enough with its dirty work, but they have simply gone to town during the war. It has given them an opportunity to ply their trade in a field that is as wide as human passions and as fertile as youth and

A MOST propitious pattern of vital and productive planets encourages a definite and concentrated effort to combine the energies, abilities, and other progressive and expansive elements for attaining high ambitions, with objectives of major importance to be assitsed to advanced goals by the substantial support or endorsement of influential personages, both in public and financial or commercial standing. All should be found friendly and willing to encourage propositions of merit and enduring worth.

Those whose birthday it is should take advantage of excellent opportunities for placing their most ambitious hopes, wishes and objectives on a secure, expansive and lucrative basis, whether this aim tends to public or private gain, to business, financial, professional or social standing and influence. Personal prestige and efficiency may play a major part in influencing the hearty support of those in high places. But propositions must have merit and enduring worth to gain this preferment and solid aid. Romance and sentiment also enter to make for progress and pleasant relations.

Army Officials Curbing Hasty Marriages Overseas

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 26 — (CP) —Hasty marriages overseas are being prevented by extreme care taken by Canadian Army officials in England, Major Walter T. Steven stated yesterday, in response to questions on the matrimonial situation of the armed forces.

Letters of recommendaion for the bride, blood tests for both the man and woman, investigation of the girl by the padre or some other officer where possible. Consent of the commanding officer, and finally, consent of the brigade commander, are all required. After all of this, there is a period of waiting of not less than two months.

The vast majority of girls are enthusiastic for coming back to Canada and making their homes here after the war, Major Stevens said. It is also true, he stated, that a considerable number of our men have become very fond of England and feel that the best opportunity for their future life may lie in the Old Land.

"There is no reason to think that most of these marriages will establish other than successful and happy homes."

Praises Hospitality.

When asked about the reception given by the English families to their Canadian sons-in-law, Major Stevens replied: "I cannot speak too highly for English hospitality. Many of the marriages have grown out of it. The English people often share their rations for the purpose of entertainment. Practically all I have known have been well received as sons of the family."

After the marriages, the girls usually go on working, or return to the services. It is arranged, however, that the couple receive leave from either industry or service at the same time.

"I was never more convinced than now of the importance of sound homes in a nation's life. The morally sound homes of Canada are the real fortresses of freedom that we must cultivate and protect," the returned chaplain said.

Ponder Post-war Canada.

"Many of the boys are wondering what Canada will be like after the war. Some are rather cynical, and don't expect that veterans will be treated much better than they have been in previous wars. Others are hopeful, and want nothing more than to come back and take a normal place as citizens. Fortunately, present reconstruction policy of the Government is on the basis of fitting men for life, rather than of supplying them with gratuities.

"I foresee a fight for the better Canada that will demand the co-operation of all people of goodwill, but I also believe that Canada may be one of the principal factors in bringing the world back to sanity and lasting peace."

Londoners Look To 1944 For Decision

By SYDNEY GRUSON,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Jan. 26 — (CP Cable) — The "year of decision," they labelled 1944, and London welcomed it with a heart made light and gay by the vision of victory.

Perhaps there weren't many Londoners in great snake dances that wound through Piccadilly and around Trafalgar Spuare. But in their pubs and in their homes, there was the same feeling if not the same outlet as for the thousands of servicemen and their girls yipee-ing and singing on the streets this New Year's eve night.

Like Adrenalin to the heart was the year-end victory of the Home Fleet over the Nazi battleship Scharnhorst and like the brandy after dinner was the quick follow-up triumph for the British cruisers Glasgow and Enterprise over a flotilla of German destroyers in the Boy of Biscay when three were sunk and the others routed.

The Briton appreciates the grimness of land battles and an army leader like Montgomery excites his imagination, even as the great achievements of the R. A. F. but it is on the fleet that he lavishes his love and here was the fleet bringing him two year-end gifts in the great tradition of Drake and Nelson.

The crowds on the streets flooded out from the narrowing confines of Piccadilly and Trafalgar and debouched into every side street in the heart of London, hands and hearts linked in the overwhelming camaraderie of the times, the uniforms, the victories of the dying year and the embryonic victories of the year to be born. And when the two searchlights formed a great "V" behind the dominating dome of St. Paul's, emblem of the unshatterable among all the ruins around it, the strains of "Auld Lang Syne" faced into one great spontaneous cheer.

Londoners remembered when last they had seen the great dome lit up, on that December night in 1940 when it stood outlined against the smoke and flame of fires dancing into and through the buildings about the cathedral.

This was the portent of the things to come in the "year of desision"— the lights now were those of triumph.

GLIDER BOMB MISSES—While men on the bridge held their breath, a glider bomb released by a Heinkel 177 zoomed past the Prince Robert's bows and went straight for a freighter in the convoy. But a second before it was to have hit the mark, the bomb took an upward turn, passed over the freighter's masts and plummetted into the water 80 yards away. The freighter is seen above, almost enveloped in the cascade of water as the bomb fell.

Fred J. Slade President For 18th Year

COBOURG, Jan. 26. —(ENS). — Fred J. Slade has begun his 18th year as president of Roseneath Agricultural Society, sponsors of the second-largest rural fair in Ontario. Coldwell Frowns On Plan Of Lord Halifax

OTTAWA, Jan. 26 — (CP). — C.C.F. Leader Coldwell and New Democracy Leader Blackmore Tuesday raised questions on the address of Lord Halifax at Toronto Monday night in which he urged the Dominions, the Colonies and the United Kingdom to fortify their partnership so they could claim equal partnership as a group with the United States, Russia asd China.

There was no immediate comment from Prime Minister Mackenzie King or John Bracken, Progressive Conservative Leader.

Mr. Coldwell said he believed the genius of the British Commonwealth had been the recognition of basic unity in disunity. Lord Halifax now proposed to abandon this historic principle and commit the Commonwealth Nations to a united stand no matter what the future might hold. Such action would destroy the Commonwealth, not strengthen it.

"I would not like to see Canada committed in advance to Tory-dominated foreign and colonial policies like those so consistently followed in the past," said Mr. Coldwell.

"The new proposals in Lord Halifax's speech seem to me to be a particularly dangerous form of isolationism."

They would mean the British peoples would be ringed around economically and militarily from the rest of the world. Freedom from fear demanded the abolition of power politics and the establishment of a basis for a world community of nations. Otherwise a third great war must be expected.

Mr. Blackmore said the major problem facing the post-war world would be that which "confounded" the pre-war world: "How can men distribute the abundance this age of plenty can produce?"

Lord Halifax had not given a hint how he would solve this question. In speaking of closer unity among British peoples, he should suggest what sort of political, financial and economic set-up he has in mind.

"Why does he not confide in us?" Mr. Blackmore asked.

"He speaks of 'a commonwealth united(vital, coherent.' By what mechanism does he plan to achieve this objective? If only he had let us know."

Blockade Runners

ALGIERS, Jan. 26 — (CP). — The Western and Far Eastern poles of the Axis are maintaining a lively traffic in war materials by the speedy blockade runners and cargo submarines, refugees escaped from France say. It was said swift merchantmen, augmented by submarine and aerial shipments, succeeded in transporting more than 300,000 tons of critically needed supplies in each direction during the first year of the Pacific War.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 26 — (CP). — Winter returned to some western districts yesterday with a light fall of snow in Alberta areas, and a falling mercury. The weather, however, remained comparatively mild in Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

A student navigator with no pilot training, Spooner took over the controls of a training aircraft when the pilot fainted, and kept the plane at a safe height until three remaining members of the crew had bailed out. Shortly afterward the plane crashed, killing both Spooner and the unconscious pilot. Spooner's George Cross is the second one to be awarded a member of the R.C.A.F.

Seymour Charge Reviews Work

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 26. — (ENS). — Annual meetings have been one of the main items of interest in the Seymour charge of United Church in recent days, according to a report released by the Rev. J. R. Bick, B.A., on Tuesday. Ladies of the English Line provided a pot-luck dinner as a feature of the meeting at the Tabernacle Church, while at Stephen's and Hoard's refreshments were served as a social feature.

Reports from all three churches showed substantial balances after all current obligations had been paid. Tabernacle closed the year with a balance of $424, Stephen's $178, and Zion $284. Missionary and Maintenance Fund offerings were up $50 with the Tabernacle congregation contributing $228, Zion $173, and Stephen's $165, making a total of $566. The W.M.S. at Stephen's augmented this amount to missions by $96, making a net increase over the preceding year of $39.

W. A. Active.

The Women's Associations showed a year of creditable activity, with the Tabernacle group raising $136, Zion $199, and Stephen's $155 and in addition to this all groups engaged in war activities as making quilts, packing and shipping boxes to members of the armed forces, improving church property and looking after the needs of the parsonage. Reports from Sunday Schools and Young People's groups were marked by considerable interest.

One happy feature of the past year, according to Rev. Mr. Bick, was closing the finances at the end of the calendar year and publishing of the reports early in January, thus making a real advance in the methods of church finance. Those elected for office in 1944 were as follows: Tabernacle—E. Mitchell, Garnet Grills to the Session; Samuel Diamond, Fred Peake and Clarence Grils to the Board of Stewards; at Stephen's Church—Andrew Heagle was re-elected Steward and secretary-treasurer. Mr. Heagle has served the church for 42 years and continues to maintain undiminished interest in all departments. Zion—Alfred Barnum was re-elected Steward and treasurer.

W.M.S. Installs 1944 Officers

SPRINGVILLE, Jan. 26—(ENS). —Mrs. J. F. Everson was hostess to the W.M.S. for their January meeting, Mrs Bernard Preston presiding. The worship period conducted by Mrs. N. Shaw, who read a poem "The Unknown Path." Rev. J. E. Everson gave a brief address at the ceremony of the installation of officers. He said that the success of their work depends on their remembering that the source of their ability and strength is Jesus Christ.

In the business period which followed, Mrs. Preston offered her home for the February meeting to be held on the World's Day of Prayer. Mrs. Murray's group will be in charge of the program and the roll call will be answered by the payment of the W.M.S. membership. Delegates appointed to the Peterborough Presbyterial meeting were Mrs. Preston and Mrs. Everson.

Reached Goal.

The treasurer's report showed the society had raised its allocation of $150 and an additional $25 when a life membership was presented to Mrs. A. Hunter on her departure from the church. The nominating committee for 1944 was appointed as follows: Mrs. Harold Rowan, Mrs. Walter Bowles, and Mrs. Owen Murray.

The first chapter of the study book, "For All of Life," was dramatized. By use of a poster the president demonstrated the different branches of missionary work and urged that the members do more reading of missionary literature. Those assisting with the dramatization included Mrs. Rae Wood, Miss A. Brown, Mrs. N. Cooke, Mrs. H Rowan, Mrs. O. Murray, Mrs. S. S. Staples, Mrs. E. Kimbal, and Mrs. E. Johnston.

ignorance and lack of philosophy can make it.

In this perfect environment they are sowing the seeds of suspicion of husband against wife, and wife of husband, and of engaged couples of each other, and they are raising a harvest of bitterness and tears and broken hearts and wrecked marriages that should satisfy the sadism of the very fiends in hell.

I say this with authority because my every mail mail is simply burdened down with letters from both men at the front and the woman they left behind them, whose very souls are being torn to pieces with jealousy and despair that has been implanted in them by their families and friends, who are forever warning them that they can't trust friends, who are forever warning them that they can't trust their husbands and wives, and that they are being betrayed by them.

Mother Destroys Soldiers Morale.

I quote a few extracts from the letters in to-day's mail: A soldier writes from a foxhole on a Pacific island: "My wife is very young and very pretty. She has always been devoted to me and I have trusted in her almost as I do in God. But my mother keeps tabs on her and every time she goes out of an evening, even to church or with other girls, she writes me about it and suggests that perhaps she is meeting other boys. In my heart I know she isn't, but I am so far away and I don't know what is happening, and it keeps me all stirred up with suspicions. It has broken up my morale so I am no good as a soldier. I'm not thinking about what I am trying to do in the war. I am only thinking about my wife."

A war bride writes: "My friends tell me that I should step out and have a good time; that it is silly for me to sit up at home of evenings knitting sweaters and writing to John; that they bet he is chasing around with some cutie and having plenty of fun."

And hundreds of wives write asking me despairingly: "Do you think my husband is faithful to me? Do you think he has forgotten me so soon and put some other woman in my place? Is it true, as they tell me, that no man is loyal to his wife when he is away from her? I love him so that this doubt is killing me."

And just as many engaged girls write, and ask: "Are all men fickle? Is it out of sight, out of mind with a boy? So many people tell me that I am silly not to keep in circulation and go around with other boys, for Jack will forget me and all our love and plans for marrying after the duration, and I will be left flat."

Men Haven't Donned Uniform For Fun.

Surely no one can belive that the boys, who gave up comfortable homes and good positions and an easy way of life to go and fight for their country, are off on a pleasure jaunt. Surely the most ignorant must know that they are facing death and danger; that they are living under an almost intolerable strain; that they are home-sick and lonesome, and that they need to be cheered up, instead of being further depressed.

And surely we have only to look about us to see what pathetic figures are the war brides whose husbands were snatched from them almost on their wedding days; and how lonely and forlorn are the multitude of wives whose husbands have gone to the front, leaving them to face a lower standard of living, often among strangers, often unwanted guests in the overcrowded houses of their in-laws. Surely these women have sorrows enough and to spare without having the torture of jealousy thrown in for good measure.

So I urge these trouble-makers to desist working at their evil trade. The only thing that makes their separation bearable to the men at the front and the wives and sweethearts at home, is their faith in those they love. Don't take that away from them.

by year as the fogs of ignorance lift. It has lasted too lon[illegible]ldfire. It is now recognized a[illegible]hat brought hope and joy [illegible]ness to a down-trodden pe[illegible]e. Your 'vagrant gleam' has not been misunderstood by anyone more than by yourself."

In closing, Mr. Clarke said that the age in which Burns lived was marked by three events of great historical importance; the revolt of the New England States, the French revolution; and Scotland produced a great poet in the hours of her greatest need. "It may be, indeed, that the last was the greatest."

The Dinner Program

The dinner began with the Scottish custom of piping in the Haggis. It was borne by Bill Anderson, who was preceded by Piper Angus Munro, in a ceremonial round of the dining room.

Bob Hendry, president of the Club, was after dinner chairman who proposed the toast to the King. Jack Smith led in community singing with Martin Chenhall at the piano, a delightful choral intermission.

Lieutenant-Colonel Walter Baptie, officer commanding the Peterborough Training Centre, responded to the toast of "The Twa Countries" recalling, incidentally, a Burns dinner two years ago at Prince Rupert where he was in command of a Canadian Scottish Battalion.

A year ago, Colonel Baptie, said he was in the Burns country. That was the occasion of the 184th Burns anniversary. "I was taking part in operations there, and I managed to get away by myself in the hills and was very happy." ("You are making us hamesick," one of the Beggars interrupted.) I spent a few days in Edinburgh, and I never saw anything more beautiful than Princess Street in the black-out in the clear moonlight night. It possessed a charm that seems to vanish when day comes. That silhouette of Princess Street in the moonlight was grand. One could not begin to describe it.

My memory of Scotland is very recent, and very pleasant. You find a friendliness which I think comes through a study of everything Burns wrote. He lived in very troubled times. He was a soldier for a time in the home guard, and had a real sense of duty. He entered into every community interest, and in a gathering like this he would have been one of us. We have no Burns with us in the body, but we have his collection of poems, his spirit, to which we can turn and find something adequate for nearly every occasion."

Alderman Adam Sands replied to the toast to Our City, Stroyan Leith replied to the toast to "The Lassies" and Jack Taylor to "The Jolly Beggars' Club."

Vocal numbers included the song "Ae Fond Kiss" by Jack Smith; Jack Withers in an impersonation of Harry Lauder singing "The Safest of the Family," and Alec Kirkaldy sang "There was a Lad." Angus Munro played two pipe numbers "My Love She's But a Lassie Yet," Tom Hendry thanked all those who contributed to the enjoyable success of the dinner, and Alex Milne recited "Tam O' Shanter" substituting in excellent manner for J. L. P. Smith.

And last to be mentioned but at the head of the list was Bill Petrie's address to the Haggis. It was a braw nicht.

Quebec House Debate New Labor Bill

QUEBEC, Jan. 26 —(CP)— The Quebec Legislature, sitting in the committee of the whole, will continue today the clause by clause study of a bill constituting a labor relations board after having unanimously given it second reading yesterday by a recorded vote of 55-0.

The vote followed a two-hour debate and was taken on the government's demand after Union Nationale Opposition Leader Maurice Duplessis said he was ready to adopt the principle of the bill and that a vote was "useless." Rene Chaloult, Bloc Populaire member for Lotbiniere, also had approved the measure and said "I will vote for the principle of the law."

The bill, making it obligatory for employers to recognize any labor organization comprising 60 per cent of their employees and to enter into collective labor agreement, was sponsored by Provincial Secretary Hector Perrier, in the absence of Labor Minister Edgar Rochette.

Promote Good Relations

He said the bill, whose terms "are in accordance with the recommendations of the superior council of labor," was being proposed "in order to lessen as much as possible conflicts between employers and employees."

Conflicts of interest must not endanger public security and citizens who are not interested in such conflicts must not suffer from them," Mr. Perrier said, adding that the purpose of the bill was "to protect social peace, to help the development of labor organizations of good faith, and to lessen the danger of strikes."

Mr. Duplessis charged that recent labor trouble resulted from the "lack of vision" of the government.

"Each time the government intervened in the affairs of the City of Montreal, there were strikes," he added.

Premier Godbout denied that his government was responsible for recent labor troubles in Montreal and said the opposition leader "has not said a word on the principle of the law but left the subject to talk partisanship."

He said law permitted Montreal police and firemen to strike in mid-December but he later had warned that the law would be changed in order to prevent such strikes.

Dairy Farmers Seek Basic Prices

LONDON, Jan. 26 —(CP)— The Dairy Farmers' Association of Canada, winding up a two-day meeting last night referred to their Board of Directors a resolution asking the Federal government "to institute a policy guaranteeing Canadian producers a minimum price for all agricultural products." The resolution, to be studied by the board, urged also that "agriculture should be consulted before prices are announced."

Delegates asked for establishment of a dairy board commission of representatives of producers, processors and the government, "to govern and direct the dairy industry," and in another resolution asked that the price of cheese be fixed at 25 cents a pound, f.o.b. factory, plus bonuses and premiums.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

STARS SUCCUMB, TOO

REAL STARS know pretty well what gags can be worked against themselves, and consequently what they can put over on other players of the same degree. That is why they manage to succeed with a pretty fair per centage of the artifices they try in order to steal tricks which were not dealt them in the cards. Among the leading players there is an expression, "super-expert," which merely means one of the top rankers, who can be named and counted on the fingers of two hands. Perhaps some day there may be a super-super, against whom slickery will not succeed.

North: ♠ 8 5 3 ♥ K J 6 ♦ K J 5 ♣ K J 8 3
West: ♠ K 7 4 ♥ 10 9 8 4 2 ♦ A 4 ♣ 9 6 5
East: ♠ J 10 9 6 2 ♥ 7 3 ♦ Q 6 3 ♣ 10 7 2
South: ♠ A Q ♥ A Q 5 ♦ 10 9 8 7 2 ♣ A Q 4

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

When West led the heart 10, making it appear to his partner that he held the A-10-9 or the Q-10-9 of the suit, the declarer in the South saw a chance to put one over. In order to score his game, he wanted to get a ninth trick set up before a spade lead could be made from the East, which might find West with the K and thus immediately beat him with spade tricks. Guessing how to play the diamonds might ruin him, if he tried either the K or J on a lead toward them.

This declarer, Al Sobel, great tournament director of the American Contract Bridge league, figured out a safer play. He won the first trick with the heart J and led the diamond 5. Any player we know would play low, to wait for the apparent certain finesse of the J on the next round. Only a super-super expert, not yet born, would have used his Q on that 5. This East played low, so the 10 forced the A. After that, all Mr. Sobel had to do was rake in his certain tricks, totaling one in spades, three in hearts, one in diamonds and four in clubs.

That rubber game was in Detroit. Al says he is not posing as a New York slicker putting one over on the boys West of the Hudson, as he admits the play would have worked against himself, too, and he knows several Detroiters who might have tried it on him.

What consideration makes it not too unsound for East to bid 2-Hearts over North's spade opener on this deal?

Dummy Rifle Improves Marksmanship

WINNIPEEG, Jan. 26 CP) — A new training device to improve the marksmanship of Canadian soldiers is in use to-day at army basic training centres.

Known as the Swift Training Rifle, it looks like a rifle, even acts like one, but has no barrel, no magazine, and fires no bullets. And it has a range of less than an inch.

Public Relations Office, Military District 10, Headquarters, here said that training officers are enthusiastic about the new "weapon."

The rifle by means of an ingenious arrangement of springs and sharp pointed pins, has done away with most guess work in early rifle instruction.

Built of wood, the Switf has the heft and feel of a genuine rifle. Pressure of the trigger releases a small, two-pronged rig, which darts out of the "muzzle," perforating a tiny, scale-model paper target fixed less than an inch from the nose of the rifle.

This performation tells the tale. The upper prong punches a hole where the bullet would normally hit, while the lower prong, striking at exactly the same time, shows whether the weapon is being canted to left or right, whether elevation and trigger pressure are right or wrong.

Would Abolish Securities Act

TORONTO, Jan. 26 —CP) — Abolition of the Ontario Securities Commission and the Securities Act today was suggested by the Ontario Mining Association in a brief presented to the Ontario Mining Commission at Queen's Park. The commission, appointed recently by the Ontario Government, is conducting hearings into the mining situation in Ontario.

The association further recommended the Securities Commission be replaced by a "suitable authority" within the Attorney-General's Department.

To accomplished "full disclosure in all mining transactions with prompt prosecution of fraud" the association made seven recommendations. They are:

Full disclosure by the vendor to the new government authority and to the purchaser of all information of the securities offered; filing of such information in suitable form for perusal; investigate where there is reasonable suspicion of fraud; prosecute in courts where fraud is reasonably supported; exercise careful scrutiny in issue of licenses to securities salesmen; prevent house-to-house selling; ban use of telephone solicitation and operation of "boiler shops."

Nazis Destroy Italian Bridge

By HOMER BIGAR

New York Herald Tribune Correspondent, Representing the Combined U.S. Press. Distributed by The Canadian Press)

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY ON A BEACHHEAD SOUTH OF ROME, Jan. 24—(Delayed)—(AP)—German reinforcements rushed down from Rome and counter-atacked positions along the southern bank of a canal late Sunday morning in the first major resistance against the Allied bridgehead south of Rome.

They retook two bridges across the canal, including a bridge on the highway. They were driven from this important break at 1 p.m., but not before they had destroyed the span. Late in the afternoon, the American forces attacked in an effort to regain the second bridge.

So confident were the Germans that the Allies planned a landing to the north at the Tiber River that a whole battalion of artillery was shifted from the Anzio beaches a week ago.

They kept a few 75's a short distance north of Anzio and posted artillery observers on a hotel rooftop. The observers were asleep when landings began. They cowered terrified in the hotel lobby until Sunday afternoon, when they emerged and surrendered to British sailors.

Aid For China Must Come Soon

HORNELL, N.Y., Jan 26 —(AP)—China may be "knocked out" unless she gets aid before long, Dewitt Mackenzie, Associated Press foreign news analyst, said last night.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Hornell Board of Trade he said: "There is grave danger in delaying the grand offensive against Japan.

"When I was in Chungking a year ago, I was shocked to find how little China had with which to withstand so great an enemy. The Japs are in possession of the great industrial areas, and the Chinese are without resources to wage a real offensive.

"China has been hanging on by her teeth and unless she gets aid before long, she may be knocked out."

Mackenzie admitted, however, that "there cannot be any all-out drive by the United States in the Far East until the Hitlerian issue has been decided, thereby releasing warships, planes cargo vessels and vast quantities of needed material."

St. Anne's Vestry Reports Surplus

The annual vestry meeting of St. Anne's Church, Bewdley, was held on Monday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goss, with the rector, the Rev. T. P. Crosthwait of Port Hope, presiding.

The rector reported an increase in church attendance and suggested that an honor roll with a list of the men and women serving in the forces should be placed in the church at an early date. Mr. Hancock volunteered to make a list and prepare the honor roll.

Elmer Sidey, the secretary-treasurer, gave an excellent report of the finances of the church. Total receipts $364.25. Total expenditures $246.33, leaving a balance of $117.92.

The following officers were elected and appointed: Rector's Warden, William Dixon; People's Warden, Percy Farr. Parish Council: Mrs. Harry Goss, Mr. Sidey, Mrs. William Gordon, Mrs. Alex. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Halicot Benson, Mr. Robert Hancock, William Dixon, Percy Farr. Lay Delegates to the Synod, Robert Hancock. Secretary-treasurer, Elmer Sidey.

The Women's Auxiliary reported a successful year with a balance on hand of $14.67.

After the Vestry Meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Goss.

Gasoline Coupons Stolen From Scrap

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 AP)—A salvage company's paper-shredding machine which apparently failed to shred has put ration coupons worth 15,000,000 gallons of fuel oil and 5,000,000 gallons of gasoline into illicit circulation on the eastern United States seabord, the office Price Administration disclosed today.

O.P.A. said four persons were in custody and other were being sought in connection with the investigation, which has extended into several states.

O.P.A. said that between August and December, 1943, it had turned over to the firm surplus stocks of ration coupons from national and district offices amounting to 23,000 pounds, for conversion into waste paper. Afterwards, however they showed up in consumers' hands.

Labor Favors Quebec Anti-Strike Act

QUEBEC, Jan. 26 (CP) The proposed Quebec labor legislation which would prohibit strikes and make arbitration compulsory today was approved by a Trades and Labor Congress delegation while Canadian Congress of Labor delegates expressed their disapproval at a meeting with Premier Godbout and members of his cabinet.

A third delegation, from the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor, will meet the cabinet later this week.

Premier Godbout, after meeting the T.L.C. and C.C.L. delegates said his government had "confidence in all Quebec leaders and was working on a social peace on which something solid may be built."

The C.C.L. delegation which protested against the proposed amendment, was headed by Provincial Organizer Paul Marquette.

"We are opposed to legislation which takes away from Montreal policemen, for instance, the right of labor affiliation," Mr. Marquette said, "and we could not be held responsible for the reactions that the bill may cause among workers."

Saying he was "not threatening" the Quebec government, Mr. Marquette added that Montreal policemen "have no intention to go on strike again and are ready to submit any dispute to arbitration."

Premier Godbout said that members of police forces, "whether they are provincial or municipal, cannot be allowed to belong to an outside labor organization, because they are the guardians of public order and cannot serve two masters: the province or municipality which employs them and an outside labor organization which may come into conflict with public order."

Stock-Pile Out Newspapers Told

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP) — The United States War Production Board has no intention of creating a stock-pile of newsprint, Arthur R. Treanor, director of the printing and publishing division, today told a House of Rrepresentatives sub-committee investigating newsprint supplies.

He said that "should any tonnage remain it will be credited to the newspapers."

Canadian authorities have estimated they can deliver 200,000 tons of newsprint a month for the first half of 1944 and "this is 12,000 tons per month more than they had previously estimated," Treanor testified.

Reds Mark Up More Gains Along Baltic Salient; Mild Weather Slows Action

Troops Eager To Clear Railroad Between Leningrad-Moscow 35 Miles Held By Germans

By EDDY GILMORE—Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Jan. 27—(AP).—The Russians have reached the bank of the Luga River west of Novogorod, a Pravda dispatch reported today as the Leningrad army of Gen. Leonid A. Govorov and the Volkhov army of Gen. K. A. Meretskov continued to smash from opposite directions into the Germans' Baltic salient.

The Luga is about 10 miles east of the Leningrad-Vitebsk railway, one of the two remaining railways radiating southward from Leningrad that remain available for German use.

The Pravda dispatch said three German regiments were defeated in a clash on the Luga.

A sudden, freakish thaw has turned the front below Leningrad into a mass of quagmires, muddy roads, unlocked swamps and flooded rivers, front dispatches reported today, but the northern offensive continued.

In weather, the like of which seldom has been seen in the Leningrad area, Russian troops strove to clear the last remaining 35 miles of the Leningrad-Moscow trunk railway still in German hands and make possible the resumption of direct rail traffic between Russia's two largest cities.

The big junction towns of Tosno, Luban and Chudovo are in hourly peril from the advancing Soviet forces, dispatches said, and it was difficult to see how all of them will be able to remain in German hands another 24 hours.

An unofficial Moscow broadcast said that Soviet forces "have already broken into Chudovo."

A frontline dispatch to the army newspaper Red Star said the freak thaw was giving Soviet forces much trouble south of captured Krasnogvardeisk, where army engineers are working day and night to rebuild sections of the railway to Pskov which the Nazis dynamited.

Krasnogvardeisk's capture was regarded here as one of the Germans' worst defeats of the Leningrad offensive. The Russians captured huge amounts of booty.

The newspaper Izvestia's correspondent said that most of the houses had been blown up or burned and that many of the younger residents had been taken to Germany.

Weatherman Has Confused April, January

By The Canadian Press.

Springlike weather conditions cheered most Ontario residents today and led to the conviction that the weatherman has been so interested in events elsewhere that he has confused June— or at least April—with January.

Nature also has been stirred by the high temperatures. The sap is running in some parts of Ontario and one farmer at Cobourg has already tapped his trees. Butterflies, caterpillars and robins have been seen in the southern part of the Province while at Galt yesterday Alf Allan received a convincing demonstration of conditions when he was stung by a bee as he was sweeping the market square.

11 Below in West.

However, there seems to be little weather confusion in Western Canada where Prince Albert, Sask., shivered in 11-below-zero weather last night while it was 20 below at Calgary and an even zero at Saskatoon.

Conflicting views are offered by Southern Ontario farmers on whether the lack of snow and generally mild weather will have an adverse affect on crops. Some say that Fall wheat is suffering from the lack of protection from frost that snow affords while others say that as long as the frost stays in

Torpedo Planes Sink 7 Ships

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Jan. 27 (AP)—Making every bomb count, 18 torpedo bombers sank or left sinking seven ships in the harbor at Rabaul Monday while more than 80 escorting fighters shot down 24 and possibly 28 of 60 Japanese intercepting planes.

Utilizing what they call a "side-splitting bombing from a low level glide," the bomber crews sent their 1,000-pound bombs into the sides of the ships at the waterline. Every bomb hit a ship.

Four cargo ships and a tanker were seen to sink. Three other cargo ships were damaged severely and a South Pacific naval spokesman said two of these were "left sinking." Another tanker also was damaged.

On the ground, American invasion forces at Arawe, on New Britain's southwest coast, sent out patrols without contacting Japanese; at Borgen Bay, on the northwest coast, United States marines added 30 Japanese to the more than 3,000 slain since the invasion there opened last Dec. 26; there were no new reports on the resumed drive by Australians in the Ramu valley on New Guinea aimed at the enemy coastal base of Madang less than 40 miles north of them.

Leningrad Free

LONDON, Jan. 27. — (AP).— Russian Gen. Leonid A. Govorow announced to-day that Leningrad had been completely liberated by the two week Red offensive, with the Nazis driven 40 to 60 miles from the city and more than 700 nearby towns and villages freed.

"As the result of the fighting a task of historic importance has been solved—the city of Leningrad has been completely liberated from the enemy blockade and from barbaric enemy shelling," said a special bulletin recorded from a Moscow broadcast by the Soviet Monitor.

Bombers Made Invasion Safe Venture

By Brig.-Gen. HORACE SEWELL
Distributed by The Canadian Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's force has extended its beachheads south of Rome and has occupied a suitable position for defence against the counter-attack which the Germans are likely to make in strength before long.

The fact that the Germans were not prepared to meet the invaders on the beaches was due to the thoroughness of the Allies' preliminary air, land and sea operations which may be summarized as follows:—

Air

Phase 1: Seven airfields covering the landing area were completely destroyed, except Guildonia, while bombers secured the landing fleet by hitting two radio-controlled glider bomb and torpedo aircraft bases near Marseilles the day before landing.

Result: Compared to the Allies' 1,300 sorties, the Germans were able to fly a mere 100 sorties during the first 24 hours.

Phase 2: The three railways into Rome were cut north of the capital; the Civitavecchia port, whence shipping tried to relieve the railways, was sealed; and 11 roads north and south of Rome were scoured by British Mosquitoes.

All Railroads Blocked

Result: All railroads in the Rome area, and all except one in the Florence area, were blocked during the landing.

Phase 3: 16 bombers wrecked the German Headquarters' villa near Frascati 15 miles south of Rome, with 26 hits during the day before the landing—reminiscent of the 100-bomber attack on the Italo-German headquarters in the hotel Taormina on July 9, 1943, a few hours before the Sicilian invasion.

Result: German artillery was silent for the first two hours, and no German plane appeared until seven hours after the landing.

Ground.

Six German divisions faced the 5th Army on Jan. 16, i.e., the 33rd, the 94th and the 71st Infantry, the 5th Mountain, the 15th Panzier Grenadier and the Hermann Goering divisions, and there were three reserve divisions in the Rome area, i.e., the 3rd, the 29th and the 19th Panzer Grenadier divisions.

On Jan. 17, at 5.30 a.m., the Canadians of the 8th Army attacked the Arielli line and the British of the 5th Army breached the Garigliano line at three points. The Americans crossed the Rapido shortly after. Still further increasing the 5th Army pressure.

Unable to transfer troops from the east, Kesserling was compelled, on the following day, to sqend the Rome divisions south, thus prevent-

FIFTH ARMY PUSH — Covered by a strong umbrella of fighter planes, Allied troops that leap-frogged up the Italian coast to land north of Anzio (1) are rolling toward Rome (2) without meeting heavy Nazi opposition. That units of Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth Army are now within 16 miles of that city is borne out by a story in a Stockholm paper which states that Eternal City residents can now hear heavy gunfire.

Hun Counter Attack With Tanks Thrown Back By Invasion Units

By EDWARD KENNEDY—Associated Press Correspondent

ALGIERS, Jan. 27—(AP). — The first German counter-attack against the British and American troops just south of Rome, the first of the many that probably will be launched in an effort to wipe out the Allied beachhead, has been thrown back with the crushing of German armor, Allied headquarters announced today.

Men and supplies continued to pile into the strategic wedge threatening the Italian capital.

Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's central Mediterranean headquarters announced that elements of the Herman Goering armored division had been met southwest of Littoria, the chief town of Mussolini's Pontine Marsh agricultural development, in a "fierce local engagement."

The Germans left 120 dead on the field as they were tossed back. The Hermann Goering Division, formerly an armored Grenadier outfit, has been strengthened by new equipment to a fully-armored unit. It was last encountered on the main 5th Army front. Its appearance on the beachhead front indicated it had been shifted to face the threat to the German rear.

Canadian Units Home From Kiska

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 (CP)— Canadian units which, with United States forces, occupied Kiska in the Aleutian Islands five months ago, have been withdrawn, National Defence Headquarters announced today.

No explanation was given and the official announcement merely stated "The Department of National Defence announced to day that all units of the Canadian force which participated in the occupation of Kiska now have returned to Canada."

It was assumed here that the Kiska garrison now is made up of a strong All-United States formation.

It was reported that most of the troops went on leave when they returned from the Island and then rejoined their units at various training stations across the country.

One unofficial source believed the reason for the withdrawal was a decision to concentrate the Canadian army effort, for the time being anyhow, in Italy and Britain from where the European invasion is to be launched. Both these forces will presumably need a steady stream of replacements, especially after the invasion begins whereas

GUADALMANAL, Jan. 27 — (AP). — One night this week, the Japanese dropped 12 bombs by mistake on their own positions on Bougainville adjacent to the American beachhead at Empress Augusta Bay. 135,000 People Buried Near Smolensk

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

SMOLENSK, U. S. S. R., Jan. 27 —(AP)— After serving as the ground for two major battles and the scene of some of the most horrible acts of the war, Smolensk—"The city which stands on bones" —today is struggling slowly back to life.

The devastation is surpassed only by that of Stalingrad. Its ground is estimated to hold 135,000 dead from killings. Its reconstruction is planned to take four years.

Along the railroad into Smolensk from the east, gaunt chimneys of burned-out villages, rusted railway cars, twisted rails and broken bridges show the fury of the fighting in this region.

It was here that the Red army first brought the Germans to a full halt and won time to prepare the successful defence of Moscow in 1941.

30,000 Left

Population of the city, which formerly numbered 185,000 still stands at only 30,000. Of the pre-war estimate of a total of 7,900 buildings in the city there now are only 300 intact. Every steel bridge across the Dnieper connecting the two sections of the city had been destroyed, but some have been replaced with temporary wooden crossings.

Walking through the streets between gaping walls of burned-out monument which commemorates Marshal Kutuzov's action against Napoleon in 1812, had been removed. Residents said the statue had been taken away by the Germans.

Amid all the gaping walls Smolensk looked surprisingly neat. The first job tackled by the Russians after recapturing the city was cleaning it. The immediate problem being faced is one of living space. People I met on the streets said they were quartered 15 in a room.

The local newspaper published a report of the progress on the four-year reconstruction plan. It said in the Stalin district of the city 60,000 square yards of living quarters had been repaired and 1,272 persons provided with shelter.

IN NORTHERN BURMA JUNGLE, Jan. 27 — (AP). — Something new but definitely nice has been added to the Northern Burma jungle. It is a bevy of United States army nurses—the first in Burma. They looked mighty good to troops who hadn't seen a white woman in six months.

Government Plans To Form Three New Departments To Direct Social Security

Fifth Session Of 19th Parliament Opens With Most Ambitious Program Of Prospective Legislation Offered Members

By FRANK FLAHERTY—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 27—(AP).—Creation of three new departments of government designed to take long steps in the direction of social security and in the maintenance and development of the national economy after the war was forecast by the Speech from the Throne read today at the opening of the 1944 parliament.

As the fifth session, perhaps the last of the 19th parliament, opened the Speech gave members the most ambitious budget of prospective legislation offered a single session of parliament in many years.

Here are the principal proposals on which the government will seek the approval of parliament:

1. Family allowances.

2. Establishment of an industrial deevlopment bank to provide credits for conversion of war industries to peacetime uses.

3 A bill to ensure or guarantee export credits to aid in obtaining export markets.

4 Creation of three departments of government in the fields of post-war planning—veterans' affairs to hand rehabilitation of service personnel and pensions, reconstruction to promote planning for national development and post-war employment, and social welfare, to administer Federal activities in health and social insurance;

Several Bills.

5. A revision of the Bank Act.

6. Provision for voting of men and women in the forces.

7. A bill to extend the principle of mutual aid to post-war relief of liberated countries.

8. Approval for Canadian participation in an international organization to maintain peace.

9. A bill to provide war service gratuities for persons who serve in the armed forces and other measures to supplement the existing rehabilitation program.

10. Expansion of research activities

11. New housing legislation.

12. After consultation and agreement with the provinces a national health insurance bill and provision for a contributory old age pension system on a more generous basis.

13. A bill to place a floor under prices of staple farm products.

The Earl of Athlone read the Speech in the Senate Chamber, while members of the House of Commons, grouped at the bar of the Senate, listened closely as he recounted measure after measure certain to occasion long discussion in the House and careful study in committee.

The speech began with a review of the war, stressing that the winning of the war "clearly remains the first of all objectives" and warning that hostilities may continue for a long time.

Heavy Losses Certain

Victory could not be counted sure until the German army had been defeated in Europe and the Allied Naval forces successfully grappled with the main Japanese fleet. Future operations would involve bitter fighting and heavy losses.

While giving war needs precedence, the ministers were also resolved that Canada should be placed in a position to meet situations foreseen after victory.

The forecast of a measure to extend mutual aid to relief of liberated countries is believed designed to cover Canada's participation in the provision of supplies through United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration. The Canadian contribution is expected to be about $90,000,000.

The speech stressed the relation

Terrific Fight Rages South Of Rome

By REYNOLDS PACKARD
Distributed by The Canadian Press

WITH THE ARMY SOUTH OF ROME, Jan. 27.—From the British front to-day I could see action along the entire pancake-like beachhead which seemed in flames and smoke as artillery and tanks on both sides engaged in battle.

The Germans are bringing up reinforcements of tanks, artillery and infantry.

One of the oddest sights was British motorcyclists taking prisoners to the rear on the back seats of their cycles. Most of the Germans were smiling, relievedly.

Correspondent William Stoneman who is with me said as we watched shells landing: "It looks as though we could just by walking around the bend of that road go into Rome and take over our old apartments; it's 20 miles from here against 80 or 90 miles from Cassino."

Although we could see little of the tank battle itself we could hear terrific machine-gunning and tank firing only three quarters of a mile away, while ambulances sped by us bearing wounded. Several jeeps which had been peppered dashed to the rear, their perforated tires smoking and burning.

German planes were active as soon as the weather cleared up this morning. Hail as large as marbles had filled up many slit trenches, causing the troops to dig new ones or bail out the old ones with their helmets.

Argentine Move Irks Ribbentrop

LONDON, Jan. 27 — (CP). — Foreign Minister Ribbentrop decried to-day what he termed Argentina's surrender to United States "benevolence," and declared that in the end Britain and her interests, not Germany, was the loser by the Argentine severance of diplomatic relations with the Axis.

Ribbentrop was quoted in a dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio: "The Ramirez Government now has yielded to pressure and surrendered the sovereignty of the country to United States 'benevolence.'

"The motive given in Buenos Aires for the break—the alleged participation of members of the German embassy in an espionage affair—is completely untrue. It is merely further proof that the Argentine Government is not master of her own decisions any longer."

Lawsuits Follow Collision

Claims Total 36,408 For Crash Victims

HAMILTON, Jan. 27. — (CP). — Three cases arising out of the collision Sept. 10 between a Canadian National Railways passenger train and a Canada Coach Lines Limited bus as the nearby Aldershot level crossing opened here to-day before Mr. Justice A. W. Greene and a Supreme Court jury. Claims total $36,408.

Seven bus passengers and the driver were killed and two seriously injured in the collision.

Mrs. Freda Gordon of Toronto, is claiming $25,250 for the death of her husband, Asher Gordon. Defendants are the railway and bus company, and Ernest Amory and James Marley, engineer and fireman of the train.

In another action Irving Bell of Waterdown, Ont., is asking $10,000 for the death of his 14-year-old daughter, Margaret. The two companies are defendants.

Canadian National Railways are claiming $1,158 for damages to their equipment in the collision and a counter-claim has been entered by Canada Coach.

Britain Will Back Atlantic Charter

Eden's Statement Assurance To Small Nations That Rights Will Be Respected

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Peculiar interest attaches to Foreign Secretary Eden's reaffirmation of the British policy of not recognizing wartime changes in the map of Europe—"unless they take place with the free consent and goodwill of the parties concerned."

The reason for this statement is the Russo-Polish dispute over the territory occupied by the Soviet in 1939 at the time of the German invasion. Mr. Eden was replying in the House of Commons to a question by a member.

When you weigh all the elements of this situation it's easy to believe that the Foreign Secretary seized this opportunity to emphasize something even bigger than the Polish imbroglio. It struck me that he may have made his main point when he said:

"His Majesty's government of course stands on the principles enunciated in the Atlantic charter."

So, if I'm on the right track, he was concerned not only with the Polish trouble but with reaffairmation of the Atlantic charter. And why should it seem expedient to reaffirm the charter?

Well, as this column has explained numerous times, many countries —especially in the Orient — have been suffering doubts and are anxious for assurances that this document, which was drawn up by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill and has become the credo of the United Nations, means what it says. I discovered this during a tour of the war theatres a year ago.

Lot of Angles

One of the eight points laid down in the Atlantic charter declares that "they (Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill) desire to see no territorial changes that do not accord with the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned." What is more natural than that the world should wonder whether this applies to the Polish affair and, if it does, just how it will be implemented.

There are a lot of angles to this question. For instance, who are the "peoples concerned?" Are the inhabitants of pre-war Eastern Poland to decide whether they want to be incorporated in Russia or Poland, or is the Polish government in London to determine this point?

It is, of course, the anxious hope of Britain and the United States that this dispute will be settled by Russia and Poland themselves. This hope must persist despite Moscow's rejection—in cordial terms—of America's offer to employ its good offices in restoring diplomatic relations between Poland and Russia.

Use Portable Forts

NEAR CASSINO, Italy, Jan. 27—(CP-Reuters) — The Germans are using portable forts north of Cassino. Brought by rail from Germany to the Cassino area they were installed on the west bank of the Rapido River under direction of the Todt labor organization. Each accommodates between eight and 10 men. The forts are partly buried in the ground and their strength is such that they can only be reduced by a direct hit from a shell or bomb.

Chinese Storming Taiphaga

Village Marks End Of Japs Supply Road

By THOBURN WIANT
Associated Press War Correspondent

IN THE NORTHERN BURMA JUNGLE, Jan. 27—(AP).—From the east, west and north Chinese troops are slowly converging on the Japanese strongpoint of Taiphaga, fall of which is imminent.

Taiphaga is a small village on the Tanai River, but it is important because it is the end of the truck road over which the Japanese have been moving supplies to their forces battling the Chinese engaged in clearing the Hukawng valley for engineers extending the Ledo road to the old Burma Road.

The Chinese are fighting against time as well as the Japanese, because the rains start at the end of April and the monsoon begins about May 15.

Airplanes fly in and drop supplies. Without these air-dropped supplies this whole operation would have been impossible, Chinese officers said.

Transports loaded with supplies are landing in the Hukawng valley airport, hacked out of the jungle a short time after the Japanese had been driven from the area.

Argentine Freezes Fleet After Diplomatic Break New Orders Expected Soon

Ramirez Tackles Big Spy Problem May Cut Communications To Curtail Espionage Activities

By STANLEY ROSS—Associated Press Staff Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 27—(AP).—The Argentine military government froze movements of the state merchant fleet today as one of the first follow-up actions to its diplomatic break with the Axis, all vessels being directed to remain in port "until new orders."

It was expected here, however, the tie-up would not last long, since Argentine economy largely depends on the free movement of the merchant fleet.

(Although no reason was given for the freezing order, it seemed apparent the Ramirez government deemed it unwise to expose the vessels to the menace of any lurking enemy submarine in the South Atlantic until some provision could be made for their protection, possibly in convoys.

(Nazi submarines sank three Argentine ships in 1942 but no mention was made of these torpedoings in yesterday's official announcements concerning the diplomatic break.)

As congratulations poured in from all over the continent, the Argentine government turned to another problem attending its diplomatic break—communications with Germany.

Suspension of these facilities loomed as of great importance in view of revelations that Buenos Aires was headquarters for a giant espionage ring. It is believed telephone communications with Germany already have been cut.

The German news agency Transocean has been notified to wind up its affairs here by January 31 and it was believed the pro-Axis afternoon newspaper Pampero, served by Transocean and often said to be maintained by the German Embassy, might close at the same time.

People Curious

One question expected to be settled quickly is who will handle Argentine interests in Germany and Japan. The newspaper Noticias Graficas said last night it probably would be Sweden, although Switzerland and Spain were other possibilities.

Buenos Aires generally seemed happy over the action, although most persons expressed curiosity to know the details of the spy story which caused the rupture.

Argentine newspapers, released to some extent from strict censorship rules which forbid criticism of belligerents, turned to with a will yesterday and printed reports of German espionage and propaganda activities.

A leading afternoon newspaper, Critica, promptly got itself in trouble with an editorial in an "I-told-you-so" vein, pointing out that it had often called attention to activities of Nazi agents. It was suspended for three days by government order. Noticias Graficas published a photograph of Hitler with the caption "suffered severe reverse."

Wartime Makes Drab Opening

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 (CP)—Only a color at today's opening of the fifth session of the 19th parliament will be servicemen's ribbons, the gold cord draped from the shoulders of aides-de-camps and women's informal afternoon dresses. Wartime expediency again ruled a drab opening in place of the more colorful peacetime setting.

The diplomatic corps will be present in morning dress and the wives of cabinet ministers, senators and members will not be wearing their usual evening dresses. But smart afternoon styles will add a touch of color to the bank of civilian and service clothes in the background.

A special guest at the opening was Sir Lyman P. Duff, retired chief justice, who in the past often read the speech from the throne at openings when the governor-general was unable to attend.

Only social event in connection with the opening of any official import is the private reception for invited members, senators and officials given by the Speaker of the Senate, Hon. Thomas Vien.

and meshed defences, struggled slowly forward across flooded streams and over steep crags just north of Cassino, where field dispatches said they were within half a mile of the Liri valley gateway and were overlooking the bomb-jumbled ruins of the ancient monastery town. Patrols had penetrated the outskirts of the stronghold.

Some four miles farther north the French moved down from their mountain positions on Mount Il Lago in the Sant' Elia area, across the Secco River and the Cassino-Atina Road and attacked the Germans on the slopes of Mount Belvedere.

Americans on the old 5th Army front were making steady if painful progress in an encircling manoeuvre against Cassino despite a hail of fire.

The French attack to the north was against the slope of Mount Belvedere which rises to 2,500 feet. This is of strategic importance because of its approach to Mount Cairo, a 10-mile long ridge bordering the Via Casolina to Rome.

The Secco, which the French crossed, is a tributary of the Rapido, crossed by the Americans to attack Cassino from the north, and the Atina road which was cut is one of the more important northward communications of Cassino.

Consolidate Spot.

To the south British troops consolidated their recent gains over the Garigliano river. To the north Canadian artillery of the British 8th Army shelled enemy supply columns near the Adriatic coast, and Indian infantry threw back two small-scale German attacks near Orsogna.

Heavy traffic was observed in the Gedman-held area between the two Allied fronts in western Italy, and a race clearly was on to build up the Nettuno bridgehead to meet an expected crisis.

To-day's communique said forces there had been further reinforced and added that "the beachhead has been improved by limited advances."

Dispatches from the scene said the waters off the beachhead were still black with Allied ships and landing craft, protected by barrage balloons, a thick canopy of anti-aircraft fire from ship and shore, and partols of Allied fighters buzzing in the clouds.

Bomb 3 Towns.

Bad weather limited air operations, but light bombers attacked road and rail objectives at Ceccano, Cisterna and Itri—all in the angle formed by the two 5th Army fronts.

The bombing of Cisterna, located on the Appian Way 16 miles northeast of the Anzio beachhead, suggested that the Allied assault forces have not yet reached this important highway at that point, although tney may have gained it nearer Rome.

Itri also stands athwart the Appian way seven miles inland from Gaeta further down the coast. Ceccano, hit often before, lies, inland about 30 miles due west of Cassino.

Fighters maintained their patrols throughout the day over both the beachhead and the old battlefront. Three enemy aircraft were destroyed. Two Allied planes are missing.

Although today's communique gave no details, field dispatches last night disclosed that American troops who won a new bridgehead across the Rapido River had pushed to within half a mile of Cassino in an enveloping movement through the surrounding ridges.

Thickly - sown minefields and heavy Germany artillery, mortar and machine-gun fire were said to be impeding the progress of the Americans who, it was announced yesterday had recrossed the Rapido after once being thrown back by a German counter-attack.

Although Cassino itself appeared to have been largely abandoned by the Nazi troops, their positions in the surrounding hills gave them a clear sweep of its streets and bomb-jumbled houses. An announcement yesterday said an American patrol that entered the town was forced to retire.

Lumbering Suffers.

However, lumbering operations in Northern Ontario have suffered from the mild weather. Sault Ste. Marie reports that bush operations in Algoma have been tied up for several days as it is impossible to haul timber and pulpwood over the soft snow although one cold night would permit resumption of work Yesterday's Sault temperature of 41 degrees was an all-time high for January 26. Lumber operators in the North Bay area also report having difficulty although it is not believed the situation there is serious yet. Snow is fast disappearing in North Bay where it was mild yesterday.

The mild spell has been most cheering to householders who have welcomed the temporary respite it has given their limited fuel supply.

Hamilton was one of the province's warm spots with the temperature over 60 yesterday and topping the 50 mark early this morning after warm showers during the night.

At Galt Alf Wheeler saw some garter snakes yesterday while frogs are croaking, caterpillars have been seen, pansies and lilacs are blooming, the sap is running and robins are a common sight.

Light rain fell at Brantford today to break the winter drought. Pussy willows are budding and caterpillars are seen.

It was 55 degrees in Kitchener yesterday, just one degree short of the January record of 56. Snowfall has been about the lightest on record with only eight and a half inches so far this year. Last year the snowfall for the corresponding period was five feet.

There was heavy fog today at Woodstock after days of unseasonably mild weather and farmers were fearful fall wheat crops would be damaged.

Snow has practically disappeared at Kingston in Eastern Ontario which is blanketed by heavy fog today. Mild weather has rendered precarious the ice crossings to Amherst, Garden and Wolfe Islands. Farmers are finding the watering of cattle a problem because of the lack of precipitation during the winter. the Kiska garrison duty can more easily be taken care of by United States troops concentrated in that area.

While most of the Canadian units were largely made up of men called up for compulsory training and therefore not available for overseas service, presumably they could be detailed to strengthen various home defence groups, thus freeing general service men for overseas duty. Also it was learned that many of the draftees have since volunteered for general service.

Started Weeks Ago.

The return of Canadian units to their bases in the Dominion started many weeks ago, but the movement has been under censorship restrictions until to-day.

Canadian and American troops landed on a strangely quiet island of Kiska in the early morning last Aug. 16. Kiska had been a Japanese stronghold in the Aleutian chain. jutting westward from Alaska, since June 7, 1942. But the Japanese had mysteriously left.

The unexpected withdrawal of the enemy force. from the 30-mile-long island marked the first time since Japan entered the war that Japanese troops had conceded territory without battle.

The significance of Kiska was much greater than this unopposed landing would suggest. It means that the Allies had completed their northern road to Japan.

The Canadians were under the command of Brig. H. W. Foster of Halifax and Picton, Ont. The units included the Winnipeg Grenadiers, whose battle cry was 'remember Hong Kong" in remembrance of the first battalion of the Grenadiers, who made a gallant stand at Hong Kong.

Other Canadian units participating were the Canadian Fusiliers, Le Regiment de Hull, the Rocky Mountain Rangers, A company of the Saint John (N.B.) Fusiliers, the 24th Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery, the 46th Light Anti-Aircraft Battery, the 24th Field Company of the Royal Canadian Engineers, the 25th Field Ambulance, Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, as well as detachments of Ordnance, Army Service, Provost, Pay and Postal Corps.

Extensive fortifications had been developed by the Japanese during their year at Kiska, including a cement-floored seaplane hanger, and electric lighting system and water system. These were taken over by the Allied force.

The disappearance of the Japanese was explained by high ranking officers as probably due to severe aerial and naval poundings by the Allies prior to the arrival of the landing force, as well as to the previous capture of Attu Island, farther to the west. More than 5,-500,000 pounds of bombs had been dropped on the island in addition to naval shelling.

The Canadians had been well trained for their part in the invasion. They went through strenuous special training first on Vancouver Island, later up the Alaskan coast. They were officially described as a "compact, self-contained and fully-equipped formation.

Trinity Passes Resolution Of Loyalty

The annual congregational meeting of Trinity Church was held on Wednesday evening in the church parlor. There was an excellent attendance of members. Owing to the absence of the minister, Rev. Dr. George S. Easton, through illness, the meeting was presided over by Rev. William McDonald.

Following opening devotional exercises, the following resolution was presented and unanimously endorsed:

Resolution of Loyalty.

"We, the congregation of Trinity United Church, Peterborough, Ontario, assembled at our annual congregational meeting on Wednesday, January 26, 1944, do hereby reaffirm our love and loyalty to His Majesty the King, and unfailing adherence to the cause of Right and Truth and Freedom for which he stands. We pledge afresh the unfailing efforts of a freedom-loving Christian congregation, according to our conscience, to support our King and our Country in a struggle against the evil forces which seek to dominate the souls of free men. We commend our King and Queen and their advisors, and all who are in authority over us in State and Church, to the protection and guidance of Almighty God, in the confident faith that God's righteousness will be vindicated, and that from that righteousness shall spring victory and a new and better day of freedom and peace among all nations. We also express our unbounded admiration and our unpayable debt to the people of Britain for their courage and fortitude during dark and dangerous trials, and for their unshaken spirit which will inspire the children of freedom throughout the whole world to endure and fight on, until the darkness which springs from pride and hatred shall be banished from the earth."

The National Anthem and the doxology were sung immediately following the adoption of this resolution.

Excellent reports were received from the Trustee Board, the Quarterly Official Board, the Missionary and Maintenance Committee, and the various societies and organizations of the church. All of these reported a busy and successful year, with much useful work accomplished, and, from a financial standpoint, with substantial cash balances on hand. Many of the Young People's organizations were carrying on their activities under the handicap of the absence of a large proportion of their membership who are serving their King and Country in Canada or overseas. Total cash receipts from all sources during the year amounted to $19,061.29. The Trustee Board reported the sale during the year of the Sunday School building and property on Reid Street, and extensive alterations in the basement of the church, in fitting and equipping it for temporary Sunday School purposes.

The following resolutions were introduced and unanimously approved:

"That we, the members and adherents of Trinity Church, assembled at our annual congregational meeting, on Wednesday, January 26, 1944, express our profound sorrow and regret in the illness of our minister, Dr. George S. Easton, and our fervent prayer that he may be speedily restored to health and strength; to which end we invoke Divine blessing on the skill and care of physicians and nurses in attendance upon him. That we further pledge to him our continued loyalty and support in all the activities of the various organizations of the church during his enforced absence. And that we express to Mrs. Easton an expression of our deepest sympathy with her during this time of anxiety."

"That we extend to Rev. William McDonald an expression of our sincere appreciation and our deep gratitude to him, for the many kindly services he has at all times rendered to Trinity Church; and in a special sense at this time, during the minister's illness, for his pastoral oversight and visitation of our people."

"That we have learned with deep regret of the illness of our recording steward, Mr. R. F. Downey. We extend to him our best wishes for his speedy recovery. We desire to tender to him also, at this time, a warm expression of our thanks and appreciation of his untiring and most efficient service, over a long period of years, in the work and welfare of Trinity Church, and in the life and activities of this city and community."

At the conclusion of the meeting, light refreshments were served by the ladies in the basement of the church'

Rev. E. C. Moore Addresses Club

Rev. E. C. Moore was guest speaker at the regular meeting of Trinity Club, held Tuesday evening. Introduced by the treasurer of the Club, Harvey Shier, Rev. Moore outlined the differences between the Anglican Church and the United, or Non-conformist, church. He told how the two churches differed, both in the layout of the church itself, and in the organization of the clergy.

The speaker stressed the importance of the pulpit in the United Church, and urged congregations to keep the freedom of that pulpit safe above all else. Mr. Moore concluded by saying, "Although our churches differ, and our beliefs differ, we are all working toward the same goal, 'Peace on earth, and goodwill and fellowship among all men'."

The devotional portion of the meeting was in charge of Leona Edwards' group, and Miss Edwards was assisted by Edna Elliott and Madelyn McWilliams. Harvey Shier gave a short talk on Current Events.

Mrs. Harry Kearns was the soloist of the evening, and sang "Give Me Your Smile, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Gordon Marshall. Miss June Lowther played two selections on her guitar, "When My Dreamboat Comes Home," and "Underneath the Stars at Wakiki." The games were in charge of Allan Parker, and Madelyn McWilliams, assisted by Pearl Clayton and Leona Edwards, supervised the serving of refreshments.

The next meeting of the Club will feature the initiation of new members, and a program of motion pictures will also be presented.

of Canada's future prosperity to the expansion of world trade and said discussions with a view to clearing trade channels will be advanced as rapidly as war exigiencies permit.

The government's belief that the time has come for the United Nations to seek means of establishing an enduring peace was stated. The International organization in which it is proposed to participate presumably is that projected at the Moscow conference some time ago of the Foreign Ministers of Britain, Russia and the United States.

An Urgent Need

While the objective of external policy is world security and general prosperity, the speech stated the objective of post-war domestic policy is "Social Security and human welfare."

"In the opinion of my ministers, plans for the establishment of a national minimum of social security and human welfare should be advanced as rapidly as possible," it was stated.

Post-war planning in its 3 divisions of re-establishment of service personnel, economic conversion and reconstruction, and social security produce most of the proposals for specific legislation.

Partisan Units Gain 30 Miles In New Advance

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(CP).—Yugoslav Partisans, skilled in the art of mountain warfare, have liberated 70 per cent. of Central Bosnia from the German invaders, Headquarters of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced to-day.

Reporting one of the major Yugoslav successes of the winter campaign, the Yugoslav war bulletin, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, said the last remnants of German forces have been cleared from the Central Bosnian area with the occupation of the town of Prnjavor, 25 airline miles northeast of Banja Luka.

Southwest of Mrkonjicgrad, Vrbas river stronghold recaptured from the Nazis yesterday, the Partisans have advanced about 30 miles to the southwest, mopping up enemy detachments between Mrkonjicgrad and the Livno river, the communique said.

In Western Croatia, Yugoslav Patriots were said to have ambushed five high-ranking German officers between Zagreb and Karlovac, wiping them out on the spot and capturing important military documents.

The Berlin radio claimed the capture of the island of Hvar off the northern Dalmation coast.

Eric Moore, Former Grove Boy Shot On Train In Gautemala

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 27 —(ENS) —Fatally shot by a drunken rural guard in Gautemala, the details of the tragic death of Eric Moore, reached his uncle N. A. Moore this week.

Graduate of the Grove Preparatory School, and superintendent of the Tela Railroad Company, he was shot through the head by a native who whipped a pistol from his belt as he was ordered from the first class coach of the train, while apparently in the act of creating disorder.

The shooting occurred at Tehuacan, a station fifty-three miles from San Salvador on January 3, seven days before succumbing in the San Salvador hospital.

Grove Graduate

Son of the late J. A. Emmerson Moore, and Mrs. Moore of Lakefield, he was born in Lakefield 36 years ago, attended the village Public School and later the Grove, from which he graduated. He first was employed briefly in Toronto with the T. Eaton Co., and later became clerk with the Tela Railroad Co. in Spanish Honduras.

During his early career with the company; his duties consisted of supervising the natives in cutting right-of-way through the jungle, and building temporary rail lines to take out mahogany, rosewood and bananas. In 1935 he returned to the village where he went in partnership with his uncle, N. A. Moore, for some three years. During 1938 he again accepted a position with the Tela Railway, this time as assistant superintendent at Gautemala, and last year was promoted to position of superintendent and was moved to San Salvador.

Official Report

A letter received by N. A. Moore, written by the general manager of the railway, F. L. Whitbeck, in San Salvador, January 11 tells of the tragedy. It follows in part:

"Eric was shot at 6.07 p. m. January 3 at Tehuacan by a drunken rural guard whom he had ordered from the first to a second class coach.

He was brought to San Salvador on the same train, a physician meeting it at San Vincente the next station, some twenty minutes after the shooting. Rushed to the Roales Hospital he was placed under the care of this company's physicians, Dr. Arnoldo Hirlemann, and Dr. Esteban Reyls, the latter considered one of the best surgeons in the city.

His condition was always extremely critical but on Saturday, Jan. 8, a reaction set in and on Monday at 10 a. m. he went into a coma from which he never aroused, dying at 5.15 in the afternoon.

Buried In San Salvador

At the request of his Spanish wife, burial was made in the general cemetery in San Salvador in the Tela Company plot, the casket being carried to the grave by employees of the transportation and Mechanical Departments who asked to be granted this privilege of showing their esteem and affection. The Episcopalian burial service was read by Mr. Joynt, British Charge'.

The guard who shot Eric was immediately arrested and will stand trial.

The fourth session of the 19th Parliament of Canada prorogued on Wednesday, and the new session commenced today at a time when perhaps no more fateful days ever awaited the opening of a session. The United Nations have reached decisive times in the course of the war and some time during the session the Western offensive will be launched. Daily parliament and people alike will be reminded of the price of the closing phase in the great European struggle.

The Speech from the Throne, read by Hon. Thibaudeau Rinfret, new Chief Justice of Canada, acting as deputy to the Governor-General at the prorogation of the fourth session followed the usual lines of a review of the happenings since the start of the last session, just about a year ago, world events during the year and the actions of parliament prior to adjournment last August.

But today a new session opens, and while in the opening weeks there no doubt will be plenty of debate about the adequacy of Canada's war effort and the passing of huge war appropriations, another big problem faces our legislators and that is the imperative need of making a real start on reconstruction and re-establishment projects.

The Speech from the Throne will be eagerly awaited, there are social security measures that are expected by every Canadian. A modified national health insurance scheme will in all probability be submitted to parliament, it may not be as sweeping as the draft measure which came from the special House committee last session, but enough has been said to indicate that the Government plans to proceed with the measure.

A nationwide building program designed to give the maximum of employment and create a large demand for products of civil industry will possibly be provided.

All these will probably be branded as an election manifesto, and the Government's attempt to get re-elected when the balloting times comes. The life of the present parliament is nearing its end and the Canadian electorate, most probably this year, must make a momentous choice.

Members of all groups, just as they are doing in the United States Congress, will take thought both individually and collectively, of the general election, and how they can assure their return to the House of Commons. How soon that election will come only the Prime Minister can say, but if the going becomes tough, a snap appeal as in 1940 may be tried. However, most parliamentarians are inclined to agree that the final election date will depend largely on the course of the war in Europe and the speed of the Western offensive.

Above all Canadians do not want political confusion and turmoil at home when the unity of those at the front is so much at stake. Parliament's first duty then will be to back the attack to the utmost, and next to plan here at home a more satisfying life for those who return and for those to whom they return.

Common Sense About Invasion

The United States Office of Censorship has asked for "a complete moratorium on backstairs gossip and hairline authenticity" in journalistic discussions of the invasion of Europe. If the request had been made eighteen months ago it would have been better, but the censors are sometimes the last people to notice things which, for the public good, should be pitched in a low key.

Some American journalists, and a very few in Canada who ape them, have been free with predictions about the time, the nature and the place of the Allied invasion. These prophets did not speak with caution; they never referred to 'rumours' or 'indications'; they dealt exclusively in certainties. Understandably, when the invasion did not come off according to schedule, large numbers of credulous readers were disillusioned; that sort of disillusion discredits the press, and unfortunately it affects the whole [illegible] and not merely the offending paper.

The truth is that no newspaperman knows when the invasion will be or how it will be conducted. Anthony Eden does not know, and when the British Foreign Secretary does not know a thing of that kind it is being kept a very close secret. When the invasion comes the newspapers will report it. Until that time the guesswork of columnists, military experts and such industrious but immodest folk is best kept quiet.

Britain Short Of Butter

It has been announced that butter supplies in Britain are running short and that Canada may be called upon to furnish larger supplies. No such request has as yet been made, but it would be well for Canadians to face the possibility. If the call does come, we must stand ready to furnish the Motherland with every pound that can possibly be spared, even if it means a reduction in our own ration.

But this should not be necessary, for we believe that other ways can be found to increase our butter output. The ration in Britain today is one-quarter of ours, and even with margarine available in limited quantities, this imposes a hardship of which we have no conception. We cannot comfortably sit back, in our comparative abundance, and let the Old Land suffer greater want.

A study of the situation is necessary. In recent years we have witnessed a steady decline in the number of butter factories throughout Eastern Ontario. There was a time when cheese and butter were both produced in the same factory and some factories even given over to only butter production, but now they are producing only cheese. Another question to be solved is the proper allocation of milk, is not too much being allowed to go into the secondary dairy products. Hot dog stands and restaurants say that they never sold as many milk shakes and milk drinks. Appeals are being made to the farmers to produce more milk, but here we find the farmer handicapped with lack of help and good milking cows are not grown just in a few months. Appeals might be directed to the consumers to cut out some of these extra milk drinks, give less to the dog and the cat, and save in milk and milk products without in any way reducing the amount of milk consumed by the children and the sick.

The German Uranium Bomb

When the Germans were fighting desperately for the Kerch peninsula reports reached us that they were using gas against the Russians. This report has now been contradicted; it was not gas, but a new sort of shell which was employed. The shell was fired from a special gun, and was reputed to be extremely dangerous to the gun-crew; it was filled with liquid air under extreme pressure, and a solution of uranium salt; when it exploded everything within a half-mile radius, including vegetation, was destroyed. When men were found who had been within range of one of these shells they showed no wounds, and they were assumed to have been killed by gas.

The Germans appear to have given up using these uranium shells, and if we may advance an amateur's theory, it was because they were too dangerous, expensive and limited in their effect to be of any real use. A bomb dropped from an aircraft would do just as much damage and would not be nearly so troublesome to handle. The shells were apparently propelled like rockets, and rockets have always been hard to manage in the matter of accurate fire.

German chemistry has long been touted as the most advanced in the world. The use of uranium bombs may be linked with the experiments which have caused so much talk in recent years about splitting the uranium atom. But in this instance German ingenuity seems to have over-reached itself, for the uranium bomb has been disguarded.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Very often when we are trying to cook up an excuse we get burned.

"Hitler Blames His Generals For Recent Reverses". He really should blame the Allied generals.

"Where would Man be if it weren't for Woman" asks a female columnist, belligerently. If you are referring to Adam, madam, he would still be in paradise.

An ingenious fellow has decided that the way to spell fish is not fish at all, but ghoti—the 'gh' as in cough, the 'o' as in women, and the 'ti' as in action. We fear that the marvels of English have deranged him.

While four youths were being arraigned in police court here on serious charges, four others in the same age group waited down stairs to be sentenced on similar counts. It was a convincing demonstration of the epidemic of crime among 'teen aged boys.

Reform For The Senate

By F. C. MEARS
Parliamentary Correspondent of the Montreal Gazette

SENATE reform is a subject that is talked about from time to time, but nothing very much ever seems to be done about it. One reason is that any far-reaching reform in either the functions or formation of the Upper House would require constitutional amendments, and these seem to be approached with reluctance.

Most people are agreed that the existing Senatorial set-up detracts heavily from the efficiency and the prestige of Parliament. The appointive system has made the Senate not much more than a haven for party members and supporters who are usually appointed after they have ceased to be successful in the elective chamber, especially before general elections when cabinet ministers are seeking shelter from the electoral wrath to come. It can seldom claim to be truly representative of any considerable body of public opinion.

Moreover, successive governments, treating the Senate as a place of party reward, have completely neglected it as a legislative body, giving it only the minimum of functions to perform. The result is that on the average through the past 30 years the principal duties discharged by the Upper House have been easily done in two months, sometimes less.

The composition of the Senate, the methods of providing its membership, are stipulated in the constitution but not its functions. These are copied from the House of Lords which is its model, and others are provided or limited by custom. The Senate may originate legislation and does on rare occasions, outside of divorce bills, but its chief task is to revise legislation from the House and to see that these measures will best serve their purpose. It frequently considerably amends Government bills from the House. But it may not originate and it may not alter or amend a money bill from the House. Theoretically it might amend a tariff or similar bill but in practice it does not.

Although public attention has been focussed from time to time on the problem of the Senate, and although it is considerably discussed in the coridors at every session, the question has been officially aproached only once during the last twenty years. That was when Premier Mackenzie King in the early twenties, angered by obstinate Upper House resistance to Canadian National Railways branch line provision, is reported to have warned the Senators that unless they desisted from their opposition he would undertake reform of the Senate. It was never made clear by the Prime Minister how he would change the Senate system. He could not have "packed" the Upper House for there were not then sufficient vacancies whose filling would give the government a majority.

There have been several increases in Senate membership since Confederation. At the outset in 1867 the total number of seats was 72: 24 for Ontario; 24 for Quebec; and 24 for the Maritime provinces, Nova Scotia being given 12 and New Brunswick the same number.

When Manitoba and British Columbia entered Confederation, Manitoba was in 1871 given two seats and British Columbia three. Prince Edward Island was given four members when it entered in 1873. There were other changes, and in 1905 the distribution of membership was as follows: Ontario, 24; Quebec, 24; Nova Scotia, 10; New Brunswick, 10; Prince Edward Island, four; Saskatchewan, four; Alberta, four; British Columbia, three.

It was not until 1914, the year in which the last Great War began, that the present membership of the Senate was established with a total of 96, divided as follows: Ontario, 24; Quebec, 24; Nova Scotia, 10; New Brunswick, 10; Prince Edward Island, four; and a total of 24 members for the four Western provinces, each being given six members.

Critics of the appointive system of maintaining Senate membership assert that one of its worst results is the lengthy vacancy of some seats, a condition indicating governmental indifference to the functions that should be performed by the Upper House. There have been instances in the past 25 years when a Senate seat has remained vacant for three years. Again, governments have a habit of allowing Senate vacancies to accumulate, so that when election time comes round there will be a convenient store of party spoils on which to draw.

It is argued by the same critics that if a Senate seat may be left vacant for two or three years the question can warrantably be asked: Why fill it at all? Why not allow the Senate to disappear by sheer desuetude and the wearing out of members?

Administrative neglect is more conspicuous in war than in peace years, partly because of the pressure of war business, the necessity to repose more power in the executive for the sake of quick and effective decision and action. But even in peace time successive governments seem to have been opposed to having really important government or legislative business originate in the Upper House.

Those who favour an elective senate point to the experience of Australia. There the Senate consists of members elected by popular vote in the states, five being elected in each state. Some cabinet members are almost always chosen from the Senate, where a considerable amount of government business is orginated. Similarly at Washington, an elective Senate plays a vital role in the enactment of all legislation as a result of specific provision in the constitution.

Membership in Canada's Senate is on a provincial basis to the extent that a certain number of members is allotted to each province, but the provinces actually have no voice in the selection of Senators. And even those who favour the elective system admit that if the American and Australian plan were adopted it would provoke the same objections as have often been raised at Washington and in the Antipodes. Large and populous states resent small states having an equal voice in legislation. New York and Pennsylvania do not like the idea of Delaware and Rhode Island and Idaho being able to exert the same influence as themselves, the membership being two Senators from each State. Here, if that plan were followed, Quebec and Ontario quite conceivably would swallow hard at Prince Edward Island having the same number of Senators as themselves.

Those who urge retention of the appointive system contend that the Senate could be made a vigorous, effective branch of the federal legislature by imposing a rigorous age limitation on its members. Opinions vary as to the age limits, but those most frequently heard are 50 and 70. It is held that if men not older than 50 years are placed in the Senate, and members are compelled to retire at the age of 70, an important improvement in the personnel would certainly result. But if the appointive system is to be retained it would also be desirable to have a condition imposed upon the government, namely, that no Senate seat may be left vacant for more than six months.

Two of the present Senators are over 90 years of age, Senator Turgeon of New Brunswick being 96 and Senator E. D. Smith of Ontario 91, and there are others between the ages of 80 and 90. These include Sir Allen Aylesworth, Senator Charles Tanner of Nova Scotia, Senator Henry Mullins of Manitoba, Senator Rufus Pope of the Eastern Townships, Senator Thomas Bourque of New Brunswick, Senator Robert Green of B.C., Senator Thomas Cantley of Nova Scotia and Senator Donald Sutherland of Ontario. In the range between 70 and 80 there are: Senator Frank Smith of New Brunswick, Senator James Calder, Senator Hance Logan, Senator Charles Ballantyne, Senator James Murdock, Senator Edward Michener of Alberta.

This list leaves a relatively small number of members under the 70-year limit, and any useful change in the present system would have the entire membership under that age level.

BE IT EVER SO BLASTED—

Londonderry Mix

(By MALLORY BROWN in CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR)

LONDONDERRY.—There's something going on at Londonderry that will outlive the war, something that holds hopeful forecast for the future. Even before I had seen anything of the naval base along the shores of Lough Foyle, it was evident Derry was no ordinary place. Strolling along the top of the old walls which ringed the town back in the days of the great siege in the seventeenth century, the evening I arrived, I looked over cascading tile and slate roofs, across kaleidoscopic fields, to the soft blue hills of Donegal in the distance. Then the moon broke through gray clouds to shed a soft glow over black walls and battlements and still blacker muzzle-loading cannon that dream of an older war.

Perhaps it is partly the position of Londonderry on the map that fits it for its peculiar role in this war. It is to all intents and purposes the most westerly town of the United Kingdom. And now that Americans have developed a big base there, it has been a sort of halfway house, between England and America.

Anyway, Derry today is one of those places where Americans and English and Scots and Irish and Canadians are all mixed up. It's a little like those big black iron pots which stand by the fire on the hearth in every whitewashed cottage of the Irish peasants, with an ominous yet tasty and on the whole pleasant mixture simmering inside. So after simmering for almost two years now and maybe boiling over harmlessly now and then, the British and Americans in Londonderry have on the whole come out extremely well.

Take the Lion and Eagle Club, for instance. I dropped in there the other evening to find American, British, and Canadian sailors—AB's, not officers—having a really marvelous time together. Some were dancing with the Wrens—Wrens, as they're called, are the equivalent of American Waves—others were having refreshments in the canteen. A mixed group of sailors of all three nationalities were standing around a piano, arms on each other's shoulders, singing the latest American songs played by a little English Wren.

What struck me about this Lion and Eagle Club was the complete absence of that segregation that nearly always occurs whenever you attempt to get British and Americans to mingle freely in large numbers. This was the men's—and Wrens'—own show. Officers and authorities provided funds and facilities for it, and then left it alone. And it works.

Later the same evening, I went to a dance for American, British and Canadian officers—naval, army, and air force—at the Allied Officers' Club in Derry. Among the guests were a number of other Allies: Dutch, Norwegian, French, Indian. The American Navy's dance orchestra was a huge success. Only difficulties arose when American wanted to cut in, which is not an old English custom. However, a compromise was evolved by designating some dances as cut-in dances.

So far, I haven't said much about the naval base itself, or its work. Yet it is of the utmost importance. For example, between 60 and 90 percent. of the repair work carried out in the American yard in Derry is done, not for American but for Allied ships, chiefly Canadian.

Derry is not only a repair base, however, though its repair shops are vital to escort ships that bring convoys through. It is a big training centre where crews of all the Allied navies get specialized training in the latest and best methods of beating the U-boat. Here, as in repair work, national lines fall and experience and lessons of all are pooled for the benefit of each.

But the truth is there are many places on the globe today where Americans and British work well together, and they've proved they can get along perfectly. Londonderry is different in that here in this relatively small, compact, little isolated town, Americans, Canadians, and English as well as a number of our other allies, are proving they can also play together and live together and like it—and each other.

Japan's Dual Weakness

(FROM NEW YORK TIMES)

HAVING gambled Japan's resources on a short war and lost, Premier Tojo now tells his people their one hope of victory lies in a long war. They are to win, he says, by the moral exhaustion of their enemies. But in his address to the Diet even this hope is modified by two significant provisos. The first is that Japan must manage somehow to match Allied air power. The second is that the empire must maintain against losses "which are not to be minimized" the shipping to keep her communications open.

Premier Tojo declares that Japan has doubled her plane production in the past year. This statement could mean much or little, according to the figures on which it is based. What it actually does mean may be tested by developments on the battlefront. There the Japanese have been retreating for a year, chiefly, as all reports agree, because of their weakness in the air. They have had to give up one airfield after another from the Gilberts to the Solomons and New Britain because their ground troops lacked plane support. Our own aerial strength has been steadily mounting, while that of Japan has apparently remained where it was, sufficient to assure replacements but not enough to achieve superiority or even equality. It is believed that Japan now has about 6,000 modern planes. If with these she cannot dominate a single front on which she is attacked, how can she hope to meet the tens of thousands of Allied planes which will be turned against her when Germany capitulates?

On the sea Japan has lost well over a thousand ships. Some of this loss has undoubtedly been made up, but by no means all. The rate of loss, both from submarine and air attacks, appears to be rising. The Japanese Navy has been harried from all except a corner of the Indian Ocean and driven out of the far north and south Pacific. The perimeter within which it can protect merchant shipping is constantly narrowing. British submarines have penetrated almost to Singapore, sinking a Japanese cruiser in the Straits of Malacca. Our own submarines, taking a heavy toll of enemy tonnage, are said to be operating of the coast of Manchukuo. The Bismarck Sea is being closed to the enemy. Our planes over the China Sea and around the Kurile Islands have rendered those waters perilous. For the first time we are striking deep into the Carolines. Japan's problem of maintaining surface communication under such conditions is increasingly dismal. Yet if communications fail the war is lost.

Power In Opposition

When the Ontario Legislature opens, it will witness a strange and somewhat anomalous situation. Mr. A. St. Clair Gordon, M.P.P., Chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, will be sitting on the Opposition side. Political tradition, but not good sense, will thus be violated.

Only precedent could prevent the occupant of such an important administrative post from sitting opposite the Government. Premier Drew has chosen to fly in the face of established practice and retain Mr. Gordon in office, despite his political affiliation, because of the good and efficient service he has rendered as head of the Board. It is a most satisfying manifestation of appreciation of merit, rather than slavish adherence to the distorted principle of political preferment for purely political purposes.—Windsor Star.

Remember 1932!

In the development of the tremendous potential post-war need for construction, it will probably be necessary for government to be of as[illegible] to private industry and to private banking.—U.S. Foreign Economic Administrator Leo T. Crowley.

A Bible Message

Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine heart: thou shalt in any wise rebuke thy neighbour, and not suffer sin upon him. Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people, but thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself: I am the Lord. (Lev. 19: 17, 18.)

He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none occasion of stumbling in him. But he that hateth his brother is in darkness, and walketh in darkness, and knoweth not whither he goeth, because that darkness hath blinded his eyes. (I John 2: 10, 11.)

Marvel not, my brethren, if the world hate you. We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death....

My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth. (I John 3: 13, 14, 18.)

Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good. (Rom. 12: 21.)

Unconsidered Trifles

"Sorry, miss," replied the conductor. "But don't you worry; you can pay me the twopence another time."

"But you may never see me again."

"Well, what's the odds?" he said, meaning to be gallant. "I won't break my heart if I don't."

A local preacher was asked to preach at a chapel about six miles from his home. Taking his wife with him, they reached the chapel at blackout time, the wife entering by the main door and her husband by the vestry door. A deacon found the lady a seat and brought her a hymn book. After the service he again went to her in a friendly manner and said, "I hope we shall have the pleasure of seeing you here again. We have some nice services here, but," he added in an undertone, "it isn't often we get such a duffer in the pulpit as the one we've had to-night."

Two American music hall artists sought employment in one of London's leading theatres.

The manager inquired the length of their act.

The pair hadn't had an act for a month of Sundays, and didn't know just what to say; but being resourceful, replied, "Twenty-five minutes."

"Twenty-five minutes," exclaimed the manager. "Why, my dear sirs, ours is a long bill. I cannot give you twenty-five minutes. I suggest that you go on for eight minutes."

The performers stared at him aghast.

"Eight minutes!" they screamed. "Why, we bow for seven minutes!"

For Racial Harmony

We are glad to see the mayor and council have set up a permanent inter-racial committee with an appropriation for such investigatory and other expenses as it may incur. As to the possibilities, we have no doubt. There definitely should be some continuing body in the city government whose sole business will be to look into current sources of inter-racial friction, anticipate them when it can, correct them, if that lies within its power or the power of the city departments, or, if not, bring them to the attention of the public conscience and keep them there. There has been too much ignoring or well-meant glossing over in the past of half-hidden and festering social sores. We hope one of the virtues of the new inter-racial body will be as a prodder of the public conscience.—Detroit News.

Black Hockey

Playing football and hockey in black-tinted glasses is helping bomber air-gunners to shoot down more night fighters over Germany and occupied territory.

It is not always possible to see the victim crash, but improved night vision is probably helping in getting a more accurate picture of enemy losses, particularly when air gunners are able to see their attackers and the effect of their own fire power.

At special training schools the "cat's eyes" vision of bomber crews can be developed to show an improvement of 25 to 40 per cent. Pupils are taken from experienced operational crews. Even air gunners with several night fighter "kills" to their credit go to the training schools.—London Evening News.

FIGHT OFF ATTACKERS—Anti-aircraft gunners aboard the Prince Robert, let loose a barrage when some 32 enemy planes, most of them carrying glider bombs, attacked the large convoy they were escorting. The planes fled after a battle that lasted exactly two hours and all the ships reached port safely, although two were damaged.

Two Dominions May Solve Unity Question

TORONTO, Jan. 27— (CP). —Co-operation between New Zealand and Australia in solving Pacific problems may be "the answer to the question posed by Lord Halifax to the Toronto Board of Trade—the necessity of the British Commonwealth of Nations acting in unity," Arthur R. Ford, editor-in-chief of the London Free Press and president of The Canadian Press, said last night.

The two Dominions have not always acted in harmony, but the war brought the realization that their safety depends "upon a permanent solution of the problems of the Pacific," Mr. Ford said in an address to Alumni of Victoria College.

"Hence they have come together and signed a pact whereby they agreed to collaborate in any solution of the future of the Pacific. Possibly this may be the way out for the Empire."

Wants a Voice.

Referring to his recent visit to Australia, Mr. Ford said that at that time Premier Curtin was seeking some form of Commonwealth consultation so Australia would not be committed to foreign policy which she did not help to frame. Yet he did not favor an Imperial Cabinet or an Imperial Parliament.

"Is the answer to be found in a series of pacts between the various nations of the Empire in which they agree to act as one and in unity? Will this give us unity of policy and yet protect our autonomy?"

Both Australia and New Zealand would welcome Canada's participation in Pacific affairs and the Dominion "should be prepared to accept her share of responsibility."

"From both a political and economic standpoint we should be prepared to join with the fellow-Dominions along with the United States in helping not only to win the war in the Pacific but to win the peace."

U.S. Army Features Air-Borne Units

LONDON, Jan. 27 (CP)—Addition of air-borne units to armored groups, infantrymen, combat engineers and other specialized fighting men has built the United States Army in Britain into a well-rounded offensive force for the coming assault on Europe, it was reported today.

Some air-borne units have been here several months adapting jumping and landing techniques to conditions approximating those they will encounter when called on to perform an important invasion role, but newsmen had not been permitted to report their presence previously.

Nazis Claim Finding Hidden Supply Dump

LONDON, Jan. 27-(CP-Reuters)—The German radio claimed last night that Nazi troops have discovered in the last few days hidden supply dumps in the mountains of Greece where British planes have been accustomed "to drop weapons and explosives for Communist bandits."

The German report added that after Allied planes had circled over the spot during the night, German units early in the morning overpowered the guards, captured four machine guns, two mortars, many rifles and found on the ground 80 parachutes with explosives and time bombs attached."

Two chicken hawks, several song sparrows and muskrats have been observed recently. One fat groundhog was seen basking in last Saturday's bright sunshine—a sure sign prognosticators assert.

Cabinet To Study Welsh Request

LONDON, Jan. 27—(CP Cable)—Prime Minister Churchill has decided to refer the Welsh parliamentary party's request for establishment of a Welsh office and a secretary of state for Wales to a committee of cabinet members for examination, it was announced today.

Welsh members of parliament hailed the decision—announced in a letter to Col. Arthur Evans, until last week the party's chairman—as a great triumph and an important concession from Mr. Churchill's stand of last November. At that time he said the requested steps were "too controversial" for discussion during the war.

Improved Relations With Soviet Demanded

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 27—(AP)—Opposition deputies in the Bulgarian parliament demanded yesterday that the government seek to improve its relations with Soviet Russia and withdraw its troops from territories on which Bulgaria has no real claim, dispatches from Budapest said today.

The demands were presented as parliament convened for its first meeting since the Allies launched their air attacks upon Sofia.

The deputies, the dispatches said, also demanded an effort to improve relations with Turkey and reconstruction of the government with concentration of power to further the national interests.

Opposition groups hold about one-quarter of the seats in parliament.

Cobourg Curlers Lose To Oshawa

OSHAWA, Jan. 27.—Oshawa Curling Club advanced to the district representative playdowns in the annual Ontario Tankard event when they defeated Cobourg's entry in the district final here by a total count of 36 shots to 31.

Harvey Sproule, veteran Cobourg skip, manoeuvred his foursome to a clever 17-16 victory over Charlie Peacock's Oshawa rink in a hard fought match in which neither team was ever far in front.

Maurice Booth's rink was also leading his Oshawa opposition with only three ends to go and then Skip Ernie Parsons pulled a sensational draw shot through a narrow port to give Oshawa a four-end and they repeated on the next to build up a substantial lead.

Peterborough wrestling fans are going to have a chance to see the No. 1 man of the grapple game in action here next Tuesday night. Yes, neighbors, none other than Wild Bill Longson, world champion who hangs up his hat in St. Louis, Miss., will be featured in the main bout of Frank Tunney's weekly wrestling show at the Brock Street Arena. The fact that Longson is on a northern tour and that there is no bout in Toronto next week because of a skating show has made it possible to see wrestling's head man do his stuff here. For the past three years Longson who did not get his nickname because he is the acme of gentleness, has been the recognized world champion, recognized as such by the Wrestling Association of America and affiliated bodies and nobody has been able to knock him loose from his title since he climbed to the top. Longson is clever, rough, courageous and a battler and his three-year tenure of the championship has been marked by a series of great bouts in which Wild Bill has been victorious. He will lay his title on the line here and the grappler who has been given a chance to lift the crown is one of the younger school, Wilbur Toar Morgan, the fighting marine, who is almost a citizen of this district now since he signed a life partnership with a Lindsay girl. Morgan will give everything he has in an attempt to take the title away from Longson. He is not likely to succeed but his fighting qualities will cause the champ to produce some of his best stuff to take care of the marine.

There are two interesting games scheduled in the Ladies' Basketball League at the Y.W.C.A. tomorrow night, with interest centring in the first fixture on the card which brings together the unbeaten leaders, the Transports and the C.G.E. Generals. For the latter team it will be a sort of acid test. If they have any hope of overhauling the second-place St. John's team the Generals will have to take a fall out of the Transports and that is a trick that no team this season has succeeded in performing. However the Electricians showed a lot of good basketball in their last performance and if they can get a similar attack rolling against the league leaders they might just come through with the upset of the season. At all events the C.G.E. girls will battle to the end in search of a victory. The Generals-Transports battle starts at 7.45 o'clock and in the second game billed for an hour later St. John's will clash with the Normal School. The Saints should win that one and retain their hold on second place but the Normal girls who won their first win of the season recently will fight all the way for victory No. 2.

Isn't It The Truth?

The unusual weather has produced the following from George Campbell, Oshawa sports scribe: "EXTRA! EXTRA! A strike threatens the Oshawa sports activities! Members of the Oshawa Ski Club are up in arms but it's a sit-down strike, not a standup, glide-as-you-go affair. Members of the city's skating colony, youthful hockey hopefuls and the real young sports enthusiasts, sleigh-riders, are all going on strike. They threatened to evacuate this area as an unfavorable zone and move to other territory, where they can get some snow and ice. Those 13 rinks that the City Council fathers were bragging about just before the elections—by the way, where are they all?—they are getting about as much use as a buggy-whip in Detroit during pre-war days. Irate parents who dug deep at Christmas time to buy "Junior" a sleigh, or skates, or skis, are now threatening to sue "Jack Frost" or somebody. And now to add insult to injury, on Saturday afternoon, January 22 (take a look at the calendar) members of the city's golfing fraternity were out on the course at the Oshawa Golf Club, driving those elusive "little white pills" now under strict ration, on the same ground where every year previously, youngsters were wont to cavort with sleigh and skis on January 22. Yes, things have come to a sorry state. The coal-dealers, who cried "Wolf" in September and October, urging people to buy their coal early, and are now threatening with "false pretences" and "misrepresentation." Clothing stores will be holding "overcoat sales" within a few weeks because they've got to get rid of stock that hasn't been bought up. Some claim there is more sickness rampant due to the absence of snow to cover up the street and thus smother the "bugs" but John Public himself is quite satisfied. Getting back to the sports side of the question, local ball teams are getting ideas of opening their schedule on Good Friday."

* * * * * *

There is evidently considerable good hockey talent in the Belleville district, according to the following from Ken Colling's Belleville sports column: "Coach Padre Mika's Trenton "Flyers" added insult to injury by beating the Deseronto "Mohawks" 15 to 4 last night, but then the boys in the service league like their scoring averages just as well as those pucksters under the big tent, although they don't pay off financially quite as prolific. The Trenton "Flyers" carried too much class for the Mohawks, but then with players the calibre of Dziura, Kelly, Voss, Bagnell, Ellis et al they should dominate the play against the smaller station. Just a moment — there are other teams to reckon with in the Quinte service league and one of them will be the Mountain View "Bombers." Only yesterday Johnny McCreedy, former Toronto Maple Leaf defence star and Billie Bauer, brother of Boston Bruin-Bobby Bauer, reported at the Mountain View School of Bombing and Gunnery and will line-up with Dan Cowley's "Bombers." As a matter of fact the "Bomber" management took in last night's game and today are quite confident they can beat either No. 6 or Padre Mika's sextette. There are rumors that other named players will soon join Bauer and McCreedy on the "Bomber" squad."

Baseball Does Its Bit

The figures released by the American League the other day show that baseball has been doing its bit in Uncle Sam's war effort. During the last two seasons, the statistics reveal, organized baseball contributed more than $2,130,000 for war purposes. The two big leagues managed to raise $725,100 last year for war relief as against $1,054,953 in 1942 while the minor leagues collected some $350,000. The baseball equipment fund to supply bats, balls and gloves to service men raised a big total last year, with $65,174 coming from the annual All-Star game. As for the 1943 world series it was responsible for a baseball donation of war relief to the extent of $308,373—and that, friends, cannot by any stretch of the imagination be classified as hay.

The Oshawa Generals have left Chick Appel of the Stratford Beacon-Herald almost a complete wreck. In Oshawa last night the Motor Town boys handed the Stratford Kroehlers a 21 to 3 trimming and it must be admitted that in so doing they have imposed a task on the Stratford sports editor that is more than any one man should be asked to carry. How any writer, no matter how gifted he is can hope to break the news of such a disaster to home town fans in such a way as to engender the belief that the shellacking was just one of those things, not in the least likely to happen again, is a mystery. The Generals scored practically at will with Kenny Smith potting the disc nine times and adding two assists. It was 6 to 0 at the end of the first period, 12 to 1 at the close of the second and in the final session Oshawa ran in nine goals in a row before the Kroehlers finally rallied to take the last two markers.

Marshall's Bull Vindicates Purchase Price

By RALPH HYMAN.

This story aims to correct an injustice done the living and the dead, the living being Senator Duncan Marshall and the dead being Millhills Ransom, the $15,000 Shorthorn bull which the then Minister of Agriculture bought in Scotland in 1936 for O.A.C. at Guelph.

Probably no bull in history ever received so much publicity—all of it unfavorable—as did this Scottish immigrant purchased with money put up by a group of Ontario citizens. The booming voice of Mr. Marshall was heard in the Legislature and outside, defending the merit of the purchase against the jeering criticisim of those who said he didn't know a good bull when he saw one.

Just when the furor was dying away, Millhills Ransom had the misfortune to die. His passing was blamed on gastric disorders, but there are those who claim to this very day that no sensitive bull, particularly one costing $15,000, can maintain his health under a barrage of unkind words. And so far from his native soil, Millhills Ransom gave up the ghost, and the political opponents of Mr. Marshall went for him again. Even the Minister's friends tactfully avoided any reference to bulls of any kind.

But when Millhills Ransom died about a year after his much-publicized arrival, he left behind his own blood lines, and those blood lines have silenced the critics for all time. For Millhills Ransom was a very good bull indeed. So good, in fact, that today his calves are fetching as high as $2,000 per head, and Millhills Ransom fathered about 75 before he departed from an unkind world which failed to appreciate his worth.

The man Mr. Marshall unexpectedly defeated in the 1934 general election, and who returned the compliment at the next general election, yesterday paid tribute to Millhills Ransom.

"At the time he didn't seem very much," said Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy. "But he turned out to be a very good bull. His death was a heavy loss to breeding in Ontario. His bull calves are also producing high-quality calves."

And so ends the story of the immigrant who made good in the land of his adoption. A pity, though, that Millhills Ransom couldn't be alive today to stare down his detractors.

RIDEAU HEALTH AND OCCUPATIONAL CENTRE—The first of five health and occupational centres to be established by the Department of Pensions and National Health across Canada is shown in this architect's drawing. Tenders were opened this week for the construction of the Rideau Centre, located on the Rideau River in one of the most beautiful scenic sections of the Ottawa district. Shown in the architect's sketch above is the central administration wing, which includes kitchen and dining room, and some of the eight bungalows which will provide residence for 200 ex-service personnel requiring specialized assistance in becoming re-established. Each of the bungalows contains a common room and verandah, for use in the summer; the Canadian Red Cross has offered to construct on the property a building to house a gymnasium, pool, and auditorium for floor games. Mechanical games are planned to develop the functions of partly-disabled men. 5 Hockey Teams Ready For Series

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 27 (ENS) —With O.H.A. and Trent Valley League hockey out for the duration, so far as this town is concerned it looks as though local fans will have to get their fare from the menu being offered by the revived Town League.

At the present time the Board of Managers, headed by President Tom Gillibrand, has five squads organized in the league which is sticking fairly close to a Wednesday and Friday evening double header schedule thus giving each team a couple of work-outs each week. Earl Gummo is acting as secretary of the league and Harry Atkinson has taken over the job of treasurer with all surplus money to be given over to the Legion Cigarette Fund. The managing committee includes, Willis Thain, George Beggs and Donald Robertson.

The teams in the league are the Clerks, Cloth Company, Hydro, Seymour East and the Outlaws, and though the brand of hockey thus far has left something to be desired what the boys lack in skill they make up for in enthusiasm.

The schedule of games for the next two weeks is as follows:

Jan. 28—Hydro vs. Seymour East; Clerks vs. Outlaws.

Feb. 2—Seymour East vs. Outlaws; Hydro vs. Mill.

Feb. 7—Hydro vs. Clerks; Seymour East vs. Mill.

WEST BALMY BEACH, Fla., Jan. 27—(AP)—Buddy Baer, who once dreamed of annexing the world's heavyweight boxing title, looks forward now to retirement on a cattle ranch.

N.H.L. Leaders Clash Thursday

By The Canadian Press.

The Montreal Forum already has the "standing room only" sign up for tonight's tilt between the Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs While the two top teams of the National Hockey League are clashing at Montreal the two bottom teams—Chicago and New York Rangers—are meeting at Chicago. And no matter what happens all four will be in the same positions tomorrow morning.

Canadiens have a walloping 15-point margin over Leafs and at the other end of the table Chicago is 12 points ahead of the luckless Rangers.

The game at Montreal, however, is vital for the Leafs, now only half a game in front of the surging Red Wings. The Wings, who haven't suffered a loss in their last eight starts, are idle until Saturday when they entertain Boston. That game incidentally should see the veteran Syd Howe attain the N.H.L.'s coveted 200-goal mark. Howe, the biggest goal-producer in Detroit history, got his 199th when the Wings beat Boston Tuesday.

Leafs, as usual on mid-week road trips, will be without O'Neill and Jackie McLean.

TORONTO, Jan. 27—(CP)—Football fans hope the good burghers of Hamilton take good care of the Grey Cup until after the war because it seems certain the old mug will stay in that city until the armed forces clean up more pressing business.

The headquarters order barring Army-Air Force participation in any championship sport and the Navy's decision to permit its members no competition beyond provincial boundaries almost certainly suspends the East-West football final for the duration.

Only three senior football teams operated in the west last autumn and all three depended almost entirely on service personnel. They won't be able to collect enough football material to make a rug this year.

In the Quebec Union the three services were represented along with McGill University and Verdun's civilian grads. They could continue to operate without air force and army. Only team definitely ruled out of the Ontario Union is Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes but Toronto Navy will be able to play only within the Union.

The other four O.R.F.U. clubs—Hamilton Wildcats, Toronto Indians, Toronto Balmy Beach and Ottawa Combines—were so liberally studded with army and air force players they will be hard hit. Ottawa was almost entirely composed of servicemen without whom it is unlikely the Combines will be able to operate.

Toronto could probably field one, maybe two, fairly strong teams. Hamilton could dig up a passable contender. Maybe senior football in Canada this year will be confined to one interprovincial circuit with Hamilton-Toronto-Montreal teams.

The barring of the Dominion champion Patricia Bay R.C.A.F. Gremlins from the interprovincial basketball competition they raced through so easily last spring presents a new problem. The Canadian Basketball Association has ruled United States service teams stationed in Edmonton will be eligible for the play-offs. It is claimed the U.S. engineers of the Edmonton City League are outstanding challengers for the Canadian title. But it doesn't seem fair that Canadian service teams should be barred from competing for their own national title which might be thrust with little contest into the laps of representatives of another nation, also comprising service personnel.

That, friends, is a problem for the C.B.A. as well as defence headquarters to consider.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 — (AP) — Guessing game . . . Branch Rickey, cheerfully admitting he sometimes talks too much, hints that in the next few days the Dodgers may lose a man "more vital to Brooklyn than Slats Marion was to the Cardinals" . . . The only Dodger we could put in that classification would be Mickey Owen, but the Brahmin of Borough Hall may have other ideas about values. . . . Ensign Ollie Hunter, the best two-miler available since Greg Rice has become a seafarin' man, considers the mile the most spectacular foot race and would like to try it—especially if he could win the "Hunter mile" at Boston.

They Entered A Sleeper

Here's what became of the mile relay team from the Navy Midshipmen's school at Columbia U. in the Metropolitan A.A.U. track meet last Saturday. . . . After warming up and giving officials his team's running order, Roy Hollander, one-time North Carolina State Athlete who was "captain" of the foursome, retired to the dressing room for a rest . . . the first three runners were well up in the race, but when the third man finished his leg, there was no one to take the baton . . . Still wondering what had become of Hollander, the midshipmen searched the locker room and found Roy sound asleep.

Showman Dies

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 — (AP) — John Allan Partington, 54, one of the operating heads of the Roxy Theatre in New York and president of Fanchon and Marco, Inc., stage shows, died yesterday. He was credited in theatrical circles with being the originator of combined stage and screen shows.

HE'LL HAVE TEAM—Ted Collins, above, producer and manager of the Kate Smith show, has procured a franchise for Boston in the National Professional Football League and plans to field a team this year.

Generals Swamp Stratford 21-3 In Senior Fixture

By The Canadian Press.

St. Catharines Saints strengthened their clutch on first place in the Senior Ontario Hockey Association race last night by holding off Toronto Navy 5-4 in a fixture on St. Catharines ice, thus giving them a three-point advantage over the current runners-up, Hamilton Majors, with whom they clash Friday night.

The Tars scored the only tally of the initial period through Snider, but did not find the net again until well on in the third frame when Joe Lukkay, Thompson and Livingstone whipped in the final counters. The tying goal was denied them, however. Star scorer for the Saints was Umbo Concessi who counted two, Red Goble, Red Reynolds and Blink Bellinger getting the rest.

In the Junior "A" series Oshawa Generals, away out in front in Group 1, ran up a cricket score, 21-3 on the Stratford Kroehlers at Oshawa to establish the season's game total. Generals had it 7-0 in the second period before Thompson tallied the visitors' first and the period ended 12-1. Sandwiched in the third-period shower were counters by Tindal and Rohfritsch for Stratford. Smith headed the Oshawa parade with no less than nine goals; Ezinicki and Chenier had four each; Love, two, and Curry and Porter one each.

At Toronto, the two local teams, Marlboros and Young Rangers, staged nip-and-tuck affair, the Dukes winning out 6-5. McNabney and James each registered two counters for the victors, with MacKenzie and Lawlor getting one apiece. Dewsbury was the two-time scorer for Rangers, the others being divided by McQueston, Gagnon and Malone.

Clamoring Boston Fans Demand To See Louis

BOSTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—Mounted police were called to disperse a crowd of several thousand disappointed wrestling fans last night when they were denied entrance into the arena to watch Sgt. Joe Louis, the heavyweight boxing champion, referee a feature mat bout between the self-styled Golden Terror and Jack Clayburne, the Negro grappler.

Since the arena's seating capacity has been reduced to 7,200, Promoter Paul Browser was forced to close his box-office windows 20 minutes before the opening bout. Before the police got the belated prospective patrons under control, they thundered at the closed doors and smashed several windows.

Louis awarded The Terror, a 379-pound Alabaman, the victory after Clayburne, winner of the first fall in 15.04 with a body slam, knocked himsel out while whirling off the ropes after 9.47 of second-fall grappling.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

With the value of stakes generally increased and with a regrouping of important races immediately before and after Derby Day, Kentucky racing is expected to attract the best stables in the United States for the season which opens April 15 with a 10-day Keeneland meeting. The latter had been transferred from Lexington to Churchill Downs for a second time, it was announced last night at Louisville, Ky.

The 70th running of the Kentucky Derby is scheduled for Saturday, May 6, and the total purse is the usual $75,000, while the Bluegrass Stakes, $10,000 added, feature of the Keeneland program, is dated April 26.

Vice-president William O. Dewitt of the St. Louis Browns was quoted yesterday at New York as saying the major leagues should make a formal decision, before the opening of spring training, on whether or not they should operate during the 1944 season because of the player shortage.

FO. Arthur S. Ross, son of the general manager of the Boston Bruins, was reported last night from England as having shot down two Dornier 217 bombers while on operations as pilot of a Typhoon in an R.A.F. fighter unit. Prior to enlistment, Ross, Jr., was a goalkeeper with the team of Lower Canada College, Montreal.

First-baseman Mickey Rocco of the Cleveland Indians yesterdy was classified 1-A by the draft board at St. Paul, Minn., and is scheduled to be inducted into the army in March if he passes his medical examination.

Provision for the post-war construction of a national sports hall of fame in Washington was made yesterday by the Federal Security Agency's committee, the financing to be done through sports activities without assistance from the government. Included in proposed exhibits would be the equipment and uniforms used by famous athletes.

2 Big Races

With some of the biggest races yet to come including the $15,000 Louisiana Derby Feb. 12 and the $25,000 New Orleans Handicap, Fair Grounds officials at New Orleans yesterday predicted mutuel betting would exceed last year's total. During the 10-day period ended Jan. 22, patrons wagered $1,471,008.

Baseball's only pitcher of two successive no-hit, no-run games, Johnny Vander Meer of the Cincinnati Reds is reporting at Newark, N.J., today for induction into the U.S. Army although previously classified 4-F because of a stomach disorder.

Sport fans from 11 Pennsylvania counties purchased war bonds valued at $1,111,750 to see the Boston Bruins, of the National Hockey League, defeat the Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League 2-1 in an exhibition game at Hershey last night. About 6,000 attended and used their war bonds as admission tickets.

The Bears, leaders of the eastern division of the American League, held a slender one goal lead until the last half of the final period when the Bruins scored twice in two minutes to win.

Cleveland Barons Defeat Pittsburgh Team

By The Canadian Press

Cleveland Barons strengthened their lead in first place in the American Hockey League last night by defeating Pitsburgh Hornets 5-3, their eighth game without a loss.

Buffalo Bisons gained a 3-2 win over Providence Reds in the only other scheduled league game.

Hershey Bears are in second place with a total of 45 points, and the Bisons hold third position with 38 points.

Les Cunningham and Tommy Burlington each rifled two goals in the final period last night for Cleveland's 5-3 victory. During the first two periods Wendell Jamieson, Lloyd Roubell and Bob Gracie had given the Hornets goals while Dick Adolph was getting one for Barons.

Freddie Hunt scored the winning tally for Buffalo in the third period. Harold Cooper bagged the first counter of the night at 17:14 in the second period. Tony Demers added the second for Reds little more than a minute later. Larry Thibeault and Walter Atanas tied the count for Bisons in the third period before Hunt came through with the winning tally.

New York Yanks Lose More Men

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(AP)—Any resemblance between the New York Yankees outfield of 1944 and the Keller-DiMaggio-Henrich picket line is going to be purely coincidental, reports indicate.

With Roy Weatherly reclassified 1-A and probably unavailable for the centrefield job, Manager Joe McCarthy is down to Johnny Lindell, Bud Metheny, Tuck Stainbeck and a couple of rookies from Newark and Kansas City.

One of the rookies, big Ed Levy from Newark, is a first baseman by trade but played in the garden for the Bears last year.

Add to that situation the report from Augusta, Ga., that Bill Johnson is due to come before his draft board in the near future, possibly Feb. 7 and you can see another change in the making.

If Johnson goes into service or decides to stay at his job with the fire department at Camp Gordon, the Yanks will lose one of the outstanding young players in the game. Johnson was used at third base last year and performed capably at the hot corner through the pennant drive and the world series.

Don Savage, a Newark graduate, may be in line for either third base or the outfield depending upon the outcome of the Johnson and Weatherly situations.

Food Industry Sets Objective Of $26,000 In War Stamps During February In Peterborough

S. H. Young of Toronto, chairman of the national executive of the Food Industry of Canada in its February campaign to sell War Savings Stamps to the amount of $2,000,000 extended a final message of encouragement to the local committee and its sales force at a dinner meeting Thursday evening at Kawartha Club.

"From the bottom of my heart I hope you will have a most successful campaign. I thank you on behalf of the National Food executive, and I wish you the success which you attain, if you try," said Mr. Young, who is vice-president and general manager of Christie, Brown Company.

An objective of $26,000 has been asigned to Peterborough. That means the people are going to be asked next month to lend a further $26,000 to the Dominion of Canada, at 3 per cent compound interest, as an additional investment in the victory of the Allied Nations.

"This is the most important money in the hands of the people," C. L. McCutcheon of Toronto told the large assembly of men and women who have been enlisted in the local drive. "It is spendthrift, inflammable money. It is usually loose money, going nowhere in particular. People will admit that it goes for things they don't need; and that is the kind of money wanted most to keep our national economy from being shot through."

Organization for the campaign extends through the vraious branches of the food industry, the grocery and meat stores, the bread and milk plants, restaurants, the beverage companies, and so on, and supporting it are the city's wholesale food companies and the food manufacturing and distributing plants.

This structural outline was manifested at the dinner last night at which J. A. Jebson presided. The constituent committees were indicated and plans for special selling features which will focus publicity on the food industry's month-long campaign. But, the chief purpose of the meeting was to impress upon the selling force their importance in rolling up the $26,000 sale of War Savings Stamps.

Employees of the food industry are undertaking to ask the public in the stores, in restaurants, and along the delivery routes to buy these Victory Stamps.

"I don't think people can refuse you," Mr. McCutcheon said. "That could mean 'I don't want any part of this Victory,' and I cannot think any of our people feel that way."

Accompanying Mr. Young, was Angus Watt, representing M. F. Maxwell of Kraft Cheese Company, sales director of the Ontario drive.

Purpose Personified

Mr. Jebson introduced to the gathering a very small boy who obviously did not know what it was all about. His name is Mac Finley, 176 Brock street, and he was wearing a red coat with black shoulder trimming and on his arm the two stripes of a corporal; just a boy's coat, but it harmonized with the fact that Mac's Daddy is a soldier, and that he himself represents the legion of Canadian boys whose future is involved in Allied victory. He was seated at the head table opposite the chairman, but the coat was removed during dinner, and between times Mac wandered about much at home.

Mr. Jebson did not overplay the sentiment of the idea and purpose which Mac personified, but as the after dinner program began, he lifted the boy to the table, and introduced him.

"The least you and I can do for him and the thousands of boys like him is to help bring his Dad, and their Dads, home. What we do is a small thing compared with what these men are doing."

Others at the head table with Mr. Jebson, Mr. Young and Mr. Watt were Lieut.-Col. Walter Bapty, Major V. M. Eastwood and Major James Turnbull, Alderman Dutton, G. S. Matthews and Captain Gordon Monkman. The attendance appeared to be about one hundred and twenty-five men and women. Andy Rutter led in comunity singing accompanied by Frank Biddle who also sang several songs.

Committee Chairmen

Mr. Jebson reviewed the following committees and their chairmen:

Milk James Matthews; bread, Alex Johns; special events, Lionel Browne and Andy Rutter; meat, Harley Weir and Vern Malott; publicity, Roy Taylor; wholesale division, R. Ross and S. C. Williams; restaurants, Hum Hoy; rural division, Frank Lynch; grocery division, north, E. C. Braund and Ken Smiley; south, Mendel Braund.

Special Events

Details will be announced of special events during the course of the campaign. Lionel Browne explained the plan for a draw for which the purchasers of stamps will be eligible. The amount of money to be distributed is $215, and the individual prizes are $100, $50, $25, and two at $20 each. This draw will take place at a victory dance February 29 in the drill hall at the Training Centre through the kidness of Colonel Bapty who said he would try to arrange for an orchestra.

Andy Rutter is in charge of a big bingo February 26 at the armouries which have been secured through the co-operation of Major V. M. Eastwood, representing Colonel Park. Tables will be "laid" for a crowd of 1,500 to 1,800.

Ken Smiley will direct a letter writing contest on the subject "What I would do with Hitler." The prizes will be $40, $10 and $5; all prizes to be in War Certificates.

Mr. Young was introduced by Alderman Dutton and Mr. Watt by Mr. Jebson.

The Industry's Aid

"I doubt whether we have ever had in Canada a group of people in any one industry with the esprit de corps our food industry has displayed," said Mr. Young. "In the place of competition, we are all co-operating for the sucess of an effort to help bring the war to a victorious conclusion. You hear a great deal of talk these days about industrial relations. I don't think you have ever seen closer relations between management and employer and employees than we have in our industry today. I believe it is going to be a real contribution to post-war Canada."

Mr. Young said this was the second campaign the Food Industry was conducting. "The Hon. Mr. Ilsley told me that not all the value of our effort was in the actual selling of War Savings Stamps although that was its actual purpose. Our campaign, he said, assists in publicity for war saving, in keeping the people conscious that we still have to keep on saving and lending to our country."

Mr. Young stressed the essential task of having to ask people to buy War Savings Stamps, to invest their money in them. "If our Food Industry sells $2,000,000 worth of stamps we are contributing that much to hastening the victorious homecoming of our men and women in the armed forces."

Argentina Will Be Given Lend-Lease Aid By Allies

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 —(AP)— Argentina's new position in relation to the rest of the Americas probably will be clarified when and if she again applies for lend-lease arms and supplies.

A request for such aid is expected as soon as Buenos Aires has completed re-orientation of her foreign policy begun yesterday when she severed diplomatic relations with Germany and Japan.

The issue is considered by the Argentinians to be of immense importance because they see themselves suffering as a South American power in relation particularly to Brazil, which as a full-fledged fighting ally of the United States has been receiving arms and equipment since 1941.

What United States reaction will be, however, probably will depend on the extent to which the Buenos Aires government eradicates Axis spy nests, propaganda and revolutionary intrigue within her borders. It probably will depend also on the need Argentina can show for lend-lease in the interests of hemispheric defence and the Allied war effort.

The subject of lend-lease help for Argentina was last broached in August, two months after the revolutionary regime of President General Pedro Ramirez seized power.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull rejected the request at that time both because of Axis activities then permitted in Argentina and because the request was based partly on the expressed desire of the Ramirez government to restore "equilibrium" in South America.

Hull said that "questions of military and naval equilibrium as between American republics are surely inconsistent with the inter-American doctrine of the peaceful settlement of international disputes."

EASY CONTRACTS

The men who contracted to remove snow from the city's sidewalks have been indulgently favored by this extraordinary winter. Dismiss Charge Against Pattenick Store

Finding on the facts that the prosecution had failed to show that the accuse d was operating a ladies' ready-to-wear shop or a shop in which ladies' ready-to-wear goods formed the princpal trade, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in a lengthy judgment in police court this morning dismissed a charge against Harry Schwartz, manager of the W. Pattenick store, of violating the city's early closing bylaw by keeping the store open on the night of Saturday, December 11.

"Upon the evidence" said Magistrate Langley in his judgment "It is quite apparent that the accused was not operating a ladies-ready to-wear store in which merchandise of various kinds are sold. It was quite properly described by the accused in his own evidence as a variety store or a chain variety store."

The onus was on the prosecution, His Worship stated, to show that the principal trade carried on in the Pattenick store was in ladies' ready-to-wear goods and the magistrate declared that in his opinion the prosecution had failed to do so.

Having come to that decision on the facts, Magistrate Langley remarked, it was not necessary for him to make a ruling on the law, in regard to the various objections against the petition and the bylaw raised by T. J. Carley, K.C., counsel for the accused and dealt with in the argument of City Solicitor W. F. Huycke, K.C., who prosecuted.

However at the request of Mr. Huycke His Worship expressed the opinion that as the petition that had been circulated had contained the words "dry goods stores" as well as "ladies' ready-to-wear stores" it was really a petition for two classes of stores and therefore would make the bylaw based on the petition defective.

His Worship also said that the objection that the bylaw mentioned "stores" whereas the act on the authority of which it was passed used the word "shops" was more important and less technical than it might appear.

City Solicitor Huycke asked His Worship for an opinion in the regard to the use of the words 'the next business day" in a bylaw whereas the act said "the next following day," remarking that a similar petition was being presented and he would like a ruling on that point,

Magistrate Langley remarked that was one of the most difficult matters that had come into the case but added that if he had had to make a decision on that point, standing by itself, he thought he would have ruled that the difference in the wording would not have been sufficient to have invalidated the bylaw.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(CP).—The sinking of a Japanese transport carrying British prisoners of war from Java last Nov. 29 was disclosed to-day in a War Office announcement that a list of victims had been received from the Japanese government.

Rupert Gliddon, Musician Dies In Montreal

Widely known as a musician, teacher and composer, Rupert Gliddon, 76, for many years a resident of this city and founder of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music died Tuesday in Montreal at the age of 76.

Born in England he came to Canada as a boy, and lived for some years in Bowmanville, where he conducted the local regimental band. After his marriage, he and his wife went to Germany where he studied music for several years. He played in Toronto orchestras as cornet soloist.

He is survived by two sons, Otto and Paul, both of Montreal, where the funeral will take place Saturday from Tees funeral chapel, St. Luke and Tower street.

Mr. and Mrs. Gliddon will be fondly and gratefully remembered by those young people of years ago who as music students found in the Conservatory of Music the only art centre Peterborough could boast of in the last forty years. Instrumentalists and vocalists, many of whom began as juniors and graduates with degrees in music, the young students were virtually one big happy family under the tuition of the Conservatory staff and the kindly solicitous interest of Mr. and Mrs. Gliddon.

Place of Inspiration

The Conservatory at the northeast corner of Hunter and Rubidge streets developed in this city a place of esthetic inspiration and expression that seems to have represented a local peak of accomplishment in the hope and progress of art in this community. Eventually the Conservatory was enlarged with a spacious auditorium, gone these last few years with the echoes of its twilight concerts and winter matinees, the dissonances of practicing when the staff was fully employed of an afternoon and evening, concerts and dances. Mr. and Mrs. Gliddon gave to the artistic and social life of Peterborough an impetus which carried through a generation with sustained reward of accomplishment in stimulating youthful gifts and directing an interest in music that has remained after them in a flowering that will continue so long as their former students survive.

The general public will remember Rupert Gliddon best as the conductor of the 57th Regimental Band in its years of greatest achievement. He had built it up to a strength of forty or fifty instruments and raised its musicianship beyond anything Peterborough has known since those years when the Friday night concerts in Victoria Park were literally community assemblies. The Band of those years used to play by invitation at the Canadian National Exhibition and established an enviable reputation in the field of Ontario music. Mr. Gliddon had some little success as a composer. One of his marches "Vanguard" was played by Sousa's Band with Mr. Gliddon conducting.

Truck Overturns Imprisoning Three Persons

When a truck in which they were riding turned completely over at the intersection of Wolsley Street and the Lindsay Highway, this morning, three Oakwood persons were imprisoned under the cab and had to be rescued.

Fortunately they escaped serious injury. The three were Cecil S. Webster, driver of the truck, his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Webster and his father, Horace Webster. The latter sustained injuries to his back and hand and was taken to the Clinic by Officer C. J. McGillen for treatment.

The accident happened as Kenneth A. Jones, Downie Street who was driving his car south started to make a left turn into Wolsley Street. Jones stated that he noticed a truck coming and stopped, pulling back to his side of the road.

The truck, driven by Webster, struck the left rear fender of Jones' car and then seemed to go out of control, running for some distance on the east shoulder of the road and finally rolling over and coming to rest on the travelled portion of the highway, with its four wheels in the air and completely blocking the road.

The three Websters were imprisoned under the cab and were released by Jones and L. C. Mundin who was a passenger in the Jones car.

Six hogs carried in the truck were spilled out and had to be rounded up. The cab and rack of the truck was damaged in the accident.

John Burfield Fined For Acquiring Tea

An aftermath of the case in which John D. McIntosh was sentenced to penitentiary for breaking into the A. and P. Store and stealing a quantity of tea was heard in police court this morning when John Burfield, North Monaghan metal collector, who had been one of the Crown witnesses in the McIntosh case faced two charges under the Wartime Price and Trade regulations.

Burfield was charged wit hillegally acquiring 70 one-half pound packages of tea from McIntosh and also with illegally disposing of four 1-2 pound packages to Roland Gilbert, 215 Hunter Street.

He pleaded guilty to both charges.

"I have been asked to say in respect to this case," said Hon. G. N. Gordon, K. C., 'that this man gave the police every assistance in prosecutin the case against McIntosh."

Magistrate Langley fined Burfield $2[illegible] and $1.75 costs on the Gilbert charge and $10 and $1.75 costs on other.

Found Guilty.

Roland Gilbert, charged with illegally acquiring four ½ pound packages of tea from Burfield, pleaded not guilty but was convicted of the offence on the evidence of George N. Rogers, inspector for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and Burfield.

Rogers produced a statement given him by the accused in which he admitted receiving the tea from Gilbert and Burfield swore that he had given the tea to the accused. He had not been paid for it, he said.

Gilbert said that at the time he did not know there was an offence in acquiring tea under such circumstances. He said that he had given Burfield a ride to Toronto and the gift of the tea followed.

Magistrate Langley fined Gilbert $20 and $1.75 costs.

2 More Sailors In Biscay Fight

Two more Peterborough boys, Chief Engineer David Fowler and Ab Stewart Cummisky, were aboard the corvettes Calgary and Snowberry when they took part in the Bay of Bicay convoy battle, it was learned today.

David Fowler, chief engineer aboard H.M.C.S. Calgary, is the son of Mrs. Helen Fowler and the late Archibald Fowler, 510 Wolfe street. He enlisted in April 1941 and after some service aboard the Moncton, he transferred to his present ship, on which he has been serving about 14 months. This is not the first action, the chief engineer has seen, having indicated to his mother that he took part in some of the Mediterranean battles. Before enlisting he was employed at the C.G.E.

Serving aboard H.M.C.S. Snowberry with AB Donald Vyse, is AB Stewart Cummisky, whose sister, Mrs. L. Davidson, lives at 694 Water street. He enlisted in October 1942 and been aboard this ship since June 1943. Son of Pte. A. V. Cummisky of the Veterans' Guard at Kingston, and Mrs. Cummisky of Westwood, he too is a former C.G.E. employee. His family believe, that, like David Fowler, he has seen action in the Mediterranean.

SNAKES—REAL ONES

W. Ellis, station agent at Omemee, and Bert Binstead, section foreman, were walking down the C.N.R. tracks on one of the warm, springlike days this week when they came upon a convoy of green snakes alongside the roadbed. There were four of them in the group, and evidently they had succumbed to the temptation of the unseasonably warm weather to come forth from their reptilian lairs and take a little promenade. This incident reported by Messrs. Ellis and Binstead, is in line with other strange doings in the animal kingdom, that show bears coming out of their dens, muskrats cavorting on the ice, and geese flying north. The discoverers of the snakes, perhaps shrewdly aware of the possibility they might be accused of "seeing things," brought back one of the green reptiles as their proof. It may also serve as Exhibit Umpty-Umpth in the circumstantial evidence pointing towards an early spring.—G.W.

L.O.L. Donation Brings Aid To War Victims

Today's story on behalf of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund is of a reminiscent nature, since it recalls the doings of the July 12 celebrations held in Omemee last year by the some thirty L.O.L. Lodges of that district, which from all accounts proved to be quite a successful affair.

At a recent meeting of that district, the proceeds which proved fairly substantial were given to worthy war charities, with this fund sharing to the extent of the splendid amount of $75, and the Omemee Soldiers' Aid and the local branch of the Red Cross in that place also benefitted by a similar amount.

This contribution was given by Mr. Harrison, their district secretary, to the Rev. R. M. Patterson, who has very ably represented the fund in that place, and he in turn forwarded it to headquarters here, where it appears in today's list of receipts as enumerated at the foot of this column.

Shortly after this celebration was held, a donation appeared in this column on its account, so the one now received was one of the unexpected bright pots that sometimes occur to give encouragement to the fund management, and is all the more welcome on this account.

John White of Omemee is the county master of this group, while the local lodge at Omemee is presided over by John Morrison, and since loyalty to the Empire is one of their precepts, it follows that they are living up to them by helping the heart of the Empire in this manner.

This now makes a total of $687.53 that Rev. Patterson has himself turned over to the fund, in addition to which a number of donations have been received from the same place and the township of Emily in other ways, a notable record for a place district of its size and population.

When the penny boxes first went into circulation, three of them were sent to the near-by village of Keene, where they were placed by D. D. Brown, fund representative in that place, under whose supervision they have remained ever since. In today's receipts, those located at the Bank of Toronto and G. S. Taylor's store in that place continue the steady flow of help that has been coming in this manner for the past three years.

Dance This Friday.

This Friday night, January 28, a dance is being held at Zion, the proceeds of which are to come to this fund, so patrons will add to the feature of their own pleasure, the satisfaction of also doing something to spread goodness and happiness to other people in need.

The session report was read by Mr. Kerr and included the following items of interest: Bishop G. A. Wells conducted most successful anniversary services. Rev. Arthur Young was "licensed to preach" in the church on March 15, when Chancellor Walter Brown of Victoria University was the speaker. Special reference was made to the able sermons of the pastor and of other visiting preachers. The session was elected to be the missionary committee of the church.

Mr. Lewis reported 13 boys in the Scout troop and 21 in the Wolf Cubs. A. Ingham resigned in December, R. K. McKee, vice-principal of King Edward School, has taken over the vacant position of Cub master. Allen Johnson is Scout master.

The Women's Association report was given by Mrs. James Turnbull. There has been a year of great activity—the cent-a-day plan has worked well, the large Sunday School hall has been decorated, the nurses of the city hospitals were entertained, and arrangements made for the Sunday School picnic. The total income was $985.00. A new carpet was bought for the manse. Mrs. I. T. Lillico is president.

The Bowling Club raised $53.49 in 1943, and there are about 30 members, of which Mrs. Ray Morrow is president. The club has had a very good season.

Mr. Kerr presented the choir report. The attendance had been good considering the disruption caused by the war. R. B. Hurle, organist, has the entire confidence of the choir. A letter of appreciation was ordered sent.

The Girl Guides was represented by Commissioner Mrs. Doris Whalon. There are 60 members, St. Andrew's company having more first-class Guides than any other company over a wide area of country. Miss G. Bridcott does fine service as leader.

The junior congregation was organized by Mrs. Fred McNeely, the ages ranging from 3 to 12 years. The Young People's Union sent 34 boxes to boys and girls of the armed services from the congregation. Miss M. Emerson is president.

The financial statement of the church was given by Hugh Waddell, and was one of the most satisfactory for many years. The total sum raised for local funds was $9,816.81, against $8,104.16 in 1942 and $8,351.24 in 1941. The sum of $824.00 was paid on bank loan and $500.00 on first mortgage principal. Bank balance at the end of December, 1943, $24.05. The M. and M. fund raised $$2,683.72 and debt reduction fund of the United Church $1,600.00.

J. R. Marshall and G. A. Gillespie also spoke and thanked the congregation for their fine generosity. The total for all purposes will be close to $15,6000, a record for the church.

E. B. Fowler spoke on the urgent need of Nicholls Hospital. The following elections were made:

The board of Nicholls Hospital—Mr. Fowler.

The Hall Trust—W. A. Richardson and M. T. Breckenridge.

On motion of F. E. Johnston, a hearty vote of thanks was given to the minister and his wife for their untiring efforts for the church and its work. Dr. Young thanked the members for their support and affection.

Council Decides To Begin New Assessment

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 27 (ENS)—T. C. Ephgrave of Peterborough was engaged to handle the complete new assessment of the village, at a special council meeting held Wednesday night.

A beginning will be made immediately on the business section which may be completed in time for this year's tax roll by the end of April. The remainder of the village consisting of some 300 homes, will be done by September 30, when it is planned a fall assessment will be made to cover the year 1945, enabling tax payment days to fall in April and September instead of September and December, as in the past.

An up-to-date card system will be used by the valuator whereby complete details of each building will be permanently on file in the village vault, and Edward Humpage of Peterborough, chartered accountant, was appointed auditor for the 1943 books.

Bert Withers, Peterborough, who takes care of the Lakefield garbage collection, complained to the council that many villagers object to paying the 10 cent garbage collection rate when they had not put any garbage out. He was informed by the council that this 10 cent rate is a monthly tax covered by a bylaw and is compulsory for all citizens, whether garbage is out or not. If it is not paid, it will be included in the taxes.

Canadian Broadcasting Company Will Yield More Time For Politicians

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 (CP)—Political leaders were silent last night on what use they planned to make of the monthly half-hour radio time accorded them yesterday by Canadian Broadcasting Corporation governors at a special meeting here.

An announcement after the meeting merely told of the half-hour period being alloted to all parties and did not elaborate. The announcement mentioned "party leaders," but is was assumed that the period being allotted to all parties they might assign any speakers to broadcast.

It could not be learned immediately how the half-hour period would be used; whether it would be shared by all parties each month or would be monopolized by one party with each party taking its turn.

Comparison Drawn

The six-hour political concession per year compared with one hour of what were described as "strictly political" speeches last year. John Bracken, Progressive Conservative Leader, and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Leader, were heard in half-hour broadcasts in January and February last year.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King was heard in several broadcasts, but officials said he spoke as Prime Minister and not as Liberal Party Leader.

From time to time members of Parliament have criticized the CBC for its attitude on political broadcasts. Opposition speakers have charged that their parties are placed at a disadvantage because the microphone is often made available to the Prime Minister.

There was considerable criticism recently over the corporation's refusal to permit the broadcasting of an address by Mr. Bracken before a party meeting in Hamilton.

Text of Statement.

The CBC statement said:

"At a meeting of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation board of governors, which concluded this afternoon, the CBC regulations pertaining to political broadcasts in the Federal field were revised to allow more time to party leaders if required.

"A total of one-half hour per month on a CBC network will be allotted for all parties for this purpose. Present restrictions on Federal party leaders in regard to submission of manuscripts have also been relaxed. Details in respect to this and to the whole plan will be issued within a few days."

Relaxation of the regulation for submission of texts follows considerable criticism.

Trinity United Church, Omemee, Reports Successful Year

OMEMEE January 27.—(ENS)—Very gratifying reports from all departments of activity were heard by the congregation of Trinity United Church, Omemee, on Monday evening, on the occasion of their annual business meeting which was held in the school room of theh church.

Rev. R. M. Patterson conducted the meeting, and opened with a short worship service which included an "n Memorium" for those departed during the last calendar year. The following names were read: Mrs. S. T. Connell, George Lowes, Mrs. J. R. D. McQuade, Infant Finlay, Samuel Stinson, Mrs. S. Switzer, Francis Gardiner, George Carew, and Robert Wilson. Prayers were offered by Messrs. P. Race and R. Poast, and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

The Chairman called the meeting to order for the transaction of business. David Weir was appointed as Secretary, and mention was made of the loyalty and faithfulness of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lamb, who in previous years took their place in all departments of the work of the Church, and who because of illness have been confined to their home.

Following are the various reports that were brought in by the organizations of the Church. A report of the Session was made by Rev. R. M. Patterson, showing for the Omemee charge a total of 490 persons under pastoral care, total church membership 224, and during the year 14 baptisms, 5 marriages, and 7 burials.

Harold Brooks, treasurer of the Young Peoples Union, reported for that organization. A donation of $75. was made to the Missionary fund of the Church, and the books show a balance of $51.80. During the year 18 new Hymn books were bought, and boxes packed for 12 boys serving overseas.

The Sunday School report, read by Miss Hazel Wilson, also showed a successsul year financially. Donations were made of: $64.28 to M. and M. fund, $10.52 to O.R.E.C., and $9.00 to the Greek Relief Fund. Balance on hand, $14.42.

Congregational Surplus

The report of the church treasurer, Mr. P. Race, showed receipts of $1,293.99, and a balance of $87.82. Mr. Race also reported for the M. and H. fund, $392.42 has been raised which is a substantial increase over 1942.

David Weir, Treasurer of the Trustee Board, brought an extremely favourable report, with a balance on hand of $257.71. The Anniversary offering exceeded all expectations, amounting to $451.32.

During the year the Women's Missionary Society raised and sent to the Presbyterial Treasurer a total of $262.30, which is $47.30 above their allocation of $215.00. Of this amount $6.00 was raised by the Baby Band, as reported by the leader Mrs. H. Deyell; and $30.00 was raised by the Mission Band under the leadership of Mrs. R. M. Patterson.

Mrs. H. Deyell in reporting for the Women's Association, said that it had been a year without much activity, but she mentioned that the ladies had catered to a banquet for the North American Leatther Company in January, 1944, receipts being $195.00 against an expenditure of only about $9.00.

The three Stewards whose terms expired were reappointed, namely Bert. Pogue, William Brown and T. A. McConnell. The other men serving on the Board of Stewards are: A. Lang, G. Werry, C. Graham, W. Thurston, I. Connell, P. Race, W. Wilson and W. D. Weir.

On motion it was decided that the services should be left at the hours of 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m., and that the evening services be withdrawn during July and August. A Pulpit Supply committee was appointed composed of H. Lamb and D. Weir and Rev. R. M. Patterson.

Rev. R. M. Patterson voiced his personal appreciation of the efficient manner in which the organist, Miss Lillie Race, and the choir leaders, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Weir, had fulfilled their duties. W. Wilson spoke on behalf of the congregation in appreciation of the work done, and the interest shown by Rev. and Mrs. Patterson at all times and in all phases of the church activities. A motion to this effect, including the organist and choir leaders was passed. A motion to adjourn carried, and the meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. Patterson.

Nazis Shoot Belgian Brother In Ontario

CHATHAM, Jan. 27-(CP)-Rene Goethals, Belgian-born Chatham resident, has been notified by the Belgian information centre at New York that his brother, Arthur Goethals, 46, has been murdered by the Germans with six others.

The loyal Belgian was shot by the Nazis in November, in Ghent, West Flanders, after the Germans had accused him and his fellow victims of sabotage in derailing a train causing deaths of 26 Germans.

It was also said by the Belgian information centre that Goethals was charged with setting fire to two warehouses in Kortnyk causing property loss of many thousands of marks. Goethals also shot two pro-Nazi police officers before he was apprehended.

Prisoner Admits Killing Reporter

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 27—(AP)—Rose Brancato, 28, New Haven Journal Courier reporter, who disappeared mysteriously last July 5 and was never seen nor heard from again, was brutally slain and her body stuffed into a furnace the night of her disappearance, New Haven police said last night.

They announced the signed confession of Walter J. Law, 39, of New Haven, that he "killed her and stuffed her body into a furnace."

They added that several details of the slaying were being withheld by them and there were others which the prisoner refused to disclose.

Serious Charge Goes To Jury

HAMILON, Jan. 27 (CP)—The case of Leading Writer William Manson, R.C.N.V.R., charged with manslaughter, dangerous driving and leaving the scene of an accident, went to the Supreme Court jury early Wednesday following an hour and a quarter charge by Mr. Justice A. W. Greene.

Manson, whose trial opened here last Thursday, is charged with being the driver of a car that struck and killed a cyclist, Charles Shepherd, 38, on Burlington st. E., Oct. 1.

Mr. Justice Green told the jury one of the "most pertinent" pieces of crown evidence was that Manson told police there was no damage to his car despite the fact the grill, engine hood and fender were damaged.

"The weight of evidence strongly indicates that the damage to Manson's car was caused by the deceased's body and bicycle," the Judge said.

Army Composition Military Secret

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 27 —(CP Cable)—Composition of the Anglo-American invasion force which struck at Italy's west coast at dawn Saturday remains a military secret.

Fresh Canadian formations which reached Italy last November are not thought to be part of the strongly-armed assault group which landed with clock-like precision in the Nettuno-Anzio area and now is pushing inland.

It is just possible that Canadians who are with a special service force in Italy played a part in the landings, although there has been no official mention of its participation.

A Stockholm report, however, claimed Allied specialist troops with the assistance of Italian Partisans cut three bridges in the Rome area presumably behind the German lines.

Dr. R. A. Kelly Speaks At Health Banquet

"Public health is a somewhat dull department, and the ordinary person gives little thought to it and doesn't know how its time is spent, but public health is playing a larger part in the world today and will bring a better and fuller life," said Dr. R. A. Kelly, Peterborough medical officer of health, who was guest speaker at the health banquet held Wednesday evening at the Y.W.C.A.

Continuing, Dr. Kelly explained the three governments with public health departments and the responsibilities of each one. The Federal Government has the responsibility of keeping international waters clear, enforcing ship quarantine, controlling narcotic trade and other duties in connection with Canada as a whole.

The Provincial Government has charge of the public health laboritories, which distribute insulin, give anti-toxin free, not only to physician but to the public, he continued. The Provincial Government must also maintain sanitary inspectors, who travel around the province, visiting ecah district two or three times yearly, to inspect sanitation and water facilities. The municipal Board of Health is sometimes made up of a M.O.H. and a sanitary inspector, in smaller centres, and sometimes with just part-time men, he went on.

Dr. Kelly said that it was always a source of regret to him that more municipalities did not have a full-time staff to look after health problems. Quoting statistics, he went on to say that Quebec municipalities were 90 per cent. staffed with full-time workers.

Four On Local Staff

Explaining the workings of the Peterborough staff, he said that it consisted of four workers. The stenographer, the public health nurse and medical officer of health and the sanitary inspector. Their work with children takes in only children of pre-school age, because the Board of Education has provided health facilities for those attending school. But the Separate schools are still under his care, he continued.

Speaking of health improvements, Dr. Kelly stated that vaccination had wiped out smallpox, and that a safe milk and water supply had almost done away with typhoid. He also spoke of future plans of the health department and said that "public health in the post-war period will made Peterborough a healthier city and will enable the people to live fuller and better lives."

The banquet was in connection with "health week" which is being observed by the Y.W.C.A. Pictures, made in the Y.W. by Mr. G. Downer, were shown after Dr. Kelly's talk, and contained scenes of gym and swimming classes.

Miss C. Littlefield spoke briefly, thanking the girls for their co-operation, and reminding them that the Y.W. was ready at all times to serve war workers and girls in the services.

In the gymnasium, eight girls from the Tuesday night class demonstrated the right and wrong ways to do exercises in the Danish Fundamentals. They were Hazel Dunford, Iris Hopkins, Ruth Choate, Ethel Hopkins, Jean Elcombe, Berta McBride, Lois McBride, and Betty Detcher. An exhibition of ornamental swimming was given in the Y pool by three members of the Silver Finettes, and the exhibition was greatly enjoyed. The girls taking part were Shirley Moldaver, Ethel Hopkins and Hazel Dunford.

St. John's W.A. Hostesses to Other Branches

A pleasant tea hour was spent in the parlor of the Sunday School at St. John's Anglican Church, Wednesday afternoon, when the Women's Auxiliary of the church were hostesses to the various W.A.'s of the other Anglican churches in the city.

Each branch of the W.A. had a representative speak for a few moments on phases of their work. Mrs. W. Connolly, the Junior Superintendent of All Saints, was unable to be present, but her report, was given by Mrs. W. A. Filer. Mrs. D. Wyatt, of St. Luke's, explained thoroughly the aims and objects of the "Extra Cent a Day" fund, and this topic was discussed by the groups later in the afternoon.

Mrs. E. C. Moore gave a brief talk regarding the excellent work done by St. George's and St. Mark's, Otonabee, while Mrs. J. Howard, president of All Saints' Evening Branch, outlined the work of her group. Mrs. E. Young, secretary of the St. John's Evening Branch, reported on the work of her group, showing the work which can be accomplished when a full branch meets regularly at Dorcas work.

Thanked For Bale

Mrs. George Groombridge, former Dorcas convener for eleven years, represented the Afternoon Branch of St. John's, and included in her report a letter of thanks from a western diocese which had received a mission bale. Miss M. English, treasurer, explained fully the meaning of the "Bishop's Emergency Fund," and the United Thankoffering.

The musical interlude was provided by Mrs. G. Cutmore, who gave two solos, accompanied by Miss Florence Gladmare.

The visitors were received by the two vice-presidents, Mrs. W. Cruthers and Mrs. J. Cridland, in the absence through illness of Mrs. G. S. Cameron, president. Mrs. H. Lemmings and Mrs. G. T. Melton poured tea for the first hour, and Mrs. W. P. Robertson and Mrs. Arthur Stevenson for the second hour. Tea room assistants consisted members of the executive, with Mrs. E. Graham and Mrs. G. Groombridge as conveners. Mrs. W. Cruthers and Mrs. C. Sootheran had charge of the table arrangements, and the floral decorations of daffodils were sent to two "shut-in" members.

Annual Reports Considered By Mission Circle

Mrs. Lilyan Huggins, as president of the Jean Wagar Mission Circle, presided at her inaugural meeting Wednesday night when there was a splendid attendance, with Miss Anne Deyell, group leader, as hostess at her home on Crescent street.

A short business session opened the meeting with the past president Mrs. Dorothy Martin in the chair. Reports of the year's work were given by the secretaries of departments and by the treasurer, all showing good progress.

The new officers for the year were installed by Rev. F. W. Craik, and in a brief address, Mrs. Huggins asked for the cooperation of the members, not only in reaching the financial allocation but in attaining a spiritual one of blessing and helpfulness.

New business was dealt with and new members and guests were welcomed. A letter of thanks for the gift of a book from the circle at Christmas was read from the advisory president, Mrs. Wagar.

A stewardship service of worship prepared by Zetta Wood on the theme "The Earth is the Lord's" was led by Anne Deyell with Gladys Langton at the piano. The service closed with prayer by Dorothy Martin.

Accompanied at the piano by Margaret Smart, a solo "Life's Balcony" was sung by Mrs. Olive Searles.

Discuss China

Part of tne study book was given in story form by Lottie Leggett who told of the courageous work of Miss Li, a young Chinese nurse, as related by Dr. Robert McClure, medical missionary to China.

Mrs. Harold Rehill, guest speaker, gave a review of Lloyd Douglas' book "The Robe" in which she described the chief characters and the high-lights which made this story a "best seller."

Mrs. Huggins voiced the thanks of the Circle to the speaker, and to the hostess and Miss Constance Wagar closed with prayer. Refreshments were served by the group, including Mary Easson, Zetta Wood and Anne Deyell. The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Gladys Meredith, 172 Lansdowne Ave. on the fourth Monday when Mrs. F. W. K. Harris will be guest speaker.

DOROTHY DIX

BEING UNMARRIED HAS POINTS

Good Job Better Than Bad Husband, Children Who Go Astray; Life Seldom Great Success.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am beginning the second half of my life as I am now 39. The first half has not been very satisfactory to me, due mostly to a great lack of self-confidence. This was particularly so in regard to men. I would have liked to have been married, but since I didn't know how to go about luring a man and was too shy to dash ahead and let the mistakes fall where they might, I have had few chances and those were not what I wanted. I have never wanted to be married merely to say I had a husband, and I still feel that way.

So I am now unmarried, with good health and a good job. I have no plan for the future. I do not care for my work, but perhaps it would be foolish to change now. What can I do so that thirty years from now I can feel that it was worthwhile to have lived? I am not a hard-boiled bachelor girl, and I don't want to be a timorous old maid. Can you tell me?

A WOMAN

NOT MUCH TO CHEER ABOUT

ANSWER—I doubt if anyone, except those who are lucky enough to have been endowed by Nature with a complete and inexhaustible supply of self-complacency, can ever look back upon his or her past life and feel that it has been any howling success. The more modest of us see so many mistakes that we have made; we blush for so many foolish and stupid things we have done, and we realize how far we have fallen short of accomplishing all the great things that we were sure we would do before we were middle-aged. And, if we are honest, we know that we are not really necessary to anyone else. We are expendable.

Yours, dear lady, is just the common lot of the ordinary human being. Looking back over your forty years you would find plenty to regret and not much to cheer over, and when you cast an eye into the future that wouldn't look so good to you, either. And there is nothing you could do about it. It is just life.

It seems to me that you are making the mistake that practically all unmarried women make, and that is to think that you would have been supremely happy and contented if you had married, and that a woman's life is a failure unless she has a husband and children. Yet why women should cherish this illusion

Roast Fish and Fowl Make Fine Big Dinner Dishes

By MARY MOORE

A friend of mine is a peach of a hostess but she thinks a roast of beef is the only thing a good bang-up company dinner can be built around.

To roast a chicken or bake a lake trout is a mystery and an unthought-of struggle she never intends to tackle—one of my friends overheard these confidences and agreed, saying she never served anything but roast meats to company.

That's sad and it's bad.

Any reader of mine must know the pleasure of roasting and serving a chicken perfectly, and must have a good company method for fish.

Roast Chicken with Stuffing
(Detailed instructions)

One 4 or 5-lb. chicken for 4 to 6 people. Salt, pepper and flour for dredging, stuffing. Wash chicken in warm water with vegetable brush—dry soda sprinkled on the skin helps to cleanse it. Dry well and singe chicken—this may be done over gas burner or by twisting newspaper tightly and lighting end and holding bird over garbage can and singing off hairs, while turning. Wipe well. Cut off the head, and cut off legs at lower joint. Remove crop from neck by slitting skin at base of front of neck. Make a cut at the vent, keeping the opening as small as possible. Insert hand and loosen internal organs well, including lungs and windpipe, then attempt to remove them all at once, being careful not to break the gall bladder. The kidneys, lying in the hollow near the end of the backbone, must also be removed. Draw down neck skin and cut off neck close to body leaving skin long enough to fasten under back. Cut off oil bag which is at bottom of spine just above tip of tail. Wash inside bird well with running water, then dry and dredge with salt.

To Stuff Bird

Put stuffing by spoonfuls in neck end, using enough stuffing to fill the skin, that bird may look plump when served. Put remaining stuffing in body—if body is full sew skin at both neck and vent; if not fasten edges of skin together with skewers. Truss bird by crossing drumstocks, tie securely with long string, and fasten to tail. Place wings close to body and hold them by inserting a skewer through wings and body. Draw neck skin under back and fasten with a small wooden skewer. Turn bird on its breast. Cross string attacked to tail piece and draw it around each end of skewer.

To Roast Chicken place it on roasting pan, rub entire surface with salt, and spread breast and legs with three tablespoons butter rubbed until creamy with 2 tablespoons flour. Start baking uncovered in oven of 450 deg. Fahr. until surface is tinged gold, then cover and reduce heat. Baste every 15 minutes with ¼ cup butter melted in 2/3 cup boiling water—then when liquid forms in pan baste bird with it. If a glazed surface is preferred, spread bird with butter and omit flour. When thigh meat is tender bird is done. If skin is not browned enough—remove cover for five or ten minutes before serving time.

Stuffing

Two cups each cracker crumbs and soft bread crumbs, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon sage or poultry seasoning, 1 teaspoon onion optional, ½ cup boiling water or scalded milk, 1 beaten egg is optional.

Baked Fish with Tartare Sauce

(For this method you need a 3-lb. fish—lake trout, salmon, haddock, or cod, etc. The larger the fish the more flesh in proportion to bone and skin—but you need at least 3 pounds.)

If possible have the fishman remove head, entrails and scales from fish. When you are ready wipe it clean—do not wash—then dry it. With sharp pointed knife carefully remove bones, keeping fish as near to original shape as possible. Sprinkle with salt. Put in stuffing (see below), tie fish in shape with soft string, or fish may be sewn into proper shape. Place 2 strips bacon on top, and place fish in greased long pan. Bake a 3-lb. fish ¾ hour at 400 deg. Fahr. basting it 2 or 3 times during baking, as soon as fat is tried out. Serve with

Tartare Sauce:

One-half cup mayonnaise—(not boiled dressing,) ½ tablespoon each finely chopped pickles, olives, capers, parsley, 1½ tablespoon each finely chopped pickles, olives, capers, parsley, 1½ tablespoons vinegar, ½ teaspoon grated onion (powdered tarragon—¼ teaspoon—is a good addition but hard to find). Mix ingredients in order given just before it is to be used.

Fish Stuffing

Fish stuffing should be crumbly—not moist; 1 cup cracker crumbs, ¼ cup melted butter, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon onion juice, 1 teaspoon each chopped pickle, parsley and capers—if you cannot buy capers use more pickle. Mix in order given and stuff into fish and tie as directed above.

A friend of mine who has come home from New York reminded me of Maryland chicken with Popovers—there is a Southern restaurant there that makes a specialty of it—you can too.

Maryland Chicken

Dress clean, and cut up a 3½-lb. chicken to serve four. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dip in flour, then in egg diluted with two tablespoons water after beating, then in crumbs. Place in well buttered baking dish, and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes—basting with ¼ cup butter melted in ¼ cup boiling water after first 10 minutes baking—basting often enough to use up liquid before baking time is up. When baking time is up arrange chicken pieces attractively on hot platter and pour over it two cups.

Cream Sauce

(This may be made with milk but in the South they use cream.) Scald 2 cups cream in top of double boiler. Melt 3 tablespoons butter in saucepan, add 3 tablespoons flour, then stir in scalded cream, until thick. Add salt and black pepper to taste.

Popovers

(To accompany Maryland chicken)

One cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅞ cup milk, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon melted butter. Mix and sift salt and flour; add milk gradually to obtain a smooth batter. Add egg, beaten until light, then the butter; beat 2 minutes—using egg beater, then pour into hissing-hot iron gem pans and bake 30 minutes in oven of 475 deg. Fahr.—this is very hot but essential to make the popovers "pop." Serve as soon as possible after baking as they will collapse if they become steamy.

If you want other chicken recipes or fish methods write telling what details you know, and we will print the proper procedure.

SECOND IN SERIES—Rose Bampton, leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Association, will appear in the Collegiate auditorium on Friday night at the second concert of the Peterborough Concert Association. Miss Bampton received her early musical education in Cleveland and Buffalo and later graduated from the Curtis Institute, Philadelphia. She made her Metropolitan debut on her 23rd birthday, and from then on her career took on a national and international scope.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

DEAR MARY MOORE—This is the first time I have written to you but I have read your page every week since it started. I have a good recipe for Graham Pudding which I have been saving to send to you sometime—now I have another that you might like to give the readers so I will send them both hoping you think they are good enough to print.

Graham Pudding
(Contributed by Mrs. Lorimer)

One-quarter cup shortening, ½ cup molasses, ½ cup milk, 1 egg, 1½ cups Graham flour, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup raisins. Melt the shortening, then add the molasses, milk, well beaten egg, and dry ingredients which have been mixed and sifted together, then add raisins. Pour into well-buttered mould, cover tightly and steam 2½ hours. This is good with hard sauce if you have the powdered sugar.

I think the next recipe has a fancy name like Fondu or something but we just call it cheese dish. It's a handy thing to know.

Mrs. Lorimer's Cheese Dish

Three-quarters to 1 lb. soft mild cheese, 2 tablespoons butter, 1¾ teaspoons salt, 1-3 teaspoon paprika, 1½ cups milk, 2½ cups stale breadcrumbs, 3 eggs. Cut the cheese in thin slices. Sprinkle a layer of breadcrumbs in buttered baking dish, cover with one-third of the cheese, sprinkle with some of the salt and paprika and repeat twice, making three layers. Beat eggs slightly, add milk and pour over. It is best stood in large pan containing hot water to bake—about 75 deg. Fahr. for about 30 minntes.

MRS. LORIMER.

Thanks for both of these wartime dishes, other molasses recipes will be welcome from any of our readers.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

QUESTION: Around Christmas time you published in your paper a recipe for cookies which were delicious. I think they were called Short Break Cookies. I clipped it out after I had made them, but mislaid it and can't find it anywhere. I wonder if you would mind printing it again soon please. Thanking you, Mrs. C. P.

ANSWER: These are delicious cookies to have on hand at any time of year.

Shortbread

One cup butter, 3 1-3 cups flour, 7 tablespoons cornstarch, ⅛ cup sugar. Beat the butter to a cream, dredge in gradually other ingredients. Work this paste with the hands until quite smooth, and divided in halves. On lightly floured board roll out—dough will split at edges but you must work with it until it rolls out into a smooth sheet about ½ inch thick. Cut out with floured cookie cutter. All the scraps of dough should be used for perfectly shaped cookies. If you care to you can roll out all the dough at once, but it is hard to handle. Put on unbuttered cookie sheet and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 25 minutes—shortbread should not brown from the bottom — it should only become crisp and biscuit-colored in baking. This may be made into 3 large cakes, top pricked with fork, and baked a little longer than the cookies.

QUESTION: One of the manufacturers of cheese mentions a vegetable loaf in their advertisements—and tells you to serve cheese sauce over it. This sounds awfully good—we are vegetarians—but they don't tell you how to make it. Could you tell me how to make a good main course vegetable loaf and an interesting cheese sauce to serve over it. Thanking you for many past favors. —Mrs. Gauld.

ANSWER: The method I'm giving you is my favorite vegetable loaf—I hope you will like it too.

Vegetable Loaf With Cheese Sauce

Beat 3 eggs slightly, and add 1½ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup milk, and ¾ cup broken walnuts. Mix in 2½ cups soft day-old bread crumbs, 4 tablespoons melted butter or cooking oil, and 1½ cups each cooked diced celery, carrots, peas or, and lima beans. Turn into loaf pan lined with butter paper and bake in moderately hot oven of 375 deg. Fahr. about 35 or 40 minutes—until firm. Serve on hot platter, garnished with parsley and pour over just before serving.

Velvet Cheese Sauce

(For 2 cups sauce): Mix together 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, pinch mustard, few grains pepper and 3 tablespoons butter or cooking oil. Stir 1½ cups hot milk into it until thick. Stir in 1 cup grated cheese—preferably spreading cheese—and as soon as hot through, serve.

This Vegetable Loaf is also good with canned mushroom soup. The Cheese Sauce is good on codfish, or poached eggs, and many other dishes.

For Friday, January 28

JUDGING BY the astral indications there will be a continued opening for pushing ahead to the land of heart's desire, with the possibility of a happy fulfillment of cherished hopes and wishes. To attain this benign objective it is probable that others of power and influence, in both private and public life may be instrumental in advancing the interests. Propositions of merit, presented with conviction, the use of personality and social position, should be favored. Finances may increase, prestige expand, and contacts give pleasure.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a prosperous, progressive and pleasant year, with all life's benefits, favors, and cherished hopes stimulated by a most expansive, generous and prosperous vibration. It is a time to work on meritorious plans and objectives, with the assurance of these being promoted by those in place and power, in public and private authority. Social, domestic, cultural affairs are enhanced and the romantic aspect may attain rich climax for pleasure, gratification and enduring comfort. Push to this happy goal.

A child born on this day may be happily endowed with the ability and mentality to reach its high ambitions, its worth and personality helped on to such fruition by those in place and power.

IF BABY IS CROSS FIND OUT WHY

HEALTHY BABIES are not cross. Your baby should not be cross. If he is, then something in his little system is "out of order." Probably Baby's Own Tablets can promptly "put it right." Mrs. H——, of Fenelon Falls, had the experience. She writes: "My little girl was irritable, feverish and sometimes sick at her stomach—what a relief it was, after giving her Baby's Own Tablets, to see how much better she was."

Sweet-tasting—easily crushed to a powder, if desired—absolutely free from harmful narcotics or opiates. Promptly effective in simple fevers, diarrhoea, colds, constipation, simple croup, colic, teething troubles and other minor ills.

Never be without a full box of Baby's Own Tablets. Sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

in the face of the evidence to the contrary, afforded by the experiences of their sisters and their cousins and their aunts, must forever remain one of the eternal mysteries of feminine psychology.

For apparently it never even occurs to any woman that she could possibly make an unfortunate marriage herself. She knows dozens of women who are married to drunkards and philanders and brutes and bullies and shiftless ne'er-do-wells. She thinks of Sally, who gave up a cushy job in an office to go into a kitchen and slave over a cooking stove and a washtub and grow old before her time. She remembers Maud, with a fat pay envelope and pretty clothes and her good times, who has to wheedle even a pair of shoes out of her tightwad husband. She doesn't forget how often she has to pay her married sister's rent and buy clothes for her children.

CHILDREN OFTEN BRING HEARTACHES

And she thinks of the mothers she knows whose children are heartbreaks to her. Of one who waits for the drag of the steps of a drunken son stumbling in at night. Of an other whose daughter has bowed her head in shame. Of many others who have to work to support lazy, trifling children. Of others whose children are selfish and hard and cruel to them and who do not treat them as politely as they would even a servant.

But with all the examples of unhappy marriages and ungrateful children that they see about them, it does not shake the faith of the individual woman that her marriage will be made in Heaven and her children little angels. She is absolutely sure that she will marry a man who is the model of all the virtues and charms and that he will be a millionaire and a great lover, to boot, and that her children will be born with golden curly hair, wearing white dresses and blue ribbons that never get dirty, and with Phi Beta keys in their mouths.

As long as you hold to this theory that your life is a failure because you haven't married, there is nothing you can do about it except to get a husband by hook or by crook, and get something to really worry about. But if you want to be realistic about the situation, I should certainly advise you to change your occupation and get into some sort of work that you enjoy doing and that will give you a never-failing interest. For, as Stevenson said long ago, to do the work that we love for its own sake is to be called of Heaven.

And apply a little common sense to your case. Reflect that a good job is better than a bad husband; that if you had had children they would have gone and left you by the time you were 40, even if they were good children, and that to be economically independent and to have your own door key are a lot to be thankful for in a world where none of us get everything we desire.

Objective High.

During the business period, considerable discussion arose from a letter read by the secretary from the Red Cross headquarters in Toronto, giving details of the Red Cross National Appeal, and setting Peterborough's objective in the drive at $40,000. The discussion arose as to whether this increased objective should be accepted, and whether the funds should come from the Red Cross and Community Fund, or be gathered separately. One suggestion put forth stated that the objective should be left at $30,000, the amount for last year, and that the additional funds required to make up the 1944 objective should be taken from the reserve fund of the Red Cross.

However, it was decided to wait until further word was received from headquarters, after the annual statement of the Peterborough branch had been sent, and that any correspondence or change in plans could be taken care of by the sub-executive.

The date set for the Red Cross and Community Fund drive for Peterborough is March 3 to 10, and hope was expressed that the drive would have a generous response from citizens.

At this annual meeting, reports from the various committee conveners were given, and annual reports by the secretary and treasurer were also presented. As each report was concluded, and its adoption moved, Mrs. Ray remarked on the progress of the work, and congratulated the groups for the work accomplished during 1943.

74,697 Articles Made.

The secretary's report showed that 74,697 articles had been made, packed and shipped from the Peterborough branch during the year. Approximately 68,500 of these were surgical dressings; 1,900 were knitted articles; 300 were quilts and afghans made and donated by individual members of churches and other groups, and 1,800 were garments and articles made by local church units or auxiliaries outside the city, from materials cut and given out from the central workroom, and the remaining 2,000 articles were cut and sewn by workers who come regularly to sew in the Red Cross rooms. There are sixteen contributing units, ten in the city, and six outside the city.

This report also paid tribute to the Junior Red Cross and the efforts of its members, and praised the work of the teachers, who organize this work in their class rooms. The work of the outpost hospital was also mentioned as of primary importance, and the sum of $300 had been sent to headquarters, to be used for the carrying on of this important work in the outlying districts of the province.

Balance Of $8,665.

The treasurer's report, given by G. H. Thompson, showed a balance on hand of $8,665.76. The receipts showed a balance brought forward of $24,470.92, with donations from the Peterborough War Service and Community Fund of $30,000; interest on Dominion of Canada War Bonds of $225; and sundry donations of $1,370.28. The expenditures of the Society were $18,331.27 to the Canadian Red Cross Society; $300 to Canadian Red Cross Society Dominion outpost hospitals, $3,336.04 to the Canadian Red Cross Society for supplies, $1,074.39 for administration, and $9,032.03 for the Blood Donors' Clinic. The expenditures of the Clinic were given in detail at the conclusion of the report. Fifteen thousand dollars in Dominion of Canada Fourth Victory Loan Bonds at par was also purchased.

Committee Reports.

Excellent annual reports were given by committee conveners, showing the results of a year of united effort. The packing committee reported that 74,679 had been packed and shipped to Toronto, and that capture parcels had also been prepared and sent away. The wool room convener said that quality rather than quantity was the order of the work, because the group was working on a quota basis. The corvette Peterborough was also mentioned in this report, and supplies are being sent to furnish it.

The cutting committee provided 4,5?8 articles and the Junior Red Cross convener said that the 45 classes enrolled in the Junior Red Cross were working steadily, and mentioned the donations made by school children, from money collected from the sale of records, baskets, and other articles.

The report of the Blood Donors' Clinic was given in detail, and reviewed the work accomplished during the year, and also the changes made in personnel, location, and attendance since its beginning in 1942. The auditor, F. J. A. Hall, was appointed to audit the books of the Peterborough branch for another year.

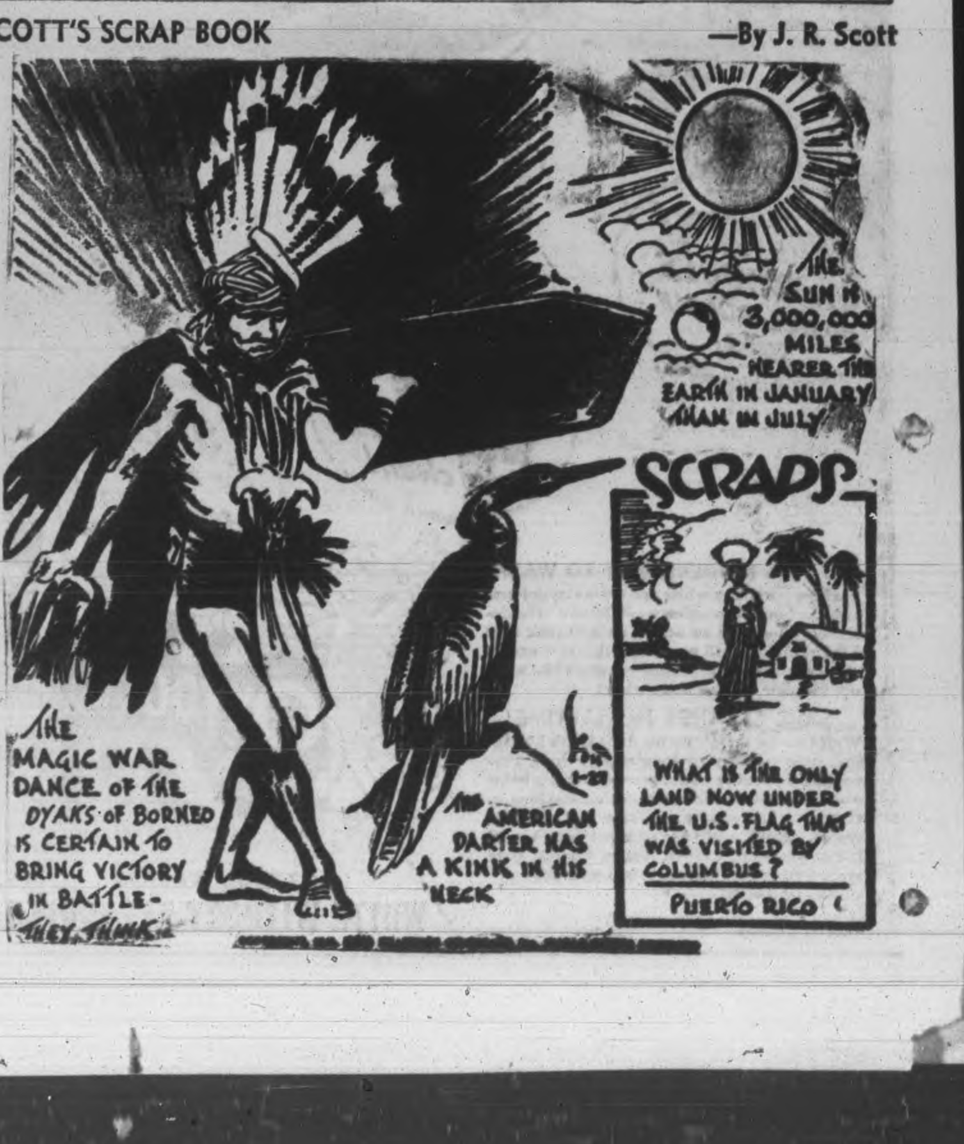
SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By J. R. Scott



YOUNGER GENERATION LOOKS ON—"What's Mummy doing now?" asks the interested young lady above. "Saving coal" might be the answer. This mother knows that one simple way to help conserve the winter's supply of coal is to shut off the heat in those rooms which are unused during the day. The Department of Munitions and Supply says that substantial savings will be effected through turning off registers or radiators and closing the windows and doors of all rooms not used during the daytime.

Treasurer F. Somerville Retires After 31 Years At Murray Street

The congregational supper and annual business meeting of Murray Street Baptist church was held Wednesday night, with a good representation of members in attendance, and a supper was served by the Women's Association. The letter of the pastor, Rev. Joseph H. Sutcliffe, showed a year of active service, not only in the work of the church but on many boards and committees of the convention, as well as numerous activities in the community. Expression of appreciation to Mr. Sutcliffe was voiced on behalf of the church membership by L. J. Pettit.

Concluding a service of 31 years, F. M. Somerville relinquished the office of church treasurer. A tribute of appreciation of the life and work of Mr. and Mrs. Somerville in Murray Street church was expressed in an address prepared by W. R. Breyfogle and read by the church clerk, L. H. Ingram. On behalf of the church the minister presented Mr. Somerville with a Parker-51 Lifetime fountain pen, and Mrs. G. W. Fitzgerald gave a bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Somerville.

Financial Status

Membership in the church is now 416, an increase of 11, and total net receipts for the year were $12,804.72. Gifts to missionary and other religious work amounted to $3,719.91. There was an increase in envelope giving both to current and missionary accounts, and the general fund was closed with a credit balance of $129.44. A motion was passed to reduce this balance to $200 and apply the remainder to the Debt Reduction Fund. $500 was paid on the mortgage during the year.

A special canvass was made during 1943 in the interests of a Convention Fund for Ministerial Superannuation, and $1,468 was raised in cash and pledges. A recommendation was submitted by the Finance Committee that the remuneration received by the pastor be increased by $200, and this was adopted.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

REMEMBER YOUR REASON

MAKING a bid on some hands is sound only because you are ready, in the event of certain developments, to make some particular other bid. That is most emphatically so when you bid a two-suiter which is weak in honor cards. If you get doubled in your first suit, you are ready to show the other, and thus give your partner a second chance for a fit if the first suit doesn't hit him right.

North: ♠ A K Q J 8 3 2 ♥ 10 ♦ 5 ♣ A Q J 8
West: ♠ 10 7 5 4 ♥ 8 ♦ J 10 3 2 ♣ K 10 7 6
East: ♠ 9 ♥ Q 9 6 5 3 ♦ A K 7 6 4 ♣ 5 4
South: ♠ 6 ♥ A K J 7 4 2 ♦ Q 9 8 ♣ 9 3 2

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♠	2 ♥	Dbl

Can you imagine East passing that double when it came around to him? That is just what he did, afraid he might go from the frying pan into the fire. He must have forgotten the reason why he bid his hearts in the first place. That bid was sensible only because he was ready to try his diamonds if it got him into trouble. Going to three, as he would have had to do, was nowhere as venturesome as bidding 2-Hearts without intending to try the diamonds if the hearts got doubled.

North and South took all of the tricks. The spade lead put North in to return the suit, the heart 3 getting over-ruffed by the 4. West covered the club 9 with the K and the A won, whereupon another spade brought over-ruffing of the heart 5 by the 7. A second club gave North the lead with the J, and the next spade caused the heart 9 to be over-ruffed by the J. Now the heart K and A dropped the last trumps, and the club 3 gave North a marked finesse of the 8. The club J and set-up spades followed, South discarding diamonds and ruffing the final trick with the heart 2.

The defensive grand slam gave North and South 2300 points, for setting East eight tricks. The not-vulnerable pair could have made a spade small slam, but that would have been worth roughly only about half as much. Bidding 3-Diamonds over the double would have saved East a lot of points.

Coldwell's Charges On Aluminum Amply Refuted By War Committee

OTTAWA, Jan. 27— (CP)— The House of Comons War Expenditures Committee, in a report tabled today, said that "none of the allegations" made against the Aluminum Company of Canada last year by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, is substantiated by the facts.

In a lengthy review of Mr. Coldwell's statements in the House and evidence heard during an inquiry last year, the report said:

1. An agreement made between the government and the company on taxation was "provident" for Canada.

2. The Aluminum Company dominated the Canadian aluminum production field but domination was not synonymous with monopoly. The aluminum industry has been able to produce and sell aluminum at constantly lower prices to the consumer.

3. Restrictive clauses in agreements with power firms had not been used to prevent other companies obtaining power to produce aluminum, and one such clause had been removed from a Canadian agreement recently.

4. Because of a limited post-war market for aluminum, the company faces the posibility of idle plants and power facilities representing a capital investment of more than $200,000,000. Depreciation granted for taxation purposes was justified. Idle plants might have to be torn down after the war.

An Urgent Measure

5. Company developments, such as the Shipshaw Power project on the Saguenay River in Quebec, had to be undertaken in haste and at additional expense because of the urgency of obtaining aluminum for war purposes.

6. The committee found labor conditions at Arvida, Que., and other company plants were good.

7. The committee felt the government was not the most effective or desirable agency to carry on the aluminum industry. No public moneys had been spent by Canada on the aluminum plants.

The report was tabled by Hughes Cleaver (L.—Halton), committee chairman. It was written by Rou T. Graham (Swift Current) who headed the sub-committee which visited Arvida and other aluminum company plants and heard witnesses from the company and the munitions department.

The report summarized Mr. Coldwell's statements in the House last June.

The C.C.F. leader had said prices charged the United Kingdom, the United States, Australia and Canada indicated undue profits; that the terms of taxation agreement between the Canadian Government and the Company represented a "gift" to the Company; that labor conditions in Alcan plants were bad; that the Aluminum Companies of Canada were part of a world monopoly and that the whole transaction was improvident from the Canadian viewpoint.

Coldwell Adamant

Mr. Coldwell, a member of the committee, which held its sittings in Canada, did not endorse the report.

(In a statement issued today, Mr. Coldwell said he repeated his charge that the "Peoples of the United Nations were being sold down the Saguenay (The Saguenay river at Arvida, Que., is the site of the Shipsaw Power Development) by the Aluminum agreements.

("The committee in attempting to whitewash the Aluminum deal has succeeded only in making itself ridiculous."

(In denying the existence of a monopoly, the committee "puts itself in the position of the man who on being shown a giraffe solemnly declared that there wasn't any such animal," the C.C.F. leader said.)

Under an agreement of Feb 2, 1940, the United Kingdom gave Alcan a 20-year three per cent loan of $29,900,000 to assist increased production. Further loans of $9,700,000 and $16,000,000 were arranged with the price of aluminum lowered from the original 20 cents a pound f.o.b. smelter to 18 cents on May 1, 1941.

These agreements were made entirely apart from the Canadian government, as were subsequent agreements with the United States. In the spring of 1941, the United States made a contract with Alcan for aluminum and provided a loan of $25,000,000, followed, in the same year, by another loan of the same amount.

Paid $50,000,000

In March 6, 1942, the United States made a new contract with the company, in which two previous contracts for 340,000 metric tons of aluminum were replaced by one calling for 453,597 metric tons. The two loans of $25,000,000 were replaced by a down payment of $50,000,000 in United States funds, to be retired at the rate of five cents a pound of all aluminum delivered. On April 1, 1942, a still further contract for 167,839 metric tons was given by the United States, with a down payment of $18,500,000.

Quantities bought by the United Kingdom are not revealed.

"These contracts with the United States government involved further expansion of plant facilities at a cost of approximately $100,000,000, and in addition the expansion of Hydro facilities to produce about 833,000 horse power," said the report.

Drop In Price

"The retroactive price reduction on 80 per cent of the American contracts was arranged without the knowledge of the Canadian government and meant that the average net price to the company was 16.665 cents Canadian funds.

"Upon being advised the Canadian government arranged with the company that the unit price on the United Kingdom contract for 1943 would be reduced to 16 cents, which in view of the larger quantity required in 1943 than in 1942 meant an average price for two years of 16.7 cents a pound, as compared with the United States price of 16.665 cents.

"Since Canada's entry into the war Canada had been faced with a grave shortage of United States funds for war purchases in the United States.

"Sales of aluminum to the United States under the first two contracts providing $123,300,000 in United States funds obviously became of great importance under such circumstances to the Canadian Government.

"If all contracts with the United States are completed, the total payments will amount to approximately $250,000,000."

The Munitions Department now acts as purchasing agent for the United Kingdom and Australia, the latter providing an advance payment of $2,500,000 for aluminum required.

The last important increase in productive facilities resulted from a United Kingdom contract in 1942 under which prepayments of $15,000,000 were provided for plant expansion, plus a 10-year three per cent loan of $5,000,000.

29 Millions for Planes.

Direct Canadian Government purchases of aluminum were only $865,204 to August 20, 1943, while purchases by Canadian airplane manufacturers totalled about $29,000,000.

To meet demands of the various governments, the company had to expand facilities to produce at the end of 1943 an estimated 505,000 metric tons annually. This involved an expenditure of about $120,000,000 apart from the amount financed by the United Kingdom loans of $55,600,000 and apart from the new power development costing about $70,000,000.

For taxation purposes, the Canadian Government agreed to allow the actual capital costs of the aluminum plant expansion and 60 per cent of the power expansion as special annual deductions from income. The plant expansion cost was estimated at $117,000,000, plus five per cent for contingencies and the power development at $62,500,000, plus 10 per cent for contingencies.

The company's profit and loss statement for 1942 showed a net profit of only 1.93 cents a pound on aluminum cold.

".....To suggest, however, that the terms of the agreement with Alcan with regard to special depreciation constituted a 'gift' of $154,100,000 would be to suggest that the Dominion Government makes a 'gift' to every taxpayer of the amount he is permitted to write off against his profits by way of depreciation. To state the proposition is to point out its absurdity."

Increased Output.

The company could not find a market for power surpluses before the war. In 1934, it produced 16,000 tons of aluminum, but now can produce 500,000 tons.

"In the opinion of the sub-committee the company will do well if it can produce and find a market for the pre-war peak production figure of 37,600 tons per year," said the report.

".....Idle plant and power facilities provides no profits, but on the contrary involve the company in the very considerable annual cost of maintenance......In this sense, they constitute a liability rather than an asset. The only escape is to tear down the excess facilities and this is by no means outside the range of possibility in the case of the Aluminum Company of Canada...These idle plant and power facilities will represent a war time capital investment of more than $200,000,000...."

JAPS TORTURING BRITISH PRISONERS

Berlin Fired In 12th Heavy Raid

34 Allied Planes Including 8 R.C.A.F. Reported Missing

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 28—(AP).—Hundreds of R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy night bombers touched off huge flames in Berlin again last night in a possible coup de grace to the Nazi nerve centre, previously described as three-quarters destroyed.

The Air Ministry announcement described the 12th heavy assault of the obliteration campaign as "very strong," a statement borne out in the loss of 34 aircraft in all the night's operations.

Eight Canadian bombers were listed as missing.

Other R.A.F. bombers hit at Heligoland, the Nazis' mighty North Sea island fortress, while still others struck at unnamed targets in western Germany and northern France and laid mines in enemy waters.

For all practical purposes, this latest attack in the campaign launched last November 18 to knock Berlin from the war might be described as a 'mopping-up operation.' It certainly was not considered here as the last assault planned against the German capital but was looked upon rather as one of the decisive finishing strokes.

Drop 1500 Tons

The Air Ministry's communique did not announce the tonnage, but it likely approached the 1,500-ton average of all previous heavy attacks. In this case, Berlin now has heaved and trembled to more than 16,000 tons of bombs in a little more than two months.

Early Swedish reports said the raid left great fires burning in the outer districts of Berlin where most of the capital's industry is concentrated. The centre of the city, heavily pulverized in previous attacks, apparently escaped further damage.

The Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet said

Planes Attack Admiralty Isles

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Jan. 28 (AP)—The Allies' expanding aerial might in the Southwest Pacific has been turned on the strategic Admiralty Islands in Bismarck Sea and threatens to bring virtual isolation to the Japanese defenders of New Guinea.

An Allied communique today reported the sixth raid in nine days on the Admiralty Islands. Heavy bombers with fighter escort poured 120 tons of explosives into Japanese positions.

Increasing pressure against the Admiralty group may spell virtual isolation to the enemy defenders of Wewak and Madang, New Guinea, approximately 225 miles to the southwest and south, respectively. Both of these important Japanese bases rely largely upon a supply line from Truk, a supply line over which the Admiralty Islands hold a commanding position.

Two successes were reported in ground fighting. On the northeastern front of New Guinea, Australian forces have driven the Japanese farther north of Sio and have narrowed the gap between them and the south-driving Americans at Saidor. The Japanese are trapped in the middle.

United States marines have seized Natane Point in a drive to envelop the Borgen Bay sector on the eastern flank of the Cape Gloucester beachhead on New Britain.

HOME AFTER INVASION—These Canadians, pictured as they landed on Kiska in the Aleutians, only to find the Japs gone, are now home again. They are wearing American issue uniforms.

American Officers Reveal Sad Plight Of Prisoners

By WILLIAM FRYE—Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—(AP).—A pent-up story of atrocities perpetrated by the Japanese army on the captured defenders of Bataan and Corregidor was released by the United States Government today in sickening detail.

A joint army-navy report finally broke rigid censorship maintained by the High Command on the almost unbelievable reports that came out of the Pacific, to tell what happened to the men who delayed the tide of Japanese conquest in the early days of United States participation in the war.

Compiled from sworn statements of officers who survived the starvation and torture and escape, it catalogued the infamy of a brutal enemy, and wrote in shocking terms the code of the Japanese warrior—to subject 36,000 soldiers to deliberate starvation, to shoot in cold blood the thirsty who seek water, to watch sick men writhe and deny them medicine, to horsewhip those who help their fallen comrades, to beat men with two-by-fours, to behead those who try to escape, and to bury tortured men alive.

The three who lived to return and tell what they endured were Cmdr. Helvyn H. McCoy, U.S.N., of Indianapolis; Lt.-Col. S. M. Mellnik, Coast Artillery Corps, of Dunmore, Pa., and Lt.-Col. William E. Dyess, Air Corps, of Albany, Tex.

Dyes is dead—killed in a fighter plane crash at Burbank, Calif., recently while preparing to return to duty in the Pacific. Melnik is with Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the Southwest Pacific, McCoy on duty in the United States.

Verified Stories

Their sworn statements included no hearsay whatever, but only facts which the officers related from their own personal experience and observations," the official report said.

"The statements have been verified from other sources....

"The three officers stated that several times as many American prisoners of war have died, mostly of starvation, forced hard labor, and general brutality, as the Japanese have ever reported.

"At one prison camp, Camp O'Donnell, about 2,200 American prisoners died in April and May 1942. In the camp at Cabanatuam, about 3,000 Americans had died up to the end of October, 1942. Still heavier mortality occurred among the Filipino prisoners of war at Camp O'Donnell."

The campaign of brutality began as soon as the exhausted American and Filipino soldiers on Bataan collapsed under the overwhelming weight of the enemy assault. Dyess reported that, beaten and hopeless as they were, they never would have surrendered if they had guessed what lay ahead.

In groups of 500 to 1,000, they began the six-day march, along the national road off Bataan toward San Fernando in Pampanga province—the "march of death" so hideous it would make the black hole of Calcutta sound like a haven of refuge.

A Japanese soldier took Dyess' canteen, gave the water to a horse, threw the canteen away. In a broiling sun, the prisoners were herded through clouds of dust. Men recently killed lay along the road, their bodies flattened by Japanese trucks. Patients bombed out of a field hospital were pushed into the marching column. At midnight the entire group was penned in enclosure too narrow to allow any of them to lie down. They had had no water—a Japanese officer finally permitted them to drink at a dirty barabao wallow.

Board Urges Improved Labor Laws

Labor Board's Report Tabled In House With Recommendations

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 28 (CP)—Recommendations for compulsory collective bargaining and other legislation covering labor relations were made by the National War Labor Board in reports tabled today in the House of Commons by Labor Minister Mitchell.

The reports, based on the board's 1943 inquiry into labor relations and wage conditions, contained lengthy suggestions on both subjects. The wage recommendations provided a basis for the recent amendments to the government's wartime wage-control order. The suggestions for improvement in labor relations have resulted in a government decision to enact a new labor code, expected to be made public shortly.

The majority report on the six-week inquiry was signed by the chairman, Mr. Justice C. S. McTague, and Leon Lalande. J. L. Cohen, K.C., since removed from the board by order-in-council, signed a minority report.

Much in Agreement

On many of the more important points, the two reports were in agreement.

The recomendations included:

Labor Relations

The majority report proposed a national labor relations board to administer a labor code for war war industry providing for compulsory collective bargaining, with safeguards against abuses by either labor or industry and penalties under the war-time Defence of Canada Regulations. All disputes, whether or not covered by collective agreements, would be compulsorily arbitrated and strikes and lockouts outlawed.

The minority report also proposed a code and included a suggestion that "company unions" be outlawed. Establishment of permanent conciliation boards was proposed to handle disputes outside provisions of the code.

On Labor-Management Committees.

Both reports recommended establishment of labor-management committees on a broad scale, with industry-labor councils for each industry. The majority report proposed the eventual organization of a National Council of Employers

Eden Reporrs Allied Warning Ignored by Jap Authorities

LONDON, Jan. 28—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons today that thousands of British troops had died as prisoners of the Japanese after being compelled to live "under tropical jungle conditions without adequate shelter, clothing, food or medical attention. Britain he warned, will not forget Japan's misdeeds. The Foreign Secretary charged that Japanese authorities had dictated postcards and letters received from prisoners giving the impression they were in good health and well-treated.

"The information which has just reached the Government no longer leaves any room for doubt that the true state of affairs is a different one so far as the great majority of prisoners in Japanese hands are concerned," Eden said.

He voiced the warning:

"Let the Japanese government reflect that in time to come the record of their military authorities in this war will not be forgotten."

(Mr. Eden did not mention Canadian prisoners. The Canadian government has announced that there were 1,984 officers and men of the Royal Rifles of Canada, Quebec, and the Winnipeg Grenadiers among the Hong Kong garrison when it fell December 25, 1941. Of these 296 are officially assumed to be killed in action or missing and the rest taken prisoners.)

No Inspection Allowed

Pointing out that the Japanese government had refused permission for neutral inspection of their prison camps, Mr. Eden said, "for some time past information has been reaching His Majesty's Government regarding the conditions under which prisoners are detained and worked in some of these areas, and as it was of so grave a character as likely to cause distress to relatives, His Majesty's Government felt bound to satisfy themselves that it was authentic before making it public."

Referring to the "many thousands" of British prisoners held in Thailand alone, he said:

"Our information is that their health is rapidly deteriorating, that a high percentage of them are seriously ill, and that there have been several thousand deaths. The number of such deaths reported by the Japanese to us is just over 100."

"Conditions in Hong Kong appear to be growing worse," Eden continued. "The whole story would appear to be very bad indeed, but I have worse to come. We have a growing list of cases of brutal outrage on individuals, or groups of individuals.

Terrible Conduct.

"I cannot burden the House with full details of these, but in order to give some idea of their nature, I must, I fear, quote one or two typical examples."

Eden then cited a case of a Shang-

Complete Canadian Corps Now Serving With 8th Army

By JACK BRAYLEY—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 28—(CP).—Confirmation that a full Canadian Army Corps under Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar was "in the line" with the British 8th Army on the Italian Adriatic front was given here today.

It was previously known that Canadian formations were in action in Italy, that a Canadian corps was forming there under Gen. Crerar, but today's announcement from defence headquarters here was the first indication of the strength of the Canadians in action.

The announcement gave no hint of the formations in the corps, but it is known the 1st Division is there and it is assumed large reinforcements have arrived to build up the group of corps status.

Reports from time to time have given indications of the growing size of the Canadian force. Name of a Canadian armored formation, which has fought in every sector and includes Canadian tanks from the Three Rivers regiment which helped turn the tide of battle for infantrymen of the 78th (Imperial) Division at Termoli earlier in the peninsula campaign, has appeared in front-line dispatches.

Douglas Amaron, Canadian Press war correspondent with the 8th Army, mentioned a Canadian medium artillery regiment in a January 19 story on action south of the Arielli River, and this was the first indication these mediums with their 5.5 guns firing 100-pound shells were supporting the 1st Division.

Previously the division had its own 25-pounder field regiments.

Russian Armies Nearing Estonia

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Jan. 28 (AP)—Mauled German forces in northwest Russia were being hurled back today toward a line extending through Narva, in Estonia, Luga and Staraya Russa by charging Red Armies which had ripped to pieces their siege lines around Leningrad and captured the strategic railway junctions of Volosovo and Tosno.

The Germans were fighting to keep Soviet troops from the streets of Lyuban and Chudovo, their only two remaining towns on the double-tracked Leningrad-Moscow trunk line. All but 30 miles of the railway is in Russian hands.

Ski Troops Active

At the lower end of the northwest front, the Nazis were battling frantically to keep the Russians west of Novgorod and Lake Ilmen from rushing upon the Leningrad-Pskov and Leningrad-Vitebsk railways. Ski-men were but two miles from the Vitebsk line at midnight.

(Along the Baltic the Russians were reported within 39 miles of the Estonian border driving westward in the direction of Yamburg.

The capture of Volosovo, 47 miles southwest of Leningrad, gave the Red Army an excellent base for a two-day operation west to Narva or southward down a spur line con-

Nazis Suffer Heavily In Air Battles

50 Planes Downed Over Rome And South France

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALGIERS, Jan. 28—(AP).—The German 10th Army, backed by planes, struck with fury at the Allies' Nettuno beachhead but was repulsed by British forces in a battle near Carroceto, on the Via Anziate, 10 miles north of Anzio and 21 miles south of Rome, Allied headquarters announced today.

At the same time the Germans suffered their greatest air defeat of the Italian campaign, losing at least 50 planes in 24 hours in sky battles over the beachhead and over southern France where heavy bombers struck at three airfields near Marseille and Montpellier and crippled the bases from which Germans raided Allied shipping off the Italian coast.

Use Armored Trains.

Heavy German armored trains, backed up almost to Rome, shelled Allied troops in the fan-shaped beachhead area and correspondents' reports said 60-ton Tiger tanks were assembling along the fringes of the beachheads as the enemy recovered from his surprise and mustered resources for a fiery contest for the Italian capital.

But today's communique from advanced headquarters said the 5th Army had enlarged its bridgehead and taken many German prisoners.

The 5th Army has extended its grip up the coast to a point 12 miles north of Anzio, another report said, and edged forward two miles in another sector yesterday.

Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's Italian headquarters reported the beachhead was at least five miles deep at all points now, generally six miles deep, and much deeper at some points.

While Allied tank destroyers and columns of infantry flowed inland in a steady stream, special German troops had been raced by truck into the flat, almost treeless country and posted in farmhouses with machine-guns in a desperate effort to bar the path of their communications.

Elements of two German divisions, the Herman Goerring Armored Division and the 29th Armored Grena-

AN R.C.A.F. FIGHTER STATION SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 28 (CP)—Raiding more than 100 miles inside France, four of the R.C.A.F.'s swift Mosquito intruder planes, led by Wing Cmdr. Don MacDonald of Vancouver, yesterday destroyed seven German aircraft in an action lasting only eight minutes.

Four R.A.F. Typhoons on a similar offensive sweep over Belgium at the same time shot down three other enemy planes. The bag of 10 was obtained without a single loss.

MacDonald himself set the pace for his fliers, shooting down a Heinkel 11 and a Heinkel 177 after leading 26 missions without seeing one enemy aircraft.

U.S. Cancels Spanish Oil Orders

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 — (AP).—Spain faced to-day the necessity of redefining her position toward Germany and the Allies as a result of American suspension of her main oil supplies.

General Franco's Government was forced to comfort the possibility of a profound crisis in Spain's entire economy.

The United States, it was learned on highest authority, has stopped scheduled February oil shipments to Spain from the Caribbean area, virtually Spain's only source of supply.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull is expected to announce the move to-day.

The limited amount of oil Spain has been getting from the Caribbean in her own ships is so tightly calculated that expert observers said the loss or delay of even one tanker's cargo would have extremely serious results.

Ribbentrop Fails to Create Dissension

Hitler Hopes To Salvage Victory By Separating Allies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Nazi Germany generally works by indirection in its efforts to sow seeds of dissension among the United Nations, but Argentina's rupture with Hitler has brought into the open Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop—one of the dozen most dangerous men alive today.

Yesterday Ribbentrop, posing as one more in sorrow than in anger, flung a two-barbed spear into the Allied camp.

It wasn't Germany who was the loser by Argentina's action, he said, but the Argentine itself and poor old England. "The Argentine government is not master of its own decisions any longer," and Britain which already "has been compelled to sacrifice the major part of her Central and South American interests to the United States ally," now "is going to lose her position in Argentina."

This propaganda is a perfect example of the use of the weapon upon which Hitler is gambling desperately to save his skin. While the Nazi armies fight a suicidal delaying action on all fronts, Germany strives to cause a split among the Allies.

However, in the case Ribbentrop has made a statement which to the Argentine or Briton or American is the assence of absurdity. He wasn't his usual subtle self.

Argentina knows she hasn't surrendered anything to the United States, and she knows this country has no desire to intrude. There is a friendly rivalry between British and American business interests for trade in Central and South America—and why not?

This trade will find its own level, and there's nothing Ribbentrop can say that will alter that natural law.

The only possible way the Argentine could lose out with England would be to play the Axis game. This inevitably would force Britain and the United States to act together in defence of world peace.

All Leningrad Celebrates

27 Months Of Siege Ends For Citizens

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Jan. 28—(AP). — The people of liberated Leningrad rolled out of bed and went to factories today, tired but happy. They were thinking of last night's wild joy of singing and dancing in streets illuminated by brilliant flares and rockets.

Those in the city had not seen a spark of light by night—except that from bursting enemy shells and bombs and burning homes—for 27 months. Last night the guns were theirs, the noise theirs, and the firing theirs.

Exactly at 8 p.m., the first gun was fired. Altogether, 24 salvoes from 324 guns marked the full liberation of the former capital, proclaimed yesterday.

That wasn't Leningrad's first victory salute, but last night's was the wildest, most spontaneous outburst of joy and happiness in the city's history.

People danced in the streets; radio loudspeakers blasted out dance music far into the pleasant night; and great crowds swarmed about the Kirov quarter, on Vasiliev Island, and in Fontanka Street around the Isaak Cathedral.

Ribbon Question Unsettled

Army Personnel Must Serve 6 Months

LONDON, Jan. 28 — (CP). — While qualified members of the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Royal Canadian Navy now are wearing the Ribbon of the 1939-43 Star, the question of the qualification for Canadian Army personnel still is unsettled.

Terms of qualification for the British Army were recently announced by the War Office, but Canadian or other Dominion troops were not mentioned as being included. However, it is possible they will be included later, and the terms extended to cover service of Canadian troops at Dieppe and in Sicily and Italy.

Under the terms for the British Army, a service man or woman must have an aggregate service of six months in certain operational commands between specified dates, or before completion of six months have won an honor, decoration or been mentioned in dispatches. If he or she died on service or was evacuated as a result of wounds or sickness arising from service the person is eligible. Time spent as a prisoner of war will count

Dates for Sicily are from July 10 to August 17, and Italy from September 3 to December 31, 1943. Thus even if a Canadian served throughout both these periods he still would not be eligible for he would not have six months aggregate service. This is one point which may be altered to enable these Canadians to wear the Ribbon should Dominion troops be included in later announcements.

Lively Debate Expected On Throne Speech

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Jan. 28 — (CP). — Two House of Commons members in Army uniform to-day will move and second the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, which yesterday marked the launching of a program of social security and reconstruction by the Federal Government.

The Address will be moved by Lieut. L. D. Tremblay (L.-Dorchester) and seconded by Captain Walter Tucker (L.-Rostern). When the mover and seconder have spoken the debate will be adjourned until Monday when Leaders of the Opposition parties will have an opportunity to set forth their views.

The Senate adjourned until Tuesday after hearing the Speech from the Throne read by the Governor-General.

Several Liberal members were frank in admitting they liked the Throne Speech and the ammunition which they felt it gave them for fighting an election campaign which they said they expect within the year.

Voice Warning.

Tempered with the warning that Canadians must continue to bend every effort to winning the war, the Speech placed emphasis on steps to carry the Dominion over the transition from war to peace without suffering, and to bring into operation services designed to end fear of unemployment, ill-health and old age.

The Administration program as outlined in the speeches contemplates useful employment for all willing to work, and standards of nutrition and housing adequate to ensure the health of the whole population.

The speech said the government intends to leave nothing undone to have Canada in a position to meet difficult situations after the war.

The program envisages creation of three government departments with post-war planning—Veterans' Affairs, Reconstruction and Social Welfare.

Proposed revision of the Bank Act will rouse lively debate in view of the money reform proposals supported by the New Democracy (Social Credit) party, and some private members.

The C.C.F., too, is likely to advance suggestions as to how the banks should operate.

The promise of government arrangements for the taking of votes by men and women in the services was a reminder that a general election is probable within a year, officials said.

It probably will be necessary to provide voting facilities to Canadians serving all over the world.

Canadian Corps

This Canadian medium regiment went to Italy with a large contingent which landed last November and is part of the Canadian Corps artillery there.

Ross Munro, Canadian Press correspondent in London, wrote recently it was possible some fresh Canadian infantry and possibly some armored units were engaged in the Arielli fighting.

More New Troops

He also said there was a possibility some new troops from the Maritime Provinces, Central Ontario and Western Canada had arrived on the front to join the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, the Loyal Edmontons and the Seaforth Highlanders, who fought the stern action for Ortona.

Other infantry regiments with the division are:—

Royal Canadian Regiment, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, 48th Highlanders of Canada; Royal 22nd Regiment, Carleton and York Regiment, and West Nova Scotia Regiment.

Allied headquarters has also announced that the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards were taking part in the Italian fighting.

While identity of the Divisional Commanders of the Corps is not given, presumably Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes leads the 1st division. His predecessor, Maj.-Gen. Guy Simonds, who led the 1st in Italy, was transferred to the command of an armored division but there is no information to indicate it is fighting with the Corps.

Spearheaded by the 1st division, which took part in the heavy fighting as the left flank of the 8th Army in the six-weeks campaign leading to the cracking of the Mount Etna line and the occupation of Sicily, the Canadian Corps looks like a tough formation to military circles here.

It was the 1st division that crossed to Italy proper Sept. 3 and began the advance up the Italian Peninsula—again as part of the 8th Army, then in command of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery and now under his successor, Lt. Gen. Sir Oliver Leese.

In the 38-day Sicilian campaign, the Canadians suffered 2,439 casualties while the total for the Italian campaign up to Jan. 18 and including unofficial figures was 2,073.

and Labor.

On Labor Representation

Both reports supported labor's request for representation on Government boards.

On Wages.

The majority report proposed revision of wage-control regulations with the establishment of a floor of 50 cents an hour up to which free bargaining could be carried on. As an alternative, allowances to families with children were suggested. Increases could be authorized to rectify "gross inequalities and injustices" and cost-of-living bonuses should be merged with the base rate or a new bonus instituted from a revised cost-of-living index.

The minority report recommended restriction of wage increases to reward greater productivity, rectify sub-standard or inequitable rates, or in cases justified by manpower needs; removal of restrictions on adjustment of wages up to 50 cents an hour. Payment of the full cost-of-living bonus (then $4.25 a week and since increased to $4.60 for adult workers) to all workers.

On Women In Industry.

The majority report recommended organization of a women's employment board.

The minority report advocated encouragement of employment of women in industry, "to the fullest extent necessary in the interests of production," on a basis of equal pay for equal work.

On Income Tax Deductions.

The majority report proposed "changes in methods of income tax deductions so as to put deductions on a more level basis and dispel the prevailing impression that overtime pay is taxed at unduly heavy rates."

The minority report proposed income tax exemption on overtime pay by order-in-council, also a review of the application of taxes on overtime.

The government has already adopted the main recommendations on wages contained in the majority report. The new wage-control order bases authority for increase on "gross inequalities and injustices" and merges the cost-of-living bonuses workers now are receiving with their basic rate, effective Feb. 15, after which no cost-of-living bonus will be paid.

No action was taken through the wage order to free workers receiving less than 50 cents an hour from wage restrictions; but yesterday the government in the Throne speech at the opening of Parliament proposed family allowances, indicating it was following the alternative proposal of Mr. Justice McTague and Mr. Lalande.

The draft of the new labor relations code now being prepared has not been made public, but it has been the subject of consultations between the Dominion and the Provinces and more recently opinions were sought from labor and employer organizations. Final revisions now are being made.

Most Important Issue

The majority report termed the right of collective bargaining "the most important question involved" in its investigation. Although the right had been recongnzied in a practical way in Canada for 50 years it had been resisted "by far the majority of employers."

At another point the report said: "Labor itself, which is fundamentally sound and loyal, suffers from a good deal of irresponsible leadership. Its total legitimate ends cannot be acquired overnight...A few years from now we venture to predict there will be left little if any unorganized industry."

A satisfactory code of labor relations would have to take cognizance of unnecessary and undesirable tactics on the part of both labor organizers and industry.

"The only solution that we see is to make collective bargaining compulsory under a code providing a set of rules that will be fair to both parties and in the national interest and adminsitered by an umpire who cannot be called into question," the report said.

"Generally speaking we have reached the decision from the evidence that under present war conditions it is in the national interest that such a principle of collective bargaining should be made compulsory. Without going into details any such measure must take into cognizance that the national interest is more important than that of either industry or organized labor."

The report recommended that the code be administered by an independent board whose members had no direct connection as industrialists or as officers of a labor organization.

Both labor and industry appeared prepared to accept compulsory arbitration of disputes, if carried out by an independent body with despatch and fairness.

Labor representation on Government policy-making bodies would counteract misunderstanding and be particularly valuable at a time of lay-offs.

On the subject of wages and the cost-of-living bonuses the majority report mentioned the importance of an education program to inform labor of the Government's price and wage control policy.

The suggestion of merging the cost-of-living bonus with the basic rate was described as "the least harmful answer" to overcoming difficulties that had arisen from the bonus.

In proposing a Women's Employment Board the report referred to a plan in effect in Australia and suggested it be followed. The Commonwealth Board has complete jurisdiction in employment of women.

Flt. Lt. Johnny Johnson of Omemee, Ont., with FO. Jimmy Gibbons of Vancouver as observer, and FO. Johnny Kane of Calgary, with Flt. Sgt. Earl Boal of Regina as observer, shared in the destruction of four Junkers. FO. Al Brown of Winnipeg shot down the seventh enemy plane, a Focke-Wulf, to give Canadian fighters their best day since Dec. 20, when Spitfires destroyed eight German planes.

Johnson's pair brought his total of victims to four and Kane, a comparative newcomer to the squadron, raised his to three.

"There is no question about them being definitely destroyed," MacDonald said. "They went down and poofed. We saw three of them explode and go up in smoke."

Brown thought the "most interesting part of the whole show was the way those Jerries blew in pieces when they hit the deck."

Berlin Fired

the first of last night's bombs fell about 8 p.m., with the full force of the attack concentrated into about a half hour. He said the raid was considered "one of the worst" of the 12 blows but not on the scale of the first attacks.

Berlin radio, making its usual claims that the raid was a "terror attack," said that "great damage was done, especially in residential quarters."

American bombers took over the assault on Hitler's Europe shortly after daybreak, thundering over the general area of the Nazis "Atlantic wall," and U.S. Headquarters said that "a military target in Northern France" had been blasted. The raid, in the same general area where mystery targets have been hit heavily several times in the last six weeks, was the Americans' eighth this month and the second of the week.

The Aftonbladet's correspondent said four-engined Lancasters making last night's attacks feinted in several directions over Heligoland to confuse the German defenders.

Berlin broadcasts confirmed the feint tactics but asserted that neither these moves nor the thick cloud covering over the capital prevented the Nazi fighters from closing in.

Confirming to some extent the belief that the heavy assaults have reached the "mopping up" stage, the Aftonbladet's correspondent said a high percentage of the bombs were strewn among the ruins left in previous attacks, thereby piling up destruction upon destruction.

It was the first time Allied bombers made a concentrated assault upon Berlin since the night of Jan. 20, when they dropped a record 2,300 tons on the city.

In 11 massed assaults which preceded last nght's raid on Berlin more than 16,000 tons of high explosives have fallen on the German capital.

The Berlin attack followed a series of daylight sweeps over Northern France, Belgium and Holland yesterday by British and Canadian airmen, who shot down 10 Nazi fighters. Among their targets was the big steel works at Ijmuiden, Holland.

Suffer Heavy Losses

Heavy losses were exacted yesterday by British troops who met the 29th and took more than 100 prisoners.

The sky tangles in which burning German planes fell at the outskirts of Rome also showed that the Germans were making a desperate bid to seal off the Allied threat to the eternal city.

Meanwhile, captured German prisoners said Hitler had given orders to the 10th Army to hold fast at all costs to the Gustav line on the old front to the south.

Although the Americans were pouring across the Rapido above Cassino in increasing numbers, the Germans introduced a new and dangerous obstacle to their progress by sowing mines in the bottoms of all irrigation ditches which lace the area.

The French, farther to the north, were driven off two hard-won ridges on Mount Belvedere by a German counter-attack. But the French beat off a second thrust and balanced their loss somewhat by making small gains to the southwest of Belvedere.

Along the Garigliano, south of Cassino, British troops also gained, although the battle slackened there somewhat. Allied naval forces supported this sector by shelling German coastal positions near Formia regularly for the past two days and nights.

Only patrol activity marked the 8th Army sector along the Adriatic with the Canadians again making a slight advance.

At the same time, the announcement said, French troops continued their advance on the main 5th Army front several miles north of Cassino, driving forward despite difficult terrain and stiff enemy resistance.

The Germans still are counter-attacking in this sector in an effort to slow the French advance, the bulletin reported.

Between Cassino and the coast American troops west of the Rapido River scaled one mountainous height under heavy fire from the Germans' prepared positions and made progress toward several others.

Allied warships again provided support for the beachhead troops south of Rome, venturing into the Gulf of Gaeta Wednesday night and shelling enemy targets at the point where the Appian Way skirts the shore. Naval anti-aircraft fire shot down a number of enemy planes.

The German air force sent up one of its biggest formations seen in weeks over the Italian battle areas. The formation attacked the beachhead below Rome but Allied defence planes tore into the Germans, strewing the beaches with wreckage.

25 Planes Downed.

Twenty-five enemy planes were downed in this action, it was announced.

This bag, together with enemy losses in the Southern France actions, gave the Allied air force one of its biggest days in this theatre recently.

The day's operations included smashes at communications north of Rome and in the immediate battle zones.

The air fields attacked in France were those at Montpellier, and Istres le Tube and Salon de Provence, near Marseille. Many hits were scored on hangars and dispersal areas, a communique said.

Meanwhile, medium bombers ranged over a wide area of Italy and attacked roads and rail communications at Terni and Orte on communication lines north of Rome, and on Velletri and Colleferro.

The attack on Velletri, an Appian way town about 18 miles from the outskirts of Rome, indicated the Germans were in error or were groping for information when they broadcast that the Allies had occupied that town.

During the day bombs also were dropped at Valmontone, on the Casilian way 30 miles northeast of the invasion beachhead; on Belmonte, on the Atina road six miles north of Cassino, and on Terrelle and Ceccano.

Throughout the day the strategic and tactical air arms flew a total of more than 1,400 sorties.

An announcement from headquarters today said British naval units had attacked a small convoy in the Aegean north of Rhodes, damaging a schooner and forcing the convoy to turn back.

necting with the Leningrad-Pskov railway.

Red Star, ths army newspaper, said the Germans were concentrating remnants of their defeated divisions in the Viritsa sector, indicating that a large force of Germans—probably up to 100,000—had been isolated northwest of Lake Ilmen.

More than 700 towns and villages have been recaptured in the two-week-old drive, an order of the day, signed by Govorov and Andrei Zhdanov, secretary of the Leningrad party committee, said. It added Leningrad was now entirely free from any threat of siege and safe from any further shelling by the enemy, and concluded:

"The offensive of our troops continues."

Moscow, 400 miles to the south, which has been saluting Red Army victories since the start of last summer's Soviet offensive, heard the deep boom of the Leningrad salvoes by radio.

Capture of Volosovo placed Govorov's troops within 39 miles of the Estonian city of Narva. Fifty miles east of Volosovo, Soviet forces stormed into Tosno, eastern terminus of the Narva-Reval railway where it meets the Leningrad-Moscow trunk line 30 miles southeast of Leningrad. Most of the Tosno garrison was killed in the attack, and the remainder threw down their arms, a communique said.

Pushing south, the Russians cleared the Moscow line and the adjoining highway for a distance of 20 miles to the outskirts of Lyuban, where they engaged the Germans in heavy fighting. The Nazis now hold only the 30-mile stretch of the railroad between Lyuban and Volkhovo, and troops of Gen. K. A. Meretskov's Volkhovo army already have flanked that point.

Meretskov's forces pushing west from Lake Ilmen, 100 miles below Leningrad, were within two miles of the Leningrad-Vitebsk railroad at a point 13 miles south of Batetskaya Junction, the war bulletin reported, while other columns swept into Verky Prykhon, eight miles north-west of Shimsk, severing the Shimsk-Pskov highway and jeopardizing German positions in the Staraya Russa salient south of Lake Ilmen The Leningrad-Vitebsk line is the next to last one out of the Leningrad area left to the Germans.

hai police officer who was interned with 300 other Allied nationals there.

"He incurred the displeasure of the Japanese gendarmerie and was taken to their office in another part of town," Eden related.

"When he emerged from the building he was practically out of his mind. His arms and feet were infected where ropes had left deep scars and he had lost 40 pounds weight. He died within a day or two of his release."

He said the hands of a number of Indian soldiers captured in Burma had been tied behind their backs and then the men had been systematically bayonetted from behind—each receiving three bayonet thrusts.

Assailing the "barbarous nature of our Japanese enemies," Eden declared Japan violated not only the principles of international law "but all canons of decent civilized conduct."

No Notice Taken.

Sir John Wardlaw Milne, Conservative, urged that the British and American governments serve notice on Japan that "every atrocity will be remembered" and bring pressure to permit a commission of Spanish, Portuguese and other neutrals to investigate Japanese prison camps.

Replying, Mr. Eden said:

"We have tried every representation we can possibly devise. We have put up every suggestion we can think of...We have been met by a cynical refusal, and the Government feels that there is nothing left to do but make the facts public and hope perhaps that action at long last would bring the Japanese authorities to understand their responsibilities."

WCTU Considers Importance Of Sabbath Day

The Women's Christian Temperance Union of Peterborough held their January meeting in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room, on Thursday afternoon with a fine attendance.

The president, Miss Emma Might, presided, and the Scripture lesson from Gen. 31:43-55 was read by Mrs. Cole, with Mrs. Harold Rehill offering prayer. A solo, "The Peace That my Saviour has Given," sung by Mrs. Routley, was accompanied by Mrs. E. G. Glover.

The Clip Sheet in which several ladies took part, dealt with the question "What is the Attitude of Big Business Toward the Liquor Traffic?" In reply to this question it was found that all Railways are opposed and do not allow employees to drink during working hours, preferably not at all. Insurance Companies, too, are more anxious to accept risks from among those who do not use alcoholic liquors. In war time all big industries are against it because it causes loss of time and efficiency.

Mrs. J. K. Hughes, in a brief talk, spoke of the splendid work of the Gideon's and their distribution of Bibles among sailors and airmen. A spirited discussion followed as to what might be done by the local union at the Training Centre here.

More Respect For Sabbath

Mrs. J. G. Mann, of Bridgenorth, was guest speaker, choosing as her subject, "Law and Sabbath Observance." Taking Isa. 58:13-14 as her text, she stressed the promise of the Lord to those who keep the Sabbath holy. She declared that women, in the home, have a great influence in this respect. Sunday may be either a holy day or a holiday. There are six days for all work, but the seventh is to be kept holy, for rest and worship.

She spoke of juvenile delinquency and its increase, partly due to the fact that many parents are employed in war work and that drinking on the part of these parents is on the increase.

The Men's Temperance Federation annual provincial convention will be held in Toronto February 9 and 10, it was announced.

The Union plans to give War Saving Stamps as prizes to children in the contest for Scientific Temperance in Sunday Schools.

Cigarettes Are Stolen From Service Station

The service station of Jack Ashmore at George and Romaine street was broken into sometime during Wednesday night and some $35 in silver and cigarettes and tobacco to the value of $25 taken.

The break-in was effected through a small window at the back of the premises. The intruder had broken out the panes of glass in the window and entered and left the place by that opening. The cigarettes were taken from the show-cases while the money was carried off in the drawer of the cash register.

The drawer, minus its contents, was found later on Crescent street.

Milk Producers Ask For License Law

TORONTO, Jan. 28 (CP)—Recommendation that the Ontario Milk Control Act be amended to provide for the licensing of milk producers and the collection of licence fees was included in decisions reached by the Ontario Agricultural Commission of Inquiry. A summary of proceedings was issued today by the agriculture department.

Amount of the licence fees would be determined by local producers' associations for their respective markets, the commission agreed, and the money collected paid over by the distributors and processors to the provincial body representative of the milk producers, which would be responsible for permitting the proper share to the local producer associations.

The commission's recommendation ruled that the associations use the monies "for their legitimate expenses and for the maintenance of services of benefit to the producers." Such services would not include the creation of capital funds to be used for business enterprises.

A proposed scheme of hog marketing under the farm products control act was not endorsed. The commission recommended that the plan be redrafted by its sponsors, the Ontario Hog Producers' Association, to meet the commission's objections that:

1. It proposes to regulate the marketing of hogs but does not set forth any specific regulation for that purpose.

2 It proposes to establish prices for live hogs and hog carcases by negotiation, although the effective control of prices for hogs is largely beyond the powers of action of a provincial body.

3 The proposal fails to effect such control of prices as rests within the powers of a provincial body by failure to provide specific regulaitons for directing the movement of hogs to market.

The commission will begin another week's session here February 14. In the meantime its livestock committee is sitting today at Clinton, tomorrow at Chatham and Saturday at London.

Toronto Auditor Dies In Cobourg

PORT HOPE, Jan. 28—(ENS)—Stricken with a heart attack in a hotel room some time after registering on Tuesday night, M. A. Young, well-known municipal auditor of Toronto, was found dead on Wednesday afternoon. He is being buried in Port Hope today in the Union Cemetery, the funeral service to be conducted by Rev. J. M. Crisall of St. John's Anglican Church.

Mr. Young was born in England, 64 years ago, and has no next of kin in this country. As he is well known in Port Hope, his partner, J. Connelley of Toronto, decided that he would perhaps have preferred to be buried here. Mr. Young registered at a hotel here on Tuesday night and told the clerk that he wanted to be called at 7:45 the following morning, and that he was expecting Mr. Connelley. Mr. Connelley did not arrive that night and when Mr. Young did not respond to the call in the morning it was thought that he had decided to sleep in. Early in the afternoon, the manager unlocked his room door and found Mr. Young dead. Coroner Dr. F. W. Diamond was called and found that death had been due to heart disease. No inquest will be held.

Obituary

AGNES GOVAN

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 28 (ENS)—Funeral services for the late Agnes Govan, 79, a native of Seymour township were held here yesterday afternoon. A daughter of the later Walter Govan and Lilly Clark the deceased lady spent her entire life in this vicnity. The late Miss Govan lived with her brother Andrew in Seymour until fifteen years ago when they moved to Campbellford. She was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and in years past had maintained a keen interest in the various women's organizations.

In failing health for some time Miss Govan was removed to Belleville hospital on January 12 following a fall at her home which caused her to fracture her hip. The shock and effects of this accident hastened her end which occurred on Monday evening. She is survived by her brother, Mr. Andrew Govan of town. The funeral service was conducted from her late residence on Booth street by Rev. J. O. Ralston and interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Thomas Campbell, Thomas Hay, Walter Badgley, John S. Wallace, Ray McCulloch, Robert McCulloch. Flower bearers were Thomas Mahoney, John Campbell, Ernest Fairman, Neil Hooper and Charles McArthur.

Cheese Output Down 30,000 Lbs.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 28. — (ENS).— Production at Harold Cheese and Butter Company dropped thirty thousand pounds to 180.182 during the past season according to the statement presented at the annual patrons' meeting held Wednesday afternoon when Charles Mumby who has been president of the company for the past 26 years announced his retirement.

In spite of the decreased make, it had been a successful year so far as the 32 patrons of the company were concerned for the plant built only five years ago was $1,000 closer to being clear of debt. All current obligations, including the construction of a well last summer, had been met. Retiring President Mumby pointed with pride to the fact that the factory would be completely paid by the eid of 1945.

Secretary Treasurer W. H. Heath reviewed the year's statement which showed a total of 2,193,570 pounds of milk had been delivered to Cheesemaker Roy Brown who had turned out 180,182 pounds of cheese for an average of 1 pound for every 12.17 of milk. Fat totalled 69,353. giving an average of 2.59 pounds of cheese per pound of fat. Returns from the sale of cheese amounted to $36,026.08 plus provincial subsidy amounting to $3,603.50; quality premiums of $3,775.36 and milk subsidies of $848.48. This averaged out at 55.89 cents per pound fat paid to patrons. Grading returns gave the company 273 95's; 1,251 94's; 226 93's; 179 92's; 85 undergrades.

It was pointed out the undergrade figure was considerably above anything Mr. Brown had ever had in the past and the reason for this was failure of the mechanical refrigeration unit during part of the season. In consideration of his former splendid record patrons voted to reimburse the maker for his loss which had gone beyond his guarantee of first grade cheese.

Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray, who was a guest at the meeting commended the company on its season's work and revealed their average score for 1943 had been 93.6. He touched on a number of matters of interest to the industry. John Bell. president of the Hastings County Producers' Association was also a guest at the meeting and outlined some of the Association's activities during the past year. Other speakers were J. Johnston of the Bank of Montreal, Stitrling; George E. Thompson, president of the Springbrook factory and Ernest Searles of Enterprise factory.

The following officers were elected for 1944: President, Gordon Bailey; secretary-treasurer, W. H. Heath; auditor, Percy Wray; directors, W. J. Tanner, Kenneth Mumby, Mowat Sine, Albert Cook, Clarence Reynolds and Theodore Cooney.

240,134 Dozen Eggs Sold By Circle

CAMPBELLFORD Jan. 28(ENS) Once again the districts oldest farmer's co-operative the English Line Egg Circle chalked up a record year by increasing the number of eggs handled by 13.2 per cent and increasing gross receipts up nearly $19,000. to $85,514.98. It had been an outstanding year for the Company, which had begun 27 years ago with a handful of members that had now grown to close to 150—in fact the Circle had extended so vastly during the past few years that there was now talk of moving into larger quarters.

Manager Andrew Milne's annual report was highlighted by fact that operational costs of handling grading and overhead amounted to only 7.37 per cent. The patrons actually got a total of $79,258.18 for their eggs after all expenses had been paid, and this represented payment on 240,134 dozen eggs. The heavy demand for eggs had proved profitable to the producer in more ways than one according to his statement since more cases had been exchanged than bought thus resulting in a saving in this item of about $600.-00 while even more impressive was the reduction on express and brokerage to Montreal agents amounting to over $1,600.00. Mr. Milne said this was due to increased demand resulting in more eggs being picked up 'at the door' of the grading station, by trucks.

A review of the year's returns disclosed that of a total of 240,134 dozen candled they had been graded as follows—

A. large—150,141—8; A. Medium. 43,098—1; A. Pullet, 17,087—2; B's—17,898; C's—622—7; Pewees—228—;8 Crax, 4,649; Leakers, 342—6; Spots, 6,067—2. Following presentation of the statement President William McKelvie expressed his thanks to the Manager and to the Executive ofr their co-operation during the year.

Objectives Outlined

Agriculture Representative R. C. Banbury, who was a guest at the meeting gave an interesting address on matters relating to the industry and told of some of the objectives set by the Government for the current year. He pointed out that the average farmer was interested in many phases of Agriculture but was not too interested in organization "despite the fact that organization is being thrust upon you from all sides". The farmer was finding himself working in an age when nearly every group was organized, and as a consequence he would be at a disadvantage if he did not follow suit.

In so far as the poultry business was concerned the production requirements had been set ten per cent above 1943 levels at 367.5 million dozen and the quota for poultry meat had been increased by the same amount. With these things in view Mr. Banbury felt the prospect for the chicken farmer never looked brighter.

Though he saw no hope of any over production till the war was over Mr. Banbury expressed the view that competition would be very keen in the post-war era.

The speaker gave many suggestions on the care and management of flocks and issued a strong warning against over-crowding. In his opinion if the cows in Northumberland County were looked after as wel as the chickens, cheese, butter production could be increased fifty per cent.

The following officers were elected for 1944—President, William McKelvie; Vice President, M. McKeown; Secretary Mrs. Alex. Stephens; Directors, Mrs. W. C. Todd, Mrs. Marshall Longmuir, Earl Godden, Ray McCulloch, F. A. Burgar.

Lack Of Snow Is Injuring Wheat

COBOURG, Jan. 28— (ENS) — Lack of snow is being viewed with alarm by old-timers as it offers protection to wheat and new seeding, commented R. C. Banbury, Northumberland County Agricultural representative in discussing the effect of the unusually mild January weather on crops. The fact that the ground is very dry has considerable influence. With the peculiar combination, however, little trouble can result from frost as it is the water that expands in freezing and breaks roots. Dozens of Northumberland County farmers find their wells dry, necessitating the driving of cattle or drawing in water. In the matter of cereal seeds considerable good grain is coming to light and being offered for sale in this county.

Post-War Needs Are Discussed By Campbellford Citizens

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 28. — (ENS).— Campbellford's post war needs got their initial planning here last night at a well attended meeting held in the council chambers of the Public Library. Mayor Frank Long called the meeting. Members of the Legion felt an effort should be made to enlist government support for the building of an airport and this was one of the times which came up for the discussion during the evening. Mayor Long, who presided, expressed the view that a water storage system, town hall and memorial park were items which should be given primary consideration however, the first item to be dealt with was the formation of a strong committee and executive. Acting on this suggestion members chose the Mayor as president, Alex MacColl as vice-president and A. D. Bennett as 2nd vice-president of the committee. The naming of directors was left with these members of the executive who on motion will bring in a slate of names from which the directors may be chosen at the next meeting to be held at the call of the president.

Miss Elsie MacDonald contributed a vocal solo to the program. During the business plans for holding a Valentine social in connection with their meeting on February 12 were left with the executive.

Comic Strip Psychology

Psychologists are often represented in the comic strips—those mirrors of popular opinion—as crazed fellows whose grip on reality is scarcely more than that of the lunatics whom they are popularly supposed to study. This is unjust; we have known many psychologists who were men of admirable balance and more than ordinary wisdom, and we wish that there were more psychologists of this kind in Canada. But there is some justification for the comic strip idea, at that.

Consider the remarkable statement of Dr. W. E. Blatz, the director of the School of Child Studies at Toronto University, which he made in speaking to the Optimist Club of that city; he is reported to have said that Canada has 350,000 potential geniuses, and an equal number of people who will have to be looked after for the rest of their lives. We will not dispute the latter part of the statement, because we know nothing about the matter, but we deny flatly that Canada has 350,000 potential geniuses. In fact, we shall go farther and say that the recorded history of mankind does not contain 350,000 geniuses of the first order.

What is a genius? Ambrose Bierce summed up the matter well when he said that the prerogatives of genius were to know without having learned, to draw just conclusions from unknown premises, and to discern the soul of things. Genius always has about it a hint of what is magical, for so many of the conclusions of men of genius seem to be reached by intuitive, rather than by reasoned thinking. Does Dr. Blatz really think that there are 350,000 children in this country who might develop into these rare beings? We might count ourselves rich indeed, and the fame of our country assured forever, if we could count on the appearance of 35 during the next fifty years. If Canada had 35 men of genius now, we should have a Golden Age in Canada.

It is only possible to conclude that Dr. Blatz uses the word 'genius' in some special sense of his own. Perhaps he calls anyone a genius who has a little more than ordinary common sense. Perhaps he relies on those comic-strip devices, "intelligence tests", for measuring potential genius. We have had opportunities to observe children who have scored "genius ratings" on intelligence tests, and although some of them were uncommonly sharp in a superficial way, we will bet any money that they will never make more than a very ordinary mark in the world. Genius is not to be measured by such trivial means.

We disagree with Dr. Blatz's idea that our educational system should be revised to take care of our 350,000 geniuses. Education is not much use to a genius; he educates himself. Men who show great abilities in later life rarely fit into any sort of educational system, and are often either unhappy, or idle at school. A school designed for a genius would be quite unsuitable for an ordinary child, and we think that the genius would find it useless to himself. The best way to treat a genius is to leave him alone to find his own way in the world. If his abilities are really of the finest kind, he will find an outlet for them, however hard his path may be made by people of mediocre understanding.

Has Canada ever produced one undoubted genius? Offhand we cannot think of more than three Canadians who might have a claim to such a title. The idea that there are 350,000 of them ready to spring upon us is incredible. In fact, it is a comic strip idea.

A Formidable Warship

The most formidable warship in the world, the U.S.S. Missouri, a 45,000-ton vessel, will be launched in the New York Navy Yard on Saturday, and present plans call for the completion of the ship at least nine months ahead of schedule.

The construction of the Missouri was authorized in May, 1939, and her keel was laid in January, 1941. She is a sister ship of the U.S.S. Iowa, which was launched last August.

Building of ships this size is no small task and they usually take years to complete. This is why the increasing of the capital ship strength of a navy is such a slow job. Our armies and our air forces can be doubled in strength in a comparatively short time. The equipment can be made ready before the men are completely trained, but the same is not so of the navy.

This modern sea monster, just to give an idea of her size and the amount of material that will go into her, has an overall length of 880 feet, only 149 feet less than the U.S.S. Lafayette, formerly the Normandie. At sea the Missouri will displace enough water to flood forty-six acres of land, and into the construction of the ship went 4,300,000 feet of welding and 1,135,000 rivets. The piping would stretch from Peterborough to Toronto. Seventeen miles of tubing will be used for air-conditioning and refrigeration. Control is by 15,000 valves.

The vessel's total cost is estimated unofficially at more than $100,000,000 and according to the Navy 3,300,000 man-days of work were required to build the Missouri and blueprints alone used up 175 tons of paper. Although wartime usage calls for less paint on battle craft than in peacetime, 312,000 pounds of paint will go on the ship.

The deck and platform area is 418,000 square feet, the same as that of a 15-story office building 150 feet square. Nine hundred motors will receive current from the ship's wiring system, which is 1,700 miles long.

Truly a sea monster is this U.S.S. Missouri.

A Peterborough Musician

Many citizens of Peterborough will be sorry to read of the death of Rupert Gliddon, who lived in this city for some years, and founded an excellent Conservatory of Music. Mr. Gliddon and his wife did much to enlarge the musical interests of Peterborough during their stay here; under his baton the 57th Regiment Band reached a high standard of musicianship and gave concerts not only in this district but in Toronto at the Canadian National Exhibition; at the Conservatory Mr. Gliddon built up a small orchestra, and gave several series of 'twilight concerts' which gave Peterborough people an opportunity of hearing a great deal of good music very acceptably performed. The Conservatory, indeed, was an artistic centre of a kind which is now lacking in the city, and our community life is poorer in that respect than it used to be.

The contribution which men like Rupert Gliddon make to the life of a small city can be very great; they encourage those things which raise life above mere drudgery, they provide rational recreation for the young, and solace and entertainment for the old. They show the way to contentment and pleasure through self-expression. They must be placed high on the list of those who make a city a good place to live in, and it is always a pity when, for one reason or another, their work declines and no one comes forward to take the place they have vacated.

The Canadian Almanac

Once again we have received our copy of The Canadian Almanac; it is probably Canada's best-selling book and it has been appearing annually for ninety-seven years. It is doubtful if a newspaper could function successfully without a copy. Last year some unprincipled wretch stole our copy about March, and we felt the drag for the succeeding nine months; if readers noticed any gross inaccuracies relating to Canada in our writings during that period, they must attribute them to our mishap in the early spring.

If there is anyone who is unfamiliar with the Almanac and who is thinking of buying a copy, we hope that he will not do so under the impression that he is acquiring also a dream book, an herbal, a manual of first-aid or information on how to predict the future from moles on the body; it is a strictly factual and businesslike volume, dealing with Dominion and Provincial governments, war boards, the judiciary and legal matters, banks and trusts, post offices and postal rates, railways and railway stations, national defence, the calendar in all its phases, religious societies, the British Commonwealth, the Royal Family, newspapers and periodicals, populations, educational institutions, libraries and museums, patents, succession duties, and fixed and moveable festivals and anniversaries, among other things.

Compared with our ancestors of a century ago, we are remarkably rich these days in authoritative books of reference, which make many phases of our daily work easy and accurate. Certainly in this Dominion it is almost impossible to get along without the Almanac.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Reform For The Commons
(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

BLINKING their eyes against the rising sun and muttering imprecations against what seemed a silly system, members of the House many times in the feverish days of 1926 left Parliament Hill from an afternoon and an all-night sitting. True, vital issues were before the legislators, and Premier King was able to convince a lot of electors that the nation was headed straight for the constitutional bow wows.

And on many occasions before that year Commoners spent exhausting days and nights in the Chamber. Take 1913 during the historic naval debate when a single sitting of the House occupied two weeks, no adjournment until 15 days after the sitting began, and not long before adjournment came the closure on the Liberal filibuster.

THEN, in these modern days with many lessons learned, with public opinion pretty solidly crystallized against avoidable waste of time and effort and money in the House of Commons, there is the spectacle of the end of every session of legislators sitting morning, afternoon and night to complete the sessional program within an agreed period. And members can be heard protesting both privately and in the House against a system that requires them to do their hardest, most trying business in the hottest days and nights. They repeatedly say that it will never happen again, but it just keeps on happening.

It cannot be argued, however, that parliament is incapable of reforming itself. The records of the House will disclose steady changes in the rules in the past thirty years. When a condition gets bad enough the rules are altered to supply a remedy. The all-night sitting nonsense was ended in the very session after 1926. A special committee got busy and inserted the eleven-o'clock rule requiring that unless there was an urgent need and unanimous consent the House, members could not be required to sit after eleven in the evening. This rule has been suspended many times but only to meet unusual circumstances and, of course, by unanimous consent.

There is also the "40-minute rule," the provision against a private member exceeding 40 minutes. It excludes, of course, the various leaders, Cabinet Ministers when dealing with major matters, but there are ways of circumventing this rule, and it is often done by a few legislators whose single ambition seems to be to occupy pages of Hansard.

ONE of the most prolific sources of parliamentary tangles is the multiplication of political groups, but for this the electors, the taxpayers themselves, are chiefly responsible. For some reason or other Canada hasn't been able to adhere to the two-party system as is apparently the case in the United States, but the word "apparently" is employed with purpose, for at Washington, while there seem to be only two political parties, these parties are subject to all sorts of pressure from almost countless "blocs"—the farm bloc, the prohibition bloc, the anti-subsidy bloc—and sometimes the pressure is so heavy that normal party lines are almost obliterated or fused. Here the blocs contest as blocs and get elected. The Socialist bloc, the Social Credit bloc, the Bloc Populaire are all the results of local or sectional or provincial pressure, but their identity as elected groups is established.

The insistence of the smaller groups upon recognition equal to that of the major parties does stand in the way of transacting the nation's business with neatness and despatch. Moreover, it so happens that these small groups are the radical groups, the protesting, the recalcitrant groups, and they by tradition and temper are apt to protest longest and loudest against any measure or rule amendment designed to save time and money. They would probably brand such moves as attempts at curtailing free speech. And how they would declaim against the application of closure.

There are really six groups in the House—Liberals, Progressive Conservatives, the C.C.F., the Social Credit members from Alberta, the Bloc Populaire, and a small rival group from Quebec whose political identity might be easily questioned. No matter what is before the House, whether it be the budget or a war appropriation or a question of privilege or an insignificant item in the estimates, members of all groups get to their feet. To the members themselves the result probably seems worth while, the exercise of an indefeasible right, but to those who have to pay the bills it is often difficult to supply a convincing justification.

MOST members will agree that too much time of the House is consumed by discussion of the estimates, the expenditure program for the next fiscal year. Tedious days and nights are spent on these, and too often they are left to the end of the session, most frequently because of the priority of war business but sometimes through the craftiness of a government which may want to confront an exhausted House with some project of doubtful value.

It has many times been urged that many, if not all the estimates should be scrutinized by a special committee or by a number of special committees. The latest and most feasible proposal, most of it originating with the present almost indispensable Chief Clerk of the House, is that estimates be referred to the appropriate standing committees of the House—agriculture items to the standing committee on agriculture, labour to the committee dealing with labour matters, railway items to committee on railways and canals, financial items, such as those related to war loans, to the committee on banking and commerce—and that estimates of a general nature be left to the committee of supply of the whole House.

This is regarded as an exceedingly useful proposal and there is little doubt that when parliament gets around to it this apparently constructive suggestion for obviating much of the tedious and needless House discussion of a long list of small items of expenditure will be adopted. There would, of course, be always reserved the right to reopen any small or large item when the committee report was returned to the House itself.

BUT this along with any other worth while changes in the rules could only be introduced at the first session of a new parliament, if there was to be any hope of having them adopted and applied. This will be the last session of this parliament, a pre-election session, and the Opposition groups will demand the fullest latitude, the largest facilities for assailing the government position by way of motions of non-confidence on the moves to go into committee of supply. If such moves were greatly curtailed by adoption of the suggested plan of referring them to standing committees, government critics would probably be handicapped. But the changes could be made next session and by the time another election came the various political groups would be reconciled to the changes.

Halifax Proposes Closer Partnership
(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

ADDRESSING the Toronto Board of Trade Monday night, Lord Halifax advocated a more closely united British Commonwealth of Nations, particularly in the functional fields of foreign policy and defence. His speech was very favorably received by a section of the press of Britain, which almost unanimously echoed his hope. We doubt if the press of this country will give its approval in the same spontaneous manner. It is more likely that the proposal will receive careful study and debate before a decision is reached.

The proposal is not new, but it receives added prestige when presented by Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States. It is practically certain that the proposal, coming from such a source, has the support of the British Government. The plan which Lord Halifax outlined in broad principle may be a logical step in the development of the British Empire. Time was when His Majesty's Government at Westminster legislated for all parts of the Empire, and the foreign policy decided upon by that government was certainly the foreign policy of the Empire. In more recent years, the self-governing Dominions of what is now termed the British Commonwealth of Nations, have very largely decided their own foreign policy, and the British Government has determined the foreign policy of Great Britain. It would be foolish to argue that the foreign policy of Great Britain has not influenced, in a very large measure, the foreign policy of the component Dominions of the Commonwealth. By the same token, the policy of the various Dominions has, doubtless, had some effect on the course pursued by Great Britain.

All this has been accomplished in a very informal way. Whether the results have been all that could be desired, is a matter for debate and for the perspective of history.

Now Lord Halifax, apparently speaking for the British Government, proposes that the foreign policy of the Empire should be determined by formal consultation between the self-governing Dominions and the Mother Country, and that concerted action be taken on the basis of this consultation. It can be seen at once that there are some advantages in such a plan. It can also be seen that Great Britain and the Dominions would each have to yield some portion of their sovereign rights in order to accomplish this empire solidarity of foreign policy. Apparently the British Government is willing to make this sacrifice, and it must be pointed out that this is a tremendous development from the days of George III, whose government, by its high-handed and autocratic measures, lost the thirteen colonies of North America which were later to develop into the United States. The question now arises whether the people of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Eire are willing to make a like sacrifice. The component parts of the British Commonwealth are widely separated geographically, and almost as widely separated economically. Can one foreign policy be made that will fit all the diversified conditions of geography, economics and race met in the British Empire?

As we are more familiar with the case of Canada, let us look at that for a moment. This Dominion is bound to the Empire by ties of tradition and blood, but its economic future is closely knit with that of the United States, and the cultural development of Canada is more largely influenced by the United States than it is by Great Britain. It would seem very essential for this Dominion to keep its foreign policy in line with that of its powerful neighbour. Also, in this Dominion, we have a large bloc of population, the French-Canadians, who do not share all the Anglo-Saxon's enthusiasm for things British. Doubtless, similar special considerations arise in every one of the British Dominions. We sincerely thank Lord Halifax for presenting this vital question in such a way, and no doubt it will be one of the foremost topics for debate throughout the Empire during the next few years.

Post-War Military Service
(NEW YORK TIMES)

IN his radio broadcast last night from Cleveland Secretary Knox must certainly have spoken for the great majority of his fellow-countrymen when he said that if there is any one theory which has been thoroughly exploded by events it is the theory that military preparedness makes war. Today we are fighting the greatest war in history for one chief reason, because our obvious unpreparedness for war encouraged reckless nations to embark on policies which in the end made war inevitable.

Secretary Knox would prevent a repetition of this story by keeping America strongly armed when the present war is over. To that end he would introduce a system of post-war compulsory military training under which "every American boy, when he attains the age of 17 or 18, shall be required to spend at least one year in training on land, or at sea, against the possibility that some time, in his younger manhood, his services may be required to help protect the country." He believes that this is an essential condition of American security, and he believes that the year's service with the armed forces can be used profitably to give the boys themselves incidental training in one or more skills or crafts which will be useful to them in later years. Moreover, he thinks that the time to initiate action on such a program is now, rather than when the war ends.

This newspaper has many times expressed the opinion that some such system of military training and service will be necessary, at least for a period of some years after the war ends. The United States will be one of the great nations in any new organization established for the purpose of keeping the peace which we now fight to win. On us will rest the moral responsibility of maintaining a large enough Army and Navy to help give strength and authority to such an organization. For this purpose we shall need many more young men for our armed services than were ever recruited in times of peace by voluntary methods of enlistment.

From every point of view it seems best to provide these men by the same democratic method of universal liability to service upon which we have relied in the emergency of war. It is equally wise to make our plans for such service now, well ahead of time, so that the soldiers who are already in the field will have positive assurance that new and younger men will take their places, in such post-war duties as the occupation of overseas outposts and strategic areas, and so that the younger men themselves will have a clear view of the responsibilities which their country will expect them to assume.

Versatility of Glass

The necessity of finding substitutes for scarce materials has led to so many new developments in the use of glass that this offspring of sand hardly knows itself now.

Glass foam is pinch-hitting for cork as an insulator and may prove to be superior to cork in life preservers.

Glass sutures are used instead of silk for some surgical work.

Glass that can be sawed and milled like lumber is being developed for use in post-war homes.—New York Herald Tribune.

The Comrades

Whatever the Soviet Union has done or will do in the war does not elevate our regard for the domestic breed of Communists, who have shown themselves in the past quite prepared to knife their country in the back and overturn the established order in times of critical emergency to install a revolutionary dictatorship.—Montreal Gazette.

A Bible Message

Then one of them, which was a lawyer, asked him a question, tempting him, and saying, Master, which is the great commandment in the law?

Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment.

And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets. (Matt. 22: 35-40.)

Owe no man any thing, but to love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law. For this, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Thou shalt not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this saying, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law. (Rom. 13: 8-10.)

Letters To The Editor

WAS BLATCHFORD AN ATHEIST?

Sir,—I was very interested in your article on Robert Blatchford, before I came to Canada fifteen years ago, I was his next door neighbour. You say he was an atheist, "or said to be one." I never heard that said before, but no matter what he professed to be, he certainly did not act as an atheist. The whole front of his house was hidden from the street by straggling fir trees (in fact the house was named "The Firs"), and a strip of wild garden with lilacs, primroses, bluebells, and any wild flower that took the notion to grow. The gardener was never allowed to touch this part; it grew naturally, and Robert Blatchford called it God's garden.

Was he an atheist? He was a grand old gentleman, anyway.—Sincerely,

DORIS WHALON.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Blatchford was an atheist, but that would not make him a lawless or disagreeable man. In the words of the Rev. C. J. Shebbeare (lecturer in comparative religion at Oxford 1924-6) "We are disposed to recognize today that a truly religious frame of mind, and further even an attitude of worship toward Christ, are compatible with a denial, or at least a doubt, of the ordinary theistic beliefs."

LOCAL VOTERS NOT STUPID

Sir,—Recently a gentleman wrote to your columns expressing the view that municipal elections are unimportant. He stated further that Peterborough voters are not conversant with the political trend of today and are about thirty years behind the times. In other words the fellow believes that there are not enough C.C.F.-ers in our small town.

Well, we would say to this man, Mr. Editor, and to any other partners he may have in misery that even if Peterborough is an old Conservative stronghold, as he states, we don't guess the folks here are any different on the average than in any other city in the Dominion. It is true that only a small percentage of voters turned out for the recent municipal elections, but this tendency is not confined to Peterborough alone. People are not turning out to vote in recent years as they should. Compulsory voting is, of course, the solution.

The reason for the big C.C.F. vote in the Ontario election was because the people had waited for some time to crucify the old Hepburn ministry and they made a beautiful job of it.

With the Liberal party hitting the skids the C.C.F. polled many votes in Ontario last year since a good percentage of die-hard Liberals hating to aid the Conservative cause and figuring anything was superior to the Liberal humbug, gave the C.C.F. a boost, knowing full well that the latter would ultimately get nowhere, anyway. Neither of the older parties are perfect of course, so naturally a little scare once in a while serves as a good stimulus. Hence the C.C.F. bogey.

No government can bring about any lasting economic change for the better, to a much greater degree than we have at the present time, unless a change is wrought in the heart of man himself. If that should take place, we would have some kind of Utopia where all men would be content.

Let us hope, therefore, and pray that in future years, events will so transpire that much of the sting will be taken from Burns' immortal words when he thus sums up the true cause of all man's ills in the two lines—

"Man's inhumanity to man Makes countless ages mourn."

FREDERICK W. M. MAYBEE.

It Gripes The Tommies

From a letter by any American soldier in Africa: "It gave me a funny feeling to see some newsreels of the Tunisian war and to be sitting next to men who had fought in the same campaign. There were also many photos of and praise of guys like Eisenhower, Patton, etc., with no pictures or comment on Alexander, Montgomery, etc., who everybody over here knows were responsible for the entire victory practically. It sort of gripes the Tommies, and I don't blame them a bit."—Nation, N.Y.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

A spokesman at Ottawa of the Royal Canadian Air Force declared last night participation by Air Force teams or personnel in all forms of sport had been prohibited where competition entailed travel or absence from routine duties. The order applied to basketball, football, baseball and other sports as well as hockey which was first affected in the application of the order effective January 6. The intimation was given that the ban also affected athletic engagements of the other branches of the armed forces insofar as it concerned the conflict between organized athletics and military training.

Casey Stengel, in a letter to President Bob Quinn of the Boston Braves, last night announced his resignation as manager of the National League team, giving as his reason that he did not wish to embarrass the new group of stockholders who had taken over control of the club.

President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday told sports writers who were inspecting the club's training quarters at Bear Mountain, N.Y., his veteran second baseman, Billy Herman, had been re-classified 1-A by the Draft Board, and he took the view major league clubs could get along with 17 players each if necessary.

A Los Angeles committee yesterday decided to apply to the International Olympic Committee at Lausanne, Switzerland, for permission to stage the 1948 Olympiad at the Pacific Coast city. Decision was reached after the Californians had conferred with President Avery Brundage of the American Olympic Committee.

Pitcher Johnny Vander Meer of the Cincinnati Reds yesterday was inducted into the United States Navy at Newark, N.J., after undergoing three days of medical examination.

Clarence Rowland, recently elected president of the Pacific Coast Baseball League for 10 years, was yesterday succeeded as head of the Los Angeles Club by Don Stewart, former business manager of the Milwaukee Brewers in the American Association.

Army Calls McSpaden.

Harold (Jug) McSpaden, recent winner of the $12,500 Los Angeles open golf tournament, yesterday was notified to report to the Philadelphia Board February 10 for Army examination. Former Naval Academy fullback and recently captain of a submarine in the Pacific, Cmdr. Oscar E. (Swede) Hagberg yesterday was ordered to report for duty at Annapolis for presumed appointment as coach of the Navy football team.

Following to-night's lightweight 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden, New York, between Sammy Angott and Beau Jack, the New York Boxing Commission will call together their managers, as well as the handler of Philadelphia Bob Montgomery, to discuss a solution for the lightweight championship tangle.

Transports who had a bye last week return to the basketball wars tonight in the weekly double-header in the Ladies' League at the Y.W.C.A. and the league leaders will endeavor to maintain their winning streak with a victory over the C.G.E. Generals. The latter however need a win to pull them up closer to the second-slot occupants, St. John's and so Mary McPherson and her teammates will be battling all the way around the track in an effort to hand Transports their first defeat of the season. If the C.G.E. team can play back to the form they showed in their last start they will provide the top team with plenty of opposition. At all eventually should make it an interesting game. In the second fixture on the double bill Normalites who have at last broken into the win column will endeavor to pick up triumph No. 2 by taking a fall out of the second place St. John's outfit who have consistently been beating everybody but the Transports. This game is scheduled to start at 8.45 o'clock while the Transport-Generals fixture is billed to get under way at 7.45.

Going To Be O.K.

With Charlie Keller of the Yanks already in the army and Rudy York of the Tigers and Johnny VanderMeer of the Cincinnati Reds soon to be inducted and a flock more of name players almost certain to be drafted before the ball season opens a lot of folks are gloomy about the outlook. However, Doug Vaughan, sports columnist of the Windsor Star is not one of them. Everything is going to be O.K. he opines in the following article: 'Some of the big-wigs of major league baseball are viewing the 1944 season with a pessimistic eye. Others are hopeful that things will work out all right while some are even optimistic. Baseball today is in about the same boat as was hockey two years ago when the National League clubs started losing their high class performers—their drawing cards, many panicky promoters said. At that time you were reading the same kind of stories about what was going to happen to hockey as you are reading today concerning the fate of baseball. Many a manager who lost a number of players said that he was sure professional hockey was through until after the war. But, after recovering from the first shock, he took a look around and discovered that there was still playing material to be found. True, most of it was far cry from the talent to which he had been accustomed. But at least the most of them could skate. And so hockey carried on—and is still carrying on. To the delighted surprise of the pessimists of two years ago, the fans are turning out in even increased numbers. All of which just goes to prove that it is competition and not necessarily calibre of material in which John Public is interested."

* * * * * *

"We believe that it will be the same with baseball," continues Bre'er Vaughan. "Sure your diamond stars of yester-year are being absorbed by the armed services of the U.S. like a sponge soaks up water. You won't be able to thrill next summer to the sight of Rudy York hitting a homerun or Joe Gordon making a spectacular fielding play. But you will still have Joe (Bad Knee) Potatoes to dribble a single through the infield and Oscar (Busted Ear Drum) Zulch to stumble around out near second base. Watching Potatoes and Zulch, you'll probably every now and then give a fleeting thought to the DiMaggios and Yorks and Greenbergs who, temporarily, are not around any more. And just about the time that nostalgic feeling begins to grip you Zulch will dribble that single of his through the infield to win the game and you'll rise with the rest and cheer. It will be baseball—not the baseball you used to know but still baseball—and you'll love it."

A Bouquet For Soup

Even before the 21-3 debacle of the other night Chick Appel of the Stratford Beacon-Herald and George Campbell of the Oshawa Times-Gazette were feuding. For example the Stratford scribe under the heading 'Alphabet Soup' hands the Oshawa hockey publicist the following jab: "Continuing with another item gleaned through a perusal of exchanges, it's noted where "Soup" Campbell, mouthpiece for the Oshawa Generals, takes a rap at Stratford Kroehlers for trading a player for "Zip" Thompson of Young Rangers as a replacement for the injured Enio Sclisizzi. That guy never seems to get his dope straight, and in view of the long time he has been connected with junior hockey he is the "wrongest" guy in the field. If it is of any assistance to "Soup," it might be mentioned that Stratford Kroehlers did not secure "Zip" Thompson in a swap for another player, nor did they sign him as a replacement, for the injured Sclisizzi. Briefly, Thompson was signed as a military replacement, and more will be signed for the same reason the minute the Stratford management find the boys they want."

Montreal Canadiens still remain unbeaten at home this season but the Maple Leafs tossed a real scare into the Montreal camp last night by holding the Flying Frenchmen to a 2-2 tie and forcing them to come from behind twice to sew up the count. Leafs got the only goal in the first period with Babe Pratt doing the firing, Montreal evened it with a goal by Lach early in the second session but Lorne Carr put the Leafs in front with a marker by Lorne Carr and Toronto remained in front until O'Connor squared accounts with the only counter of the last period. Meanwhile at Chicago the New York Rangers were beaten 6 to 4 by the Black Hawks who broke a 4-4 tie with two third-period goals to take the decision.

Bracken Wins

QUEBEC, Jan. 28—(CP). — The weatherman disrupted natural ice play yesterday in Quebec's international curling bonspiel and the "brithers" adopted an emergency 24-hour schedule to end the four-day competition by Saturday, as planned.

John Bracken, the Progressive-Conservative leader, skipped his Winnipeg rink to its third victory in matches for the Holt-Renfrew trophy.

Old Timers Hit 3525 Pins; Beat Machinists

Tom Curvin's Old Timers hit a 3524 team score including 1347 for their middle game to set the pace in the Men's City Bowling League last night. Four good three-game efforts were chalked up and fourteen 300 or better singles, Fred Martin counting an 865, Barney Worsencroft and 827, Bill Prindible an 811 and Roy Lewis 805. The best singles were: R. Suddards 348, F. Martin 332, W. Prindible 328, W. Worsencroft 325, R. Lewis 319, R. Dyer 313, A. Guerin 309, E. Johnston 308, R. Clifford 307, J. Denault 305, T. Curvin 304, W. Boon 305, V. Fitzgerald 304 and B. Goodson 300.

Jay's team lead was cut down one point when they lost a game to the Outlaws while the Cleanrites, the second place team, shut out Fractional Motors 3 to 0. The tail end teams broke the jam which existed a week ago when four outfits were tied, Old Timers winning 3 points, Canada Packers 1 point while Gimblett and Westclox failed to win a game.

The high average is now in the hands of Bob Dyer, his 762 score for the night putting him up to the 247 mark for 42 games. Doug Abraham for 51 games shows 246. Weese has 244 for 48 games while Fred Martin and his fine 865 score is now also at the 244 mark. Martin has rolled the full 54 games the same as Jack Playford who is hitting 240 per game.

The standing: Jay's 40, Cleanites 36, K. of C. 35, Ramblers 33, Sunocos 32, Outlaws 29, Empress 29, Stags 27, Fractional Motors 27, Big Five 25, Freeman's 25, Machine Shop 22, Old Timers 20, Canada Packers 18, Westclox 17, Gimblett 17.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—(AP)—The finest economium that could be offered Mark Roth, former Yankee road secretary who died yesterday, was that in some 20 years on that exacting job he never lost a trunk or a newspaperman...Just by way of emphasis, Harold Parrott who recently took a similar job with the Dodgers, received his baptism to fire yesterday when he helped shepherd a swarm of scribes to Brooklyn's Bear Mountain training camp...All went well until the return when Parrott was about to drive boss Branch Rickey from the ferry to Brooklyn.. As they strolled toward the parking lot, Harold fumbled in his pockets and moaned "my keys"..He had left them in the car and securely locked the doors.

O'Brien won the bout, incidentally.

Film Of Stout Canadian Ship "Corvette K-225" Draws Praise

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Jan. 28 — (CP). — Canada's sturdy little warships of the North Atlantic—or the one the film lets stand for them all—bowed to a London theatre audience that ranged from the First Lord of the Admiralty to the men of the sea who knew this story of a workaday corvette long before they took their seats.

The film was "Corvette K225" in Canada. In Britain it has become "The Nelson Touch," but it is the same good tale of the same good ship, H.M.C.S. Kitchener, the K225 of the Royal Canadian Navy.

Its premiere at the Leicester Square Theatre in London's West-end theatre district lacked little in color, effect or braid. Cameramen stood in the lobby to snap pictures of the big men in Britain's naval ranks, and high military and civilian figures in Canadian life in Britain.

The audience which packed the building paid this film version of Lieut. John Rhodes Sturdy's original script the rare tribute of spontaneous applause which came unexpectedly as the picture ended.

Knew Corvette Well

For one man, at least, in that audience this was a night of reward. He was Lt.-Cmdr William Evans of Vancouver, the former merchant marine seaman who commanded the Kitchener for months after she was commissioned in Quebec City in June, 1942.

When questions were thrown at him later about this screen story of his craft, Cmdr. Evans insisted that she was "no prima donna. In fact, I'd be inclined to say just the opposite— she does her real work when no one is watching.

The Kitchener, he said, had helped ships "that must be well up in four figures by now....She has probably travelled far enough to carry her round the world a couple of times."

Cmdr. Evans cited at least one trip in which the Kitchener knew action as hectic as that the picture rolled forth.

That was when she was operating in the Mediterranean "and the convoy she was helping to escort was attacked successively by torpedo bombers, submarines, high-level bombers, and dive bombers, all in the space of eight hours.... Some of the ships, including a Canadian corvette, were lost, but the attacks were beaten off and the bulk of the convoy reached its destination."

Moment in Ship's Life.

The Kitchener, Cmdr. Evans, insisted, is a typical working corvette "aboard which many of the film's action shots happened to be taken while she was doing her ordinary work."

"All that action you see in the picture represents just a rare, brief moment in the life of a corvette," he said.

That brief moment unfolded before a London premiere audience which included First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander, Admiral of the Fleet, Sir Andrew Cunningham, Rear-Admiral F. H. G. Dalrymple-Hamilton, Admiral Sir C. E. Kennedy-Purvis and his wife, Lord Cranborne, Secretary of State for the Dominions, Information Minister Brendan Bracken, ranking officers of all three Canadian services, among them Maj.-Gen P. J. Montague, Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, Air Vice-Marshals W. A. Curtis and N. R. Anderson, and senior officers of the American forces in this theatre.

Toronto Leafs In 2-2 Tie With Canadiens

By The Canadian Press.

Perhaps it all depends on the point of view, but it still seems strange that Canadiens should lose caste because Toronto Maple Leafs gained a 2-2 tie on Montreal ice last night. The league leaders probably will be chided mildly because they didn't run up the score to the Forum dome.

Canadiens have conditioned their camp followers for resounding victories. They haven't lost in 17 games on their own ice surface and the only three they didn't win resulted in 2-2 deadlocks.

This immunity before the home folks— there were a record-shattering 12,876 admissions, plus a couple of thousand servicemen who didn't—seemed in jeopardy last night when the Habitants entered the final period trailing 2-1. Elmer Lach had offset Babe Pratt's first-period-goal, but Lorne Carr had given the Leafs the lead again early in the second period on a solo sprint. Finally, Buddy O'Connor rifled a 30-foot drive past Bibeault four minutes after the third period started to save the situation for Montreal.

Black Hawks Win.

In the only other National Hockey League game last night, Chicago Black Hawks trounced New York Rangers 6-4 before 10,166 home spectators. The Hawks clinched the issue with third-period goals by Bill Mosienko and George Allen.

Rangers fought gamely, at that, before accepting their 24th loss in 31 starts, but they were always behind. Cully Dahlstrom, Clint Smith and Doug Bentley made it 3-0 for Chicago before Frankie Boucher, appearing as a combatant again, tipped in Bryan Hextall's pass for New York's first score.

Hextall shaved the lead to 3-2 before the second intermission, but Bentley's second goal to open the third period restored Chicago's two-goal working margin. Ab Demarco and Fern Gauthier then made it 4-4 before Mosienko and Allen fired the clinchers.

The results didn't disturb the standings. Canadiens remained 15 points in front of the second-place Leafs, while the Hawks succeeded in closing to within a game and a half of the fourth-place Boston Bruins.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 28. — (CP).— When Art Ross offered to lend his goalie, Bert Gardiner, to help New York's War Bond hockey show and pay Gardiner's expenses to boot, it was typical of the Boston Bruins' manager. Art misses no chances to boost war funds. For example, when Canada "hockey night" broadcasters sought to broadcast the New Year's night Leaf-Bruins' game in Boston, they were staggered by Art's demand for $500 for broadcast right but accepted when Ross stipulated the money be paid into the R.C.A.F. Benevolent Fund. Boston has contributed several healthy "gates" to war funds.

Ross has more than patriotic reasons for his keen interest in these funds. His two sons, John and Arthur, Jr., are pilots in the R.C.A.F. overseas.

"How can you keep your mind on hockey when it is full of other things," Art said expressively at the N.H.L. meeting here a week ago.

An Idol Still.

Syl Apps, likeable star of Toronto's hockey Leafs and now in the army, remains the idol of the fans. After Apps, Gordon Drillon and Billy Taylor played for the Simcoe army team against an air force team in Brantford Monday night, cheering fans tried to carry Syl off the ice. Al (Brantford Expositor) Rose wrote that Apps "played as if he was in the final of the Stanley Cup series." One of the secrets of Syl's popularity is the fact he gives his best at all times. Simcoe, incidentally, lost 20-18 to the airmen featuring the forward line of Norm McAtee, Johnny McCreedy and Wally Wilson. Drillon and McAtee got six goals each, Wilson five, McCreedy and Apps four each.

Round and About.

Jack Adams, Detroit manager, says fellows like Art Ross and Lester Patrick will have to help in selecting old-time figures for hockey's hall of fame. "Those fellows can remember way back when players skated on bone skates"....Seagram candidates for the King's Plate are likely to be Kantol and Oblarto Gal ....The Montreal Star reports Frankie Eddolls' knee is still bothering him and he is likely to get his air force discharge shortly.

Golf Devotees Like The Winter

BELLEVILLE, January 28 — The sports seasons in Belleville are all turned around these warm January days. Ben Ogilvie, local golf addict, says he hasn't missed a single Sunday of golfing since April. Every Wednesday afternoon this month Norm Brown, Joe Legault, Ben Ogilvie and Wally Maldorf have played 18 holes over the Belleville course and report good scores. At the country club the younger sex were engaged in tennis recently. The courts here are asphalt.

For strange bits of golf the nod goes to Joe Legault, who introduced a new wrinkle into the clubbing of the little white pellet. Last Sunday Legault donned skates and teed off on the Bay of Quinte, driving the ball with a No. 2 iron. His card showed 30 strokes when he reached the Country Club dock two miles west of the city.

With the Bay of Quinte open near Point Ann, nimrods report wild ducks swimming there yesterday.

Buddy O'Connor, Canadiens' star centre, who scored one goal and assisted in another when Leafs held the league leaders to a 2-2 draw.

Doug Bentley, Chicago, who scored two goals and got two assists when Hawks defeated Rangers 6-4.

Frank Boucher, Rangers, who collaborated on two goals and was active throughout the encounter.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press

Lorne Carr, Toronto, took first place on the National Hockey League's high scoring list from Boston's Cain last night when he scored one goal and assisted in another when Leafs battled to a 2-2 draw with Canadiens.

Chicago's Billie Mosienko and Doug Bentley moved one point ahead of Elmer Lach, Canadiens, when Hawks defeated Rangers 6-4.

Steers, Heifers Down 15 to 25, Lambs Drop 50

TORONTO, Jan. 28 — (CP). — Cattle prices were 15 to 25 cents cwt. lower on steers and heifers and from 50 to 75 cents lower on cows, in trade on the Livestock Market here this week. Lambs dropped 50 cents to $1 cwt. Veal calves, hogs and sheep were steady.

Wholesalers reported over supplies of beef and lamb with deliveries backing up from the retail stores last week-end. The cattle run was light, but trade was slow from the opening, with pressure on all grades. Strictly choice steers sold at $12.75 to $13, with other grades of weighty steers downward to $11. Butcher steers and heifers were $10 to $11.60, with tops at $11.75. Butcher cows closed at $6.50 to $8, with canners at $4 to $4.50. Buls sold at $6.50 to $8 for bolognas, with light butchers up to $9. Fed yearlings were $11.75 to $15.25. A few stockers and stock calves sold at $6 to $10.50. Good milkers and springers were mostly $130 to $150 each.

Calves were $15 to $16 for choice vealers, with common downward to $10. A few grass type calves were $8 to $9 cwt.

Lambs were slow sellers all week at reduced prices with packers reporting almost no demand from retailers. Good Western lambs sold at $13 cwt., with medium to good locals at $12 to $13. Culls sold downward to $7 and some in-between lambs were unsold.

Sheep trade was slow at $2 to $6 cwt for locals, with light Western ewes at $6.25 cwt. Some Western breeding ewes were unsold

Hogs sold at $17.15 dressedweight for the basic grade with sows at $13 dressed. The Dominion Government premium of $3 a head for grade A hogs and $2 a head for B1 became effective January 24.

Conserve Ships

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—(CP)—The Japanese are now carefully conserving their major naval units, awaiting a chance for a sharp smash at Allied air and surface forces in the Pacific, Rear Admiral Osborne B. Hardison, back from 15 months' service in the South Pacific, said yesterday.

MUSSOLINI'S ARMORED CAR—This armored car, which was the gift of Hitler to Mussolini in the old days, was captured by the Allied forces in Italy and is now used as an anti-aircraft protection for trains operating north from Naples to the fighting front. Allied troops can be seen manning the anti-aircraft guns as the car stands in Caserta station.

400 Employees Strike In Windsor Factory

WINDSOR, Jan. 28 — (CP) — Four hundred employees of Gar Wood Industries Ltd. were idle on hursday as plant remained closed following a walkout yesterday of 300 workers. The night shift of 100 employees did not report last night.

The walkout was described by the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.) as an "unauthorized strike." Absence from city of plant manager John Braidford and the company's contention they had until Monday to reply to grievances applications presented by the union made it unlikely any action would be taken until Braidford returns.

Spokesmen for the management said to-day that by striking the men have terminated the union contract they had with the company and the company is no longer bound by any previous agreement to negotiate grievances.

The contract contained a "no strike pledge" which has been violated, the spokesmen said.

Bridgenorth Red Cross Branch Reports On Year's Activities

BRIDGENORTH, Jan. 28 (ENS) The annual meeting of the Bridgenorth Red Cross was held this week in the work rooms and the new officers were installed for the coming year.

Mrs. Jean Ray, president for the past year, spoke, thanking everyone for making the past year such a success, however this did not mean that the group could rest on their oars this coming year, she said.

"Success is never achieved by the work of one individual but by the team work of all. It is our privilege as well as our duty to keep supplies going to people in the far countries who are so sorely in need. Perhaps our own men are not serving in any of the three services but they are doing it for us."

An appeal was made for blood donors, although there are already thirteen. They can enroll with Mrs. D. McKay at any time.

MORE ABOUT—

Japanese Torture

Heard Shots

Before daylight the next day the march was resumed. When exhausted men fell out moaning, no one was allowed to help — those who still marched heard shots behind them.

On the third day "we were introduced to a form of torture which came to be known as the sun treatment. We were made to sit in the boiling sun all day without cover. We had very little water; our thirst was intense. Many of us went crazy and several died. Three Filipino and three American soldiers were buried while still alive....

"I made that march of about 85 miles in six days on one mess kit of rice. Other Americans made 'the march of death' in 12 days, without any food whatever."

The prisoners taken at Corregidor did not experience that march, but 7,000 Americans and 5,000 Filipinos were packed for a week with no food on a concrete pavement 100 yards square. There was one water spigot for the 12,000—the average wait to fill a canteen was 12 hours. They got their first food—a mess kit of rice and a can of sardines—after seven days.

At Camp O'Donnell there were almost no water facilities. Prisoners stood in line six to 10 hours to get a drink. Clothing went unchanged a month and a half. The principal food was rice.

There was a hospital—a dilapidated building with no facilities, no medicine. Hundreds lay on the bare floor without cover. After one week, the death rate was 20 Americans a day, 150 Filipinos; after two weeks, 50 and 500 respectively. The sick as well as the merely starving were forced into work gangs, and worked until they dropped dead.

About June 1, the Americans were removed from Camp O'Donnell to Cabanatuan, where Dyess joined Mellnik and McCoy, who had come in from Corregidor. Conditions there were a little better, but the diet did not improve.

Beaten With Shovels

The brutality continued — men were beaten with shovels and golf clubs, "men were literally worked to death."

Three officers who tried to escape were caught, stripped to their shorts, their hands tied behind them and pulled up by ropes fastened overhead, and kept in this position in the blazing sun for two days; periodically the Japs beat them with a two-by-four; finally one was beheaded and the others shot. By Oct. 26, when Dyess, McCoy and Mellnik left Cabantuan, 3,000 of the American prisoners had died.

"The salvation of the American prisoners of war," Dyess reported, was the American and British Red Cross supplies, both clothing and food, that finally began to arrive, months late.

This was the life from which McCoy, Dyess and Mellnik escaped April 4, 1943. The account is based solely on their official reports, but the Army and Navy said at least four others were known to have escaped from the Philippines — Majors Michiel Dobervitch, Ironton, Minn., Austin C. Shofner, Shelbyville, Tenn., and Jack Hawkins, Roxton, Tex., and Cpl. Reid Carlor Chamberlain, El Cajone, Calif., all of the Marine Corps.

Red Cross Wants $1,200 In Appeal For More Funds

HAVELOCK, Jan. 28—(ENS)—The President of the local Red Cross Branch, T. P. Lancaster, announced the period for the National Appeal for funds as set from February 28 to March 18, with the objective for Havelock - Belmont Branch set at $1,200.

After a delegation from the County had recently visited the County Council, it was agreed that 1 mill would be added to the Couty rate, which will amount to $11,038. This sum will be earmarked for the objective of the various branches within the County, and the remainder equally divided. However, a membership drive will be made throughout the vilage and township.

The Annual meeting will be held in Toronto on March 29, and the Assistant President Mrs. Annie Anderson, was named as delegate and Mrs. L. Colquohoun as alternate. A vote of thanks was moved to Miss N. Watson and her pupils for a donation of $2. A windmill quilt, made by the Hub-bub Club of the High School was brought in, on which tickets are to be sold, and the draw will take place at the Commencement February 4.

The repairs on the Norwood bus have been made, and it is again available for transporting donors to the clinic. During the afternoon, one large quilt was completed and the flanelette quota was cut-out and distributed to willing sewers.

HUMANE SOCIETIES FOUNDED.

First societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals were formed in England.

Bulgaria Approaches Wartime Crisis

BERNE, Jan. 28 — (A P) — Budapest dispatches said to-day that Bulgaria was approaching a crisis comparable to that of Italy last July when Fascism was overthrown.

"The decisive factor in Bulgarian politics continues to be the presence of 20 German divisions which have become forces of occupation rather than defenders of the frontiers," the Budapest correspondent of the Gazette de Lausanne said. Allied bombings were said to have produced moral, physical and political crisis.

Sofia was said to be desolate with average destruction of 60 per cent throughout three-quarters of the capital. Open discontent was reported, especially against those responsible for state affairs.

William Payne Heads Crop Association

LINDSAY, Jan. 28. — (ENS).— William Payne was elected president of the Victoria County Crop Improvement Association at the annual meeting held here. The new president stressed the need of a new seed cleaning plant for the county and also suggested that a government subsidy should be paid on tractor work that would enable the farmers in remote sections to receive this type of aid.

Other officers elected were: 1st vice-president, G. B. Bagshaw, Lindsay, No. 1; 2nd vice. Nelson Thurston, Dunsford; sec.-treas., M. H. Winter, Lindsay; executive. W. Wilson, Omemee; W. B. A LITTLEDALE ARTICLE.

The New York Times published in its magazine section last Sunday an article by one of its staff men, Harold A. Littledale, who years ago was a reporter for the Examiner. In this contribution Mr. Littledale wrote about the sanatorium for infantile paralysis at Warm Springs, Georgia, where he has been a patient for nearly two years following an airplane accident near Atlanta on a flight to Mexico. A. H. Boomer called the Examiner's attention to the article with the remark Mr. Littledale will be remembered by local friends who knew him in his reporting days in this city.

BakeryCustomer Takes $480 In War Savings

A customer's purchase of War Savings Certificates to the amount of $480 yesterday went a long way to swelling the sales made by Hubert Ferguson of the Stocks Bread sales and delivery saff.

Mr. Ferguson is another of those who can say "you never know your luck." He has been mentioning the Canadian Food Industry's objective of $2,000,000 for February, $26,000 allotted to Peterborough, and at this home he hit a "jack pot," that carried him far toward his personal objective.

Alex Johns reported the incident this morning. Two other purchases of certificates, one for $80 and the other for $50, were substantial sums that hearten these temporary agents for War Savings Stamps.

"The Food Industry was given a quota of $4,580 in Peterborough," said Mr. Johns, "and of that amount $2,100 was asked of Stocks Bread staff. We have now reached one-third of our objective and our salesmen are highly pleased with the reception they are getting from customers."

Skuce went overseas in February, 1943, and after his arrival in England he transferred to another unit.

Much Credit Due To Veterans For Aid To Fund

When people voluntarily undertake of their own violition to do a good work for others in need, they display a type of citizenship which in these days of stress is to be much commended, besides evincing a belief that they really have a mission in this life, which looks more than to the selfish aspect of just looking after their own selfish needs.

This, of course, would be a perfectly normal thing for men who had offered even life itself in the country's service, but when they keep on at it for over a period of more than three years in such a steady manner as the Peterborough branch No. 52 of the Canadian Legion have done on behalf of the local and district fund to help the sufferers from air raids over Britain, one can also add they show a sincerity of purpose for which a great deal of credit is their due.

They Give $1,841 To Date

Commencing in the very early days of the fund's operations, when G. Gimblett, their president, made a voluntary pledge of support to the secretary of the fund on their behalf, which was truly encouraging, this has been very fully amplified by the monthly receipt of a cheque from G. G. Torrance, their treasurer, which naturally rolls up a total of such proportions as was undreamed of in those early days.

The latest of these donations in an amount of $82.97, which incidentally almost sets a new high mark for any single one to their credit, and puts the fund over another thousand dollar mark, now makes a total of $1,841.09 they have raised for the fund, chiefly through their Wednesday night bingo games held on behalf of their own welfare work, in which the fund has shared ever since they commenced assisting in the good work it is trying to carry on.

Supporters of the penny box activity, and specially those who have given in this manner through the boxes in the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, will be pleased to know that the latest collection made there on Thursday added another $5.45 to its previous good record of help for the fund.

Band Concert This Sunday

Did you ever notice the effect a band has on men when it strikes up its martial music on the street. Persons who were walking in a most leisurely or even tired manner, will immediately straighten up and shuffle their feet to get in step, which is proof indeed of the invigorating appeal it makes.

This coming Sunday, January 30, through the kindness of Lt.-Col. W. Baptie, O.C., the local Training Centre, the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps Band, directed by Bandmaster Albert Croasdale, W.O. 1, is going to give a concert in the Collegiate Auditorium, which will commence at 8.30 p.m.

On this occasion some very lovely numbers including the Sibelius "Finlandia," Handel's "Largo" and Ketleby's "Monastery Gardens," will have a place on a program that will be considerably varied, and provide a splendid evening's entertainment.

The proceeds of a collection to be taken by members of the Peterborough Women's Service Corps will all come to the fund, which now has nearly $500.00 on hand towards the next donation of £500.

Citizens Anxious To Provide For Crew Of 77

Six phonographs, one of them from a woman in Campbellford, are available to the committee in charge of furnishings for the corvette "Peterborough" which has already been launched and is now in the process of completion.

An appeal was made several days ago by Gordon Miller, and that evening and the next morning citizens had telephoned to him and to Mrs. Claire Collins with an eagerness to help that was a gratifying manifestation of Peterborough interest in the corvette that will be off to sea before many weeks pass.

"The Campbellford woman called me at her own expense," Mr. Miller said. "The first one in Peterborough telephoned shortly after I reached home. I wondered how they could have had time to read the paper and see the appeal. We are going to try to make use of them all. Corvettes run into a lot of heavy seas and rough weather and furnishings probably get banged around a lot. I think we will gratefully acknowledge this response, and make the best use we can of these instruments.

Records Now

"The next thing the committee needs is a good stock of phonograph records. I wonder will the citizens get together on that detail of discs for the machines we have. They should be in good condition, and preferably new records. They should be selected with an ear to youth's liking, and that probably means considerable swing and jive.

"The committee would like to be in a position to present a numerous library of records with not too much of the heavy stuff among them.

Then we believe the men could use musical instruments, mandolins and other things like that. There will be seventy-seven men in the complement of the "Peterborough" and some of them are bound to be able to play music. We are also asking for a piano or two. In fact we are hoping to get one from a certain quarter."

Mr. Miller said he hoped the response of phonographs would be followed in gifts of records, and they will be acceptable at once. Citizens may find the lobby of the "Regent" theatre a convenient place of delivery of records that are going aboard a fighting ship as soon as it is ready.

One of the Peterborough women who telephoned Mr. Miller yesterday said "I hope you will accept my phonograph. It is in real good condition, and my son is in the navy, and I'd like to give something toward the new ship named after our own city."

Two Women Are Overcome By Gas Fumes

Victims of coal gas fumes in their small home in the outskirts of Stirling, Wednesday, Mrs. Charlotte McCann, an aged rheumatic invalid, and her younger companion, Mrs. Rombough, were resting comfortaby at St. Joseph's Hospital this morning. Physicians in attendance reported that they had overcome the effects of near-asphyxiation caused by accumulation of gas-fumes when the coal in the firebox had not taken fire and all the drafts of the stove were left open.

The two women were discovered shortly before noon Wednesday by neighbors, who became alarmed upon seeing no activity about the McCann home. Forcing an entry into the house, James Hath, aided by other residents, found them in an unconscious condition in their beds near the kitchen stove. The women ate and slept in the same room, it was reported.

Carrying them to safety, rescuers opened all the windows in the house to allow the gas fumes to escape. Dr. A. E. Carleton, who with Dr. P. V. Helliwell, attended the women, said it was customary for Mrs. Rombough to awaken every morning at 4 o'clock to check the fires, and it was thought that this particular morning she had checked the fires and then returned to bed.

Most seriously overcome by the fumes was Miss McCann, whose bed is located close to the stove. The two beds were divided by a curtain, providing some protection for Mrs. Rombough.

Both women revived when exposed to the fresh air and were then removed to Peterborough.

Walter Madill Breaks Shoulder

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 28 (ENS)—The goddess of luck seems to be frowning upon the fortunes of Walter Madill, 73-year-old plumber whose shop was completely destroyed by fire, Monday evening. As an additional blow, he fell and broke his shoulder on Thursday.

Mr. Madill was working at the home of Emerson Kemp when he fell down the cellar steps. Dr. Alex Fraser was called and he took Mr. Madill to Peterborough where X-rays revealed a broken shoulder bone. Only a year ago, Mr. Madill was struck by a car and badly shaken up.

The injured man has been preparing to visit a daughter in Perth for the remainder of winter, and it is expected that he will be leaving shortly.

MAYOR APPEALS TO CITIZENS TO GIVE THEIR BLOOD NOW

General Eisenhower, United Nations Army Commander, who recently left the Italian front, told newsmen that on that front "for the lack of blood plasma men die."

This is a challenge to every citizen of Peterborough, because it is clear proof that more citizens here must become Blood Donors.

Some of our citizens have been doing a good job donating their blood regularly at the Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic. Many more are needed. To register as a donor, telephone 8284 or 8633 or go to the Clinic Office at Brock and Water streets.

In this emergency I do not hesitate to request more citizens to become Blood Donors. This is a responsibility of the Home Front. We must not fail in it.

I am informed that it takes about four months before blood taken in Peterborough can reach its destination overseas. Will some of your blood be available "Over There" when the Big Push comes?

I appeal to all citizens.

(Signed) JAMES HAMILTON,
Mayor.

Day Nurseries Prove Boon To Working Women

By KATHRYN O'NEILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 28—(CP)—Meeting an emergency that developed out of war's demands on Canadian women, Ontario's wartime day nurseries now are being operated in Toronto and other cities and towns in the province. Approximately 1,000 children of pre-school age benefited in the past year from the nurseries' specialized care.

The youngsters in these nurseries all have one thing in common. Their mothers are engaged in war industry.

Thirteen of the 18 nurseries are conducted in industrialized Toronto and suburban Mount Dennis, and others have been established in Brantford, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Galt and Oshawa.

Officials of the nurseries together with those of the day care units that work with the tots' elder brothers and sisters of school age, believe that a great step forward has been taken in the prevention of juvenile delinquency. In the case of school-age "industry orphans," teachers and voluntary workers supervise their activities from early morning until six p.m. and furnish hot lunches at small cost.

It was in July, 1942, that the Dominion government, faced with increased juvenile delinquency, offered to pay half the cost of day nurseries sponsored by provincial governments. Ontario was the first province to sign an agreement with the federal government and Quebce and Alberta have followed suit.

Nurseries existing before the war such as Toronto's West End Creche, under the 1942 dominion-provincial agreement, applied to the federal government for a per-diem grant for each child. Private creches are not confined to children of war-working mothers; needy cases receive first attention. Nevertheless 55 per cent of children in the Toronto creche, Miss Sophie R. Boyd, supervisor, says are those of "priority-mothers."

In Residential Sections

Day nurseries are operated in residential districts, where mothers live, not where they work. There are nurseries in church basements, in rented houses, in community halls and in vacant rooms of schools. The chief requirement is space for children from two to five years of age to run about for most of their waking hours.

A day nursery supplies constant supervision and meals for 40 or 50 pre-school children under its care for as long as 12 hours a day. Workers are graduates of the Institute of Child Psychology, connected in Ontario with the University of Toronto. Their aims are to inculcate ideals of independence, co-operation and responsibility, and they use the latest methods in psychology to achieve this end.

For instance, tables, lockers, basins, even shelves for toys, are built child-sized, so that the four-year-old can look after himself in such matters as cleaning his teeth, and hanging up his coat.

Daily routine is uniform throughout Ontario's nurseries. Play period, lunch-time, afternoon sleep all follow a rigid schedule set down by the Institute of Child Psychology.

Diet is uniform too. Dr. E. W. McHenry associate professor of nutrition in Toronto University's Department of Nutrition, drafts menus for Ontario nurseries. Vegetables, tomato-juice and other vitamin-packed foods are high-lights of the nursery meal.

Ontario day nurseries are under jurisdiction of the Dominion labor department, and the provincial department of public welfare. A provincial committee, headed by the minister of public welfare and containing representatives from the national selective service and the department of education, supervises municipal day nursery committees, which in turn administer the local nursery.

A mother engaged in war industry or high-priority work, may place children in a day nursery at a cost of from 20 to 50 cents a day, depending on her means. The remaining cost of upkeep, is divided equally between the provincial and Dominion governments.

Soldiers Need Moral Strength

"To be good soldiers, our men must be morally and spiritually strong, as well as physically strong," said Capt. S. B. Profitt, chaplain of the local Training Centre, addressing the monthy meeting of the Church Women's Year of All Saints' Anglican church. Introduced by Rev. W. A. Filer, Capt. Profitt gave an account of his work as an Army Chaplain, and outlined many of his duties.

Mrs. J. Adams, president, was in the chair for this meeting, which was held Thursday afternoon. Mrs. T. Pitchford read the Bible lesson, after a prayer by Mrs. Adams. The monthly report from the Navy League, given by Mrs. R. W. Jones, stated that 18 articles had been knit during the month.

The offering was presented, and amounted to $217.05 for the month. Mrs. G. S. Shaw sang a solo, "The Stranger of Galilee," accompanied by Mrs. P. Hooper, and at the close of the meeting, tea was served by Mrs. A. Dryland's group.

Welsh Group Enjoys Social Evening

A supper, followed by a short business meeting and an evening's program of vocal selections, was enjoyed by the members of the St. David's Society, when they celebrated the fourteenth birthday of the society Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. A. Bartley, 167 Morrow street. Mrs. Bartley and Mrs. G. Reader were conveners for the supper, and served, assisted by Mrs. A. Brioux, and by Mrs. Bartley's daughters, Helen and Carmelia.

Following the supper, a short business period was held, with the president, Mrs. R. Jones, in the chair, and reports given showed that 600 cigarettes a month had been sent to sons of members in the services during the past year. Also, the society had twice provided the refreshments and served at the Training Centre canteen, and once at the Servicemen's Recreation Centre.

Mrs. J. Henderson gave two readings during the program, and Mrs. Elmer Pearse accompanied the soloists. There were selections from Mrs. W. J. Davies, Mrs. W. Prindible, Mrs. C. Armstrong, Mr. John Cairns, and Mr. A. Kirkcaldy.

During the evening, a draw was made on the crocheted chesterfield set on which the members had been selling tickets. Mrs. R. J. Siddall, the oldest member of the society in age and in service, made the draw, and Miss Ailwen Jones was the winner. Ten dollars of the proceeds from this draw was voted to the British War Victims' Fund.

Those present at this birthday celebration were as follows: Mrs. C. Armstrong, Mrs. A. Bartley, Mrs. D. Bell, Mrs. R. Seals, Mrs. R. J. Siddall, Mrs. J. Henderson, Mrs. G. Reader, Mrs. A. ENGAGEMENT'S LENGTH UNSOLVED

Matter of Vital Importance Now But Nobody Wise Enough To Give Answer.

THE question of how long an engagement should last is one that has been discussed to and fro, and pro and con, ever since the first boy met the first girl and they fell in love with each other and decided to take each other for better or worse. But neither the church, nor the law, nor Emily Post has ever been able to hand down an authoritative opinion on the subject.

For no prophet can put a time limit on how long a romance can last, nor what strain it can endure. Nor does anybody know whether the marriage that is cooked up on a slow fire, or on a quick hot one, will make the wedding cake for which a couple will never lose their taste. Apparently there is no sure-fire way of telling how any marriage will turn out, and whether it is better to do it on the spur of the moment, or to spend years studying all of the different angles and risks of the proposition, is anybody's guess. We have seen both plans work, and both plans fail.

Engagement Period Important Now

But if the long engagement versus the short engagement always has been a subject of interest, it is a matter of vital importance right now, when so many of our young people have gone on a romantic jag and are rushing into a marriage after an engagement that has only lasted from the last cocktail to the office of the justice of the peace; while others are not only putting mortgages on their present but their futures in the optimistic belief that neither war, nor absence, nor different experiences will change them, or make their commitments seem less desirable than they are now.

Now, naturally, there are two schools of thought on the engagement proposition. The one that favors the short-order betrothal contends that whether a marriage is a success or a failure is purely a matter of luck, so if you marry on the grab-bag principle, you are just as likely to get the kind of wife or husband you want as you would be if you spent years and years going around with a flash light hunting for an ideal mate, as Diogenes did seeking an honest man.

They say no man and woman ever know each other until they are married. They may have made mud pies together, and gone to kindergarten together, and to school and college together, and thought that they knew each other's every quirk of character and disposition; but before their honeymoon is over they discover that they are united to perfect strangers, with whom they are as little acquainted as if they were mail order mates they had picked out of a catalogue.

Hurried Marriages Often End Badly

So, perhaps, when John marries

St. Paul's W.M.S. Sponsors Tea

In spite of the weather, the tea, sponsored by the Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, and held Wednesday afternoon in the Guild Room, was a great success. The guests were received by the president, Mrs. E. H. Howson, and Mrs. J. D. Smart. Mrs. O. M. Steer was treasurer for the afternoon.

At the lace-covered table, centred by a bouquet of spring blossoms, Mrs. T. Carley, assisted by Miss L. Davidson, Mrs. Robert Ross and Miss M. Ross, poured tea. Arrangements for the afternoon were in the hands of Mrs. T. H. Taylor and her assistants, who served refreshments, small cakes, and tea.

Early Birthstones Worn As Tribal Identification

The custom of wearing birthstones had its beginning in Bible times, and originally did not signify the month of birth of the wearer, but rather the tribe to which he belonged. These tribal stones evolved from the breastplate of the High Priest Aaron, which is described in Exodus. This plate was about eight inches square, and was set with 12 precious stones, each denoting a tribe of Israel.

The carbuncle, or garnet, was assigned to the tribe of Judah. It therefore became the custom for the leaders, and those of the tribe who could afford it, to wear the stone assigned to them by Aaron, to distinguish friend from foe, because the Israelite tribes were constantly at war either with themselves or invading peoples. However, through the centuries, the stones gradually lost their original significance, and became "birthstones", denoting the month of birth of the wearer.

In some cases, the stones became symbolic of the month owing to the fact that the ancients dedicated certain minerals to the signs of the Zodiac, and the stone of Aquarius, the zodiacal sign for January, is the garnet.

Magical Powers

The magical powers attributed to the garnet are varied, and a great many peoples believed in them. As early as 3500 B. C. garnets were found to be used in necklaces and amulets, because it was believed that they had power to protect the wearer from harm. It was also believed that the garnet would act as a heart stimulant if powdered and used as a poultice.

The "Book of Wings", written by Raziel, under the influence of Hebrew and Greco-Roman tradition, stated that stones gained increased power if engraved with certain designs. The design, however, had to be on the appropriate stone. The book states that if the figure of a lion is engraved on a garnet, the stone then has the power to preserve the honors and health of the wearer, to cure him of all diseases, to bring honors, and to guard him from all perils while travelling. It was also supposed to warn the owner of danger.

The symbolism of color also played a large part in recommending the use of particular stones for healing special diseases, and the garnet was supposed to be a sure cure for hemorrhages of all kinds, inflammatory diseases, and, in addition, to exercise a calming influence, and remove anger or discord. Therefore, anyone wearing a garnet must either keep his temper in check, or admit that the spell of his birthstone has weakened through the centuries, which no self-respecting son of January would even think of doing.

Used As Bullets

Many races also believed that the garnet, used as a bullet, would always penetrate the heart of the enemy, and as a result, red garnets only, since garnets are of all colors, were highly esteemed. As late as 1892, the magical powers of the garnet were still believed in by rebellious Hazas, a tribe fighting the British troops on the Kashmir border, and the tribesmen used garnets as bullets, believing that they would strike the British down in their tracks. Some of these bullets are preserved to-day as curiosities.

Dreams have always been supposed to foretell the future, and it was believed that if a king dreamed about a red stone, a garnet or a ruby, he would have great joy and good fortune, and would be more feared than ever by his enemies. Another interpretation of a dream about garnets is that they symbolize the solution of a mystery.

Royal Stone

The Persians considered the garnet a regal stone, and often engraved the likeness of their shah upon it. Many of the finest of the old Roman in taglios are engraved on garnet, and one of the most famous of these bears the busts of Socrates and Plato, and is regarded as the best portrait of these two men in existence.

Although the garnets are among the most comon of stones, and are f o u n d practically everywhere those of gem-quality are comparatively scarce. Pure blood-red crystals, or "Bohemian garnets", are much in demand, but many rich green garnets are sold as emeralds. Fine red stones from South Africa are called "Cape rubies," and pale green, white, blue and pink garnets are sold under different trade names. The garnet is also considered the stone of Alaska and Bohemia, and as a symbol of love, passion, and Divine powers.

HOME FROM KISKA—Canadian troops which participated in the invasion of Kiska have now returned to Canada. They formed part of a Canadian-American task force which occupied the island without opposition, the Jap forces having retired without putting up a fight. The Canucks put in several months in the dreary Aleutian outpost before being relieved. These pictures taken during and after the Allied landings show: Left, Brigadier H. W. Foster, who commanded the Canadian troops participating in the Kiska assault. The daughter of the late Isabel and William Stevenson, Mrs. McGill was born in Guelph and resided here until she married the late Charles McGill, a banker. During her lengthy life, five sovereigns mounted to the Throne of the British Empire. Extremely active for her age, Mrs. McGill knitted 320 baby bonnets for children overseas since the beginning of the war. She was an extensive traveller, and during her life she enthralled her friends by relating to them her many experiences. Mrs. McGill was a member of the Toronto Ladies' Club from the time of its inception. She attended Norfolk United Church.

Buffalo Outskirts Reveal Poverty

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 28 (AP)— Death by starvation of a nine-month-old baby boy prompted investigation to-day into conditions on the outskirts of Buffalo, said by Medical Examiner Paul J. Rutecki to make "Tobacco Road" wholesome by comparison.

The baby was found in a two-room cottage a few doors from where another child died recently under similar circumstances from food-poisoning and malnutrition. An autopsy revealed "not an ounce of fat" on the baby's body, Rutecki said.

The cottage was occupied by the baby's mother, Alice Cook, 21; her sister, Mrs. Catherine Magyar, and Mrs. Magyar's three children. Inspection last night disclosed there were no beds in the house, Dr. Rutecki said, and only food on hand consisted of three cans of milk and a sack of flour.

Canadian Wives Sail For England

MONTREAL, Jan. 28 (CP) — A group of western Canadian girls, brides of R.A.F. men formerly stationed in Canada, left Montreal by train last night with a part of some 300 British women and children en route to join husbands and fathers in England.

The young westerners, few of them more than 22 years old, had little fear of homesickness as they settled down for the overnight trip to New York. "Glad and excited" about the journey, they were anxious to see the new homes prepared for them by their husbands who returned to England several months ago after training in western Canadian stations.

6,000 Canadians Back From Kiska

VANCOUVER, Jan. 28 (CP) — The last of nearly 6,000 Canadian troops who participated in the bloodless occupation of Kiska last summer, described by a high-ranking army officer as "an experienced, fully-trained and battle-worthy formation, ready for anything," today dispersed to their homes throughout Canada for well-earned leaves.

"There was no battle but in spite of that, we carried off a full-dress amphibious operation at Kiska," said Brig. W. H. S. Macklin, general staff, Pacific command, in announcing the removal of Canadian troops from the Aleutian Island. "These soldiers went ashore expecting to be shot at, and in planning and execution it was an active campaign.

"However, we had troops there approximately five months, living under terrifically adverse conditions. Our fellows have done a gigantic amount of physical work, improving the facilities of the Island, toiling cheerfully under conditions sometimes approaching those of France in the last war."

Brig. Macklin said the Canadians had derived "excellent experience" in effecting the landing on Kiska with United States forces and "had they fought a battle, it would have compared in size quite reasonably with Dieppe."

The return movement was completed Tuesday morning.

TORONTO, Jan. 28 —CP)— A cable was sent to Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden last night by officials of 11 Toronto Polish-Canadian organizations with a membership of 12,500 expressing appreciation of his statement in the British House of Commons Wednesday on European boundaries.

The cable was sent to Prime Minister Mackenzie King with a request that it be forwarded to Mr. Eden. The same organizations also cabled Prime Minister Stanley Mikolojczyk of the Polish government in London approving his stand on the Russian-Polish border problems.

In Commons yesterday, Mr. Eden reaffirmed Britain's policy of not recognizing wartime changes in the map of Europe unless, as stated by Prime Ministe. Churchill in 1940, they "take place with the free consent and the goodwill of the parties concerned."

3 Extremists Resign In Argentina

By STANLEY ROSS
Associated Press Staff Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 28—(AP)— Three cabinet ministers and three lesser officials all known for extreme nationalistic views have resigned because of their opposition to Argentina's diplomatic break with the Axis, it was known today.

This development came as President Pedro Ramirez was sharply warning Germany and Japan to beware of any acts of reprisal against Argentine nationals or property, advising opponents at home to maintain silence "for their own tranquility," banning all commerce with the Axis, and suspending the newspaper Pamero, major Nazi mouthpiece here.

Those reported to have quit their posts were Dr. Gustavo Martinez Zuviria, Minister of Justice and public instruction; Gen. Luis Cesar Perlinger, Interior Minister; Gen. Diego Mason, Minister of Agriculture; Gen. Basilio Pertine, mayor of Buenos Aires, and Alberto Baldrich and Leon Scasso, federal interventors in the provinces of Tucuman and Cordoba.

Liked the Axis

Martinez Zuviria and Perlinger, who were named to their posts in a cabinet shakeup last October, have been steadfastly opposed to a break was the Axis.

(Dispatches from neighboring capitals at that time said they had replaced ministers who even then were urging the diplomatic rupture that came this week.

Anti-Semitic Author.

(Martinez Zuviria, who under the pen name of Hugo Wast has written a trilogy of violently anti-Semitic books, is one of Argentina's most widely known authors. Early in November, a week after Perlinger took office, seven provincial interventors and three terriotorial governors resigned in what was described as a move to give Perlinger freedom of action. The interventors serve as federal administrators. Along with President Ramirez, Perlinger early this month signed the decree setting up drastic new press restrictions in Argentina.

(The Cabinet crisis that brought Martinez Zuviria, Perlinger and Mason to office came during the period that an order was promulgated suspending publication of Jewish newspapers in Argentina. The ban provoked a sharp rebuke by President Roosevelt and was quickly lifted.)

As a follow-up to an order that all Argentine merchant vessels must remain in port for the present, Ramirez said the government had decreed that all commerce between Argentina and Axis countries must stop. He added that the question of controlling mail and telegraphic communications was under study.

Last Thursday a Supreme Court jury returned a reduced verdict of manslaughter against Kennedy who had been charged with murder of Mrs. Edwards, wife of LAC. Bert Edwards, stationed at Guelph, Ont., at the time of her death. Her body was found in the burning basement of her Bolt avenue home.

When asked if he had anything to say Kennedy answered: "I thank you, my lord, for the fair trial."

Library Board Has Good Year

MARMORA, Jan. 28 — (ENS).— The annual meeting of Marmora Public Library Association was held in the Library this week. The reports of the treasurer, secretary and librarian showed 1943 to have been a very successful year.

The treasurer reported a balance of about $270, which will make it possible to purchase more new books at an early date. The circulation of books last year showed an increase over 1942. Owing to the increased cost of books not quite as many were purchased as in previous years, but it is hoped to have more in 1944.

The election of the Library Board resulted in the re-election of the 1943 board, with two additions. The new board is as follows: Mrs. W. F. Bowen, Mrs. R. E. Bonter, Mrs. A. M. Jones, Mrs. G. Murray, Miss Miriam Savage, Miss Reta Deacon, G. S. Jarvis, G. Osborne and H. W. Sabine.

Gordon Jarvis was re-elected chairman; Mrs. A. M. Jones, secretary; Miss Reta Deacon, treasurer, and Mrs. M. Thomson, librarian.

North Monaghan Council Is Told To Pass Bylaw For Annexation

The second session of the Ontario Municipal Board, continuing Thursday afternoon their hearing of applications for annexation to the city of certain areas of North Monaghan, was adjourned until Tuesday, February 8 at 1.30 p.m. in the city council chamber, without any substantial advance in the preliminary stage of defining boundaries.

The Commissioners present were R. S. Colter, K.C., chairman, and W. P. Near. Their suggestion to the township council was to pass a bylaw definitely outlining the boundaries of the area south of Lansdowne street which the council is willing to have annexed to the city. The North Monaghan council's assent to annexation in that south-eastern section of the township was supported only by a resolution which did not precisely comply with the statute which is being invoked to enable the proposed annexation to proceed.

This direction by the Board to the township was the net result of the session Thursday afternoon. The council was asked to determine the areas for annexation and embody them in bylaw form which the Board will be in a position to recommend to the Legislature.

When the township council initiated its annexation movement it was concerned only with the area along the western border of the city, from Lansdowne street, No. 7 Highway, to Weller street, and after conversations with the city council, the township passed the requisite bylaw, and an application was made to the Municipal Board for a hearing.

Then the annexation idea sprouted in the Claraday section, and spread as far west as Park street, south of Lansdowne street. That action was based on the optional method of a petition by the electors in that area. Some of the residents west of Park street in the area extending to Monaghan Road and south of Lansdowne street to the Otonabee River followed suit by circulating a petition for annexation, and at once a counter-petition was sponsored by some of the people south of St. James street.

In the course of the hearing yesterday two areas were virtually agreed upon as beyond any question of serious opposition. One was the western area, and the other was the southern area east of Park street and south of Lansdowne street. And the doubt hovering over a large part of the Park street-Monaghan Road area was deepened by the fact that the only instrument from the township council, relating to the several southern areas, was a resolution and not a bylaw.

Mr. Colter said the Board could not go any further with the hearing until it had something exact and definitive, as required by the statute, upon which to proceed. For that reason the hearing was adjourned until February 8 to enable the township council to prepare and pass a bylaw setting forth formally and exactly the southern area which it proposed for annexation.

County Loses Revenue

Explanations and contentions made familiar through the previous discussions were rehashed yesterday, and do not need repetitious reporting. The county council's bylaw asking that annexation be carried westerly to Erskine avenue and south to Cameron street was considered at length. It was explained by V. J. McElderry, K.C., who was present with the county council's delegated members, Reeves Mather, Gifford and McIlmoyl.

The county's attitude has already been published. Its council asserts that annexation of all or the major part of the area west of Monaghan Road (and south of Lansdowne street) will deprive the county of substantial assessment and tax income; and therefore, it wants to be relieved of as much expense as possible.

Mr. McElderry and Mr. Mather argued that the area between Monaghan Road and Erskine avenue should properly be regarded as suburban property, and should be annexed with the rest. Adopting St. James street as the southern boundary of the area between Park street and Monaghan Road would still leave the county with the liability of the wide drain on the west side of Park street. And excluding from annexation that section south of St. James street, together with the larger block between Monaghan Road and Erskine avenue, south of Lansdowne street to Cameron street, would leave the county with considerable expenditure for the education of the children in those sections who would attend the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School. Expense involved in the hospitalization of indigent patients, of which the county would have to pay 50%, was another item mentioned; and on the other side of the county's account was the loss of substantial taxes by annexation of the most valuable property in the township south of Lansdowne street.

City Clerk Outram presented an estimate that the present residents of the city would have to assume an additional amount of $12,400 for the education of children in the area the city and township had agreed upon.

Sports Roundup

ond with his spikes dangerously high ..When the cadet returned to the bench he received a dressing down from the coach..."But sir," the boy protested, "Mr. Durocher told us that when the play was close, even if our own mother was playing second, if she was holding the ball loosely we should do everything we could to kick it out."

some girl whom he hasn't seen more than a dozen times, and then only when she was all dolled up and had her complexion on and a fresh wave and was putting her best foot foremost; and when Annabelle walks down the church aisle with a dashing soldier or sailor whose acquaintance she made a couple of weeks before at a service dance, whose middle name she doesn't even know, and into whose background, character, habits and ability to support a wife she has never bothered to inquire, it isn't quite as foolhardy as it looks. At least they have the fun of discovering each other. But that it is a hazardous amusement is proven by the fact that nearly half the marriages that take place after short engagements end in divorce.

But the long drawnout engagement is no guarantee of a happy marriage, either. It is possible for sweethearts to get so fed up on love-making that they lose their appetites for it, and to get so well acquainted with each other that they perceive only each other's faults and peculiarities and get on each other's nerves.

In reality, a long engagement is an acid test of human endurance, for the engaged couple are in an unnatural position towards each other. They are neither fish, nor flesh, nor good red herring. They have neither the freedom of the single, nor the security of the married. Each feels that he or she has the right to boss the other, and the other resents the authority and so it is a time of quarrels and fights and misunderstandings and jealousies that is even stormier than wedlock.

Oftener than we know many and many a couple, who have been engaged for years, stumble to the altar on frozen feet. They are disillusioned, tired of each other, out of love with each other, and would gladly break the engagement except that they lack the nerve to do it.

How long should an engagement last? Who knows?

LUNAR TRANSITS presage the sudden development of affairs which must be quickly grasped and taken advantage of, but this should be manipulated by calm, cool and well-considered action and not impetuous, reckless or incautious tactics. Clever and reasonable grasp of surprise movements, with keen insight and sound judgment assisted by aggressive, energetic and determined effort should win. This should be based on practical insight into problems, constructive skill, and systematic efforts, avoiding excesses, emotionalism and impulse or excitement.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of unforseen opportunity for definite progress, with financial increase and personal prestige, but while a swift grasp of this fortunate situation is necessary there is danger from a too reckless attack, with little thought as to the logic of trustworthiness of the inviting circumstances. There may be some subtle factors calling for reasoning and well thought out moves, not wild, impulsive, or emotional conduct. Excitement and agitation may lead to excesses, in waste of energy, funds and other expenditures. Calm and constructive performance even in intriguing prospects is admonished.

A child born on this day while capable, energetic and practical yet may be swept away from its good fortune by rash, impulsive or emotional conduct. Unlooked for opportunities benefit by head work as well as aggressiveness.

WOMEN BEGGARS IN ITALY—Canadian troops in Italy have visited many famous places, including the ruins of ancient civilizations, but they found women beggars something new. Two of them are shown above, sitting on the steps of a church in Naples, waiting for someone to give them some money and food. Victims of the war, they do not seem to be having much success judging by their emaciated appearance.

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON (Society Editor of The Examiner)

ETIQUETTE MADE EASY

The war and the need for conserving food to help with ration points, have sadly altered the rules regarding etiquette, so that now it is not ill-mannered to sop up the gravy on the dinnerplate with bread. Even the most upstanding pillar of society can now pick up a bone and munch it with impunity.

COSMETIC CAPERS

Just as it is logical to change accessories when changing from dark clothes to light clothes, so is it natural that two shades of lipstick with powder be used, to agree with the particular color worn. A bright lipstick and tinted powder should be used, to agree with the particular color worn. A bright lipstick and tinted powder should be used with dark ensembles, while a less vivid shade, with matching powder, is ideal with bright colors.

BEAUTY TIP

To make a bath mitt that is both useful and beautifying for the skin, try saving all slivers of toilet soap which so often are lost, and put them through a food chopper. Mix in a little oatmeal (proportion 1 cup of chopped soap to a heaping tablespoon of oatmeal). Put the mixture into mitts made of old bath-towels, and there is an economical bath mitt as well as skin beautifier, because oatmeal is very beneficial for the skin.

CARE OF FLOWERS

Daffodils, asters, snap-dragons, pansies, stocks, calendulas, marigolds, annual chrysanthemum and clarkias, have been found to last longer if kept in glass vases in which pieces of copper wire or shavings have been added to the water.

CANDY CANE COLORS

Winter stylists are still showing the candy cane glove, which has each finger done in a different color. It's easy to make a pair too. Jus tcrochet according to a regular pattern, but make each finger a different color. The finished product is warm, smart, and equally appropriate with sport and street clothes.

WAR KITCHEN

A pot of parsley, placed on the kitchen window sill, is a constant and tasty sources of vitamins. Make a habit of taking several shoots and garnishing dinner plates with them. They will brighten up the table, and also help round out winter diets. Vitamins are necessary for good health and pep, so it is wise to always be sure that menus include vitamin-rich foods.

MIXED EVENING STYLES

Winter evening styles are still featuring the short evening frock, with low neck and short sleeves, and skirts short and slim. Long gowns, however, are still holding their own, with the newest styles featuring plain black skirts topped with a fitted jacket of red, trimmed with sequins, or an equally fetching gold kid jacket, made somewhat loose, and drawn in at the waist with a sash of the same material. White for winter wear is still popular, and plain wool crepe dresses, trimmed with gold beads, seed pearls, or sequin embroideries, make ideal afternoon dresses, and are equally appropriate for evening wear.

FINGER PROTECTION

Waxed fingertips will be found to be a great help, when the busy housewife is painting around the house. Melted paraffin or ordinary candle wax can be used and it can be peeled off without any trouble, taking the paint spots with it, and leaving fingers smooth and clean.

POST-WAR FASHIONS

Post-war neckwear will be made of nylon, say the experts, and will need no ironing after laundering, after repeated washings. In the meantime, although they must be laundered and ironed frequently, organdy and eyelet embroidered collars, jabots and ruffling do wonders for dark winter dresses, and give a fresh and dainty look.

OTTAWA, Jan. 28.—(CP).— Hot rolls for a wintery lunch are a great treat in most households, but it's a terrible waste of fuel to turn the oven on just to heat them. With conservation the theme of all efficient households to-day, any tips to further the cause are welcome. Here's one suggestion from the Home Economists of the Consumer Section of the Agriculture Department:

To re-heat rolls, muffins or tea biscuits, put them in the top of a double boiler, cover tightly and let stand over boiling water for 10 or 15 minutes. If the rolls are dry, or a few days old, it is advisable to moisten them with a few drops of water. At the end of 15 minutes they will have a straight-from-the-oven freshness.

Care of Vegetables—"As the days get longer the cold gets stronger." is a familiar adage and apparently a true one. At least it serves as a reminder that winter will be here for some time to come. Winter vegetables will be on hand for some time, too. We may long for the tender green ones of summer but what we will eat are the root vegetables, stored in the fall for winter use.

Nutrition Services remind us that stored vegetables lose some of their mineral and vitamin content and it is of the greatest importance that they don't lose any more of their nutritive value in the cooking. They should be cooked in their jackets whenever possible, either baked or boiled. This isn't just for potatoes alone, but for parsnips, carrots and beets. If, as in the case of turnips, some of the outer skin must be removed, only a thin paring should come off. Minerals and vitamins are most highly concentrated in and next to the protective covering of the vegetables.

Salmon Coming—It may be some weeks before the newly rationed canned salmon abpears in any quantity in retail stores, the Prices Board Consumer Branch tells us. While 200,000 cases of the year's catch is slated for civilian consumption, it will take some time for retailers to check their records and find out how much of the new pack they are entitled to, based on their previous sales volume.

Rotate Them — The towels and sheets in the bottom of the linen cupboard pile get dusty quickly when they're not used, whether because they are forgotten or are being kept for "best." To keep them clean and insure uniform wear freshly laundered linen should be put at the bottom of the pile.

Meat Stretcher—Rolled oats and rolled wheat are a real mine of calcium and vitamin B complex. Nutrition Services say. Use of whole grain bread and cereal can supply as much as six per cent. of the day's requirement of calcium, and take the place of meat, too.

THREE KINDS OF TRICKS

IN THE play for a No Trump contract, there are really only two ways to take tricks. One is with the highest card of a suit played on a trick and the other is with an established card, after the rest of its suit is gone. In a suit contract, there is one more way, ruffing with either the only trump on a trick or the highest trump. Normal order of events, when all factors are present in a suit contract, is to do some ruffing first, drop the outstanding trumps next, then use the high and establishable cards of some side suit or suits.

North: ♠ A K 8 3 ♥ J 9 6 4 3 2 ♦ 2 ♣ A 10

West: ♠ 9 4 ♥ K Q 10 5 ♦ Q 9 7 5 ♣ 7 6 2

East: ♠ 10 7 6 5 ♥ 7 ♦ K J 10 8 4 ♣ 8 4 3

South: ♠ Q J 2 ♥ A 8 ♦ A 6 3 ♣ K Q J 9 5

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♥	Pass
2♣	Pass	3♥	Pass
3 NT	Pass	4♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5♥	Pass
7♣

As soon as the response of 5-Hearts to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps showed South that North held two aces, that fact, plus what he already knew about the six-four division and the general strength of North's hand from the 3-Hearts force, was enough to cause his grand slam bid.

West's lead of the heart K, giving South his first look at the dummy, made it clear that he must use all of the standard ways to take tricks, without any fancy business to make it possible. He had to get rid of a losing heart, which could be parked on a spade, but he also had to divest himself of two losing diamonds, which could be done only by ruffing them with North's two trumps.

Notice how he went after ruffs first, trumps second and suit third. Winning the opener with the heart A, he laid down the diamond A, ruffed the 3, led to the spade Q, ruffed the diamond 6, came to his hand again with the spade J, hoping neither defender originally had a spade singleton, then dropped trumps in three rounds. The spade 2 to the A and then the K enabled him to discard the heart 8, leaving trumps for the last two tricks. Changing the order of events at all would have made his contract impossible.

Canada Must Produce More Farm Tools

OTTAWA, Jan. 28 — (CP) — Implement manufacturers should study the possibility of manufacturing a much higher percentage of Canada's farm equipment needs in Canada, the War Expenditures Committee said in a report tabled in House of Commons Wednesday by Hughes Cleaver (L.-Halton), "In view of our tremendous industrial development brought about by the war, and in view of the dominant position which Canadian agriculture now holds with respect to food production, it is unthinkable that the Canadian manufacturers should continue to supply only 38 per cent of the farm implements used in this country," said the report.

"Your committee is of the opinion that such an industrial expansion would fit in with our reconstruction policy and program."

Evidence on material, labor and plant facilities available for the manufacture of farm implements was heard by a War Expenditures Sub-Committee headed by W. H. Golding (L.-Huron-Perth) which held sessions last fall. The sub-group report was accepted by the main committee before presentation to the House.

The committee also recommended:

1. Assistance and encouragement to the implement industry in Canada to increase its production of implements and repairs to meet an urgent need, with special emphasis on the supply of labor-saving implements.

Subsidize Foundries.

2. Steps to stimulate the production of malleable iron castings, and, if necessary, temporary subsidies paid to permit the industry to supply the present urgent need for its products.

3. That National Selective Service continue to give careful attention to the manpower requirements of implement manufacturers.

4. That full publicity be given the fact that additional farm implements will be available in 1944 so farmers will order them in time to permit rationing authorities distributing the supply according to actual need.

(Rationing regulations, under which new machinery is made available to a farmer only when he proves his need, were announced by the Prices Board in December.)

The committee said the implement program for 1944 as based on 89.5 per cent of the 1940 base year tonnage, but, due to a further improvement in the supply of essential war materials, negotiations for a further increase in the tonnage were pending.

Many Requests.

Some 168,500 applications have been received by Ration Boards for implements since 1941 and all but less than 5 per cent were granted.

No increases in retail prices have been allowed to cover increases in manufacturing costs in Canada or increases in prices of United states imported machines or parts, although increases in such lines had been approved in the United States.

Bible Learning Part Of Home Training

BETHANY, Jan. 28 — (ENS) — The January meeting of the evening auxiliary of the United church was held at the home of Mrs. Harvey Fallis, with seven members present. and the group stressed the need for religious education in the homes.

The president, Mrs. Harding, opened the meeting by giving as the theme, the Bible for all Canada's children. It was decided that the February roll call could be answered by giving the name of a missionary and a short sketch of each one's work. Watchtowers reporting were: Mrs. Porteous for Africa, Indians in Canada by Mrs. Jackson, India by Mrs. Waddell, who read extracts from her son's letters from India. PO. G. A. Waddell is stationed in India with the R.C.A.F. He had spent a recent leave in Calcutta where he had witnessed tragic results of famine. The stewardship of talents and kindliness are also necessary as well as money, Mrs. Rowan declared.

Mrs. Harding conducted the service of worship and Mrs. Porteous spoke briefly of her own personal experience on the importance of giving to the children in Christian homes a love for the Bible and helping them to establish the habit of daily Bible reading and prayer.

This was followed by prayers for the children and youth in our church homes by Mrs. Jackson. Mrs. Fallis gave a reading, entitled 'The Church School,' and Mrs. Clarence Rowan told of a plan under way by which every person could be reached, religious education in the schools and the Sunday school, in the home, by mail and air.

Disease Deaths Very Small In Canuck Army

By KENNETH C. CRAGG

OTTAWA, Jan. 28—Disease killed more soldiers in the Crimean War than any combination of bullets, cannon fire and cold steel that the opposing forces could bring to bear on each other effectively, and not even the suicidal charge of the Light Brigade could begin to balance the odds.

The agonizing disease records of that war forced a realistic approach to health problems in an active army, and they serve also to throw up in sharp relief conditions then and now. "Now," according to Col. Milton Brown, assistant director of hygiene (C.M.H.Q.), "the percentage of deaths from disease is extremely small."

Col. Brown is head of the disease prevention branch of the army. Before the war he was associate professor of hygiene and preventive medicine, University of Toronto, and he claims there is no essential difference between the work in the civilian and military spheres.

Interviewed shortly after he returned to Medical Services Headquarters on special liaison work, Col. Brown explained: "Our duties are like those of the Medical Officer of Health's Department in any municipality. The M.O.H. has housing problems. We have our housing problems. He is concerned with sanitation and the purity of the food and water supply. So are we. The M.O.H. must take steps to prevent outbreaks of contagious diseases. That also is part of our duties.

"The big thing is that every modern means of prevention is being carried out to prevent sickness in the armed forces, and the people of Canada can rest assured that that is being done."

Inspected Italian Front

Shortly before his return, Col. Brown inspected hygiene facilities on their effect on the Italian front. He said the health of the 1st Division is "amazingly good in spite of the weather," and that malaria and dysentry, the main disease problems of the area, are being combatted successfully.

Developments in medical science since the last war have definitely strengthened the branch's work in combatting disease. The newer drugs, and especially the newer sulfa drugs, have "helped tremendously," said Col. Brown.

He said he had no personal knowledge of the typhus outbreak reported from Naples. In any event, control was in the hands of AMG not the army medical authorities.

Prevention, Col. Brown emphasized, started as soon as the recruit is inducted and is given his anti-tetanus and other injections. It continues in the simple training that teaches him how to take care of himself, the importance of personal cleanliness, of sleep and of keeping his feet dry, or as dry as possible. It instructs him about food, but goes beyond that in supervising the selection of food from the nutritional standpoint, and its preparation.

Col. Brown revealed that in army experience there is a little health lesson for snuffling civilians. Not that the army doesn't have to blow its nose. It does, but not in the same degree as the people back home.

"There is little respiratory disease," he said. "And it is probably due to the fact that the men are leading an outdoor life, their food is good and they are exercising regularly. It is crowding people together in theatres and in street cars that causes so many to fall victims of respiratory ailments."

Japanese Foxholes Smelled Ontario Soldier Claims

TORONTO, Jan. 27 —(CP) — Ontario men who served in the Canadian-American force which invaded the Island of Kiska in the Aleutians agree with CSM. E. G. Marshall of Galt who said that at the creation the creator had some odds and ends left over. These he dropped into the sea and said: "This shall be Kiska. There shall be hell on earth."

Announcement that the Canadians had been withdrawn from Kiska was made at Ottawa to-day. Many of them have been home on leave and have related stories of their experiences.

"Kiska is one of those places that a curious man would like to take just one look at," said Marshall in an interview. "Though the wind was always blowing one way or another, the weather wasn't too cold and there wasn't too much snow. Living conditions were good and the troops were O. K. In the creeks there were trout a couple of feet long."

But what Marshall disliked about the place was its "nothingness." Pte. Jack G. Helmling of Kitchener said that th eJapanese forces who had been on the island had burrowed into the ground like rabbits. Some of their caves were 100 feet long with several openings.

"And did those place smell," he said. "We didn't move into any of them for that reason. They must have moved out in hurray for they left plenty of supplies behind."

Another Kitchener man, L.-Cpl. Warren Ovens, said the weather and the isolation were the biggest factors with which the troops had to contend.

Sgt. William Barlett of Burlington said: "There were booby traps everywhere and it was hard to detect them before it was too late. We never knew when an innocent-looking booby trap would blow us up over the North Pole."

Four Collingwood men— Ptes. J. J. Irwin, Armour Deacon, Arthur Braniff and Norman McEachern— told of great stores of oil, gasoline, food and clothing the Japanese left behind.

Gnr. Doug Hamley of Meaford, who said all articles the Japanese left had to be treated with suspicion, was accompanied home by Gnrs. Leslie and Frank Carefoot of St. Vincent Township near Meaford.

Ortona Sector Still Has Many Booby Traps

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, Jan. 9 (Delayed)—(CP).— The rudest awakening Pte. V. A. Murphy of Vancouver has ever received was in the early hours of Boxing Day when a German paratrooper shoved an automatic into his face and told him to "get up."

Murphy was one of 15 Canadians taken prisoner in Ortona and then released when a patrol cleared the house where they had been held for seven hours. He was in bed when the Germans surprised his section and he didn't hear the enemy come in.

C.S.M. John Elaschuk of Turin, Alta., who was taken prisoner on the same day and released at the same time, is called "The Immortal Sergeant" by the men of his unit because he seems to bear a charmed life. He has been in very engagement since the battalion came to the Mediterranean and hasn't yet had to go down the line for illness, injury or wounds.

Cuffnotes from Ortona:

A sign at a point near town read: "Out of bounds. In full view of enemy. Your first view may be your last."

They are telling a story here of a British war correspondent's driver who spotted a typewriter in rubble beside a smashed anti-tank gun on one of Ortona's main streets. He picked it up and the gun fired a shell which blew a hole in a building across the street. The moral is there are still booby traps in Ortona....

Moves: Maj. Frank Schmidlin of Kingston, Ont., second in command of a tank regiment, is returning to Canada to an appointment at the War Staff College in his home city ... Maj. Clem Dick of Toronto is going to Haifa as first Canadian representative at a Middle East Staff College.

Isle Of Man Wants Home Rule

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Jan. 28 — (CP) — It is time, griped the Parliament of the Isle of Man, that "that island across the water" came to recognize the need for a greater measure of Home Rule for the 50,000 people who live on these 227 square miles of land in the Irish Sea.

To the Government of "that island"—Britain—the House of Keys agreed unanimously and strongly to direct a petition asking an amendment to a constitution which, the speaker declared, comes of "a theory of government not much different in its application to the Isle of Man than that applied by Germany to the occupied countries."

The House of Keys would vest powers over finance and appointments now held by Lieut.-Governor Vice-Admiral Lord Granville in an executive committee appointed by Tynwald, the Legislature, with the Governor as President. They would reserve most seats of the committee for members of their own, Lower, House.

As the Isle is governed to-day, the power lies chiefly in the hands of the Lieutenant-Governor.

The Isle of Man has its own Legislature, called the Tynwald, which consists of two branches, the Lieutenant-Governor and Council and House of Keys.

The Council consists of the Lieutenant-Governor, a bishop, two judges or "deemsters," the Attorney-General, two members appointed by the Governor and four by the House of Keys. The Lower House has 24 members elected by popular vot.

The franchise is weighted on the side of property by plural voting. A third of the electors return two-thirds of the members.

Regret at the death of George Ridley, M.P., was general.....Succeeding him as party head is Ellen Wilkinson, M.P.....

Reported due for promotion is Miss Megan Lloyd George, daughter of the Prime Minister of the First Great War. She is expected to be the first woman elected head of the Welsh Parliamentary Party ....A fluent Welsh linguist, Miss Lloyd George will have to step into leadership of the demand for a Welsh office and Secretary of State under a system similar to that for Scotland. The demand has been referred by Prime Minister Winston Churchill to a committee of Cabinet members for examination.

A day after he gave a speech, a Cabinet minister received a cable from Prime Minister Churchill then on the danger list, sharply criticizing some of his statements. Next day came another cable. It said: "As a whole it was a good speech. Don't take yesterday's note to heart."

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I D A or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid, and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

Allies Ready To Storm Vital Roads

36 Nazi Planes Shot Down In 1 Day Fight

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALGIERS, Jan. 29—(AP).—Allied beachhead troops, striking toward the Appian Way and the main rail line from the Cassino front have advanced to within light artillery range of Cisterna astride both arteries 14 miles northeast of Anzio, it was announced today.

At the same time other Allied forces pushing north from Anzio up the Anziate Road captured a bridge two miles beyond Carroceto where British troops routed a German unit Thursday. This Allied force was about 19 miles southeast of Rome, and 12 miles north of Anzio.

The Germans launched heavy air attacks against shipping on the beachhead yesterday and again suffered badly at the hands of the Allied air forces which shot down 21 enemy planes over the area.

Allies Lose 5.

Fourteen other planes were shot down during a heavy bomber raid on Ferrara. The day's total bag was 36 Nazi aircraft for a loss of five Allied planes.

Violent fighting raged north of Cassino where American tanks and infantry hacked out gains against fierce opposition and repeated counter-attacks. Farther north, French troops seized two hills north of Belvedere Mountain and smashed down three German counter-thrusts.

A communique said that during the "heavy and accurate" bombardment of the Germans in the Anzio sector by British warships a train moving up supplies "was cut in half by a direct hit." The town of Formia, on the Gulf of Gaeta to the south, also was bombarded and traffic on a coast road disrupted. The British warships also shelled Geramn batteries in the Anzio sector.

Out of Range.

The Navy said the Germans now were so far back from the beachhead that they are out of range of destroyers which fire between seven and eight miles, but within reach of cruiser guns.

Canadian units of the 8th Army have made a slight advance along the 8th Army's sector of the Italian front. The gain was in the vicinity of Orsogna, some 12 miles from the Adriatic coast and southwest of Ortona which the Canadians captured last month.

This was the first report that Canadians were in action near Orsogna, but with the announcement from Ottawa that Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's Canadian Army Corps is in the front an expansion of the

Jap Neglect Casts Pall Over Ottawa

Halifax Speech Criticised As House Opens

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 29—(CP)—House of Commons members who on Thursday heard throne speech forecasts of a rosy new age of social security yesterday sat in silence as Prime Minister Mackenzie King told them of Japanese neglect of Canadian fighting men held prisoner in the Orient.

Mr. King spoke of some 1,000 Canadians transferred to Japan from Hong Kong, where they had been taken prisoner on Christmas Day, 1941, and 500 to 600 still held captive in the former British naval base.

He said the prisoners still at Hong Kong appeared to be suffering more from neglect than mistreatment such as that reported, in horrifying detail, being meted out to United States captives in the Philippines.

Government efforts to obtain information about Canadian prisoners, to send them adequate supplies and mail, to have action follow protests by a neutral power, and to have reports made on conditions in prison camps all had been largely thwarted by the Japanese, said the Prime Minister.

Horrible Action

Mr. King said that reports of atrocities committed by the Japanese against Allied prisoners of war are "so horrible and overwhelming as to be almost incredible."

There were no reports on the prisoners in Japan but it was believed they received better treatment than those at Hong Kong, the Prime Minister said.

He closed his statement with the declaration that the responsibility for inhuman treatment of prisoners rests with the government at Tokyo and added:

"This guilt will not be forgotten."

The grim anxiety of war overshadowed what is usually one of the House's happier days in any session, with the mover and seconder of the Address in Reply to the Throne Speech having precedence over other speakers.

Lieut. L. D. Tremblay (LA-Dorchester), the mover, and Capt. Walter Tucker (L-Rosthern), seconder, both had praise for the proposed social security program outlined in the throne speech, including family allowances, steps to prevent mass unemployment and aid agriculture.

Both spoke of the recent propos-

800 Heavy American Planes Attack Frankfurt in Daylight

By GLADWIN HILL—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 29—(AP)—Berlin smoked and burned anew today from the second heavy R.A.F. - R.C.A.F. raid in a row last night, an assault that was followed up today by an attack by more than 800 American four-engined bombers on the Nazi industrial city of Frankfurt. Immediate details of perhaps the heaviest daylight blow in aerial warfare were lacking, and the Nazis clamped a tight censorship on details of the terrible new damage to Berlin as reports from Sweden said the capital's evacuation was planned.

Forty-seven bombers did not return from the Berlin and other night blows — the heaviest R.A.F. loss in the 72-night battle to erase Berlin but less than the losses of some of the earlier attacks on the capital.

Many hundreds of tons of shattering explosives and fire bombs thundered down on Berlin already flaming in a score of places from Thursday night's massive 1,500-ton attack.

Although the Air Ministry's communique gave few details, there was little doubt this second successive assault in the mopping operations against the battered and torn city was a paralyzing blow.

Huns Admit Damage

Nazis sources themselves acknowledged "very large damage."

Travellers reaching Sweden, apparently even before last night's terrific blow, said women and children were pouring from the apparently-doomed city and that the capital's complete evacuation was planned.

The German-dominated Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau said tersely that "details of the huge raid are not allowed to be published."

One Berlin broadcast asserted that "as in the previous night, bombs were dropped indiscriminatly on residential areas of the Reich capital. The sky was heavily clouded and visibility was extremely bad. German night fighters in fierce air combats brought down 40 enemy terror bombers."

Frankfurt, the city of 500,000 population which was the target of the heavy daylight American attack, is the site of important synthetic oil plants, refineries and Germany's largest automobile works. It also is the headquarters of the I.G. Farben Chemical Trust. It was also bombed by the American Air Force October 4 and by the R.A.F. in a night raid December 20.

The R.A.F.'s loss in last night's 113th heavy blow at Berlin since the all-out campaign began November 18 was 11 under the record loss of 58 in the August 23 attack on the capital.

Cost 389 Bombers.

Escaped Prisoners Aid Saboteurs In Rome Make Darkness A Nightmare For Gestapo

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 29 (AP)—Numerous escaped British and American prisoners of war are hiding in Rome and working with the Italian underground in a campaign of sabotage since Allied troops landed south of the Italian capital, it was reported today.

A Swedish businessman who left Rome three days ago said the escaped prisoners hide during the day and at night help destroy communications and make the hours of darkness a nightmare for the Germans. Between 5,000 and 10,000 Gestapo men are working with Italian informers trying to ferret them out, he said.

The Italian capital was described as a scene of excited discussion and wild rumor since the landing at Nettuno, but German censorship is keeping the citizens pretty much in the dark.

The population is estimated to have swelled by 100,000 or 200,000 by Italians swarming into the city to escape the battle areas.

At night the streets reverberate to the sounds of gunfire and bombs and the work of saboteurs.

He estimated 25,000 German troops were stationed in Rome.

Post-War Planning Survey Gets Underway At Kitchener

By VIC McKENTY

KITCHENER, Jan. 29—(CP).—Foresight is closely aligned with logic and it is on the basis of that assumption that the Kitchener-Waterloo survey for post-war planning, the first of its kind undertaken in Canada, may have a far-reaching effect upon Federal Government policy in connection with financial problems and unemployment in the post-war years.

The K-W survey—a three-week study of manpower, productive facilities, purchasing power and consumer needs — opens next Monday. E. J. Shoemaker, president of the Kitchener Board of Trade, is general chairman of the survey, and Leo Henhoeffer of Waterloo is vice-chairman.

Mayors of the two municipalities —Joseph Meinzinger of Kitchener and Albert Heer of Waterloo — are honorary chairmen, and the following men head the committees: Employment, George W. Sawin; Farm Resources, Fred M. Snyder; Purchasing Power, J. R. Beaton; Public Employment, Alderman Gordon Honsberger; Publicity, Col. H. J. Heasley.

Fifty persons are serving on the committees, while the actual canvassing will be carried out by 175 to 200 volunteer workers from the two Boards of Trade as well as service club and women's organizations.

Canadian Chamber of Commerce Economists from Toronto and Montreal have assisted in organization of the survey and they will prepare a report on the findings after a study of the 2,000 or more questionnaires.

"Once this report is issued, each community in Canada has to pick up this information and carry on its particular investigation of its own volition," secretary D. L. Morrell of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce said here today.

"The success or failure of the plan depends entirely upon the co-operation given by Boards of Trade and business interests generally in each community throughout Canada. Much valuable information will be available to all Canadian communities as a result of this original survey, but if the complete picture of the Dominion's postwar possibilities is to be had many more such surveys will have to be conducted.

"The complete findings based on numerous surveys which would present the picture of a cross-section of Canada, could very well be used by governments as a guide for future policy and legislation."

Brenner Pass Railway Severed

A Bomber Base In Italy, Jan. 29 (AP)—German rail traffic from the Brenner Pass down to Bologna in northern Italy and thence to the fronts was reduced today to a trickle, or perhaps completely blocked, by new aerial blows at the junction of Verona in northern Italy.

This intersection of northern Italy's main north-south and east-west rail lines was choked with debris, twisted rails and charred freight cars.

At the same time another formation plastered the Aviano airfield, 40 miles north of Venice, shooting down 14 German planes.

Medium bombers struck at railroad bridges and yards at Orveito, Orte and Terni. Night bombers blasted Arezzo Thursday night. Fighters and fighter-bombers kept their cover over the beachheads and lashed at enemy supply lines south of Rome.

In spite of a rainstorm sky battles over the beachhead continued in violence unmatched since the last stages of the Tunisia campaign.

A total of 36 planes brought down yesterday boosted the two-day total in the air over Italy and southern France to 86 Nazi craft destroyed.

More than 100 German planes started attacking the invasion fleets landing troops and supplies at dawn and in the first six hours of day-

One Railway Remains For Germans

Trap Tightens On Nazi Troops Near Leningrad

LONDON, Jan. 29—(AP)—Troops of Gen. K. A. Meretskov's Volkhov army drove today toward the Leningrad-Pskov-Warsaw railway, single rail avenue of retreat left to the German forces south of Leningrad, after cutting the important Leningrad-Vitebsk line west of Lake Ilmen and clearing the Moscow-Leningrad trunk railway of all but one zone of resistance.

Meretskov's mopping-up operations on the Moscow-Leningrad railway, climaxed by the capture of Lyuban and four other stations on the line, won a citation from Premier Stalin in a special order of the day. Moscow said complete occupation of the railway was expected hourly with the capture of Chudovo, last German-held station 75 miles southeast of Leningrad.

Chudovo Under Fire

Stalin said the German garrison in Chudovo "is encircled and is being annihilated."

Gen. Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad army, meanwhile, had pushed down the east-west outer belt line south of Leningrad to within 34 miles of the Estonian border, the Russian communique reported, and also was deploying to the south from Volosovo and Krasnogvardeisk, capturing the towns of Repolka and Kobrino, the latter a strongpoint 11 miles south of Krasnovgardeisk on the railway to Pskov and Warsaw.

Meretskov's left wing had cut the Leningrad-Vitebsk railway in at least two place between the junction points of Batetskaya and Dno, the communique said. German forces remaining in the semi-circular arc of the Red armies thus have only one rail retreat route open—the Leningrad-Pskov-Warsaw line 50 miles to the west—and Meretskov's spearheads were plunging on to plug that gap as quickly as possible.

In his westward drive, Meretskov had captured the town of Stary Shimsk, just west of Lake Ilmen, to peril the important rail junction of Shimsk on the rail line to Staraya Russa, German base south of the lake on a railway leading west to Dno and Pskov.

Franco Advised Sever Axis Ties

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—The implication today of the Allied choking off of oil shipments to Spain was that unless Gen. Francisco Franco stops helping the Axis, other drastic blows may follow.

In effect, the action announced by the State Department yesterday told Franco that it is time for him to decide which side he wants to play with, and act accordingly.

By hitting Spain's economic system, the concerted move apparently was intended to force Franco out of the paradoxical situation where Spain has been a "non belligerent," gradually showing warmness toward the Allies as the war progressed in their favor, yet continuing to aid the Axis.

The concrete expression of Allied censure toward Spain's policy also indicated Britain and the United States no longer fear a flood of German troops down the Iberian peninsula to Gibraltar.

In the light of trends in Spanish policy, the State Department noted, the United States has prohibited Spanish tankers from loading oil for Spain pending a reconsideration of trade and general relations between the two countries.

It was learned unofficially that the forceful step was taken with full British agreement a week ago.

American People In Uproar Demand Revenge On Japs

By C. R. BLACKBURN—Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(CP).—Angry cries for swift revenge went up from American today as they grasped the latest revelations of Japanese atrocities inflicted upon Allied prisoners and many interpreted the official release at this time as an indication new and powerful Allied assaults in the Pacific are about to be launched.

Here in Washington observers sought from officials an explanation of the purposes behind the release which would bring fresh anguish to those with loved ones in the hands of the Japs.

But officials were reticent although the general explanation was that it was based upon a belief that the people should know what they are up against in the Pacific, and that there was little hope of gaining any better treatment for prisoners by remaining silent.

In some quarters it was believed the release was permitted now because the Allied authorities are convinced new campaigns against the Japanese would quickly convince Tokyo that retribution is swiftly approaching.

The reaction at the Capitol was a chorus of demands for the greatest possible effort to speed the day when those prisoners still alive could be liberated from Japanese control and their torturers punished.

Local campaigners in the current $14,000,000,000 War Bond effort immediately seized upon the atrocities story as a basis for a fresh appeal to potential investors.

But the fact the official release so closely coincided with a similar statement by Anthony Eden in the British House of Commons made it appear that the purpose behind the story was more than a move to stimulate bond sales.

There were also reports that the release was timed to anticipate a forthcoming syndicated series of stories obtained from the late Col. Wm. E. Dyess whose sworn testimony constituted a part of the government release.

The Times-Herald, Washington member of the Chicago Tribune Press Service, headed government release with the announcement that it would begin the series Sunday.

At his press conference yesterday Cordell Hull was asked if the Chicago Tribune's pressure for release of the story had prejudiced future exchanges of internees with the Japanese.

Hull said that was something he would not care to discuss.

Western Officer Outwits Nazis

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadian Forces in Italy, Jan. 29 (CP)—A Canadian with imagination turned the tide in the battle for Ortona with a trick which outsmarted even the battle-wise Germans.

He was Maj. Bill Longhurst of Edmonton, company commander of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment who, his fellow officers say, was the spearhead of the final drive to clear the town of enemy. A captain when the battle began, he was promoted major in the field "for distinguished conduct."

The Germans found in answer to every Canadian move in the early days of street fighting in the Adriatic coastal town last month. There seemed to be no choice left but to smash forward house by house, in full view of the enemy and at heavy cost.

Then Longhurst devised a plan for clearing out the enemy and at the same time keeping his own men under cover.

In brief, this is what happened. Pioneers blew openings in the walls of the top storeys of houses and in-

Chinese Troops Push Into Burma

NEW DELHI, Jan. 29—(CP)—Chinese troops have pushed deeper in the Hukawng Valley area of Northern Burma, wiping out Japanese elements fighting north of Taipha Ga, and driving back enemy units between the Tarung and Tanai rivers, a southeast Asia communique said today.

Some Chinese groups have crossed the Ahawk River, but have not yet met enemy troops.

The bulletin from Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters reported slight activity in the Chindwin Valley, and declared Japanese counter-attacks on the Arakan front of northwest Burma were repulsed in the Razabil area.

R.A.F. heavy bombers struck Rangoon Friday night, and fighters strafed Japanese troops in support of Allied forces in the Maungdaw area of the Mayu peninsula.

Marshall Tito Reports Gains

LONDON, Jan. 29—(AP)—Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today his Yugoslav Partisan forces had routed an enemy detachment in a sharp engagement near Kistanje, in Croatia, killing 250 Nazis and destroyed several tanks.

Tito' communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, also said Croatian units have cleared the right bank of the Krka river of German troops and installations.

In Western Bosnia, the Partisans are attacking German units between the towns of Prijedor, Bosansko Novi and Bihac, while in eastern Bosnia other Yugoslav forces occupied the localities of Borece and Celic, the communique reported.

Japan Remains An Uncivilized Country

Veneer Of Civilization Thin, As Revealed By Barbaric Practises

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

What explanation is there in this 20th century for the horrible atrocities which have been perpetrated wholesale on helpless British, American and Filipino prisoners of war by the Japanese, as exposed by London and Washington?

At first glance this tigerish exhibition seems inexplicable. But the answer is there clear enough—or so it seems to me—and it's this:

The Japs are barbarians — literally barbarians. It's less than a century ago that the Mikado's domains were opened to the outside world and civilization. Since then the Nipponese have made considerable progress, but their instincts remain the same as they were in the savage days of pre-historic times. That's a hard thing to have to say, but it's true. While they have a veneer of civilization, their instincts are primordial.

Nazis Guilty Too.

"But," somebody challenges, "the Germans have been committing similar atrocities. Do you also claim that they're uncivilized?"

The reply is that Hitlerite Germany — the Nazi portion of the population—has deliberately reverted to barbarism under the Fuehrer's lead.

In stating this we must note that not all Germans are Nazis. On the contrary, there are many of the elder generation who abhor Hitler and all his works, but are forced to do his bidding by the brutal Gestapo. They execute people in Germany these days for even talking out of turn.

Hitler, whom Winston Churchill has described as "this evil man... this monstrous abortion of hatred and deceit," has turned back the clock in his country to methods which make the barbarities of Attila the Hun look like the golden rule. He had to do this in order to impose his "master race" on the world by force.

War crimes will be punished, but there remains a far greater problem for the Allies. That is the inauguration of an educational program which will complete the civilization of the Japanese, and reeducate the Nazified Germans.

Dubs Japan Leper Colony

Suggests Russians Might Approach Japs

LONDON, Jan. 29 — (CP) — The London Daily Express declared today the revelations of Japanese atrocities against Allied prisoners should dispel any last doubts that Britain will hurl her full might against Japan when Germany is defeated.

The British press as a whole lashed out against the Japanese, calling them barbarians and savages and demanding retribution.

"When the Japanese are beaten back to their own savage land," said the London Daily Mail, "let them live in complete isolation from the rest of the world as in a leper compound, unclean."

The Daily Herald suggested that "delicate though the situation is," a direct approach by the Russians to the Japanese might have a chance of remedying the situation, if the Russians feel it wise to make such a move.

"Are they (the Japanese) humans?" asked the Daily Mirror, and the Yorkshire Post denounced them as "a nation of savages tricked out deceptively in modern dress."

C.C.F. To Spare Newspapers

Claims Free Discussion Essential

OTAWA, Jan. 29—(CP)—The Ottawa Citizen in a copright story yesterday quoted M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, as saying in an interview that Canadian newspapers will not be socialized by a C. C. F. government because the party feels there should be no interference with free discussion.

Mr. Coldwell said his party believes the Canadian currency, credit and banking system should not be tied to the gold standard but should be related to the economy of the nation so that goods and service produced can be distributed.

The C.C.F. would consider businesses which had become "monopolistic," such as railways, air lines, telephones, telegraphs, electric power, or meat packing and organizations which would be incorporated in a national marketing and trading plan, as those which might be considered the most urgent to be socialized after the C.C.F. took office.

Japan's Loss In January 390 Planes

South Pacific Fliers Softening Marshall Islands

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Jan. 29 (AP) — Powerful Allied Air forces, ranging 2,000 miles over Japan's conquered Island Empire, have heaped new destruction on important enemy positions, the Allied communique said today.

In Wednesday's raid on Rabaul, New Britain, more than 50 Allied bombers raced in at low level to plaster the Airfield system while a protecting cover of more than 60 fighters found the enemy willing to fight it out in the sky. Between 22 and 30 Japanese planes were shot down out of a force of about 50 interceptors.

The raid on Rabaul was the 24th in 26 days and raised enemy plane losses there to 390 during January. Allied forces, which lost four fighters in the raid, reported 60 aircraft lost during the month.

For the fourth straight day, enemy positions in the Admiralty Islands in the Bismarck Sea northwest of Rabaul took a pounding. Heavy bombers escorted by fighters poured 123 tons of explosives into the staging base of Lorengau. No air opposition was reported.

Along the coast of northeast New Guinea, American fliers bombed and strafed the enemy.

Heavy bombers raked the Japanese installations on Portuguese Timor in the East Indies and sank a 1,000-ton cargo ship.

South Pacific airmen, who have taken an important part in the Rabaul campaign, reported they have shot down 1,291 enemy planes since last Aug. 1. Allied losses were placed at less than one-seventh, or about 180 planes.

Meanwhile, Wotje, Maloelap and Mili Islands were slugged again by United States airmen who for 22 straight days have kept at the job of softening up the Marshall group.

The closing order was necessary, a spokesman said, because gallonage available to the board under Dominion Government regulations now is exhausted.

Skippers Oppose Deep Underway

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 29—(AP).— Government plans for a series of canals and locks to deepen the St. Lawrence River and a power plant development at "International Rapids" of the river were opposed by the International Shipmasters' Association.

Delegates to the Grand Lodge convention, ending a three-day meeting here, said the development would "open the Great Lakes to competition of tramp steamers of the world and would drive both United States and Canadian-owned steamers to minimum operation."

A resolution asking Selective Service to freeze able-bodied Great Lakes seamen in their jobs, previously adopted by the Buffalo Shipmasters' Lodge and presented to the convention was rejected. A new resolution was drafted and adopted by the convention, but its provisions were not disclosed.

Kiwanis Club Holds Inter-City Meet

COBOURG, Jan. 29—(ENS)—Cobourg Kiwanians were addressed by Rev. Dr. William Johnston of Eglinton Avenue United Church, Toronto, at their inter-city meeting here Thursday night. A large contingent from Oshawa Kiwanis Club was present. Frank McCallum, president of Oshawa Kiwanis was chairman of the meeting and Mayor Jack Burnet of Cobourg welcomed the out-of-town visitors.

The speaker, who was introduced by Arthur Gay of Oshawa, came from Ireland 21 years ago. He is a former Kiwanis Lieutenant-Governor and is former president of the Toronto Conference of the United Church.

"When the corners of the mouth turn down and when the corners of the mouth turn up" was the lengthy but apt title of his address.

Face Reflects Character

"You can often tell a person's character by the corners of his mouth. If they turn down he can be judged as possessing a certain amount of pessimism and defeatism. When they turn up he can be judged as tolerant and happy," declared Rev. Dr. Johnston. He pointed out that if the atmosphere was not right in the homes, the children will reflect this unhappiness through inferiority complexes and poor school marks. Dr. Johnston differed with those who thought that the world was "going to the dogs."

"When the world is in a fever something can be done to make it a newer and better place. We haven't seen our best days. I believe that a better kingdom is ahead of us. What good is the past and the present if they haven't prepared us to jump off a springboard into something more glorious," he asserted.

Better Things

He declared life had its compensations. In 25 years from now when one wanted a holiday he could jump into his plane and go across to see the nicest country in the world—Ireland"—for the week-end.

"Sometimes we have to blow things to smithereens in order to get into something bigger and better," he declared.

The speaker said that Kiwanis brings all religions, creeds and jobs together and helps its members to see good in everybody.

Work Is Keynote In Post-War Plan

MONTREAL, Jan. 29—(CP).—E. Howard Smith, retiring president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, today told its 26th annual meeting that "jobs for all is the keynote of Canada's post-war and there is no single industry that can contribute as much to this end as the pulp and paper industry."

"If the peace treaties do not seriously interfere with our regular markets," he added, "this industry will be able to continue maintaining a high rate of employment for the manufacture of its products; and, in addition, provide immediate orders from its backlog of war-deferred maintenance to the heavy machinery industries—whose transition from war to peace operations presents complex problems on account of wartime diversion of their normal production."

Driver Struck Twice On Way To Arsenal

LINDSAY, Jan. 29 — (ENS) — Arthur Goard of Woodville had two car accidents on the same morning while driving to work at the Lindsay Arsenal.

On stopping to pick up a fellow worker near Oakwood, Goard was struck by a car driven by Frank Ferguson of Oakwood, causing considerable damage to both vehicles. Goard then drove Ferguson to the Oakwood garage and while waiting to drive him back to the accident, again had his car struck by a transport truck.

the capital and other targets hit in the same night to 389.

In lives and pounds sterling, the R.A.F. has lost some 2,300 airmen and planes worth roughly around £21,750,000 ($96,780,000) in the effort to erase the German capital from the map of Europe. Some of the airmen are prisoners of war.

In last night's attack, the largest force was concentrated on the capital itself, while other formations executed what was described officially as "an extensive minelaying operation" in unspecified waters and bombed western Germany. Intruder planes shot up airfields and destroyed two Nazi planes.

The Stockholm newspaper Svenska Morgonbladet quoted a traveller arriving from Berlin for its report that full evacuation of the city was being prepared.

Women and children are pouring from the city in steady streams, the Stockholm account said, all regular public schools have been closed, and an "evacuation school" has been set up away from the flaming capital.

The 13th attack on Berlin came while the Germans were giving London its 700th alert of the war. A few bombs were dropped and caused some damage and a few casualties.

The daylight attack yesterday was carried out by heavy American bombers escorted by Royal Air Force and U.S. fighters. All bombers returned safely. Six fighters were lost.

Squadrons of the Canadian bomber group formed part of the force which attacked the German capital last night. In operations during daylight yesterday, R.C.A.F. planes shot down four German fighters, for a total of 11 in two days.

4th Minister Resigns In Argentina

MONTEVIDEO, Jan. 29 — (AP). —The Committee for Political Defence of the South American Continent dispatched telegrams of congratulations to-day to Argentina on the latter's break with the Axis as the Buenos Aires Government struggled with a crisis brought on by the action.

To the resignations of three Cabinet ministers and other lesser officials previously announced was added yesterday that of Gen. Arturo Rawson as Argentine Minister to Brazil.

While the Cabinet members quit because of pro-Axis tendencies, Rawson, always a professed friend of the democracies, took his action as a result of a dispute with President Pedro Ramirez over which was the "chieftain" in the Argentine revolution last June and whether the primary purpose of the revolt was a break with the Axis. Rawson said it was. Ramirez denied it. For three days after the revolution Rawson served as President.

(In announcing his resignation last night in Rio de Janiero, Rawson maintained again that the revolution had the aim of "reintegrating the nation in the community of her sister nations" by fulfilling her international obligations.)

Meanwhile, the Ramirez Government, implementing its action of Wednesday, decreed late yesterday that all financial and commercial relations between Argentina and Germany, Japan and Axis-dominated countries must stop at once.

While the riflemen were room cleaning, pioneers blew a hole into the next house and once one building was cleared, the soldiers climbed back upstairs and entered the next. There was never any need to go into the open, except where there were gaps between houses.

"I never saw the men keener, because they weren't in the street," said Longhurst who left Canada early in the war as a corporal. "They cleared houses from the top down. and were on top of the Germans before they knew it."

a 100 per cent survey. Householders in 10 per cent of the homes in the two cities and in the four adjoining townships will be asked to fill out questionnaires. The information obtained will be treated confidentially as far as individuals are concerned although aggregate figures dealing with any particular phase of the survey may be published.

All who are canvassed will be asked to answer questions about conditions in 1939 and 1943 and what they expect them to be in the first year after the war.

From the findings, the Chamber of Commerce hopes to learn with a high degree of accuracy what manpower, production, purchasing power and consumer needs will be in the first year after the war. The result will be that each community will know exactly where it stands and both Federal and Provincial governments can size up the situations and determine what assistance will be required from them.

Motto of the survey is: "give us the facts that will supply the jobs."

People Supreme In Parliament Ritual Reveals

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 29.—(CP).—. His Majesty's loyal Houses of Parliament this week opened their sessions with their customary demonstration that they are able to do business independent of him.

So old that the origin is sometimes forgotten, but in fact an echo of the days when the British commoners defied the supreme authority of kings, is the procedure of introducing a bill in the House as soon as the Speech from the Throne has been read by the Governor-General.

This is Bill No. 1, respecting the administration of oaths of office. It is moved by the Prime Minister, who asks leave to introduce it. The House quickly assents, gives its first reading, and it is never heard of again. The procedure simply demonstrates that the members are supreme in the matter of legislation, and that, while the King may call them into session, they make their own decisions.

A similar procedure is followed in the Senate, were the first bill is a measure "relating to railways." Leave to introduce it is given and after first reading it disappears.

Hats On: In some ways the House of Commons is like a church in the solemnity of its proceedings. But a little privilege treasured by members is their right to wear their hats. Ross MacDonald, Liberal member for Brantford city, sometimes wears his hat, but few of the others bother.

Change: Times have changed. Women have done a notable job in helping maintain the price ceiling. And so, when Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, addressed a meeting of leaders of women's organizations the other day, he started:

"Ladies — And members of the weaker sex who happen to be present."

Days of Trial Invariably Strengthen Faith in God

REV. E. R. JAMES

Jacob said: I will not let Thee go: except Thou bless me.

Gen. 32; 26.

An inspiring story from the Book of Genesis; which means Book of Beginnings. It tells of God's dealings with individuals before they became families and tribes. The book may also be called "The Book of beautiful stories," which fascinated men through the centuries. They were master story tellers in those days. Very probably they were recited at eventide as the family sat around at the tent door. They were passed from father to son and finally found their way into the Sacred Book. They tell of God's revelation of Himself according as men were able to bear it.

"Jacob was left alone and there wrestled a man with him until the break of day." How your child mind was thrilled at that midnight encounter with the unseen wrestler. As a man you see its inward meaning. It is God struggling with you in your day of anxiety, trial and crisis. Some financial failure; a long and serious illness brings you face to face with your own weakness and helplessness.

Jacob was a strong man physically as well as intellectually. Twenty years earlier he had crossed over that stream a poor man with his staff in his hand. Now he is rich and influential. He has risen from nothing. He knows he is an executive and a leader of men. But he is faced with bad news. He is returning to his old home and he sends a messenger to greet Esau, his brother whom he had deceived in those early days. "Thy brother Esau cometh to meet thee." A pause. "And four hundred men with him." True to eastern ideals the old feud has not been forgotten. Jacob sends valuable presents ahead followed by his family. He is alone. He wants to be alone to think over the problem In the still watches of the night he finds himself in the grip of a Divine Wrestler. He has met his match. Jacob is proud of his own cleverness. But now he is weak in the hands of the Wrestler. He can only cling to Him. Over and over again he says:—"I will not let Thee go except Thou bless me." Jacob's past has been far from honorable. But with all his faults he has the spark of faith, which must be developed and increased. This is the reason why he received the new name of Israel—"A prince with God." God draws near to Jacob in the day of his distress and tests him. He stands the test of perseverance. He holds on to God.

Is this your own experience? The days of trial, sickness and anxiety will invariably strengthen your faith. It may be a very small spark, but God will not quench the smoking flax. Almost unconsciously you cling to Him crying:—"I will not let Thee go except Thou bless me, O my Lord and Saviour." Then the spirtual strength enters into you.

This Scripture is written for our inspiration in righteousness.

There is that temptation that so easily overcomes you. It is your weak plank. Do not struggle against it with your will. Do not say:—"I will not do it again." The Devil is never so happy when you strive to resist in your own will. He knows some day it will crack. But fill your imagination with thoughts of God's overpowering help to give you victory. When that thought of evil enters your mind offer the prayer:—"Lord, turn away mine eyes lest they behold vanity." Let your mind be gripped with the thought of victory. You will discover you are more than conqueror through Him that loved us.

It is for this reason God became man and took our nature upon Him that He might draw near to you and struggle with you to overcome that temptation. "He was in all points tempted as we are, yet without sin."

You can truly say:—"Lord, I will not let Thee go; Thou art my Lord and my Saviour." Quietly, confidently the God-man will whisper:—"I will never leave thee nor forsake thee. When thou passeth through the waters I will be with thee; and through the rivers they shall not over flow thee. I will take thee by right hand and hold thee up. No man shall pluck thee out of my hand. Only be strong and very courageous."

I WILL SAY OF THE LORD: HE IS MY REFUGE AND MY FORTRESS. MY GOD: IN HIM WILL I TRUST.

IN FULL REGALIA—Right Rev. Bernard Griffin, who has been appointed archbishop of Westminster as successor to the late Cardinal Hinsley, is pictured in full regalia.

3 North of Ireland Families Pioneers Fairmount Church

One hundred and twenty-five years ago three pioneer families left County Cavan, Ireland, to come to America to hew out new homes in the virgin forest. These pioneers settled on the 12th Line of Cavan Township in the County of Durham in the district which later became known as Fairmount. It was here that Methodism was born in Cavan Township, and here for over 100 years the Fairmount Church was the centre of Methodism of northeast Cavan. The three pioneer families were Moses Blackstock and family who settled on the farm now owned by William Hooten; Robert Morrow and family who settled on the farm where the church is now located, two and half miles west of Scott's Corners and now owned by Walter Windrim and Hugh Meharry and family who located on the farm now occupied by William Dainard.

These pioneers in leaving the Old Country to hew out homes in the new brought with them the torch of Christianity and when settled in their new homes that torch soon kindled into a flame and all down through the years it has been a beacon light with this little church playing a most notable part in the Christian life of the community.

Mr. Blackstock was a lay preacher of considerable ability and he carried on mission work among the settlers and Indians travelling as far south as Rice Lake.

These pioneer men were used to attending service every Sunday in the Motherland and on arriving in Canada and North Cavan though without a church they continued to worship their God. Every Sunday there was a service in either the Blackstock or the Morrow homes.

Anson Green, the early pioneer preacher who was known as the saddle-back preacher, for he travelled on horseback over a very wide areas of Durham, Northumberland, Victoria and Peterborough Counties, held services regularly in the Morrow home; but it would only be once a month or often they were further apart, for this pioneer had a charge in which he had to travel 400 miles to get to all his preaching stations.

First School.

The pioneers not only thought of the religious life of the community, but they also thought of the educational, and Mr. Blackstock donated the land for the first school. The school was built on a site about 75 yards west of the Fairmount corner. For a time the school was used for Sunday services before a church was erected.

In 1868 Mr. Morrow, who was the father of the late George Morrow of Peterborough, donated the land on which the present church is built and named the church Fairmount.

Jesus Uses His Power to Aid Those Who Are In Trouble

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 30 is Mark 4:35-5:43, the Golden Text being Mark 4:40, "Why are ye fearful? have ye not yet faith?")

JESUS HAD been teaching the multitudes on the shore of the Sea of Galilee, outside of Capernaum. After the people had gone, He and His disciples got into boats and started across the sea.

"And there arose a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the ship, so that it was now full." Jesus was tired, and had lain Him down in the back of the ship and was fast asleep on a pillow.

His disciples were terrified, thinking they would all be drowned, so they awoke Him, saying, "Master, carest Thou not that we perish"? The "Lord arose and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm."

Jesus then said to His disciples, "Why are ye so fearful? how is it that ye have no faith?" But they were frightened and said to one another, "What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?"

Man Possessed by Demons

When they landed on the other side of the sea, "into the country of the Gadarenes," they saw a man who was possessed of an unclean spirit—in fact, a number of spirits. He was completely insane, and so strong that no one could restrain him. He had often been bound with strong fetters, but he broke them all, even chains, and wandered among the mountains and tombs, crying out and cutting himself with stones.

This pitiable creature no sooner saw Jesus than he ran to Him and worshiped Him, although at the same time he cried—or the demons within him did—"What have I to do with Thee, Jesus, thou Son of the Most High? I adjure Thee, by God, that thou torment me not."

Jesus ordered the evil spirits to come out of him and asked the man his name. "My name is Legion," he answered, "for we are many." The Roman Legion was the Roman instrument of oppression in Palestine. The spirits entreated Jesus to send them into the bodies of a great herd of swine that was feeding near by. Jesus gave permission, as the soul of this man was surely of more value than the swine; and the spirits entering into their bodies, the swine ran down a slope headlong into the sea and were drowned.

The owners or caretakers of the swine were frightened, and moreover they were angry about the loss of the pigs, and they asked Jesus to go away. Jesus and the disciples prepared to recross the sea in their boat, but the man who was healed came to Him and pleaded to be taken with them. Jesus, however, told him to go home and tell his friends of the miracle.

When they landed on the other side of Galilee, one of the rulers of the synagogue came quickly to Him and fell at His feet. His name was Jairus, and he said, "My little daughter lieth at the point of death: I pray Thee, come and lay Thy hands on her, that she may be healed, and she shall live."

Not all the leaders of the synagogue were Jesus' enemies, you see. This man believed and had faith. As Jesus followed the ruler, a woman who had been ill many years and steadily grew worse, came near to Him and timidly touched His garment, saying to herself, "If I may touch but His clothes, I shall be whole." At once she felt her illness leave her.

Jesus felt "virtue" go out of Him, and He turned and asked who had touched Him. The disciples, seeing the crowd around, could not answer, but the woman came, trembling, and fell at His feet, telling Him all. "And He said unto her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole, go in peace, and be whole of thy plague."

Just then some came from the ruler's house and said the little girl was dead, but Jesus said to the father, "Be not afraid, only believe." When He came to the house he said to those within, including professional mourners, "Why make ye this ado? the damsel is not dead, but sleepeth."

They laughed at Him, but, taking only the father, mother and three disciples, He went into the room and, taking the child by the hand, He said, "Damsel, I say unto thee, arise." And straightway the child walked for she was 12 years old, and Jesus told them not to tell anyone, but to get her something to eat. Truly, in this lesson, Jesus uses His power to help.

JESUS USES HIS POWER TO HELP — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Mark 4:35—5:43

By Alfred J. Buescher

After a stormy passage over the sea, when Jesus quieted the wind and waves, a man possessed of an evil spirit ran to Jesus and knelt before Him.

Jesus ordered the spirits which were tormenting the man to come out of him and to go into a herd of swine, and the swine ran into the sea.

The people who saw this were frightened and asked Jesus to depart out of their midst, when they saw the possessed man in his right mind.

Jesus went to the house of the ruler of the synagogue whose daughter was dead; He raised her and she was well. GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 4:40.

The Aluminum Investigation

When l..t Parliament was in session Mr. M. J. Coldwell, the C.C.F. leader, made strong charges of profiteering against the Aluminum Company of Canada; that company, he insisted, was making great sums out of the war, and had been indirectly subsidized and otherwise greased by the Government. A parliamentary committee, of which Mr. Coldwell was a member, has gone into the matter of the wartime activities of Alcan in minute detail, and its report vindicates the company completely; indeed, the committee felt it desirable to commend the company warmly on the splendid wartime job that it was doing for the United Nations. The only dissenting voice on the committee was that of Mr. Coldwell. He condemns the committee report as "ridiculous" and "an attempted whitewash".

We do not think that many people will be impressed by his accusations. After all, Mr. Coldwell made the charges which provoked the investigation, and he can hardly be expected to admit that he was wrong and that his scandal was a fiasco. If there are any who still think that Mr. Coldwell was right and the rest of the committee wrong, we strongly recommend that they examine the committee's findings; the figures and reports of Alcan show that they have operated all their branches, including that at Shipshaw, in an entirely proper manner, and that the Government, far from coddling them, has dealt with them quite hardly in several respects.

Mr. Coldwell's assertion that the committee conspired to protect Alcan and the Government really will not hold water; there was a Progressive Conservative member on the committee who was doubtless as interested in catching the Government out as was Mr. Coldwell himself, but he has said nothing contrary to the written report. It has long been the custom for members of committees who dissent from the majority finding to present minority reports, and sometimes these carry a good deal of weight. Mr. Coldwell has made no minority report; he has simply asserted brassily that he is right and that the rest of the committee was wrong and corrupt. It seems far more likely that Mr. Coldwell started something which he could not finish, and was not experienced enough as a politician to drop it when there was no political capital to be made of it. His persistence in this matter has not increased the reputation of his party for accuracy or for an understanding of business.

The parliamentary report does show, however, the way in which one large firm conducted as a private enterprise, has thrown all its resources into the war effort, and has accepted the stringent conditions of wartime economy. Alcan, like many another industry, is doing a good job without hope of any substantial reward. That is a form of patriotism, and we think that it deserves respect. Mr. Coldwell, in his attempts to discredit large business enterprises, persistently spreads the falsehood that they are run by greedy, unprincipled men whose only thought is private gain. Many a large industry in Canada has proved him wrong.

Singing It In English

The Brantford Expositor seems to be conducting a one-paper "sing-it-in-English" campaign against the grand opera forces of the world. We wish it every success. Opera in English is best for English-speaking audiences, and it can be very good. But we warn the Expositor that it is also hard. And at this point we may perhaps be permitted to ride one of our favourite hobbies for a paragraph or so.

The English language is a great, and beautiful, and expressive language, but it is devilishly hard to speak and sing well. Actors and singers who manage the language skillfully are rare. English is very much a language of nuance, and it contains a bewildering variety of vowel and diphthongal sounds which, if neglected, make the language sound very queer. Singers do not like nuances of vowel sounds. They like a good straightford 'ah', or 'oo' behind which they can put plenty of power, and make the chandelier rattle. Compared with English, French and Italian are simple languages to sing; even German is easier. Therefore we fear that even if opera were sung in English a large part of the text would be incomprehensible to the audience, for the singers would not, or could not, sing it clearly.

Some of the best English singing-teachers, like Plunkett Greene and David ffrangcon-Davies, used to make their pupils practise singing this sentence, "Ah, as they fare every eve, who would so talk of her son", which does not make sense, but contains a large number of our confusing English vowels. To sing it satisfactorily is a technical feat of considerable difficulty. What is more, it is a very hard sentence to yell, and when Bernard Shaw once described the performance of a famous operatic tenor as "simply a tasty form of yelling" he described much of what goes on in all operatic performances. English, when yelled, sounds ugly; Italian, yelled, sounds normal enough.

What is more, the poverty of imagination and shoddiness of emotion which damns so many operatic plots would be revealed if the operas were sung in English. This, of course, might be a good thing, and would perhaps turn a few able playwrights to the business of producing decent opera stories. But for all these arguments against opera in English we should like to hear more of it, chiefly because we think that it would raise the standard of singing. English, badly sung, is like sweet bells jangled, out of tune and harsh.

Secretary Of State For Wales

For many years the Welsh people, through their representatives at Westminster, have been trying to get an arrangement whereby distinctly Welsh affairs will be handled by a Welsh Secretary of State through a Welsh Office in Whitehall. Last November a committee representing all the Welsh Members sought an interview with Mr. Churchill, who curtly refused it; at the time the opinion was expressed that the Prime Minister refused because he felt that a matter which had been deferred for so long might safely be deferred still longer. But now we learn that the Welsh request has been referred to a committee of Cabinet members for consideration; this is a long step forward.

The desire of the Welsh people for their own Secretary is not inspired by a narrow chauvinism. Although it has long been united to England and has shown itself conspicuously loyal to the British Crown, Wales is a separate country populated by a race quite different from the English. The Welsh have their own language, their own national character and their own national culture; when they are ruled from Westminster by civil servants who know nothing about them, injustices and stupidities often happen; a Welsh Secretary would be able to iron out many wrinkles in matters intended to affect Wales, and could do his best to make affairs run smoothly. Although its land area is not great, Wales is of the highest importance economically, for in the South it provides a great part of England's coal, and in the North it produces immense quantities of meat and dairy produce; the city of London, for instance, receives practically all its daily supply of milk from Wales, as do several other large English cities.

Scotland has a Secretary to care for its affairs, and the various holders of that office have done excellent work for their native land. Wales wants the same treatment. Far from dividing Wales and England, the appointment of a Welsh Secretary would strengthen the bond between the two countries by removing causes for bad feeling between them. No sensible Welshman wants to break with the English, for he knows that such a break would be stupid from every point of view. But Welshmen everywhere do wish that the English would stop treating them as though they were exactly like the English themselves, which they most decidedly are not.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We are a strange people. We took this country from the Indians who scalped us and we have turned it over to the politicians who skin us.

Fur shipments from Alaska jumped considerably during last year and that increase does not take into consideration any Jap hides that were taken.

"Anybody who lived through 1943 shouldn't worry about 1944", says a writer. Nonsense; not only will 1944 be tougher, it will also be a day longer.

Canada may have a separate Minister of External Affairs. We are not quite sure whether the boys who are in Kiska would come under his jurisdiction or not.

Diary Of A Misunderstood Man.

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Went for a walk this afternoon in the brilliant sunshine, through the older part of the town, observing several fine old houses with walls and fences round their gardens. I am intensely curious about other people's houses, and it is only by the greatest self-restraint that I keep from peeking in the windows; there is no personal curiosity about this, and I merely want to see what sort of rooms they have and what kind of furniture they like. Rooms in which people spend their leisure hours are so characteristic; either they look exactly like the owners themselves, or they look like nothing at all; in the latter cases you can depend on it that the owners are concealing something from someone—perhaps from themselves; there are a surprising number of people who will not admit what they are really like, and their homes always have a dead, impersonal look....It is observable that old houses are built much better than modern ones, for obvious reasons of expense. Are we coming to an age when the average length of life for a house will be twenty years?

MONDAY: I see that the American Foundation For The Blind has just finished making a 'talking book' of the Bible. It takes 169 double-sided gramophone records, and plays for eighty-four and a half hours. Many books are recorded in this way, and blind people have free access to them. I must say that I should like to have a Talking Bible myself; I have never been as good at taking in things through my eyes as through my ears. If a poem is read over to me three or four times I have it memorized, but I can study it for an hour from the printed page, and still be unable to recite it. I am sure that many people have this same quirk.

TUESDAY: My head is in the dust: I am a grossly misunderstood man. The morning mail brings me a letter from a correspondent whom I shall call G.Y., (those being her initials) who does not like what I said about Clifton Fadiman a few weeks ago. But this is not my humiliation; G.Y. is as free to admire Fadiman as I am to leave him alone. But she says that my understanding of Canada would be better if I had spent more time in this country as a young man, and ventures the guess that I am an Oxford don who came out to Canada at the time of the Blitz. This—to me! Why, Madam, my ancestors came to this country in the seventeenth century, not Mayflower, but pre-Mayflower vintage, to New Netherland. There is a legend that some of them intermarried with Indians, and as a book-reviewer I carry on their great scalping tradition. I am as indigenous to this country as the murmuring pines and the hemlocks. That is why I feel free to criticize it as severely as I like; it is the newcomers of two or three generations standing who are resentful of any word which is not fulsome praise. G.Y., you have wounded me to the heart!

WEDNESDAY: I am still in a boil about what G.Y. wrote to me yesterday. She even reproaches me with my great age! I admit that I am not as young as I was. Indeed, Sir William Mulock's centenary gave me quite a start; I taught young Will in a log schoolhouse when he was just a lad; I could not have been more than ten years his senior myself. So it is clear that I am getting along. Still, 'my age is as a lusty winter, frosty but kindly," as the old bore says in "As You Like It." When my next birthday comes around I shall invite Mackenzie King to breakfast myself; we'll have whiskey and mashed potatoes....Played over some gramophone records today which were given to me for Christmas. Records stamped since the war began are likely to be made of reclaimed shellac, and they have a disagreeable amount of 'surface chatter,' as though some saboteur in the orchestra (possible the big drummer) were frying sausages all through the performance.

THURSDAY: Things seem to be looking up in the land of the free and the home of the brave. I see that the U.S. had only three lynchings last year, whereas forty years ago the number yearly was well over a hundred. I also notice that someone asked the Actor's Equity Association to tell them who was the first negro member of that group, and Equity replied that they could not say, as they did not keep records of colour. Equity is the actors' trade union. This seems to be a good idea. If the question of colour were ignored it might lose some of its present potentialities for nastiness. I admit that my suggestion might cause some difficulties. Imagine the conversations based on those in the soap advertisements which might result: "I thought my husband was white until I saw Joan's; she washes him with Sudso."

FRIDAY: Passed several hours reading Arvid Fredborg's book, "Behind The Steel Wall," about life in Berlin during the 1940-43 period. Fredborg appears to despise the Nazis because they are not gentlemen as much as for any other reason; perhaps that is because he is a Swede and the Swedes seem to be able to combine a very high degree of democracy with a keen admiration of the aristocratic principle. Certainly this idea has worked out well in their own country where the government appears to be made up of unusually well-informed and well-educated men, possessed of high ideals of honour in international relations. And yet their rulers are not usually high-born. Canada could learn a lot from the Scandinavian peoples.

SATURDAY: I think I am getting a cold; my head is full of cotton wool. This afternoon heard 'Carmen' on the radio, and reflected how hard it was to vamp a man while singing at the top of one's voice. That is the operatic problem; the singer must keep up a big head of steam all the time, while trying to appear secretive, or seductive, or consumptive. Some ingenious composer should write an opera about a group of people who were condemned by a cruel god to scream all the time; it would be an instantaneous success, and a triumph of verisimilitude.

The Case For the Veterans

The case for the veteran requires no emphasis. After this war, those who have served Canada afield and become injured in any way in so doing must be given every possible opportunity to re-establish themselves fully in civilian life. If treatment is indicated it must be forthcoming. If there remains a permanent disability, there must be effectual compensation for that, and continuing care of all those who face life with a handicap as a result of their service in the field. By insisting upon attention to such problems now much good will be done.—Victoria Colonist.

BACK WHERE HE BELONGS —By Rube Goldberg

Over Classic Ground

(NEW YORK TIMES)

IF history sometimes seems like a dream, what part of it is more dream-like than the march on Rome of the armies of a nation that wasn't discovered until Rome was more than twenty-two centuries old? Every day the map of the route looks like an extract from the classical atlas. Minturno is the old Latin town in whose marshes Marius was taken prisoner. He was to be put to death. A barbarian soldier undertook to be his executioner, but fled before the fire in the general's eyes. Velletri is the ancient Volscian settlement where Augustus was born. In "Lays of Ancient Rome" "the footmen of Velitrae threw shield and spear away" at the battle of Lake Regillus.

At Terracina, Anxur that was, are the remains of a temple of Venus, and the cathedral rests on antique columns with recumbent animals at their bases. Anzio is Horace's "lovely Antium," the city of Fortune, once a colony of pirates, a favourite residence of Roman swells and emperors, the birthplace of Nero, in whose palace the Apollo Belvedere was found. In the Middle Ages Cisterna di Roma was called Cisterna Neronis. It is supposed to be the site of Tres Tabernae, where St. Paul met his friends from Rome.

These Italian journeys in the easy chair would be equally fruitful if they followed medieval history and Dante's footsteps instead of Virgil's. For instance, Anagni, where Cicero had a villa, was the birthplace of one of the greatest of Popes, Boniface VIII.

Mr. Coldwell Is Right

(WINNIPEG FREE FRESS)

MR. COLDWELL is the first Canadian party leader to express a considered opinion on the proposals of Lord Halifax for the re-organization of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Mr. Coldwell's statement is clear, courageous and sound.

The world of four colossal power blocs envisaged by Lord Halifax would doom the human family, says Mr. Coldwell, to a third world war. In the meantime, Mr. Coldwell believes, any serious attempt to rigidify and centralize the British Commonwealth of Nations would destroy it. This is true.

Instead, Mr. Coldwell advocates a world society not dominated by power politics but controlled by all the peace-loving nations, acting in co-operation through a world league. This also is the view of the Canadian Government, and doubtless will be made clear again by Mr. King at the proper time.

Mr. Coldwell says that Lord Halifax's speech is untimely and unfortunate. He fears, and rightly, that the speech may give our allies in this war a serious misconception of the structure and character of the British Commonwealth. It may make outsiders suppose that the Commonwealth is not a league of independent nations but, in fact, an empire which, on all issues, and at all times will act together.

This belief caused great damage just after the last war when the isolationists of the United States Senate argued that the British nations possessed an unfair advantage in the League of Nations because they held six votes which, theoretically independent, would unite in a bloc on all vital issues and always outvote the United States.

That Lord Halifax has felt compelled to inject this issue into international affairs at this time may well be considered unfortunate, as Mr. Coldwell says. But if the issue posed in the speech has to be faced ultimately, if the British Government insists on raising it, then it may be just as well that it is raised now, so that the Canadian people may have plenty of time to consider it.

All Is Grist

According to a dispatch from Washington, the United States Army takes the view that the Allied cause would be weaker than it is today if Russia had not attacked Finland in 1939 and overrun the Baltic states. If this view is not based on the philosophy that the end justified the means, it seems nevertheless to imply that all is grist that comes to our mill in this many-sided war.—Sydney Post-Record.

Well Deserved

A woman in the United States reported a theft from her parked car. Thieves stole $2,500 worth of jewels, a $1,000 bracelet, 100 pounds of beefsteak and four cases of liquor.

A woman who would leave stuff like that in a parked car deserves to be robbed, and we wonder what she was doing with all that beefsteak to go with only four cases of liquor.—Thomas Richard Henry in the Toronto Telegram.

Successful Duties

Succession duties should be placed in the sole domain of the federal authority. If this transgresses upon the rights of province or state or other federal subdivision, then proportionate return can be made....We are willing to accept the postulate that the individual who acquires a competence owes a certain debt to the state in which he did so, when it comes time for him to transfer it by deed or will to those whom he designates. But he should not be made to pay twice, nor should he suffer uncertainty about the terms or amount of the payment because of the accident of residence within certain sub-federal boundaries.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

A Bible Message

And when it was determined that we should sail into Italy, they delivered Paul and certain other prisoners unto one named Julius, a centurion of Augustus' band....And when neither sun nor stars in many days appeared, and no small tempest lay on us, all hope that we should be saved was then taken away.... And falling into a place where two seas met, they ran the ship aground; and the forepart stuck fast, and remained unmoveable, but the hinder part was broken with the violence of the waves....

And when they were escaped, then they knew that the island was called Melita. And the barbarous people shewed us no little kindness: for they kindled a fire, and received us every one, because of the present rain, and because of the cold.

And when Paul had gathered a bundle of sticks, and laid them on the fire, there came a viper out of the heat, and fastened on his hand. And when the barbarians saw the venomous beast hang on his hand, they said among themselves, No doubt this man is a murderer, whom, though he hath escaped the sea, yet vengeance suffereth not to live. And he shook off the beast into the fire, and felt no harm. Howbeit they looked when he should have swollen, or fallen down dead suddenly: but after they had looked a great while, and saw no harm come to him, they changed their minds, and said that he was a god.

In the same quarters were possessions of the chief man of the island, whose name was Publius; who received us, and lodged us three days courteously. And it came to pass that the father of Publius lay sick of a fever and of a bloody flux: to whom Paul entered in, and prayed, and laid his hands on him, and healed him. So when this was done, others also which had diseases in the island, came, and were healed. (Acts 27: 1, 20, 41; 28: 1-9.)

Unconsidered Trifles

A farmer and his wife were sitting musing by the fireside one wet night.

In the morning his wife had been looking at pigs and sheep and cattle, to say nothing of machinery added to the stock since her arrival on the scene. "None of them would have been here but for my brass," she said.

"No, they wouldn't," her husband retorted, "and tha wouldn't have been here but for thi brass, either."

At a boarding house a guest was sawing away at the sinewy knee-joint of a roast chicken leg. At last, waving an arm towards a bottle of sauce on the table, near the landlady's elbow, he said:

Accidents In Army Cars

As a general rule, army orders don't mean much to civilians. But there are exceptions, and one of the most notable of these is that issued by Brigadier F. Logie Armstrong about accidents involving military vehicles. The officer commanding M.D. 3 has decided there are too many accidents of this nature and has issued a warning to all military drivers.

Frankly, we find it difficult to express fully our appreciation of the attitude taken by Brigadier Armstrong. We agree with everything in the order, and we think it might very well be copied by every military district in the Dominion. The difficulty lies in the fact that this action should have been taken long before now, and by many more authorities than the head of one military district.

We sincerely hope that Brigadier Armstrong's order becomes a model in this country. A vehicle wrecked may be a vehicle destined for the junk heap. And we noticed an item about junk heaps recently that aroused interest. The contents of a California junk-yard—in this case it was planes—were valued at $13,000. Off the assembly lines, the value of this "junk" was $13,000,000. The measurement can be applied to motor vehicles. If copied, Brigadier Armstrong's order could mean much to the Canadian war effort as well as to the personal safety of service personnel and civilians.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

Mrs. M. J. Graham, Aged 80 Knits for Servicemen

"Our men are risking their lives for us by land, sea, and air, and deserve all we can do for them", says Mrs. M. J. Graham, aged 80, 610 George Street, who is finishing her eleventh knitted scarf for servicemen. Nine of these scarves went to navy personnel, the tenth to the army, and the eleventh, held up because of a shortage of wool, is also for the army, and lacks only three inches of being complete.

Mrs. Graham, who does all her own housework, knits in the evening, and says that she does not mind the straight-ahead work scarves require. "Some people find it monotonous", she says, "but I really don't mind. I don't like knitting socks, so I feel that I am doing my best job knitting these scarves.

"These scarves" to which Mrs. Graham refers, appear to be some type of wrap-around, because they are 50 inches long, and 64 stitches in width. However, this industrious little lady says that it takes her approximately two weeks to complete one of these "knitting objectives" in her spare time.

I. O. D. E. Work

She became interested in this work in September of 1943, when her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles Graham, a member of an I.O.D.E. chapter asked her to knit a scarf for the navy. She had no particular hobby unless as she says "housework can be considered a hobby", up to that time, and so spent all her spare time knitting. She has finished ten scarves in half as many months, and only awaits sufficient wool to complete her eleventh.

In her 81st year, Mrs. Graham has six children living, one daughter and five sons, two of whom were in the first Great War. A grandson L. A. C. Leslie Graham, is in the R.C.A.F. Talking of the last war, she says that she does not believe it to be nearly as difficult as the present one, and that it was not brought home as closely to the people as it is now.

Her philosophy, ably demonstrated by her record of industrious effort, is, in her own words.

"We know it is going to be a long war, and all we can do is work and do our best in the job to which we are best suited."

ALL THE Extra VITAMINS AND MINERALS ... SHE NEEDS

Authorities say the difference between husky children and those who are poor eaters, underweight, and nervous is often simply a matter of proper nourishment, especially an adequate supply of vitamins and minerals.

But don't worry about vitamins and minerals! Children who eat 3 average-good meals including fruit juice, and drink 2 glasses of Ovaltine each day, are getting all the extra vitamins and minerals they need.

In addition to its well-balanced food values, Ovaltine adds significant amounts of Vitamins A, B_1, and D and the minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron. So, if your child is not developing normally, remember this rule:

3 good meals plus 2 glasses of Ovaltine every day.

Home-Mixed Syrup Relieves Coughs Quickly

Saves Big Dollars.

So Easy. No Cooking.

A pleasing surprise is waiting for you, in your own kitchen, when it comes to the relief of coughs due to colds. In just a moment, you can mix a cough syrup that gives you about four times as much for your money, and is splendid for quick results.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a 16 oz. bottle. Add your syrup, and you have 16 ounces of really effective cough medicine. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and children love it.

This home mixture takes right hold of a cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing. You'll say it's very satisfying in its action.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Mary Strickland Managed Skit Nite

TORONTO, Jan 29 — It is difficult to decide who was more entertaining at the Varsity Skit Nite in Convocaton Hall last night— the performers or the audience.

The promised audience participation reached such proportions that three minutes after the opening it amounted to actual competition. From then on the Battle of the Footlights was waged without quarter.

Reason for the Skit Nite—though it was obvious the irrepressible participants really needed no reason—was furnished by the International Student Service drive, which realized $1,000 through the campus sale of tags, used for admission to the skits.

The I.S.S. is an organization which assists refugee students all over the world, and is supported totally by students.

Every faculty, for better or for worse, was represented in the skits. The usual Varsity ingredients for success— imagination and noise—were present in overwhelming quantities. The air was filled with boos, hisses, cheers, paper darts, and on one occasion a lumpy, dusty mattress.

Wolf calls naturally greeted the chorus, and were given an added fillip when one chorine had trouble controlling her costume. Women in sweaters ran screaming through the aisles, closely pursued by bright-eyed men. A live rabbit was released by medical students.

It was unfortunate when the master of ceremonies, Dave Bairstow, tried to get away with some of the campus classics—the ever-ready audience chimed in with the gag line every time.

Despite the strident lack of cooperation, the I.S.S. Skit Nite, which was managed by pretty Mary Strickland from Peterborough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Strickland, was a financial success. Whether or not it was an entertainment success depended on which side of the lights you were. The audience enjoyed it.

DOROTHY DIX

NOT EVERY WOMAN A HOMEMAKER

Better for Failure to Hire House Work Done and Turn Talents to Job She Enjoys

DEAR MISS DIX—What would you do if you had the kindest husband in the world and the most adorable baby, both of whom you loved dearly, but you just couldn't make a go of your married life? I am a college graduate and was successful with my work. I am well and healthy. I love my home and want to be successful with that, but I am a rank failure as a housekeeper. I never get through with my work. I haven't any real interest in housework and the kind of interest I try to create doesn't help me, and I feel that my spirit is dead within me.

I am just a machine which isn't functioning right, and I am tired and discouraged. I have tried to work out a system. I have tried to copy other women's budgets and plans. Nothing turns out right. I am a failure. My husband's people think so. Mine think so, too, yet I love my husband and want to work up with him. What can I do?

DESPERATE.

Change Vocation to Gain Happiness

ANSWER—Inasmuch as you have made an honest and conscientious effort to be a good housekeeper and have failed at it, why not accept the fact that Nature did not endow you with domestic talents, and devote your energies to some other calling?

Not every woman is a born cook, any more than every man is a born carpenter or bookkeeper or mechanic. There are plenty of men who never acquire the art of driving a nail without smashing their fingers; who never find out what ails the automobile when it goes blooey, and who couldn't add up a column of figures at sight to save their lives, but this does not keep them from being eminent physicians, or lawyers, or making good fortunes in the grocery trade.

The men who fail in the world are invariably those who stumbled into doing things for which they have no natural aptitude — the preachers who should have been bricklayers, the bricklayers who should have been preachers, the merchants who should have been doctors, the doctors who should have been merchants, or actors, or farmers.

Whenever you find a man who is doing his job badly, who is discontented and forever talking about changing to something else; whenever you find a man who is working with his eye on the clock, with no interest in what he is doing except what he earns by it, you will always find that he is a miscast. He has the other fellow's job. He is a round peg in a square hole and he doesn't fit.

And, on the other hand, when you find a man who has found his appointed place and who is doing the work God fashioned to his hand, you will find a man who is on his tiptoes, who is alert and happy and interested, and who is always thinking of new and better ways to do his work.

Strange that we never think that women have just this same sort of reaction towards their jobs as men have towards theirs when the job happens to be housework. We think of women as being universally domestic, just naturally loving to cook and sew and clean and knowing by instinct how to do it.

But this isn't true. There are women who are born cooks and other women who are born office women. There are women who measure by the eye and season by the taste, whose bread is always light and whose angel food would win a blue ribbon anywhere. There are other women who never can cook anything that isn't a menace to life, but who know instinctively the kind of hats and gowns that other women will be crazy to buy next spring, and who are crackerjack office women who can put their fingers on anything in a filing cabinet in the dark.

So, poor, tired, discouraged housewife, vainly trying to do the work you will never learn to do well, why not go back to your old job? Have a heart-to-heart talk with your husband and ask him if he thinks that he could succeed in some calling for which he has no talent, and if he would be happy trying to do something which did not appeal to him, in which he had no real heart interest and in which he always failed.

Ask him, at least, to let you try the experiment of hiring a woman to put in your place. Let her do the cooking and washing and scrubbing while you earn the money with which to pay her outside of the home, doing the work you can do well. It will make for the good of the family. Your husband will have something fit to eat, a well-run home and a wife who will renew her youth and charm because she will be happy.

Girl Who Walked Home Still in Love

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a girl of 20 and have been going with a young man for the last two years. The other night we went riding together and on the way we had a quarrel, and the young man got so angry that he made me get out and walk home, all of five miles.

Now he wants another date and says he will try to act better. I love him dearly and believe he loves me. We have been planning our marriage for quite a while and I would be very disappointed if our dreams failed to come through. It is the first time we have ever quarreled, and so far as I am concerned it will be the last.

VIRGINIA R.

ANSWER—If you are going to marry a man you will have to yes-yes about everything to keep him from treating you brutally, you are certainly letting yourself in for domestic slavery of the worst sort. Many questions are bound to come up between a husband and wife on which they do not agree, and the wife is in a sad predicament if she does not dare express an opinion.

This young man has shown you that he is not a gentleman, that he has no idea of chivalry or tenderness or consideration toward a woman, and no wife is happy married to a man who lacks these qualities. Besides, a man who would put a girl out of his car and make her walk five miles back home because he gets angry with her will beat his wife when she provokes him.

Better a broken dream now, my dear, than a broken heart and a black eye later on.

Transports Win Close One From Generals

Transports are still unbeaten in the Ladies' Softball League at the Y.W.C.A. but they had their toughest task of the season last night in turning back Generals 16 to 10 in the hardest-checking battle of the campaign. It was the only game played as the St. John's-Normal fixture, scheduled as the second half of the twin bill had to be postponed.

Generals gave the league leaders a real argument and with a little more luck under the basket might have pulled off the upset of the season. They had the ball a lot but blew some golden opportunities while Transports on the other hand, with Beryl Dobbin leading the parade, cashed in more effectively on their scoring chances. The checking was close and hard and it was unquestionably the roughest tussle of the winter.

Transports won the game in the first half when they outscored the Electricians 8 to 2. Generals came back fighting after the rest and outscored the winners two baskets to one in the third quarter to make the score going home 10 to 6. Then the Transports went on the attack early in the last quarter to cash in on two free throws and two field baskets to go out in front 16 to 6. Eleanor Craig looped in two neat field goals for the Generals in the closing moments to narrow the gap.

The teams:

Transports, 16—Isobel Crary 2, Helen Miller 2, Beryl Dobbin 8, B. Flynn, Dot Bestard 1, Fran. Bestard, Jean Castle 1, Irene Stewart 2, Peggy Fleming.

Generals, 10—Shirley Mortimer 1, Jean Hickey, Dot Allen, Fran. Merrett 4, Eleanor Craig 4, Isobel Bullock, June Moore, Monica Lawless, Joan Rahmel.

Referee — Joe Cooper. Umpire—Jessie Morrow.

Army Hockey To Come Next Season

OTTAWA, Jan. 29—(CP)—Maj. Ian Eisenhardt, sports officer at Defence Headquarters, said today that an upsurge of interest in Dominion-wide inter-service hockey among service personnel probably will result from the recent ban on Allan or Memorial cup participation by the Canadian Army and R. C. A. F.

He predicted that next season would probably see Canada-wide inter-service leagues in full swing, and added, "the main thing, of course, is to keep hockey alive in the forces, and the Army is going to see that everything possible is done to maintain interest in the game."

Maj. Eisenhardt indicated an inter-service league might be organized in each military district, with the teams near enough to each other to obviate any interruption of military training and overcome transportation difficulties.

Army teams which have been affected by the new ruling are Ottawa Commandos of Quebec Senior hockey league; Petawawa, Ont., team of the Ottawa Senior city league; Kingston Ont., Senior Ontario Hockey Association squad; Army team in the Winnipeg city loop; Calgary and Red Deer of Alberta Senior league, which now has severed connections with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association; and the Nanaimo, B. C., team, which now drops from competition in the West Coast League.

Two More 1-A

ST. LOUIS—(AP).— After being doleful about major league prospects for the 1944 season, President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals changed his tune last night by saying he did not want to gain the reputation of being a pessimist. He talked hopefully despite the news catchers Ken O'Dea and Jerry Burmeister had been re-classified 1-A and he might wind up with only one backstop, Sam Narrow, who batted .091 in his few appearances last season.

Good Bid Tops

MIAMI—(AP). — A field of 14 three-year olds, minus the star gallopers, is scheduled to go to the post to-day in the $5,000 Bahamas Handicap at seven furlongs. The most promising entry appeared to be H. E. Jacoby's Good Bid which won a six-furlong race at Hialeah in his last appearance Jan. 21.

Jolting Jake La Motta of New York gained a split decision last night for his seventh victory in eight Detroit fights, but the 8,751 customers at Olympia Stadium thought Stocky Ossie (Bulldog) Harris of Pittsburgh was magnificent in defeat.

In fact, many in the crowd that paid $23,061 thought Harris was so magnificent he should have received the decision. An enormous howl went up after the 10th round when Referee Elmer (Slim) McClelland raised La Motta's hand.

McClelland scored the fight for La Motta, six rounds to four, and was backed by one judge, Joe Lenahan. The other judge, Sam Hennessy, said he gave the fight to Harris because of sharper punching. There was no knockdown. La Motta weighed 158½, Harris 156.

When the Canadian Government refused to permit five former members of the New York Rangers, now in the Canadian Army, to travel to New York, the proposed U.S. War Loan exhibition game in New York next Sunday was cancelled. The teams were to have been the Ex-Rangers and the Brooklyn Crescents.

A Good Offer

Although he had picked up the horse as a yearling for $2,500, Trainer G. R. Bryson at Miami yesterday refused to sell Director J. E. for $75,000 because of his prospects as a Kentucky Derby candidate. Director J.E. will get a test in the Flamingo at Hialeah Park before being shipped to Churchill Downs.

Following an operation to repair a head injury caused by a blow from a baseball early in 1940, Paul O'Dea, 24, former outfielder of the Indians, yesterday was signed by the Cleveland club of the American League as a free agent. He had been out of organized ball for some time.

Lieut. Don Budge, former amateur and pro. tennis champion, and Cadet Jack Kramer of the U.S. Coast Guard, last night staged an hour-long court battle at New York which brought $2,500,000 worth of War Bond subscriptions. Budge won in straight sets. In another match, Champion Pauline Betz of New York defeated Miss Katharine Winthrop, Boston, in two sets.

Remember When—

Canada's second Olympic hockey team, Toronto Granites, ruled as favorites 20 years ago today when they whipped Sweden 22-0 at Chamonix. Switzerland and Great Britain proved easy marks in succeeding rounds and the Canadians became champions with a 6-1 victory over United States in the final. Olympic winner since 1920, Canada relinquished the crown to Great Britain's Canadian-studded representatives in 1936.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The visit of Wild Longson to Peterborough next Tuesday night to meet Wilbur Toar Morgan in the main bout of the Tunney wrestling circus in Brock Street Arena suggests that this is the first opportunity local fans have had to see the holder of a world title in any sport perform at a time when he still was the possessor of his title. Former champs like Jim Braddock in boxing, Strangler Lewis in wrestling and so on have been here but their championships had passed on before Peterborough fandom had a chance to glimpse them. But Longson is a going concern, a real champion of the world who packs in the customers in arenas all over the continent because of his cleverness as a wrestler and his flair for showmanship that makes him one of the best box-office attractions in the history of the game. Longson is a dynamic performer. The fans everywhere go back to see him time after time because they know they can always count on him for plenty of action and melodrama. In other words he is not only a great champion but a colorful one. In his bout here Wild Bill is not called upon to meet one of the outstanding contenders for his crown but he is clashing with an ambitious young grappler who would almost give his right arm to take the title away from Longson. The fighting marine, Toar Morgan, has plenty of moxy and nerve and he is likely to rise to new heights here Tuesday when presented with this Frank Merriwell opportunity to battle the world champ in a title bout. It is the premier wrestling attraction of the season and the attendance should set a new record for the sport here.

* * * * * *

In addition to the opportunity of watching the No. 1 man of wrestling at work the fans are to have a chance of seeing one of Canada's premier grapplers perform in a semi-final, an unusual role for Earl Moose McCready. However, the Aurora farmer has consented to take that billing for the one night and he will meet an opponent who will proceed to make the half hour as eventful as possible for McCready. Al Bunny Dunlop has been matched with the veteran and that means, of course, that the Toronto strong man will try anything in his repertoire. He would like nothing better than to toss the Moose but somehow we have an idea that McCready's rocking chair cradle hold is going to claim a new victim. The preliminary bout should be interesting too for it brings together the lively Jack Larue who gave Roughhouse Hogan a mauling on the last bill and Jerry Meeker the smooth-working Indiana boy who was the victim of misfortune in his clash with Tom Zaharias.

Sunday Sports

Bill Walshe, Kingston sports scribe has been writing on the subject of Sunday sports and this paragraph should be interesting: "A daring brigade of self-appointed missionaries are campaigning for less stringent Sunday sport laws, a movement that starts every so often but seldom gets any distance in Ontario. Sunday sports were attempted in Kingston last summer, and we do not mean golf, tennis, badminton or other club games, which have always been the privilege of the privileged. We mean the ordinary team games played by the average man and boy. The Kingston Baseball Association staged city league games at Barriefield for the entertainment of the troops on Sundays, while Queen's students played Sunday softball games but the Senate stepped in and chased the students back to their rooms. Jim Coleman, Globe and Mail sports columnist, is advocating a general vote on the question of Sunday sports, which must make the original owners of the Toronto morning paper toss a few times in their graves, but not on Sundays. Saturday Night recently published an article by Kimball McIlroy on Sunday sports while the Chicago News is leading a drive for better sports and recreation facilities on Sundays. Quebec and New York enjoy all the privileges of Sunday sports, shows and other forms of entertainment, and many Ontario residents must approve considering the numbers that attended Sunday entertaiment over the borders before travel restrictions."

"It is pretty generally admitted that the golf ball shortage is going to be even more acute in both Canada and United States this coming season," writes Doug Vaughan in the Windsor Star. "New balls are almost worth their weight in gold and even repossessed pills are at a premium. Many of the golfers you talk to don't think much of the reprocessed balls but their views are not supported by Tony Longo, veteran New York pro. As Longo sees it the enforced use of reprocessed balls by the rank and file has, in a way, been a good thing for the game because it has served as a great leveler among players. As a result he predicts that at the end of the war the fairway butchers, the lungers and the chappers will step forth with more confidence than they have known since the last remembered par hole. All this, of course, provided a livelier ball cannot be produced before there is relief for Jap-infested rubber trees. "The margin of supremacy between Class A golfers and those of classes B and C has been narrowed due to loss of distance with wartime balls," says Long. "It is the long driver, not the 95-hooter who is suffering most from the reduced yardage. Fortunately for the duffer, a pre-war ball of top quality or the current reprocessed pellet make little difference in his game. He goes along with his 175-yard drives, regardless of what he's hitting."

Strange Doings

According to Chick Appel, Stratford sports commentator there is a lot of behind-the-scenes activity in junior hockey circles as the teams get ready for the playoffs. We were just wondering what the late John Ross Robertson would have thought of this paragraph from the Stratford sheet: "Action has already been taken by some junior "A" hockey clubs to strengthen their rosters for the approaching playoffs, which have been weakened chiefly through enlistments and military call ups. Galt Kists seem to have an unquenchable fount of material from which to draw military replacements, and have added Badando and "Steak" McKay of South Porcupine. The former is said to be an outstanding defenceman, while the latter is a high scoring rightwinger. Injuries to Johnny Ubriaco and Harry Kazarian are not responding to treatment as well as expected, while McArthur has returned home to Owen Sound, leaving Galt in a rather bad way. Eight of the ten clubs in the junior "A" series have been hit by induction of some of their players into the armed forces, with Oshawa Generals and St. Michael's escaping unscathed. In the case of the Irish this can be understood, because all their players are classed as student, but more enlightenment on the Motor City squad would be welcome. Surely all the Oshawa players are not rated as essential in the war industry where they are employed. If they are, then some of them must have more than the average amount of intelligence and learned the business in record time, because some of them never saw Oshawa until last spring."

Air Force teams in the Belleville area have plenty of good hockey material according to Ken Colling who writes as follows: "When FO. Patterson, of the Mountain View R.C.A.F. base, informed us that Johnny McCreedy, former Toronto Maple Leaf star had reported to the Bombers' camp on Monday he did not add that Frank Aube, formerly with the Montreal Royal juniors, was also in the Bombers' camp to say nothing of Gene Bauer, brother of Boston Bruin Bobby Bauer. Frankly speaking with the recent rulings of the R.C.A.F. pertaining to service teams confining their sport activities to garrison leagues only airmen will be posted to bases where they are most suited to the work of air force. Ambitious youths who are "washed out" in initial training schools will immediately be posted to bombing, gunnery or repair depots without being held for sports prowess. This latest regulation should tend to find many named players being posted to one of the four district R.C.A.F. bases and subsequently playing hockey in the Bay of Quinte Air Force league. McCreedy, Bauer and Aube, to team up with Dan Cowley, the veteran left winger of the great Trenton champions of 1937. At the time of writing Coach Padre Mika's Trenton sextette are leading the parade in the Air Force league."

93 Points A Game Rhode Island State Cagers Maintaining That Pace To Lead Point Makers

"Shoot and let the baskets fall where they may."

That's the basketball creed as taught by Coach Frank Keaney of Rhode Island State college and, as a result, the Rhode Island State Rams have been, and are again this year, one of the highest-scoring teams in the country.

The Rhode Island State style of basketball, predicts Coach Hank Iba, respected mentor of the Oklahoma A. and M. college team, is going to dominate the post-war game. He denies that the circus brand of basketball, as perfected by the Rams, is just helter-skelter, hit-or-miss passing and basket tossing.

"It's all a carefully worked out system. Those boys know what they're doing," Coach Iba says.

And apparently they do, judging from the scores run up by the Keaney-coached team.

Three lads who never played Keaney's type of basketball before this season scored a total of 295 points in seven games. They are Stan Pomerantz, with 120 points; Tom Baker, with 70, and Bob Shea, with 105.

Two vets on the team are Nat Federico and Ernie Calverly. The last-named was the leading scorer of the team last season as a soph., potting 346 points from his forward-centre positions. Federico didn't play much last season but did get in some Keaney coaching.

During the 1942-43 season, the Rhode Island State five made 663 field goals and 207 foul shots for a grand total of 1,533 points. This was amassed in 19 games for an average of more than 80 points a game. Biggest score last season was 124 points made against Fort Williams. The Rams recorded 121 points against Massachusetts State.

Coach Keaney is now in his 24th season as coach of the Rams. During that time his teams have won 312 games against 101 defeats.

Only two results received again this week. We are beginning to wonder if all teams are sleeping. Not one result has been received to date about the St. James' team.

The Orangemen dropped four points below the Old Sweats when they were let down from sitting on the Antiques whilst the Wardens failed to put a damper on the Old Soldier at the Legion. The stirrup pump must have been out of order.

Schedule for next week:

Upper Canada Wins First Game In 2 Years

TORONTO, Jan 29—At Varsity Arena yesterday afternoon Upper Canada College edged out University of Toronto Schools, 2-1, in a prep school game, for their first win in two seasons. Paul Hutzalak turned in a superb net-minding job for Coach Joe Primeau's winners.

The first period went scoreless, with Dave Copp of Upper Canada College drawing a penalty for tripping. Both goalkeepers were unbeatable in the nets.

U.C.C. scored the first goal at the half-way mark of the second period, when the first forward line of Joe Wright, Hugh Smythe and Dick Davidson sailed in to beat Dick Ball, Wright pushing the puck past the U.T.S. netminder. The winning goal was popped in by Smythe, with Copp making the play.

Jack Allen scored for U.T.S. on a pass from Dan Bark in the opening minutes of the third period. From then on Hutzalak held the defending champions at bay.

Hamilton Nears Senior Loop Leadership

By The Canadian Press

Hamilton Majors came to within one point of League leadership in the Senior series of the Ontario Hockey Association last night by taking St. Catharines Saints into camp 11-2 at Hamilton, the visitors continuing to hold top position in the standing by the smallest margin.

The cause of most trouble for the Saints was Jerry Davey, a reject from the St. Catharines' squad, who rifled four shots into the net and made the play for three other goals. Johnny Conick almost equalled that performance with four counters and a couple of assists while other tallies were garnered by Dillon Brady, Shillington and Robertson. For Saints, the scorers were Red Reynolds and Mundrick.

Majors led 3-0 at the first intermission, made it 6-1 before the close of the second period and scored five to the Saints' one in the closing canto.

In the Junior "A" series, Oshawa Generals won their 17th match of the season with an 8-3 win over the Kroehlers at Stratford but the latter were not outclassed as they were earlier in the week at Oshawa when the Motor City crew registered a season's record of 21 goals. With less than three minutes to go last night, Oshawa held only a two-goal advantage, then ran in three before full time. Chief scorer for Generals was Ezenicki, with three; Smith and Curry had two each and Love found the cage once. For Stratford, McKelvey, Schlisizzi and Tindal divided the count.

War Worker, 22 Wins Golf Tourney

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 29 — (AP).— Blond Marjorie Row, 22, a bookkeeper in an Anniston, Ala., war plant, gave her recipe to-day for the straight-shooting brand of golf that brought her victory in the Helen Lee Doherty Trophy tournament.

"Just relax," says Miss Row, who practised what she preached by chatting brightly with friends while defeating Mrs George E. Wilcox, of Miami, in the 36-hole finals yesterday, 7 and 6.

Although she drew the toughest opposition in the women's amateur tournament, perhaps the fastest field of the winter, Miss Row played easily in defeating three favorites in succession. She won the Michigan State title last year when she lived in Detroit.

TORONTO, Jan. 29—(CP)—Put Campbellford, Ont., on your futures book as a town which will be producing hockey players about three years hence. A service club (Rotary) is sponsoring hockey for Campbellford boys and girls, aged nine to 17. Approximately 100 boys and 70 girls have enrolled. The club has rented the arena for two hours daily and engaged an instructor, Pat Shannon, former hockey player. Hockey and skating are free to the children . . . . A supervised youth program is a great asset to any community . . . . The odds are on Campbellford to produce happier and healthier citizens than, say, the Ontario towns of Acton and Elora where the rinks are in use to store wool.

Quip of the Week

Jack (Cornwall Standard-Freeholder) Park: "Conny Dion, still starring with Detroit Red Wings, is probably the only goalie in hockey who ever parlayed a pair of flat feet into N.H.L. stardom. The pedal extremities of the Asbestos Kid are as flat as a duck's, and this had more than anything else to do with his drawing an army discharge."

Hall of Fame

The Kingston Whig-Standard has sent out a questionnaire asking five nominations to hockey's Hall of Fame. Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara named Tom Phillips, Frank Nighbor, Howie Morenz, Nels Stewart, and Eddie Shore. Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson chose F. Calder, F. Patrick, Frank McGee, Nels Stewart and Howie Morenz. Fergie, explaining choice of two whose fame was chiefly executive said Calder laid the foundations for professional hockey and Patrick revolutionized the rules.

Incidentally

Doug McCaig, former Detroit defenceman who graduated this week as an R.C.A.F. pilot, was the first N.H.L. player to get his wings. Other hockey stars who graduate with McCaig at Brantford were Norm McAtee, Wally Wilson, Murray Henderson and Arnold McDuffe . . . . Winter solved the transportation problem for some Regina golfers last Sunday. Several skated out Wascana creek to the Wascana Club, then changed to golf shoes for a round in snow-free, mild weather . . . . Butch Keeling, the former New York Rangers puck star, dug out his skates for a Toronto commercial league game this week.

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 29—(CP). — A fellow whose ability to judge ring fighters should not be overlooked took time out from his physical training duties to nominate Harry Hurst as "the finest lightweight boxer in the world."

A professional boxer, 22-year-old Cpl. Roy Ouimet of Montreal came to the conclusion after meeting Hurst, also an R.C.A.F. corporal, in several exhibition bouts here. Hurst was a leading lightweight back home.

Ouimet, P.T.I. with Canada's Thunderbird squadron, fought some of the best amateurs in Canada and Britain before turning to the monied ranks. He has won every one of his eight fights here.

Roy's brother, Jean Paul, just started amateur boxing back in Montreal and won six of his first seven battles. An older brother, Marcel, former professional wrestler and once Canadian welterweight wrestling champion, is P. T. instructor at Montreal's No. 1 Wireless School.

Professional figure skater and instructor in peacetime, LAC Nick Krilow of North Battleford, Sask., finds time over here to carry on his teachings as physical instructor at a bombing station commanded by Group Captain W. A. Jones of Vancouver. Nick cut a mean figure on the ice of skating clubs in Kitchener, Ont., Portage La Prairie, Man., and Toronto.

Another P.T. instructor, Cpl. E. E. Carson of Winnipeg, holds forth with Canada's Goose Squadron. Known throughout Western Canada weight-lifting circles, Carson was in charge of collective and therapeutic treatment at Toronto Manning Pool. Before enlisting he was physical director of the Winnipeg Y.M.H.A.

Well known in Windsor, Ont., LAC R. H. (Ray) Doumani, 23-year-old former hurler for Amsterdam Rugmakers in the Canadian-American Baseball League, is an instrument maker for the Thunderbirds....LAC Arnold Tobin, who played basketball in Toronto with Central Technical Schools, is an aero-engine mechanic with the same unit. The 23-year-old athlete helped his squadron win the R.C.A.F. overseas softball championship a couple of months back.

Another Thunderbird mechanic is Cpl. Dave Hutton, Hamilton, Ont., who played with Italo-Canadians when they won the Eastern Canada junior football title for Hamilton.

The most heated competition anywhere in the Canadian Bomber Group comes from a couple of ardent Montreal cribbage players attached to the Leaside Squadron. Flt. Lt. H. G. Phillips, the Adjutant, claims to be miles ahead of Flt. Lt. Guy Rainville, D.F.M., in this "sport" contest which has been going on for months.

Sammy Angott Beau Jack Split 10 Rounds

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (AP)—Beau Jack and Sammy Angott, the two lightweight champions of the world (in certain neighborhoods), still have their titles, a pocketful of jingle-jangle and happy prospects of future cash deposits after last night's 10-round draw before a $84,870 Madison Square Garden sell-out.

With New York recognizing the Beau from Augusta, Ga., as king and the National Boxing Association tabbing Angott as its man, none of the 19,113 customers hoped for anything more than a hint of a decision of the muddled 135-pound situation. No titles were at stake and both boys got away without loss of prestige.

The first definite move toward clearing up the problem child of fistiana will be a title meeting of Jack and Bob Montgomery in New York March 31, with Angott getting a crack at the winner with the crown on the line May 26.

Angott got away in front with a fine exhibition of outboxing the Beau but was shaken up in the second by a hard left hook to the head. Sammy was clutching and hitting with his free paw in his familiar style throughout the middle rounds as the Beau first tried to outbox then to outslug his Washington, Pa., foe.

Jack scored repeatedly with a right hand to the head and body and both men slipped down for no counts in the seventh when Angott enjoyed his widest margin.

Wobbly Bruins In 4th Place

By The Canadian Press

Assorted misfortunes continue to plague Boston Bruins, regarded before the season started as the team to beat in the National Hockey League.

Smitten by injuries to Bill Cowley, Johnny Crawford and Busher Jackson and impending loss of Dit Clapper to the armed services, the Bruins have slipped from second to fourth place in the last few weeks. Now they're faced with the possibility of playing without goalie Bert Gardiner, who suffered a fractured cheek bone when struck in the face by a stick during a War Bond game at Hershey, Pa., Thursday.

Gardiner may be unable to play tonight when Bruins travel to Detroit for an engagement with the fast-travelling Red Wings, who are unbeaten in their last eight starts.

Now only three points ahead of the fifth-place Chicago Black Hawks, Bruins need a victory to safeguard that status against the Hawks, who play Maple Leafs at Toronto Saturday and Red Wings at Chicago Sunday. The only other week-end National League game matched the league-leading Montreal Canadiens against the tail-end New York Rangers in New York Sunday.

Shades Of Guilt

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 29— (AP).—M. J. Leumas, district United States office of price administration shoe rationing officer, reported this telephone call from an irate female citizen: "A woman in my neighborhood is selling loose shoe stamps above the ceiling price. I have never paid over 50 cents for a loose stamp, and this woman I am telling you about is selling them for three dollars."

Circle Discusses Responsibilities

MILBROOK, Jan. 29 — (ENS) — Mrs. Edmund Ball was hostess for the initial meeting of the year of the Golden Links Mission Circle, the newly-elected president, Mrs. Elsie Paulson, taking the chair, and the new secretary, Betty Lunn, collecting the fees. The worship service was on the theme, "Co-operating with God for a Better World," and the story from the new study book "What Is Your Share?" told of the work of a missionary, Mrs. Brigham, in child welfare activities in China. A discussion as to individual and church responsibility followed, and the missionaries adopted for special prayer were Miss Dorothy Pearson in India, Miss Jean Stewart and Rev. William Simpson and his wife in China.

A letter from Miss Elizabeth Hawken, formerly of Millbrook and now W.M.S. visitor to the hospitals in Calgary, was given by Miss E. L. Hetherington, at whose home the February gathering will be held. The Presbyterial Circle secretary, Mrs. Franklin Bannister, gave an account of the conference for Circle members and leaders at the fall rally in Peterborough the preceding day. The motto for 1944 is "Advance," along all lines in Band, Circle and Auxiliary, and it was decided to take individual missionaries and study one from a specified field each month. In this way it is hoped to keep the slogan, "Pray, Study and Give,' in an intelligent manner.

Temperance Message.

Marguerite Murney gave the temperance message from a soldier's letter, asking for "more mail and less beer in the shipping space" and the president and Miss Hetherington volunteered to write the monthly news letter to a sick and shut-in member. A former secretary, Pte Mary Dawson, of the Training Centre, Peterborough, who has been ill, was remembered and Mary Blair will write her for the Circle.

Membership cards will be secured and given each girl as a reminder of the time and hour for the monthly gatherings, as well as of her Circle obligations, and the sending of a delegate to the annual summer school at Whitby will be arranged for if at all possible. During the social hour candy was served and a general discussion of future activities took place.

Forecasts Change

LONDON, Jan. 29—(CP)—Moscow moved last night to give the various republics within the Union of Soviet Socialist republics a voice in foreign policy and defence— a proposal that suggested the possibility of far-reaching change in the makeup of post-war Russia. The proposal has been approved by the central committee of the Communist party, Moscow radio said.

Fenelon Falls Native Passes

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 — (AP) — William T. Dewart, 68, president of the New York Sun, died at his Park Avenue home Thursday after a long illness. Cause of his death was not announced.

Dewart, a newspaper executive for many years, became president of the Sun printing and Publishing Company and of the New York Herald Company in 1925 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Frank A. Munsey.

In 1926 Dewart announced the purchase of the Sun and the New York Evening Telegram from the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Munsey's residuary legatee. The Telegram was sold the following year to the Scripps-Howard interests.

Dewart was known for his great belief in the future of the United States. A Republican, he was affiliated with a number of clubs. He was married in 1908 to Mary Louise Wheeler, daughter of Commodore Thomas H. Wheeler, and the couple had three children, William, Thomas and Mary.

Dewart was born at Fenelon Falls, Ont., and came to the United States in 1881. He attended the University of Rochester and in 1937 received a Doctor of Letters degree from Union College, Schenectady, N. Y.

Dewart received the Chevalien Legion of Honor from France in 1928, the Commander of the Order of the White Rose of Finland in 1934 and the Commendatore Order of the Crown of Italy in 1935.

McNeish Boys Given Suspended Sentence

LINDSAY, Jan. 29 — (ENS) — Court costs amounted to $44 in a case appearing in the Lindsay police court when Mrs. A. McNeish and her two sons, Gordon and Orville of Long Point were charged with stealing cordwood valued at $3 from a Bexley township school house.

Mrs. McNeish was dismissed but the two boys were found guilty and given suspended sentence. Defence Attorney, R. I. Moore, claimed that only three sticks of wood were found in the McNeish car, the value of which would be not more than twenty-five cents.

County Constable, J. A. Dixon intimated that Mrs. McNeish had tried to give him $10 to avoid prosecution but the accused lady stated that she had offered the money without thought of bribery but to pay for any damage that her sons might have done as she was unaware of what it was all about.

Association Aids Prisoners Of War

MONTREAL, Jan. 29 (CP)—The Canadian Prisoners of War Relatives Association now has "attained recognition as one of Canada's leading war services and is a National organization in the true sense of the word," Mrs. J. O. Asselin, president of the association, told its annual meeting here last night.

Mrs. Asselin, whose husband is chairman of Montreal's Executive Committee, added that "prisoners of war in the Far East still remained outside the reach of the Association."

"However," she said, 'it is our sincere hope that arrangements will soon be completed whereby regular supplies may be shipped to prisoners held by the Japanese and that our Association will be permitted to give the same service and assistance that we now give to prisoners in Europe.

PUPPET SHOW.

Attracting adults and children alike is a patriotic puppet show in the display window of the Tip-Top Tailors on George street, which is being used to stimulate the sale of War Savings stamps. President Roosevelt, with a broad Victory grin, is in the act of bouncing Tojo up and down; imperturbable Joe Stalin is performing a like service for a very dejected Mussolini; and Prime Minister Churchill is operating a switch which turns the juice on for the electric chair, in which sits a very agitated and disheveled Herr Hitler. Made in Toronto, exhibits of this type are on their way to be shown all over the Dominion.

Japanese Seize Relief Supplies

WASHINGTON, Jan 29—(AP)—Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said to-day reports of Japanese atrocities against American prisoners of war were released because further relief supplies could not be expected to reach the prisoners.

Asked if lifting of the ban on the atrocity reports means the United States Government has abandoned hope for further exchange and repatriation of prisoners, Early suggested that the question was one for the State Department, which has handled the problem through the Swiss Government.

Early told reporters:

"It might be said for publication that the time had come for the release of these factual reports, which had been carefully investigated, authenticated — no hearsay evidence contained in any of them, because we cannot expect to get further relief to our prisoners of war in the hands of the Japanese."

Kansas Editor Passes At 75

EMPORIA, Kas., Jan. 29 (AP) — William Allen White, noted editor of the Emporia Gazette, died at 4.15 a.m. today.

In ill health for nearly a year, White, 75, underwent a major operation last Oct. 20 at the Mayo Brother's Clinic at Rochester, Minn.

He wrote his last editorial for the Gazette a short time before he entered the Mayo Hospital. He titled it "The New Baby" and it concerned a new Linotype in the Gazette plant.

White returned to Emporia last November, but was unable to resume his duties and has been confined to his home since. Mrs. White, herself ailing, has been his constant companion and was with him when he died.

The editor's only son, W. L. White, who succeeded as editor and publisher of the Gazette recently, announced his father's death.

The elder White's illness began with an attack of influenza nearly a year ago when he was in New York. He returned to Emporia and continued his work, but went to Colorado for the summer. It was shortly after his return that he decided to undergo the operation in an attempt to recover his health.

White, who bought the Gazette in 1895 with $3,000 he borrowed, was the friend and adviser of Presidents and Governors. In his later years he was an elder statesman of the Republican party.

White's famous editorial, "What's the matter with Kansas?" which he wrote a year after he took over the Gazette, skyrocketed him to prominence. It was a masterpiece of sarcasm.

STANLEY V. HILL

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 29—(ENS)—The funeral of Stanley Vincent Hill, only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Hill takes place in Buffalo today.

Born in Lakefield 47 years ago, he attended the local public and high schools and then enlisted in the world war of 1914-18. After the war he was employed for a time in Toronto and then went to the United States where he has been since.

Death occurred on Tuesday evening, following an operation from which he apparently was recovering. He was well known in the village and came over with his family to spend his vacation at his father's summer home on "Tiny Hill's Island" in Lake Katchewanooka.

He is survived by his wife the former Lulu Knox of Lakefield, two sons, Jerry 13 and Donald 11; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Hill; and two sisters, Mrs. Nelson Robinson (Mary) of Rochster, N.Y., Mrs. Elwood Garbutt (Doris) of Lakefield. Another sister, Mrs. Ross Scarlett, died some years ago.

Lakefield Salesman Held On Tire Charge

Following the arrest of a number of youths who were charged in the Police Court the other day with the theft of five tires and tubes, the property of Major James McGrath, Donald Lloyd, 30-year-old Lakefield car salesman, appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning on a charge of having received the tires, knowing them to have been stolen.

Lloyd, who was defended by W. R. Philp, elected summary trial, and entered a plea of not guilty.

Neither the prosecution nor the defence was ready to proceed with th trial to-day and the accused was remanded for a week.

Bail was fixed at $2,500.

Pte. James Mahoney Wounded In Italy

A letter from their son, Pte. James Mahoney, informed Mr. and Mrs. John Mahoney, 525 Patterson St. for the first time, that he had been wounded while fighting in Italy in December.

The letter was written by Pte. Mahoney from a hospital in Italy, but gave no hint as to the injuries he has received. He enlisted with the Prince of Wales Rangers in 1942 anl later transferred to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, going overseas in September of the same year. Before enlisting he was an employee of the Raybestos.

C.G.E. Workers Continue Aid For War Victims

Throughout the past year, the Industrial Control department at the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. of which P. Killingbeck is the foreman, gave most consistent support to the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, contributing on no less than nine different occasions for a total of $155, which began with a donation of $11.47 on February 16 of that year, and winding up with another of $31.72 on December 21 towards the special donations for Christmas.

It would seem that they are out to eclipse what already was quite a good record, for today sees a start made by the same group for this current year, when another contribution appears in their name for an amount of $16.35, which comes considerably earlier than the start they made in 1943, and also is over forty per cent greater in proportion to the amount given at that time.

In direct relation to the work that the fund itself is carrying on behalf of the sufferers from air raids over Britain, this one group may surely be said to be playing a splendid part in upholding its end in this humanitarian effort, which was so enthusiastically mentioned in the latest word received from the Lord Mayor of London, in commendation of the splendid continued support given to this National Air Raid Distress Fund, by the residents of this city and district.

Another activity that is continuing its good work for the fund, is that which makes a wide appeal through the penny boxes located in various places of business, the latest of these to be listed coming from the one located at the Dominion Bank, which today gets a credit of $2.50 from a collection which included a $1 bill made there on Friday by the secretary of the fund.

R.C.A.M.C. Band Concert

The occasions that citizens get an opportunity to listen to a good band in person are all too few. One of these rare opportunities is being afforded to citizens through the kind permission of Lt.-Col. W. Baptie, O.C. the Training Centre, which allows the Band of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps to give a performance in the Collegiate Auditoium this Sunday, January 30, in aid of the fund.

Directed by Bandmaster Albert Croasdale WO. 1, this band has performed on a few occasions previously in this city, each and every appearance only serving to enlarge on the good reputation they had already gained, and from the quality of the numbers chosen, this latest appearance holds every promise of adding to the esteem in which they are already held.

The program will commence at 8:30 p.m. and will include a number of real musical gems loved by all, while variety will be afforded through vocal numbers to be rendered by Miss June Shield, A. Mus. (McGill) A.T.C.M. of Mount Pleasant.

H. L. Garner, manager of the Examiner, will act as chairman, and members of the Peterborough Women's Service Corps in charge of Miss F. Mitchell will act as ushers, and take up the voluntary offering which will come to assist the fund.

Council May Change Garbage Collections

The property committee of the council has been discussing this week the advisability of discontinuing the system of letting a contract for the collection of garbage.

"At one meeting we held this week," said Alderman Swanston, chairman, "the committee had an interesting brief by Alderman Ovens whose experience in his own business applies in a general way to the garbage problem. It contained some helpful proposals, and tended to encourage the opinion of members of the council that the city should take over collection and run it ourselves. We haven't come to any decision yet, but the general opinion is that by taking charge of this service its operation will be a direct responsibility of the council and we would be in a better position to meet the demands of the people who are paying for it. The committee certainly appreciates the assistance it is receiving from Alderman Ovens."

C.W.A.C. POSTER CUT-OUT MODEL—"The Proudest Girl in Canada," states the poster, and L.-Cpl. Elaine Miller Gibson of Rock Island, Que., who was selected as a model for the Canadian Women's Army Corps' latest series of poster cut-outs, really is. She is also very pretty—tall, and a blonde with blue eyes. She enlisted in the C.W.A.C. in April, 1942, and has been driving trucks, utility wagons and jeeps since that time, a typical C.W.A.C., serving Canada.

Rose Bampton Delights Audience In Concert Association Program

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

When Rose Bampton appeared before the Concert Association audience in the Collegiate Auditorium on Friday night her voice showed signs of fatigue and during her first group of songs she did not establish a successul contact with her hearers. She very quickly created a pleasant atmosphere, however, and her voice became warm, full and sympathetic; she aroused unusual enthusiasm, and her performance here may be counted as a triumph both for herself and for the Association.

Miss Bampton's program ranged widely over the literature of song, but she was most successful in her operatic selections and in a group of three German "lieder." Her personality and her voice are strongly dramatic, and in some of the lesser songs which she attempted, it was clear that the instrument was too good for the material. This was especially obvious in Mary Turner Salter's "Cry of Rachel," which the singer interpreted with an intensity of emotion which overwhelmed an undistinguished composition. But when her material was worthy of her, Miss Bampton was admirable.

The German group included the well-known Schumann "Dedication," which the singer treated with controlled intensity and restraint; the same qualities were plain in her treatment of the Schubert song "Whither?", and in this she used a delicacy of tone uncommon in a voice which has done its best work in opera. A similar delicacy, both in tone and interpretation, was revealed when she sang a "Serenade" by Strauss; it was curious that Miss Bampton, who could sing in this perceptitve and delicate way when she wished to do so, should have abandoned it for a somewhat artificially flirtatious manner when she sang the old Somerset folk-song, "O No, John," as an encore.

In place of an operatic aria announced on the program Miss Bampton sang "Pace, pace mio Dio," from Forza Del Destino, and it will be a very long time before any Peterborough audience hears it sung better. Clearly opera is Miss Bampton's true field; great power, a strong dramatic sense, and delicacy of expression were all brought to bear on this famous aria, and the audience was moved to continuous and excited applause. The singer closed her program with the famous "Vissi d'arte, vissi d'amore" aria from Tosca, and in this also she was brilliantly successful. As one of her encores Miss Bampton sang the "Seguidilla" from Carmen, and in this also she showed herself to be essentially an operatic singer, with gifts of charm and personal beauty most fitting to the stage and the powerful emotions of operatic music. Early in her program she sang an aria from Mendelssohn's "Elijah" in such a way as to prove that oratorio is not her strong point; it was not that she sang the aria badly—it was rather that the emotion she put into it was not suitable to its music or its subject.

Miss Bampton is a generous artist, and she sang many encores. One of them was a version of the old Welsh carol, "Nos Galan," which had been arranged by her accompanist, Frederick Bristol. Mr. Bristol is an accomplished pianist, and complimented his audience with a group of well-chosen and well-played piano solos; too often the accompanists of singers play hackneyed trifles when their opportunity comes to show what they can do by by themselves. Mr. Bristol's musicianship was valuable to Miss Bampton all through the program, and particularly in the accompaniment to her operatic numbers, which often needed power and tone approximating to that of a full orchestra; Mr. Bristol was always discreet, but never negligible.

It was clear that Miss Bampton had thoroughly won the hearts of her hearers and that her program was an unqualified success. If the Concert Association should choose to bring her here again, they would undoubtelly have to yrovide seats in the aisles to accommodate all who wanted to hear her.

Turkey Expels Jap Reporter

ANKARA, Turkey, Jan. 29 (AP)—The Japanese Military Attache in Bucharest has been jailed by Rumanian authorities on a charge of maintaining illicit radio communication with Moscow, according to a report from Bucharest.

The report said the Japanese diplomat attempted suicide when his residence was raided but was captured too quickly. Two Japanese soldiers who assisted in the operation of the secret radio link with Russia, with which Rumania is at war, were reported to have been arrested with him.

Meanwhile the Turkish government ordered the expulsion from the country of Yosikozu Oda, Japanese representative of the Domei News Agency, on the ground that he had written untruthful articles about Turkey.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, January 30.

Sunday's horoscope suggests a course of conservative, rational and well regulated conduct, lest there be clashes with superiors, employers, those in important positions or influential. There may be danger of running counter to accepted rules and regulations with costly penalties for rash acts or indulences or want of sound judgment. Steady, worthy and systematic engagements should reap moderate gains. Safeguard all possessions, good name and personal prestige.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which they may be inclined to waste their substance on unwise, thoughtless and unreasonable plunges of extravagances, possibly in speculative or deceptive channels, in which there may be temptations to defy accustomed codes, either in public or private enterprise. Severe penalties may be reaped instead of the exaggerated ideas of gain, increased finances or other hazardous ambitions. Let keen insight and sound judgment prevail, even in alluring or bedazzling circumstances. Shun all excesses.

A child born on this day, while clever, energetic and ambitious, may permit its speculative tendencies to run away with its sound judgment. Training as to conservation of funds and energies might not be amiss.

For Monday, January 31.

Monday's astrological forecast urges taking advantage of the friendly and co-operative attitudes of those in high places, both in business, public and social status. These should be cultivated, as well as those in large corporations or secret bodies, where clever plans and worthwhile ideas or campaigns may have insistent appeal. But practical and sound plans, not prodigal or flashy propositions should be developed, with wisdom and precaution. Capitalize on these.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which they will find much assistance and preferment from those in influential positions. Public or private ambitions should be soundly developed and practically worked out to present to friendly and co-operative sources for telling results. It is a time to further business, social, professional and community objective through influential persons.

A child born on this day should rise in life through influence, good will and honest effort, with cleverness and sagacity as leverage to this end.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

NORWAY'S UNDERGROUND—This picture smuggled out of Norway, shows the wreck of a German military train on the Drammen-Mjondalen railroad not far from Oslo. A large number of Germans were killed and wounded. Five innocent hostages from the towns of Drammen and Mjondalen were shot in "punishment" for the alleged crime.

Just when attendance at the Blood Donors Clinic had been showing an upward trend for a few weeks, it took a sudden drop on Wednesday to 65 again, at a time when a lower number of donors, must be avoided.

Gen. D. Eisenhower in a recent appeal for more blood plasma said that the blood bank in Great Britain had been seriously depleted and that a new supply was needed urgently. LONDON, Jan. 29 (CP Cable)—R.C.A.F. overseas headquarters announced today that coastal command Beaufighters which met a new German anti-aircraft weapon during an attack on a German convoy off the Norwegian coast yesterday belonged to an R.C.A.F. squadron. A communique said one Canadian Beaufighter is missing.

The new weapon was described by FO. S. S. Shulemson of Montreal as "a rocket-like projectile which opened out in the air and had a canister attached by a cable to a parachute."

Idea Of Equality Grows In Britain

LONDON, Jan. 29 (CP Cable)—Stanley Bruce, Australian High Commissioner, said in a speech today there are still some people in Britain who resent the idea of equality of the Dominions with the Mother Country in Councils of the British Commonwealth and added, "the days of such opponents are numbered."

"The United Kingdom is the predominant partner and must continue to take the lead," he said in a Guildhall speech. "She must however recognize that the Dominions must be afforded a full opportunity in framing of policies and consultation in carrying them out."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

FINESSING BACKWARD

WE THINK of finessing an ace-queen-jack combination usually as trying one of the lower honors on the first trick, in the hope that the opponent at the left of it, who put a small card on the trick, also held the king. But that procedure can be reversed profitably, when you are playing a trump contract and hold a singleton of that particular side suit in your own hand. In this situation, there can be several factors which make it advisable to take a backward finesse, using the ace on the first trick and then leading one of the other honors toward your trumps.

North: ♠ A Q J 3 ♥ Q 9 3 ♦ J 6 4 ♣ A Q 5

West: ♠ 7 6 4 ♥ A 6 ♦ K 10 5 2 ♣ 10 9 8 7

East: ♠ K 10 9 8 2 ♥ 8 5 2 ♦ A Q 9 ♣ 6 4

South: ♠ 5 ♥ K J 10 7 4 ♦ 8 7 3 ♣ K J 3 2

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	Pass

Double-dummy defense would have beaten that contract promptly, with three immediate diamond tricks and a positive later one for the heart A. But West did not like to underlead his diamond K, for which you can't especially blame him. A sounder lead might have been a club, but that would not have made any difference. This particular West, however, picked the highly dangerous lead of the dummy's first-bid suit, his spade 7.

South decided that East was more likely to hold the spade K than West, so came right in with the A. He dared not touch hearts, as the moment he did, the defenders could see from the club holding that a try at diamonds was imperative. So he decided to seek a diamond discard before the opponents got in. To do this, he led the spade Q. When East played low, he discarded the diamond 3, assuring his contract with the loss of only two tricks in diamonds and one in hearts.

If East had covered the spade Q with the K, South would have ruffed, re-entered dummy with the club A and discarded a diamond on the spade J. East really should have covered, for if South had two spades, failure to cover would have presented the declarer a gift trick. As the cards lay, however, it made no difference.

Canadian Hero Has Served On Eight Ships

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, Jan. 29.—(CP).—When Lieut. Harold E. (Hal) Lawrence, 23, youngest Canadian naval officer to win the Distinguished Service Cross, takes up an appointment to a fleet destroyer serving in United Kingdom waters it will be the ninth ship aboard which he has served since joining the navy in September, 1939.

Lawrence was awarded the D.S.C. when he boarded a Nazi submarine in the Caribbean and forced the crew to surrender at pistol-point. The navy announced to-day that he has been appointed overseas.

Lieut. Lawrence, son of Maj. E. H. Lawrence of the Brockville, Ont., Officers' Training Centre, has been serving in H.M.C.S. Oakville, the ship in which he won his D.S.C. He first won recognition in 1941, when he was mentioned in dispatches while serving in H.M.C.S. Moose Jaw.

In charge of Moose Jaw's boat crews which helped rescue 20 merchant navy men, he was cited for "good work in the face of enemy's submarines and in picking up survivors."

Oakville, guided to the attack by an American aircraft, which dropped a flare, rammed and sank the U-boat in the area of Drake's famed "Spanish Main." Lawrence, with Petty Officer Arthur Powell of Halifax and Timmins, Ont., went aboard the stricken submarine with revolvers and ordered the crew off.

Despite a warning—later proved erroneous—that there was a time bomb in the U-boat, Lawrence went down into the conning tower to complete his mopping-up operations. The action in which Oakville sank the U-boat was disclosed by the navy in November, 1942.

als of Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, that the British Commonwealth Nations and Colonies draw closer together so they would represent, as a unit, one power equal to Russia, the United States or China, the other great Allied powers.

Looking also at the general welfare of Canadians and the post-war world were reports tabled at yesterday's sitting. The advisory committee on reconstruction presented proposals for taxation adjustments, credit facilities and surveys to adjust the Canadian economy and benefit those in need of assistance.

The National War Labor Board recommended compulsory collective bargaining and other legislation covering labor relations.

Also laid before the House was an impressive load of annual reports and other documents which have gathered since House sittings adjourned last July 24.

Graydon First

The debate on the Throne Speech continues Monday, with Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, as the first speaker. He will be followed by Mr. King. New Democracy Leader Blackmore and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, then will speak.

Lieut. Tremblay, speaking in French, said in moving the Address in Reply that Canada should not draw up any program of mass immigration until all members of the armed forces have been rehabilitated and given remunerative and useful work, and until war industries have been transformed to peacetime use.

Lieut. Tremblay said he could not understand why "certain personages from across the Atlantic" come to Canada and "lavish upon us their directives, which are indiscreet to say the least."

Oppose Imperialism

"The latest edition of these mysterious travellers appears to want to refloat the sunken ship of the Imperial Federation," he said. "If that is the case . . . . let me say as a Canadian to this distinguished but indiscreet person that in 1944 as in 1897 and 1902, that today as in the time of Sir Wilfred Laurier 'this dusty block tells us nothing of value.'"

Capt. Tucker said he advocated some form of organization to see that Germany and Japan are kept disarmed for all time to come.

Canada's place in the new International set-up should be as a member of some league of free nations and as an absolutely autonomous nation within the British Commonwealth.

If Lord Halifax in his Toronto speech had been arguing for the greatest possible consultation between free and equal nations within the Commonwealth to find ways of assisting each other, there would be general agreement with him. But the speech had been considered by some as an argument for retracing steps which Canada had taken towards complete Nationhood.

"I, for one, do not think it either feasible or wise to attempt now to turn back the clock—nor in the best interests either of Canada or the British Commonwealth," he said.

Expect New Attack

LONDON, Jan. 29—(CP). — The German-controlled Paris radio in a broadcast recorded by the Ministry of Information last night said "German military quarters are expecting another Allied landing in Italy shortly. Increased Allied naval activity has been observed."

Cassino Sector Almost Cut Off

By DON WHITEHEAD
Associated Press War Correspondent

With the 5th Army South of Rome, Jan. 26 —(delayed)—(AP)—In four days 5th Army troops have established such a strong beachhead south of Rome that the German grip on the capital is menaced and enemy troops along the main Cassino front are threatened with being trapped if they cling to their positions in the hills.

This is an optimistic view, but the manner in which British and United States troops gouged a hole in a short time and consolidated their position leave no alternative but to be optimistic.

The Allies smashed in from the sea at probably the most vulnerable spot in all the German defences in Italy and moved swiftly to take advantage of the element of surprise.

Men, guns, armor and supplies have poured across the beach in an unbroken flow and in such proportions that no one I have met has any fears that the Germans ever will be able to threaten a break-through such as endangered the Salerno beachhead.

Whether the Germans can concentrate enough force against the beachhead remains to be seen, but at this phase appears unlikely, and this feeling of confidence runs through the entire section of the 5th Army whose job it is to hold and widen the bridgehead.

Results of the amphibious landing have given the Allies many advantages. Some of them were these:—

The army advanced more than 30 miles toward Rome with exceptionally light casualties.

A strong force was able to by-pass the enemy's mountain defences and avoid a slow, slogging fight up the valley on a single front.

The move has threatened to bottle up the Cassino sector and isolate parts of at least five enemy divisions which have held up the Allied advance for weeks on the winter line.

Labor Questions Wage Subsidies

OTTAWA, Jan. 29 — (CP). — Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said yesterday in a prepared statement that a minimum basis of wages in all industries should be made effective before family allowances, proposed by the Government in Speech from the Throne on Thursday, are introduced.

Mr. Conroy said the suggestion of family allowances had been condemned at the Congress convention last September on the ground that such allowances could not be regarded as a substitute for adequate wages and that "the taxpayers of the nation should not be required to assume the obligations of industry to pay proper wage rates, and thus carry the burden of a low-wage industrial policy."

Mr. Conroy's statement continued:

"The Congress has no objection to family allowances, as supplementary to wage levels sufficient to maintain proper living standards, and an integral part of a general social security program, and is in full accord with the aim of such a program to provide equal opportunities for all children, irrespective of the size of a family.

"The first step, however, is to etsablish minimum basis of wages for all industry, and until this is done the organized workers represented by the Congress are definitely opposed to family allowances."

Highlight Rose Bampton's Career Singing At King George V Jubilee

Her contract at the Metropolitan, her first trip abroad and singing for Royalty combined to make the thrill of a lifetime for Rose Bampton, one of the Metropolitan Opera Company's outstanding sopranos, and while she has had many interesting tours since that time nothing has been able to compare in her memories with her appearance at the Silver Jubilee of King George V and Queen Mary in 1935.

A first meeting with Miss Bampton proves startling. This unusually tall, slender, auburn-haired woman, has an exceedingly deep speaking voice, which is at variance with her attractive appearance. Her interest in people and the funny things in life, are two of her outstanding characteristics.

Miss Bampton has been bound very close to Canada since she married a French Canadian, Wilfred Pelletier, well known conductor. Not only has she taken her husband and family into her heart, but their fellow citizens as well. Although both have heavy musical engagements, there are two times in the year, that are kept open, Christmas and New Year's they fly to Montreal for the French celebration, when Mr. Pelletier's parents give them a blessing for the coming year.

"That is something I would not miss for anything," she declared.

Honored By Highlanders

One of her proudest possessions is a small piece of tartan bearing the name and emblem of the Seaforth Highlanders and two soldiers' buttons, which she has carried for many months as talismans.

Four years ago, while United States was still at peace, Miss Bampton visited Vancouver on tour and gave a concert for the men of the Seaforth Highlanders, which as it turned out, was their last, for they left almost immediately for overseas. The boys were so grateful for her program that they made her an official presentation of the tartan bearing their emblem and their division. That year she carried their gift witth her right through to the end of her season, and then laid it aside with her other happy momentoes.

"But it has had an unexpected ending, which has made me feel very proud and very honored. Before I left January 2 on my concert tour again, I stuck some mail in my purse and when I got on the train I opened it and found a letter from the young Major who had made me a present of one of his buttons. He is now in Italy and he said he thought I might like to know about the men in the regiment, or at least those that are left. You can be sure that from now on, I will be writing a good many letters to the unit which has "adopted" me.

Uses German Songs

Although it has been the custom for many concert singers to delete German numbers from their programs since the war, Miss Bampton states emphatically that she has never considered doing such a thing, for such an act robs music lovers of some of the most beautiful songs the world has known.

"It is for just such freedom that the world is fighting and I have found on all my concert tours that my Geramn songs brought tremendous applause.

"I think England is simply magnificent after all she has been through and here is a little story to show what I mean. A former teacher of mine, Elena Gerhardt, left Germany many years ago and became a citizen of England, and only recently completed her 40th year as a singer before the public. Since the war began she has been spending every waking hour singing for soldiers and civilians, and her concerts are sung in German. That is a wonderful spirit. If they, who have suffered much, take that stand, can Canada and the United States do less?" she declared smiling.

For five years now, Miss Bampton has had no summer. For two years she has spent several months in South America singing, and she arrived in June just when their winter was beginning and got back in time for American winters. However, since she thinks South American audiences are the most enthusiastic she has ever sung to, she is quite willing to return.

Busy Schedule

For an opera singer, home is some place to dream about, but seldom see. From June until October, Miss Bampton was singing at the opera house in Buenos Aires. Shortly after her return she went on tour and was home for about two weeks in December when she was doing opera performances in New York. At the beginning of January she took off again, and she hopes to be home on Sunday and spend most of February there when she will do some more opera performances. Her tour resumes in March and will last until May.

One of the most important activities in the diva's life is singing for troops wherever she happens to be. Since she is travelling so much, she pointed out that it is impossible to do much war work, other than through entertainment.

"The first program I gave, I chose all light numbers like Victor Herbert and Sigmund Romberg. The soldiers gave me nice applause and then someone yelled 'what's the matter with opera? What's wrong with "Aida" and "Carmen," and they refused to let me leave until I had sung some operatic numbers, so now I stick to the songs I have been trained to sing and leave the lighter numbers to the people who are experts in handling it."

"At one canteen performance, two nights before Christmas, I had a most touching experience. After I had finished singing I was talking to the boys, when a young, fair haired soldier came up, and said 'you remind me of someone in Alaska.' I thought he was kidding and asked him who, and he replied simply, 'my mother.' That finished me and I had to beat a hasty retreat so I wouldn't start howling in public. When I returned later, I couldn't find him, and I did so want to write his mother."

Writes Letters

Since there is usually a demand for autographs, Miss Bampton began charging her fans and turning the money raised over to the Red Cross. Another part of her war effort, for which she received no publicity, but the grateful thanks of hundreds of lads overseas, are the letters she writes. Her Sundays, when she is not rehearsing, are spent in writing to the boys who have written her about her singing or asking for a picture.

"I try to write them things which I think will interest them, and their letters have meant a great deal to me."

As far back as she can remember Miss Bampton has wanted to be a singer. Her mother encouraged her to study and a high school principal who heard her sing, advised her parents to see that she got proper training. She spent five years at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia and then got a contract to the Metropolitan Opera in New York. Her favorite role used to be in "Norma," but she has now transferred her allegiance to "Fidelio." In February she expects to be singing "The Ring" series, and other favorite roles are Elizabeth in Tannhauser Elsa in Loenghrin and Seglinda, "In Die Walkure.'

Canuck Flier Gets 9th Plane

ALGIERS, Jan. 29—(CP)—Sqdn. Ldr. Albert Houle of Massey, Ont., commander of the city of Windsor Canadian Spitfire Squadron, shot down a Messerschmitt and damaged another over the Allied beachhead near Rome yesterday, it was announced today.

This brought his total of enemy planes destroyed to nine with several probables.

Leading six Spitfires, Houle broke up a formation of 30 enemy fighter-bombers before most of them could drop their missiles. Supported by his No. 2 in another Spitfire, WO. Walter Chittenden of (Rolls Ave.) St. Catharines, Ont., Houle tore into the formation, shot down the first German plane he encountered, and poured bullets into another.

many of whom were still living in log cabins, gave of their small savings to purchase materials and they all helped in the erection of the building. It was dedicated in the fall of 1858 and ever since it has been a light in the community.

From the families who worshipped in the church at the time of its dedication only four still attend, George McBain, George Hooton, Benjamin Johnston, and Thomas McIndoo. The rest are all gone either by removal or death.

In 1867 the Sunday School room was built to the rear of the church and Mr. Morrow was the first superintendent. The entire congregation took a pride in their Sunday School. It truly was the centre of religious and temperance training in the community. Everyone attended and then stayed for the church service which always followed, and in this the adults took a real interest in the religious training that the younger members of the community were receiving.

Elect V. R. Henry President Of Nature Club

At the fourth annual meeting of the Peterborough Nature Club, held in the Green Room of the Y W C A. Friday night, V. R. Henry was elected president for the coming year. He succeeds Dr. A. J. Madill, who has held the post of president during the past two terms.

Other officers proposed in the slate brought in by the Club's nominating committee, all of whom were elected by unanimous vote of the fairly large membership body present at the meeting, included the following names: F. J. Morris, honorary president; Miss Margaret Eastwood, vice-president; Allan P. Brown, secretary - treasurer; and Miss Stella Bennett, Miss Olive Armstrong and F. A. Hale, directors.

The speaker of the evening was Mrs. Carol Proctor, who illustrated with lantern slides an instructive talk on the flora and fauna of south and southwestern Ontario.

Retiring as president after holding that office for the maximum period allowed under the club's by-laws, Dr. Madill gave a short address in which he reviewed the activities of the club during 1943. Despite the bad outlook at the beginning of the year for pursuing nature studies due to the gas and tire situation, matters had been arranged with a reasonable degree of success, and three outings had been held in the surrounding district. Two of these had attracted up to 75 people.

The chairman of the Junior Committee, Miss Olive Armstrong, reported on the work of that group, and Miss Margaret Eastwood gave a report for the Social Committee, which had charge of providing refreshments for the various outings. The report of the membership committee was also heard, and the treasurer's report revealed a balance on hand as of the end of the year of $69.46.

The evening was closed with the serving of light refreshments.

All Signs Point To Nazis Destroying City Of Rome As They Did Naples, Ortona

By SYDNEY GRUSON—Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 31—(CP Cable).—Rome today lies within 20 miles of Allied arms, almost within range of heavy artillery, and soon the Germans must resolve the anxious question of the Christian world, whether they will make a battleground of the Eternal City's timeless streets, monuments and buildings.

Many people in London believe they have already decided: That they will fight for Rome and if necessary destroy it as surely as they fought for Naples and Ortona and destroyed them—and every other important village, town and city in their backtracking march through Italy.

Indications are the Germans are doing the same kind of a job in Rome as they did in Naples. They are reported sowing explosives and mining key points and utilities. Refugees from Rome have told of widescale demolitions in progress.

Militarily and [illegible] Rome is as important to one side as to the other. It is, as Marshal Badoglio said, "the head and soul" of Italy. And the same considerations govern Allied policy now as when the question of bombing Rome arose last July.
